28:20 cursing, confusion, and rebuke: The coming of God’s curse would lead to despair. hand: The curse would affect all human activities so that they would come to nothing (Ps. 112:10). The fruitfulness that came with God’s overabundant blessings would disappear.

28:21, 22 Plague refers to devastations from pestilence and contagious diseases. consumption . . . burning fever: The diseases cannot easily be identified, but they have in common a fever or inflammation of body organs.

28:23, 24 Bronze and iron represent the harshness of God’s wrath in withholding rain from His people (Lev. 26:19).

28:26 carcasses: The idea of birds eating the flesh of the dead was particularly repugnant in ancient times. The lack of proper burial was a mark of terrible disregard for the person who had died (1 Sam. 31:11–13).

28:27, 28 boils of Egypt: The disease inflicted on the Egyptians (Ex. 9:10) would now be visited on the people of God for their disobedience. If the people obeyed God’s laws, He promised to deliver them from such diseases (Ex. 15:26). Tumors may refer to hemorrhoids (1 Sam. 5:6, 12). scab: These skin diseases not only brought great distress, but also rendered a person unclean, unfit for the worship of God (Num. 5:1–4). madness . . . confusion of heart: These symptoms may indicate an advanced case of syphilis.

28:30–32 betroth a wife . . . build a house . . . plant a vineyard: The momentous events of life could not be enjoyed because of disasters and wars. Your ox . . . Your sons: Property and children alike would be taken from the people, and there would be no strength to recover what was lost.

28:35 Severe boils refers to skin diseases, such as Job experienced (Job 2:7).

28:37–43 The curses on the Israelites for disobedience were the direct opposite of the blessings the Israelites would receive for obedience. an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword: Contrast this repugnance of the Israelites with the honor promised in v. 13. lower and lower: Contrast this with the promise of v. 13; where the people of Israel would once be exalted, they would now be debased.

(Heb. arar) (27:15; 28:16; Jer. 17:5) Strong’s #779

The word literally means “to bind with a curse.” A curse is the opposite of a blessing. It wishes or prays for ill or injury on a person or an object. God cursed the serpent and the ground after the sin of Adam and Eve (Gen. 3:14, 17). Jeremiah, in despair, cursed the man who brought news of his birth (Jer. 20:14, 15). The seriousness of God’s covenant with His people is illustrated by the threat of a curse on any who violate it (28:60, 61). In the NT, Paul taught that Jesus Christ became a “curse” for us, so that we might be freed from the curses of the Law (Gal. 3:13).

⁴⁰You shall have olive trees throughout all your territory, but you shall not anoint yourself with the oil; for your olives shall drop off. ⁴¹You shall beget sons and daughters, but they shall not be yours; for they shall go into captivity.

⁴²Locusts shall ³consume all your trees and the produce of your land.

⁴⁴He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

⁴⁵“Moreover all these curses shall come upon you and pursue and overtake you, until you are destroyed, because you ⁴did not obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep His commandments and His statutes which He commanded you.

⁴⁶And they shall be upon ^vyou for a sign and a wonder, and on your descendants forever.

⁴⁸therefore you shall serve your enemies, whom the LORD will send against you, in ^yhunger, in thirst, in nakedness, and in need of everything; and He ^zwill put a yoke of iron on your neck until He has destroyed you. ⁴⁹^aThe LORD will bring a nation against you from afar, from the end of the earth, ^bas swift as the eagle flies, a nation whose language you will not understand, ⁵⁰a nation of fierce countenance, ^cwhich does not respect the elderly nor show favor to the young.

⁵¹And they shall eat the increase of your livestock and the produce of your land, until you are destroyed; they shall not leave you grain or new wine or oil, or the increase of your cattle or the offspring of your flocks, until they have destroyed you.

⁵⁸“If you do not carefully observe all the words of this law that are written in this book, that you may fear ⁱthis glorious and awesome name, THE LORD YOUR GOD, ⁵⁹then the LORD will bring upon you and your descendants ^jextraordinary plagues—great and prolonged plagues—and serious and prolonged sicknesses. ⁶⁰Moreover He will bring back on you all ^kthe diseases of Egypt, of which you were afraid, and they shall cling to you. ⁶¹Also every sickness and every plague, which is not written in this Book of the Law, will the LORD bring upon you until you are destroyed. ⁶²You ^lshall be left few in number, whereas you were ^mas the stars of heaven in multitude, because you would 28:46, 47 The disasters would be a sign that would remind the people of their disobedience. serve . . . with joy . . . for the abundance: The expected response to God's goodness was joy and a heartfelt willingness to do His will. The absence of these responses incurred God's wrath.

28:48 Yoke of iron is an expression of servitude and enslavement.

28:49, 50 The enemy nation is compared to a soaring eagle that swoops down on its prey (Jer. 48:40; Hos. 8:1). The enemy would show no compassion on the people whether old or young.

28:52-57 besiege you: Moses forewarned the people of the terrible stresses of sieges (see 2 Kin. 6:24-31; Lam. 2:20; 4:10). The horrors of siege, hunger, and deprivation would lead people to behave in ways that they otherwise could never imagine. she will eat them: Nothing could compare to the horror of a mother eating her own children.

28:58 The Hebrew words translated glorious and awesome together mean “overwhelmingly awesome.” The name of the Lord inspired awe and fear because He had abundantly demonstrated His power in both Egypt and the wilderness. The phrase THE LORD YOUR GOD brought together God's awesome majesty and His personal care for His people.

28:59-68 The following verses are a summary of all the curses that would fall upon disobedient Israel. Many are reversals of the blessing list in vv. 1-14. Other curses are plagues that the Israelites had been spared from during the Exodus (v. 60, 61). back to Egypt: This would be a tragic reversal of God's redemptive plan for Israel. God had saved the Israelites from slavery, but now God would send them back into Egyptian servitude.

not obey the voice of the LORD your God.⁶³ And it shall be, that just as the LORD ⁿrejoiced over you to do you good and multiply you, so the LORD ^owill rejoice over you to destroy you and bring you to nothing; and you shall be ^pplucked³ from off the land which you go to possess.

⁶⁴ “Then the LORD ^qwill scatter you among all peoples, from one end of the earth to the other, and ^rthere you shall serve other gods, which neither you nor your fathers have known—wood and stone.⁶⁵ And ^samong those nations you shall find no rest, nor shall the sole of your foot have a resting place; ^tbut there the LORD will give you a ⁴trembling heart, failing eyes, and ^uanguish of soul.⁶⁶ Your life shall hang in doubt before you; you shall fear day and night, and have no assurance of life.⁶⁷ ^vIn the morning you shall say, ‘Oh, that it were evening!’ And at evening you shall say, ‘Oh, that it were morning!’ because of the fear which terrifies your heart, and ^wbecause of the sight which your eyes see.

⁶⁸ “And the LORD ^xwill take you back to Egypt in ships, by the way of which I said to you, ^y“You shall never see it again.” And there you shall be offered for sale to your enemies as male and female slaves, but no one will buy you.”

The Covenant Renewed in Moab

29 These are the words of the covenant which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, besides the ^acovenant which He made with them in Horeb.

² Now Moses called all Israel and said to them: ^b “You have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh and to all his servants and to all his land—³ the great trials which your eyes have seen, the signs, and those great wonders. ⁴ Yet ^dthe LORD has not given you a heart to ¹perceive and eyes to see and ears to hear, to this very day.

29:1 The Hebrew phrase translated as these are the words of the covenant can be interpreted as a conclusion to the previous chapters or as an introduction to chs. 29–32. In the land of Moab is a reference to the beginning of Deuteronomy (1:1–5).

29:2–8 Once again, Moses reviewed the history of God’s merciful acts to the people of Israel. For a more complete history see 1:30; 2:32–3:6; 4:34; 5:1; 7:18, 19; 8:2–4; 11:2–7.

29:2–5 Great trials . . . great wonders refers to the miraculous acts of God in Egypt, the wilderness, and the land east of the Jordan. Moses pointed out that God had supported the Israelites even in less dramatic ways, such as seeing that their clothes and sandals were not worn out.

29:6 Although the people did not eat bread in the wilderness, God had supplied them with bread from heaven, manna.

29:7, 8 The winning of the area east of the Jordan (2:26—3:22) was the glorious beginning of the conquest of the land. But there was still greater glory to come—the winning of the territory west of the river.

29:9–13 the words of this covenant: The members of the covenant community included all adults, children, and strangers who had joined the Israelites, as well as those yet to be born. a people for Himself: The central purpose of the covenant was to bind two parties, God and His people, together.

29:18 Every individual man and woman was responsible to the community as a whole for his or her relationship to God. Since the entire community was covenanted to God Himself, every individual had to follow Him. bitterness or wormwood: Tolerance for idolatry and pagan practices would always corrupt the community, and therefore the covenant relationship with God.

²³ 'The whole land is brimstone, ^esalt, and burning; it is not sown, nor does it bear, nor does any grass grow there, ^flike the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim, which the LORD overthrew in His anger and His wrath.' ²⁴ All nations would say, ^g'Why has the LORD done so to this land? The Blessing of Returning to God

30 "Now ^a it shall come to pass, when ^b all these things come upon you, the blessing and the ^c curse which I have set before you, and ^d you ¹ call them to mind among all the nations where the LORD your God drives you, ² and you ^e return to the LORD your God and obey His voice, according to all that I command you today, you and your children, with all your heart and with all your soul, ^{3f} that the LORD your God will bring you back from captivity, and have compassion on you, and ^g gather you again from all the nations where the LORD your God has scattered you. ^{4h} If any of you are driven out to the farthest parts under heaven, from there the LORD your God will gather you, and from there He will bring you. ⁵ Then the LORD your God will bring you to the land which your fathers possessed, and you shall possess it. He will prosper you and multiply you more than your fathers. ⁶ And ⁱ the LORD your God will circumcise your heart and the heart of your descendants, to love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul, that you may live.

⁷ "Also the LORD your God will put all these ^j curses on your enemies and on 29:19 he blesses himself: The self-absorbed person would consider himself worthy of the blessings of God; the righteous person would live by God's grace and gratefully obey His commands.

29:20 For the memory of a person's name to be lost was considered a terrible fate in the ancient Middle Eastern culture. For God to record and remember their names was a glorious hope for the ancient Israelites (see Ps. 87).

29:22, 23 God's judgments on a disobedient Israel would be a sign of His holiness for the future generation and for other nations. Brimstone, salt, and burning are images reminiscent of God's judgment of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 19:24–29), with which Admah and Zeboiim were also destroyed (Gen. 10:19; 14:2, 8; Hos. 11:8).

29:24–26 The lesson of the faithless Israel would become known among the nations, even as the deliverance of Israel was to be known by them (2:25). The nations were supposed to learn about God's grace from Israel's example; what a shame if they were to learn of His wrath instead!

29:28 This day refers to the day of God's judgment on His people.

29:29 The secret things refers to the future, as well as the way in which the curses would come to pass. The will of God had been revealed in the Law. If these revelations were acted upon, the people would receive God's great blessing. To ignore the express commandments of God would be folly. Similarly, the Christian has God's revealed will in the Bible. To ignore that while chasing after the things God has left secret is pure folly.

30:1 When all these things come upon you refers to the blessings and curses detailed in ch. 28, particularly the curses. God allowed Moses to foresee Israel's future apostasy and God's dispersal of the people among the nations. These words should have been terribly upsetting to the people because they were spoken on the eve of their conquest of the land.

30:2–6 Not only did Moses foresee the future apostasy and captivity of Israel, he also saw Israel's future repentance and return to the land (see the Book of Ezra). This passage could also await a future fulfillment.

30:6 circumcise your heart: God Himself would work in the hearts of His people so that they would love Him (10:16). God would extend the benefits of His work to the descendants of these people. He would create a community of faith that would worship Him from generation to generation. all your heart and . . . soul: God's intentions for His people have always been for the whole person to respond to Him. Outward symbols such as circumcision were always intended by God to be marks of inner realities.

30:7 God did not abandon His principle of reward and punishment for the nations (and for the individuals) based on their treatment of His covenant people (compare Gen. 12:3; 2 Thess. 1:5–10). He would repay Israel's enemies.

For the LORD will again ^mrejoice over you for good as He rejoiced over your fathers,¹⁰ if you obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep His commandments and His statutes which are written in this Book of the Law, and if you turn to the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

The Choice of Life or Death

¹¹ “For this commandment which I command you today ⁿis ³not too mysterious for you, nor is it far off.¹² ^oIt is not in heaven, that you should say, ‘Who will ascend into heaven for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?’¹³ Nor is it beyond the sea, that you should say, ‘Who will go over the sea for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?’¹⁴ But the word is very near you, ^pin your mouth and in your heart, that you may do it.

them,¹⁸ I announce to you today that you shall surely perish; you shall not prolong your days in the land which you cross over the Jordan to go in and possess.¹⁹ ^sI call heaven and earth as witnesses today against you, that ^tI have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both you and your descendants may live;²⁰ that you may love the LORD your God, that you may obey His voice, and that you may cling to Him, for He is your ^ulife and the length of your days; and that you may dwell in the land which the LORD swore to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give them.”

Joshua the New Leader of Israel

31 Then Moses went and spoke these words to all Israel.² And he said to them: “^a*I am* one hundred and twenty years old today. I can no longer ^bgo out and come in. Also the LORD has said to me, “You shall not cross over this Jordan.”³ The LORD your God ^dHimself crosses over before you; He will destroy these nations from before you, and you shall dispossess them. ^eJoshua himself crosses over before you, just ^fas the LORD has said.⁴ ^gAnd the LORD will do to them ^has He did to Sihon and Og, the kings of the Amorites and their land, when He destroyed them.⁵ ⁱThe LORD will give them over to you, that you may do to them according to every commandment which I have commanded you.⁶ ^jBe strong and of good courage, ^kdo not fear nor be afraid of them; for the LORD your God, ^lHe is the One who goes with you. ^mHe will not leave you nor forsake you.”

30:8 The OT tends to focus on the disobedience of God’s people to His revelation. But there were periods of national faithfulness to God, and there were always individuals who were faithful.

30:10 This Book of the Law is the Book of Deuteronomy (31:24, 26). God’s blessing would come to those who obeyed the law.

30:11–14 Mysterious means “difficult.” Moses reminded the Israelites that obedience to God was not a complicated issue. not in heaven . . . Nor is it beyond the sea: Obedience to the law did not require a superhuman effort, because God had revealed the law to the Israelites (Rom. 10:6–10). the word is very near you: When God’s law was internalized by the working of the Holy Spirit, the believer loved God’s instructions and sought to carry them out (Ps. 119:97–104). The believer would obey God’s law in response to God’s love, not as a way of earning God’s love or of deserving His forgiveness.

30:15 Moses challenged the people to determine what path they would follow. One way led to life (Ps. 1:6; John 14:6) because God’s blessings rested on it (Ps. 23:6). The other way led to death and evil because God’s curses rested on it. Likewise, Jesus in His ministry challenged the people to determine what path they would take (Matt. 7:13, 14).

30:18 The emphasis on today is remarkable in this passage. Moses establishes here the best pattern for the preaching of the Word of God. Responses to God should not be delayed. Assuming that there will be a later day to respond to Him is dangerous thinking.

30:19 heaven and earth as witnesses: All of creation witnessed Moses’ instruction, his challenge to the Israelites to love and obey God, and the people’s response (32:1). choose . . . that both you and your descendants may live: The present generation’s choice would determine the direction of future generations.

30:20 If the people loved God they would find true life, because God is the source of all life. By rejecting God and His ways, the Israelites would by default choose the way of death. The people were on the verge of entering the land that had been promised them for so long. Before they made their way across the Jordan to begin their holy campaign of conquest, they needed to know what the stakes were and what was necessary not just to enter the land, but to remain in the land with God’s enduring blessing.

31:2, 3 Again Moses regretfully spoke of God’s refusal to permit him to enter the Promised Land (1:37, 38; 3:23–29). Yet he encouraged the people that God Himself would still protect them and fight for them. Instead of Moses, Joshua would lead the people into battle.

31:6 The Lord was the Divine Warrior, the commander-in-chief of Israel’s forces. He will not leave you nor forsake you: Moses reminded the people that God had promised to remain with them, to protect them, bless them, and fight for them (Josh. 1:5; 1 Kin. 8:57). Joshua used the same language to assure the people of the continuity of God’s Presence and of godly leadership (Josh. 1:6, 7, 9). Jesus made the same promise to His church (Matt. 28:20).

⁷Then Moses called Joshua and said to him in the sight of all Israel, ^a“Be strong and of good courage, for you must go with this people to the land which the LORD has sworn to their fathers to give them, and you shall cause them to inherit it. ⁸And the LORD, ^bHe is the One who goes before you. ^cHe will be with you; He will not leave you nor forsake you; do not fear nor be dismayed.”

The Law to Be Read Every Seven Years

⁹So Moses wrote this law ^dand delivered it to the priests, the sons of Levi, ^ewho bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and to all the elders of Israel. ¹⁰And Moses commanded them, saying: “At the end of every seven years, at the appointed time in the ^fyear of release, ^gat the Feast of Tabernacles, ^hwhen all Israel comes to ⁱappear before the LORD your God in the ^jplace which He chooses, ^kyou shall read this law before all Israel in their hearing. ^lGather the people together, men and women and little ones, and the stranger who is within your gates, that they may hear and that they may learn to fear the LORD your God and carefully observe all the words of this law, ^mand that their children, ⁿwho have not known it, ^omay hear and learn to fear the LORD your God as long as you live in the land which you cross the Jordan to possess.”

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Biblical Law—Public Law

Biblical law was public law, and this was an important difference from the pagan laws of the Middle East. In many nations of the ancient Middle East, the king carried the laws in his head, as they were his personal possession. He did not publish them until he was ready to give up his throne. Thus a person could be arrested for breaking a law he had never known. The laws were kept secret, even when a person was put on trial for breaking them. (There are few instances in which anyone cited the royal codes in a court case.) But in Israel, the leaders of government read God's Law to the people at regular times of the year (31:10–13). Thus every citizen could learn the laws he had to obey. Other peoples of the ancient Middle East obeyed laws because they were enforced by the royal establishment; disobedience meant punishment. But God's people were to obey His Law because they loved Him (cf. 6:5; 20–25).

in the tabernacle of meeting, that ^bI may ⁱinaugurate him.”

So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tabernacle of meeting. ¹⁵Now ^cthe LORD appeared at the tabernacle in a pillar of cloud, and the pillar of cloud stood above the door of the tabernacle.

¹⁶And the LORD said to Moses: “Behold, you will ²rest with your fathers; and this people will ^drise and ^eplay the harlot with the gods of the foreigners of the land, where they go to be among them, and they will ^fforsake Me and ^gbreak My covenant which I have made with them.

31:7, 8 With encouraging and challenging words, Moses publicly transferred his authority to Joshua (1:38; 31:14, 23; 32:44; 34:9). He is the One who goes before you: Moses applied the promise given to Israel (v. 6) to Joshua.

31:9 Moses wrote this law and delivered it: In accordance with ancient Middle Eastern practices concerning international treaties, Moses made provisions for the future reading of the law and instruction in it. The ark was called the ark of the covenant because it was the depository for the tablets of the Law.

31:11, 12 you shall read this law: Specifically, the priests were given the responsibility of reading the law and instructing the people (Neh. 8:1–6; Mal. 2:4–9). men and women and little ones, and the stranger: The Word of God was for all to hear.

31:14 The words the days approach must have brought a renewed heaviness to Moses. He was ready to die, but his heart yearned to see the Promised Land. I may inaugurate him: The Lord's words to Joshua are recorded in v. 23 (compare Num. 27:18–23).

31:15 The pillar of cloud was the symbol of the presence of God during the wilderness journey (Ex. 13:21, 22).

31:16 The phrase rest with your fathers suggests that the body of the person would be laid to rest in a tomb. After the flesh had decayed, the bones would be placed with the bones of one's ancestors. Thus the person's remains were “with his fathers.” But the phrase may also refer to the intermediate state of the soul between death and resurrection. The Lord predicted Israel's future rebelliousness, apostasy, and breach of the covenant. The expression play the harlot speaks both of spiritual adultery and physical acts of sexual immorality that were performed in association with the worship of Baal and Asherah, the gods of Canaan (12:1–5).

(Heb. chag) (16:10, 13; 31:10; Ex. 12:14) Strong's #2282

The word feast, or “festival-gathering,” is related to the verb that means “to make a pilgrimage” or “to keep a pilgrim feast” (Ps. 84:5). The Hebrews were commanded to observe three pilgrim feasts a year (16:16; Ex. 23:14). These sacred feasts were celebrated by all people and were joyous expressions of gratitude to God (2 Chr. 30:21). They included processions, dancing, and the enjoyment of food and drink (Lev. 23:40, 41; Judg. 21:19–21). God intended that Israel's religious feasts be worship events, a celebration of the joy God had given them (Lev. 23:7, 21, 24, 36). The OT prophets, however, condemned the feasts because the Hebrews were desecrating these holy convocations with sacrilegious behavior (Is. 1:12–15; Amos 5:21). Zechariah prophesied of a time in the future when all nations would keep the “pilgrim-feast” before the Lord (Zech. 14:16).

17 Then My anger shall be ^haroused against them in that day, and ⁱI will forsake them, and I will ^jhide My face from them, and they shall be ³devoured. And many evils and troubles shall befall them, so that they will say in that day, ^k“Have not these evils come upon us because our God is ^lnot among us?” 18 And ^mI will surely hide My face in that day because of all the evil which they have done, in that they have turned to other gods.

19 “Now therefore, write down this song for yourselves, and teach it to the children of Israel; put it in their mouths, that this song may be ⁿa witness for Me against the children of Israel. 20 When I have brought them to the land flowing with milk and honey, of which I swore to their fathers, and they have eaten and filled themselves ^oand grown fat, ^pthen they will turn to other gods and serve them; and they will provoke Me and break My covenant. 21 Then it shall be, ^qwhen many evils and troubles have come upon them, that this song will testify against them as a witness; for it will not be forgotten in the mouths of their descendants, for ^rI know the inclination ^sof their behavior today, even before I have brought them to the land of which I swore to give them.”

22 Therefore Moses wrote this song the same day, and taught it to the children of Israel. 23 ^tThen He inaugurated Joshua the son of Nun, and said, ^u“Be strong and of good courage; for you shall bring the children of Israel into the land of which I swore to them, and I will be with you.”

24 So it was, when Moses had completed writing the words of this law in a book, when they were finished, 25 that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying:

The Song of Moses

30 Then Moses spoke in the hearing of all the assembly of Israel the words of this song until they were ended:

- 32 “Give ^aear, O heavens, and I will speak;
And hear, O ^bearth, the words of my mouth.
2 Let ^cmy ⁱteaching drop as the rain,
My speech distill as the dew,
^dAs raindrops on the tender herb,

4 He is ^gthe Rock, ^hHis work is perfect;
For all His ways are justice,
ⁱA God of truth and ^jwithout injustice;

5 “They^k have corrupted themselves;
They are not His children,

31:17, 18 I will forsake them: Should the worst occur, the anger of God would be aroused as was described in chs. 28; 29. to other gods: The principal reason for God’s judgment on His people was their continual idolatry. They abandoned His grace and willingly embraced the evil religious practices of the Canaanites.

31:19 This song is the Song of Moses recorded in 31:30—32:43. God commanded Moses and Joshua to teach this song to the Israelites.

31:22 Moses wrote . . . and taught it: These words create an anticipation of v. 30. Psalm 90 is attributed to Moses as well.

31:23 Be strong and of good courage: God encouraged Joshua with the same words that Moses used to encourage the people (v. 6). I will be with you: God assured Joshua of His presence during the conquest (Josh. 1:5; Hag. 2:4).

31:26 This Book of the Law is the Book of Deuteronomy. This book would be a witness against Israel when they turned from the living God to worship other gods. Then the book that originally had been a book of God’s loving instructions to His people would unfortunately become a charter of His wrath.

31:29 For I know: It is unclear whether Moses’ words here were based on his own experience with the people or on a revelation from the Lord. Perhaps both were at work.

32:1 O heavens . . . O earth: Isaiah similarly called on heaven and earth to witness (Is. 1:2).

32:2 my teaching: The song is an expression of wisdom (see Prov. 1:5; 4:2; 9:9). rain . . . dew . . . raindrops . . . showers: These four similes express the refreshing and invigorating nature of the instruction.

32:3 Ascribe greatness to our God: True wisdom and obedience always lead to the praise of God (Ps. 145:3; 150:2).

32:4 Unlike the powerless gods of the nations (v. 37), God gives life, stability, and happiness to His people (vv. 15, 18, 30, 31). The joyful life that He gives is based on His perfect works. Like a firm Rock that stands against the raging waters of a stormy sea, God and His works stand firm against the chaos produced by sinful lives. He is the sure foundation for all truth in a world of deception. Thus He will never let lies pervert justice (Zeph. 3:5). Instead, as a righteous Judge, He will protect those who have been oppressed. Right before the Israelites entered the land of Canaan in order to establish a new nation, Moses extolled the God who is the perfect foundation for any society.

32:5 perverse and crooked generation: Moses contrasted the Israelites with their faithful God. Compared to the perfect God of truth, they were corrupt, blemished, and deceptive (v. 20).

32:6 The ancient Israelites knew God was their Father (see Is. 63:16; 64:8), but they rarely confessed this great truth. Thus these words are unusually striking because they express the Israelites’ close relationship with God while at the same time castigating the people for abandoning their Father. God had chosen them, loved them, and cared for them. He had brought them out of Egypt and had even established them as a nation by giving them detailed instructions.

32:7 Remember . . . they will tell you: Here the song uses the language of wisdom literature to exhort the Israelites to search out God’s ways. The Scriptures repeatedly emphasize that wisdom is based on the God of all truth.

32:8, 9 Most High: This designation for God’s supremacy is unique to Deuteronomy. He is the sovereign God over all, even the boundaries of the nations. the LORD’s portion: While it is the Lord’s will for many nations to exist, He has favored Israel with His special grace, promises, and covenant.

32:10 In a desert land is a poetic reference to Egypt. He instructed him: God gave Israel His revelation and His laws in order to lead them in all truth. Kept him as the apple (or pupil) of His eye is a symbol of tender loving care for a precious object in need of protection.

32:11 The eagle is a bird of prey commonly found in desert regions. The song compares God’s actions towards Israel with the care a mother bird showers on her young. God not only protected His children, He provided for them, got them moving, watched over them, and guided them to the Promised Land (Ex. 19:4). In all these actions He proved Himself to be a loving Father to the Israelites (v. 6).

32:12 the LORD alone . . . no foreign god: Deuteronomy is an extended argument against idolatry and paganism. Clearly the Israelites had no reason to abandon the God of grace and love who had given them all they needed.

32:13, 14 He made him ride in the heights of the earth: The Lord had great plans for His people (Is. 48:17–19). produce . . . honey . . . oil: The Lord had promised to supply His people with crops, rich food, olive oil, and even dairy products in the Promised Land—all of which the people lacked in the wilderness. wheat . . . the blood of the grapes: Grain and wine were also promised, symbols of God’s mercy.

32:15, 16 Jeshurun, a pet name for Israel, means “Uprightness.” This part of the song contrasts what Israel should have been and what they became. Since the nation had received God’s revelation and His instruction, it should have become upright (v. 4). Instead, the nation would grow fat and rebel. scornfully esteemed the Rock of his salvation: Even though the Israelites would grow rich off God’s blessing, they would reject the source not only of those blessings, but also of their salvation. Instead, they would embrace foreign gods that had done nothing for Israel (v. 12).

32:17 Rarely in the OT (Ps. 106:37; see also Amos 2:1) are references made to demons and demonic powers. Although the Scriptures make it clear that the false gods do not exist as such, this passage identifies the power behind these gods: demons.

32:18 Fathered literally means “gave birth.” This is one of several places where God is portrayed in terms that liken His role to that of a nurturing, life-giving mother (compare Is. 66:13).

- 19^a And^j when the LORD saw it, He spurned them, Because of the provocation of His sons and His daughters.
- 20 And He said: ‘I will hide My face from them,

Lest they should say, ⁱ“Our hand is high;
And it is not the LORD who has done all this.”’

- 28^a For they are a nation void of counsel,
Nor is there any understanding in them.
- 29^b Oh, that they were wise, that they understood this,
That they would consider their ^vlatter end!
- 30 How could one chase a thousand,
And two put ten thousand to flight,
Unless their Rock ^whad sold them,
And the LORD had surrendered them?
- 31 For their rock is not like our Rock, ^xEven our enemies themselves being judges.
- 32 For ^ytheir vine is of the vine of Sodom
And of the fields of Gomorrah;
Their grapes are grapes of gall,
Their clusters are bitter.
- 33 Their wine is ^zthe poison of serpents,
And the cruel ^avenom of cobras.
- 34 ⁱIs this not ^blaid up in store with Me,
Sealed up among My treasures?
- 35 ^cVengeance is Mine, and recompense;
Their foot shall slip in due time;
^dFor the day of their calamity is at hand,
And the things to come hasten upon them.’
- 36^a For ^ethe LORD will judge His people
^fAnd have compassion on His servants,
When He sees that their power is gone,
And ^gthere is no one remaining, bond or free.
- 37 He will say: ^h“Where are their gods,
The rock in which they sought refuge?

32:20 I will see what their end will be: Even though Israel would reject Him, God would be patient with His rebellious children.

32:24 hunger . . . pestilence . . . destruction: Instead of blessing His chosen people, God would send curses on them in order to discipline them. teeth of beasts . . . poison of serpents: Creation would also turn against the people.

32:25 young man . . . virgin: The pairings of opposites in this verse indicate that God’s judgment would be comprehensive. It would affect all of society. Similar pairings in Joel 2:28, 29 speak of the comprehensiveness of God’s blessing.

32:28 This verse anticipates God’s judgment of Israel and Judah in the days of Isaiah (Is. 1:3; 6:9, 10).

32:29, 30 Often the phrase latter end is understood as “glorious future”; here it speaks of “ruinous future” for the rebellious Israelites. Unless their Rock had sold them: God’s protection of His people was so certain that their conquest by enemies could occur only if it were He who gave them over.

32:32, 33 The enemy nations were like the people of Sodom and Gomorrah—cruel, immoral, and oppressive.

32:34-36 laid up in store . . . Sealed: God’s sure plan and purposes are hidden. Vengeance is Mine . . . judge His people: Only the God who is completely just can judge and make right all the wrongs committed. See Rom. 12:19; Heb. 10:30. There will be a time for God’s vindication. compassion on His servants: God would discern one day between the righteous and the wicked (Mal. 3:16). He would deal kindly with the remnant that loved and followed Him. This is the basis for all of the prophetic messages about the remnant of Israel.

32:37, 38 Where are their gods: The song mocks those who follow false gods. They abandoned the Rock of truth for a rock that was not even a pebble. When the fat was burned and the wine was poured out on the altars of the false gods, the gods were believed to eat and drink these offerings. Yet these gods did not even exist, so they neither ate nor drank.

- 38 Who ate the fat of their sacrifices,
And drank the wine of their drink offering?
Let them rise and help you,
And be your refuge.
- 39 ‘Now see that ⁱI, even I, am He,
And ^jthere is no God besides Me;
^kI kill and I make alive;
I wound and I heal;
Nor is there any who can deliver from My hand.
- 40 For I raise My hand to heaven,
And say, “As I live forever,
41 ^lIf I ⁹whet My glittering sword,
And My hand takes hold on judgment,
I will render vengeance to My enemies,
And repay those who hate Me.
- 42 I will make My arrows drunk with blood,
And My sword shall devour flesh,
With the blood of the slain and the captives,
From the heads of the leaders of the enemy.”
- 43 “Rejoice, ^mO Gentiles, with His ¹people;
For He will ⁿavenge the blood of His servants,
And render vengeance to His adversaries;
He ^owill provide atonement for His land and His people.”

44 So Moses came with ²Joshua the son of Nun and spoke all the words of this song in the hearing of the people. 45 Moses finished speaking all these words to all Israel, 46 and he said to them: ^p“Set your hearts on all the words which I testify among you today, which you shall command your ^qchildren to be careful to observe—all the words of this law. 47 For

Moses to Die on Mount Nebo

48 Then the LORD spoke to Moses that very same day, saying: 49 ^s“Go up this mountain of the Abarim, Mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, across from Jericho; view the land of Canaan, which I give to the children of Israel as a possession; 50 and die on the mountain which you ascend, and be ⁴gathered to your people, just as ^tAaron your brother died on Mount Hor and was gathered to his people; 51 because ^uyou trespassed against Me among the children of Israel at the waters of ⁵Meribah Kadesh, in the Wilderness of Zin, because you ^vdid not hallow Me in the midst of the children of Israel. 52 ^wYet you shall see the land before you, though you shall not go there, into the land which I am giving to the children of Israel.”

Moses' Final Blessing on Israel

33 Now this is ^athe blessing with which Moses ^bthe man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death. 2 And he said:

- “The LORD came from Sinai,
And dawned on them from ^dSeir;
He shone forth from ^eMount Paran,
And He came with ^ften thousands of saints;
Came a fiery law for them.
- 3 Yes, ^gHe loves the people;
^hAll His saints are in Your hand;
They ⁱsit down at Your feet;
Everyone ^jreceives Your words.

Jacob.

32:39 I, even I, am He is a glorious affirmation of the incomparability of God (Ps. 113:4–6). God alone controls human existence. Because He is totally free to do what He wants, only He can either curse or bless, wound or heal, kill or give life.

32:40 I raise My hand to heaven: God made an oath to Himself that He would avenge His people (Gen. 22:16; Heb. 6:13–18). He would make right all wrongs.

32:43 Rejoice, O Gentiles, with His people: God in this song given to Moses invited all nations to join in the worship of the living God, to praise Him for promising to restore justice.

32:46 Law here may signify the Song of Moses or Deuteronomy as a whole (compare 31:26).

32:47 prolong your days: The intention of God's instruction was to show the Israelites the path that leads to fullness of life and rich blessing.

32:48, 49 Mount Nebo is a mountain peak near Heshbon about ten miles east of the northern end of the Dead Sea.

32:50–52 you did not hallow Me: Moses did not completely obey

God's instructions at Kadesh. Because of this, Moses could not enter the Promised Land (1:37; 3:23–26; 4:21, 22; 31:2; Num. 20:10–13). Yet God would graciously allow Moses to see the land (34:1–8).

33:1 Moses is to be remembered for his faithfulness in spite of his failure (Heb. 3:1–6). Scriptures describe him as a servant of God (Num. 12:6–8), a friend of God (Ex. 33:11), and a man of God.

33:2 came from . . . dawned . . . shone forth: These verbs reminded the Israelites of the awe-inspiring revelation of God in all of His glory. God came down to Israel and revealed His covenant and law to them at Mt. Sinai. Poetically, Moses referred to Seir and Paran located northeast of Mt. Sinai. With these references, Moses implied that God's revelation took place throughout the whole wilderness journey (Judg. 5:4, 5). ten thousands of saints: Angelic beings attended the giving of the law (compare Acts 7:53; Gal. 3:19; Heb. 2:2).

33:4, 5 heritage: What made Israel unique was its reception of the law of God mediated through Moses. God had chosen Israel alone to receive His instructions. The Lord alone was the King over His people. At the same time, He as the Creator ruled over all He had made.

5 And He was ^mKing in ⁿJeshurun,
When the leaders of the people were gathered,
All the tribes of Israel together.

6 “Let ^oReuben live, and not die,
Nor let his men be few.”

7 And this he said of ^pJudah:

“Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah,
And bring him to his people;
^qLet his hands be sufficient for him,
And may You be ^ra help against his enemies.”

8 And of ^sLevi he said:

“^tLet Your ²Thummim and Your Urim

^uWhom You tested at Massah,
And with whom You contended at the waters of Meribah,
9 ^vWho says of his father and mother,

^xNor did he acknowledge his brothers,
Or know his own children;
For ^ythey have observed Your word
And kept Your covenant.
10 ^zThey shall teach Jacob Your judgments,
And Israel Your law.
They shall put incense before You, ^aAnd a whole burnt sacrifice on Your altar.

11 Bless his substance, LORD,
And ^baccept the work of his hands;
Strike the loins of those who rise against him,
And of those who hate him, that they rise not again.”

12 Of Benjamin he said:

“The beloved of the LORD shall dwell

18 And of Zebulun he said:

^m“Rejoice, Zebulun, in your going out,
And Issachar in your tents!
19 They shall ⁿcall the peoples to the mountain;
There ^othey shall offer sacrifices of righteousness;
For they shall partake of the abundance of the seas
And of treasures hidden in the sand.”

33:6 Let Reuben live . . . men be few: Moses predicted that the Reubenites would have a future, but not a glorious one. Settled east of the Dead Sea, the Reubenites would eventually isolate themselves from the other tribes (Judg. 5:15, 16).

33:7 Moses prayed that the LORD would be present with Judah in its military leadership and would give it success in battle. hands be sufficient: Moses prayed that God would give adequate strength to the tribe.

33:8, 9 Moses prayed for God's guidance to rest on the Levites, who were responsible for judging cases. The Urim and Thummim (Ex. 28:30) were God's appointed instruments for deciding innocence or guilt and for guiding His people. holy one: A term for the Levites who were separated from the other tribes to serve in the tabernacle. Massah . . . Meribah: The Levites passed the test when the other tribes failed to believe in the Lord's ability to provide and care for His people (6:16; 9:22). Moses commended the Levites for their loyalty to God's word and covenant.

33:10 teach: The Levites were charged with the responsibility of instructing the Israelites. They had modeled loyalty (v. 9). Now they had to help Israel understand how to live by God's revelation. In this way, they continued the ministry of Moses. incense: The Levites were also responsible for the worship of God at the tabernacle (Ex. 30:7).

33:12 As the beloved son of Jacob, Benjamin was also the beloved of the LORD (Gen. 44:20). The Lord would give the tribe of Benjamin peace and safety. shelters . . . dwell between His shoulders: The Lord would provide Benjamin with His personal protection.

33:17 glory . . . horns: God would give Ephraim and Manasseh prowess in battle and victory in warfare. Like oxen, these two tribes would push their enemies away from them. ten thousands of Ephraim . . . thousands of Manasseh: In keeping with Jacob's blessing of Joseph's younger son Ephraim, Moses exalted him above Manasseh (Gen. 48:8-20).

33:19 The tribe of Zebulun would be located by the seas. The seas and their shores were God's appointed place for the tribe's prosperity.

²⁰ And of Gad he said:

“Blessed is he who ^penlarges Gad;
He dwells as a lion,
And tears the arm and the crown of his head.

himself,

Moses Dies on Mount Nebo

34 Then Moses went up from the plains of Moab ^ato Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, which is across from Jericho. And the LORD showed him all the land of Gilead as far as Dan, ²all Naphtali and the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, all the land of Judah as far as the ¹Western Sea, ³the South, and the plain of the Valley of Jericho, ^bthe city of palm trees, as far as Zoar. ⁴Then the LORD said to him, ^c“This is the land of which I swore to give Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying, ‘I will give it to your descendants.’ ^dI have caused you to see it with your eyes, but you shall not cross over there.”

⁵So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD. ⁶And He buried him in a valley in the land of Moab,

33:20, 21 Moses compared Gad’s military role to the power of a ravenous lion and predicted that this tribe would readily join the others in the conquest of Canaan (Josh. 22:1–6).

33:22 Lion’s whelp may refer to the small size of the tribe of Dan.
Though Dan’s land inheritance was close to Judah by the coastal plains, the tribe would not be able keep their inheritance because of the hostility of the Philistines. Therefore, the Danites would one day migrate to the region of the Bashan, south of Mt. Hermon (Judg. 18).

33:23 Moses’ blessing on Naphtali indicates that this tribe would enjoy God’s blessings of abundance. The tribe would inherit the land west and south of the Sea of Galilee.

33:24, 25 Dip his foot in oil is an image of God’s rich blessing to Asher (Ps. 133:2).

33:26, 27 There is no one like: This negative phrase is a Hebraic way of expressing a strong positive: “The God of Jeshurun alone will help.” rides the heavens . . . the clouds: Like a soldier, the Lord is constantly on the lookout for ways to defend His people from attack. The Divine Warrior is always providing protection because He is eternal. God is a refuge or fortress for the people to flee to in times of distress (Ps. 90:1; 91:9). everlasting arms: The God who redeemed Israel with His strong arm will always be with His people in love and power.

33:28 Then Israel will dwell in safety: Moses affirmed the truth of the promise God gave through the pagan prophet Balaam (Num.
23:9).

33:29 Who is like you: The question is actually a declaration:
“There is no people like you.” shield . . . sword: These military images point to God, the source of all human protection. He would fight Israel’s battles. tread down their high places: God would break down with His own feet the places of idolatrous worship, the pagan sites that defiled the nations (Mic. 1:3).

34:1 Moab was where Moses had given Israel an explanation of the law (1:5) and had led them in a covenant renewal ceremony (29:1– 28). Jericho was the first city in Canaan to be conquered. And the LORD showed him: Though he was still in Moab, Moses was granted by God a close-up view of the land. How sad that his feet were not able to walk where his eyes danced! Dan was the territory below
Mt. Hermon that was later conquered by the tribe of Dan (Judg. 18).

34:2 Judah refers to the highlands west of Jericho and of the Dead Sea. The Western Sea is the Mediterranean.

34:3, 4 South refers to the Negev, the dry county south of Judah.
The plain is the region around the Dead Sea, from the valley of Jericho to Zoar, the city in the southern plain where Lot escaped with his daughters (Gen. 19:22). I swore: God had promised this territory to Abraham long ago (Gen. 15:18–21; 17:1–8; Ex. 33:1).

34:5 Moses remained God’s faithful servant. A servant of God is a person who has a close and trusted relationship with God, such as Abraham (Gen. 26:24) and David (2 Sam. 7:5).

34:6, 7 No one knows his grave: God took care of Moses’ funeral.
If his burial place had been known, some people most likely would opposite Beth Peor; but ^fno one knows his grave to this day. ^{7g}Moses was one hundred and twenty years old when he died. ^hHis ²eyes were not dim nor his natural vigor ³diminished. ⁸And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab ⁱthirty days. So the days of weeping and mourning for Moses ended.

Israel heeded him, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses.

¹⁰But since then there ^lhas not arisen in Israel a prophet like Moses, ^mwhom the LORD knew face to face, ¹¹in all ⁿthe signs and wonders which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt, before Pharaoh, before all his servants, and in all his land, ¹²and by all that mighty power and all the great terror which Moses performed in the sight of all Israel.

have made it a shrine and begun to worship there. God graciously concealed the burial site of Moses. not dim . . . diminished: Moses died because it was God's will and not because of normal physical deterioration associated with old age (31:2).

34:8 Thirty days was the customary period of mourning. Though Moses was buried alone, he was not forgotten by his people.

34:9 Joshua was recognized for his wisdom as he followed the call of the Lord in his life.

34:10–12 A prophet like Moses: As important as Joshua was, he should not be confused with the One who would fulfill God's promise of a prophet who would have an even greater status than Moses (18:15). Face to face describes the unusual intimacy between Moses and the Lord (Ex. 33:11; Num. 12). Like Moses, Jesus of Nazareth performed signs and wonders when He began His ministry on earth (Matt. 4:23–25; John 5:46). Moses performed: The miraculous works accomplished by Moses were God's works through Moses' hand. In these engaging words of testimony to the significance of Moses as the servant of God, Deuteronomy comes to its grand conclusion.

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA describes the Israelites' conquest of Canaan—from the initial invasion across the Jordan River to the final division of the land. Like most military histories, Joshua focuses on the commander. Yet for this unique war, the commander was God Himself (5:15). The book repeatedly emphasizes that the Israelites' victories were due to God's intervention (chs. 10; 11). The extraordinary victory over Jericho dramatically demonstrated this (ch. 6). Now God was decisively acting on the promises that He had made to Abraham: He was giving the land of Canaan to His people! The Book of Joshua describes a God who faithfully fulfills His promises.

Author and Title This book is named for the man who figures most prominently in it, Moses' successor and Israel's leader during the conquest of Canaan. Appropriately, Joshua's name in Hebrew means "The Lord Saves" or "May the Lord Save."

The Book of Joshua does not state who wrote it. Joshua himself undoubtedly wrote portions of the book, since 24:26 states, "Then Joshua wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God." But it is uncertain how much of the rest of the book he wrote. As for the date of composition, 6:25 reports that Rahab was living in Israel "to this day." This may indicate that portions of the book (if not all of it) were written shortly after the events recorded. But it could also mean that Rahab's descendants were still living in Israel at the time of writing.

Date of the Events The events in Joshua occurred within a time span of less than a decade, 40 years after the Exodus, probably around 1406 B.C. Caleb stated (14:7–10) that it had been 45 years since he had been sent out from Kadesh Barnea to spy out the land (Num. 13). Since the Israelites spent 38 years wandering in the wilderness (Deut. 2:14), the time from when they crossed the Jordan River till the time of Caleb's speech was seven years. Most of the events in the book probably occurred within that period.

Many scholars have suggested that the conquest of Canaan took place between 1250 and 1150 B.C. because there is archaeological evidence of the destruction of Canaanite cities around that time. However, there are problems with this view, the most significant of which is that the Israelites destroyed only three cities—Jericho, Ai, and Hazor—during their conquest. God had promised that they would live in cities they had not built, enjoy fields they had not planted, and harvest fruit they had not tended (Deut. 6:10, 11). Therefore, the Israelites fought most of their battles in the fields outside the cities. The widespread destruction of Canaanite cities found by archaeologists may date to the time of the judges. During this period, God allowed many foreign invasions to devastate the countryside and the cities in order to discipline His rebellious people.

Nature of the Events Brief summaries contained in Joshua often give the impression that the campaign of conquest was one in which the Israelites overwhelmed the Canaanites with a superior force, inflicting a series of total defeats. Chapter 10 is an example. But the Book of Joshua as a whole does not describe Israel as winning a frontal offensive attack by means of a superior force. Rather, under God's direction, Israel used various means such as ambushes and diversionary tactics to defeat its enemies. The Israelites are said to have destroyed only three cities: Jericho, Ai, and Hazor. Furthermore, Joshua 16:10 and Judges 1 suggest that Israel's victory over the Canaanites was incomplete. There were Canaanites still living in the land. Nevertheless, God did give the greater part of the land of Canaan into the Israelites' hands through a series of dramatic battles in a relatively short period of time. God was faithful to His promises.

Themes The two most prominent themes in Joshua are the possession of the land and the covenant. God had repeatedly promised the land of Canaan to Abraham (Gen. 12:7; 13:14, 15, 17; 15:18–21; 17:8; 22:17), to Isaac (Gen. 26:3, 4), to Jacob (Gen. 28:4, 13; 35:12), and to the succeeding generations (Gen. 48:4–22; 50:24). The Book of Joshua emphasizes that the conquest of Canaan was a direct fulfillment of that promise. God was fighting for the Israelites and giving them the land in the process. Since God was demonstrating His faithfulness to Israel, He expected Israel to be faithful to His covenant with them. Possessing the land was based on their obedience to His law (23:9–13, 15, 16; Deut. 4:1, 25–27, 40; 6:17, 18). In fact, the Book of Joshua portrays the complete possession of the land as the result of Joshua's obedience to God's commands (10:40; 11:20, 23; 23:9–13).

Conquering the land enabled Israel to experience God's rest, which He had promised to the Israelites from the beginning (1:13, 15; 11:23; 14:15; 21:44; 22:4; 23:1). "The LORD gave them rest all around, according to all that He had sworn to their fathers" (21:44). The author of Hebrews equates this Old Testament concept of rest with entering into Christ's rest, that is, His kingdom (Heb. 3; 4).

In addition to emphasizing the importance of faithfulness to the covenant (1:7, 8; 22:5; 23:6, 16; 24:15), Joshua records two ceremonies dedicated to the renewal of the covenant. The first was at Mount Ebal. There Joshua built an altar to the Lord, offered sacrifices, and copied and read the law of Moses (8:30–35). The second was at Shechem (ch. 24), where Joshua wrote the words of Israel's covenant renewal in "the Book of the Law of God" and erected a large stone as a witness and memorial to the agreement (24:25–27). Both ceremonies impressed on the people's minds and hearts their responsibility to follow God alone and to keep His instructions. At the end of the conquest, the Israelites had a new challenge before them. The intensity of the battle was gone. Now the Israelites had to demonstrate their faithfulness to God in the ordinary activities of everyday life.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Although there are no specific prophecies of Jesus in this book, Joshua himself is an obvious representation of the coming Savior. His name, which means "The Lord saves," is the Hebrew equivalent of "Jesus" (a Greek name). As Joshua leads the nation of Israel across the Jordan River into their promised inheritance, he foreshadows the One who will bring "many sons to glory" (Heb. 2:10). The apostle Paul recalls Joshua's role when he writes, "Now thanks be to God who always leads us in triumph in Christ" (2 Cor. 2:14).

When Joshua encounters the "Commander of the army of the LORD" outside the walls of Jericho (5:13–15), he is actually in the presence of a pre-incarnate appearance of Jesus. When Joshua sent two spies into Jericho prior to Israel's invasion, a prostitute named Rahab provided them secret shelter. To show their thanks, the spies promised her family would not be attacked if she displayed a scarlet cord in her window to set her home apart (2:17–20). The blood-colored cord that Rahab hung from her window to guarantee deliverance from the advancing troops is a sure sign of the salvation from future judgment that Jesus' blood provides.

God’s Commission to Joshua

After the death of Moses the servant of the LORD, it came to pass that the LORD spoke to Joshua the son of Nun, Moses’ assistant, saying: ^{2b}“Moses My servant is dead. Now therefore, arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, to the land which I am giving to them—the children of Israel. ^{3c}Every place that the

1:1 Joshua begins where Deuteronomy ends, after the death of Moses. Moses is the central figure in the narrative spanning Exodus through Deuteronomy. He is called the servant of the LORD, a title that was first given to him at the end of his life (Deut. 34:5). In Joshua, Moses is called by this title 15 times. In the Hebrew Scriptures it is a special title given only to Moses, Joshua (24:29; Judg. 2:8), David (Ps. 18:1; 36:1), and the Messiah (Is. 42:19). Joshua the son of Nun: Identifying someone by adding the name of his father was the Hebrew equivalent of a last name. Joshua was Moses’ assistant (Ex. 24:13; Num. 11:28). The Hebrew word used for assistant usually refers to service in worship, but it can also mean service to an individual, as it does here (see 1 Kin. 19:21 for Elijah’s assistant). Joshua is not identified as the “servant of the LORD” here, probably to show that he had not yet “filled Moses’ shoes.” He needed to grow into the job. Yet Deut. 34:9 hints that Joshua would do just that: “Now Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands on him; so the children of Israel heeded him, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses.”
1:2-9 God’s speech encouraging Joshua is a warmhearted, tender speech, assuring Joshua of His care, protection, and presence, and urging him to obey His law. It is a model of God graciously encouraging His servants, and its exhortations are still of value today; true success in life cannot occur apart from knowing and doing the will of God.
1:2 the land which I am giving: The land of Canaan had first been promised to Abraham hundreds of years before (Gen. 12:7; 13:14, 15, 17; 15:18–21; 17:8; 22:17). Even though God would allow Abraham’s descendants to be slaves in a foreign land (Gen. 15:13), He nevertheless promised to bring them back to their own land (Gen. 15:16). This promise was never rescinded. In fact, it was repeated many times (Ex. 6:4, 8; Deut. 1:6–8; 4:38, 40; 5:31; 7:13; 8:1–10; 9:4–6; 11:8–12, 17; 26:1, 9; 32:49, 52; 34:4).

1:3 You here is plural, referring to all Israel. Sometimes (as in v. 2), the land is pictured as in the process of being given to Israel (“I am giving to them”). In other places, as here, it is pictured as already having been given. This manner of speaking reflects the notion that Israel already had legal title to the land, even if the people had not yet actually taken possession of it. This is also the language of Gen. 15:18. as I said to Moses: God keeps His promises.
1:4 This description of the land gives its southern and northern extremities, and its western border; the eastern border is not mentioned, probably because it extended to where Joshua was standing on the plains of Moab, east of the Jordan River. The land of Canaan here is designated by one of its prominent ethnic groups, the Hittites (Deut. 7:1). A great Hittite kingdom in Asia Minor (modern Turkey), dating to around 1800–1200 B.C., has been identified. The relationship between the Hittites in Canaan and the ones in Asia Minor is unclear. The Great Sea is the Mediterranean Sea.
1:5 God’s great promise to Moses I will be with you (Ex. 3:12) is now given to Joshua (1:9; 3:7). Of special comfort to Joshua would this Jordan, to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess.”

¹²And to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh Joshua spoke, saying, ¹³“Remember ^qthe word which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, ‘The LORD your God is giving you rest and is giving you this land.’ ¹⁴Your wives, your little ones, and your livestock shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side of the Jordan. But you shall ⁴pass before your brethren armed, all your mighty men of valor, and help them, ¹⁵until the LORD has given your brethren rest, as He gave you, and they also have taken possession of the land which the LORD your God is giving them. ¹⁷Then you shall return to the land of your possession and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD’s servant gave you on this side of the Jordan toward the sunrise.”

¹⁶So they answered Joshua, saying, “All that you command us we will do, and wherever you send us we will go. ¹⁷Just as we heeded Moses in all things, so we will heed you. Only the LORD your God ^sbe with you, as He was with Moses. ¹⁸Whoever rebels against your command have been the fact that God would be with him in the same way He had been with Moses. Joshua had been present during the many demonstrations of God’s presence in Moses’ life and would have known how significant this promise was.

1:6 The command to be strong and of good courage was for Joshua’s encouragement, and God repeated these words three times (vv. 6, 7, 9). The people later affirmed Joshua using these precise words (v. 18). David would later encourage his son Solomon with these words (1 Chr. 22:13; 28:20). you shall divide: This is the first notation of what Joshua’s actual duties would be, that of giving the land to Israel on God’s behalf.

1:7 very courageous: The instructions to Joshua here do not address military matters at all. This might seem surprising given the battles ahead. But his success depended more on his spiritual state and his degree of obedience to God than on any military strategy. The spiritual demands preceded the martial ones. the law which Moses . . . commanded you: Some scholars have questioned whether Moses gave the law to Israel, arguing that the laws found in the Pentateuch come from a much later time. This passage, along with many others (8:31–35; Deut. 31:24–26), states that Moses did indeed give the law to Israel. The term translated prosper means much more than mere financial success. It includes spiritual well-being.

1:8 To meditate means much more than just contemplation. The idea here is that one should reflect upon God’s Word in a thoughtful way, appropriating its truths personally and applying them to life (Ps. 1:2, 3).

1:10 The officers were officials who helped in the organization of Israel’s affairs. The Egyptian pharaoh had appointed similar officials over Israel (Ex. 5:14, 15).

1:11 Provisions referred to the food needed for the next several days as the Israelites prepared themselves to cross the Jordan. within three days: During these three days, the Israelites prepared themselves to enter the land. These were the same three days that the spies hid in the hills outside of Jericho (mentioned in 2:16, 22). After the spies returned, the Israelites waited another three days before crossing the Jordan (3:2).

1:12–15 Joshua reminded the two and one-half tribes that were settling east of the Jordan that they had promised to fight with the rest of the Israelites for the land across the river. Here Joshua quotes Moses’ words to these tribes almost verbatim (compare vv. 13–15 with Deut. 3:18–20). These tribes were granted the right to settle east of the Jordan if they maintained covenant solidarity with their brethren by fighting beside them (Num. 32:1–42; Deut. 2:26–3:20). The account in Joshua indicates that they kept their promise. In fact, at the end of the book Joshua blesses them for their faithfulness in this matter (22:1–34).

1:13, 15 The promise of rest echoes Num. 32:20–22; Deut. 3:18–20. See also the promises of rest in Ex. 33:14; Deut. 12:9, 10. This rest was God’s gift to Israel. In Joshua, it primarily means rest from conflict with enemies. Other accounts in Joshua make mention of Israel or the land having rest (11:23; 14:15; 21:44; 22:4; 23:1).

1:14 The Hebrew word for armed is related to the numbers five and 50; it probably means “lined up in battle array in groups of 50.” Mighty men of valor were the elite of the military. Joshua chose thirty thousand of these men to lie in ambush against Ai (8:3) and also took them into battle at Gilgal (10:7).

1:16–18 The people affirmed Joshua warmly and enthusiastically, echoing elements of God’s charge to Joshua in vv. 1–9. Compare v. 5 with v. 17 and note the fourth occurrence of the exhortation to be strong and of good courage (vv. 6, 7, 9). The pledges of obedience and loyalty to Joshua certainly must have been encouraging to this new leader.

1:16 The text does not say clearly who answered Joshua, the officers of the people (v. 10) or the tribes from east of the Jordan (v. 12). From vv. 10, 12 it appears that Joshua’s words to the officers in v. 11 and to the tribes in vv. 13–15 are part of one event. The response in vv. 16–18 is therefore probably that of all Israel. In this way, the entire nation affirmed Joshua’s leadership at the beginning of his duties as leader.

1:17 the LORD your God be with you: The Israelites affirmed Joshua in the same terms that God Himself used in promising to be with him.

Jericho
Jericho is one of the oldest inhabited cities in the world. Situated in the wide plain of the Jordan valley at the foot of the ascent to the Judean mountains, Jericho lies about eight miles northwest of the site where the Jordan River flows into the Dead Sea, some five miles west of the Jordan. Since it is approximately 800 feet below sea level, Jericho has a tropical climate. Only a few inches of rainfall are recorded at Jericho each year, but the city is a wonderful oasis, known as “the city of palm trees” (Deut. 34:3) flourishing with date palms, banana trees, balsams, sycamores, and henna (Song 1:14; Luke 19:4).
There have been three different Jerichos throughout its long history, but by far the most imposing site of the three was OT Jericho, a pear-shaped mound about 400 yards long, north to south, 200 yards wide at the north end, and some 70 yards high.

And as soon as those who pursued them had gone out, they shut the gate.
⁸ Now before they lay down, she came up to them on the roof, ⁹ and said to the men: ^g “I know that the LORD has given you the land, that ^h the terror of you has

2:1–7 Joshua sent out two spies to explore the land, especially Jericho. They went to a place where news would be easily available, a prostitute’s house (v. 1). News reached the local king, and he sent men to apprehend the spies (vv. 2, 3). Yet Rahab protected the spies by sending the king’s men on a futile chase (vv. 4–7).
2:1 The Acacia Grove was the place east of the Jordan River where the Israelites had been encamped for some time (Num. 25:1). In some translations of the Bible this place is called by its transliterated Hebrew name Shittim, which means “The Acacia Trees.” Acacia Grove was probably some distance from the Jordan because it took a few days to get there. Rahab was a Canaanite prostitute, and yet her story is one of the most inspiring stories in the Bible. Her actions in caring for the Israelite spies in enemy territory demonstrated a faith in Israel’s God that is praised in the NT (Heb. 11:31; James 2:25). The term translated harlot is the word for a common prostitute, not a cultic prostitute. It is possible that Rahab had been reduced to prostitution by the death of her husband and by the needs of her impoverished family (6:23 does not mention her husband). In any case, out of all the populace of Jericho, only she reached out to the living God, and He in turn saved her (6:25).
2:2 it was told: Despite the secrecy of the spies (v. 1), news of their arrival in Jericho traveled fast. The king of Jericho ruled over a small kingdom that included his city and the territory around it. As is often the case in the ancient world, his “kingdom” was actually a city-state. Compare the reference to “Jabin king of Hazor” in 11:1.

2:4–6 Rahab lied to the men searching for the Israelite spies, but this does not constitute an endorsement for lying as such. The Scriptures clearly condemn lying (Lev. 19:11; Prov. 12:22). Rahab did the best she could to save the men sent by Joshua.
2:5 All major cities in Canaan were walled and had a large gate for protection. Excavations at Jericho have uncovered strong walls from different periods of the city’s existence.
2:6 Like most houses, Rahab’s had a flat roof. She hid the men there where she had laid out stalks of flax for drying. Flax is the oldest textile fiber known. It was used to make linen fabric for clothes.
2:7 The Jordan River was nearly a hundred feet wide near Jericho, and from five to 12 feet deep. There were no bridges, and shallow fords were used for crossing.
2:9 Rahab’s use of God’s personal name Yahweh, translated here as LORD, indicates that she had come to faith in the living God (v. 11). God had graciously opened the heart and mind of a foreign prostitute to accept Him as Lord. the terror of you has fallen on us: Israel’s reputation went before them. God already had dramatically delivered the Israelites in many ways, and the report had been spread throughout the nations. Rahab mentioned two miraculous deliverances: the crossing of the Red Sea and the victories over two kings east of the Jordan, Sihon and Og (v. 10; see Ex. 14; Num. 21:21–35).

fallen on us, and that all the inhabitants of the land ⁱare fainthearted because of you. ¹⁰For we have heard how the LORD ^jdried up the water of the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt, and ^kwhat you did to the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom you ^lutterly destroyed. ¹¹And as soon as we ^mheard these things, ⁿour hearts melted; neither did there remain any more courage in anyone because of you, for ^othe LORD your God, He is God in heaven above and on earth beneath. ¹²Now therefore, I beg you, ^pswear to me by the LORD, since I have shown you kindness, that you also will show kindness to ^qmy father's house, and ^rgive me ³a true token, ¹³and ^sspare my father, my mother, my brothers, my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death."

²¹Then she said, "According to your words, so be it." And she sent them away, and they departed. And she bound the scarlet cord in the window.

²²They departed and went to the mountain, and stayed there three days until the pursuers returned. The pursuers sought them all along the way, but did not find them. ²³So the two men returned, descended from the mountain, and crossed over; and they came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all that had befallen them. ²⁴And they said to Joshua, "Truly ^zthe LORD has delivered all the land into our hands, for indeed all the inhabitants of the country are fainthearted because of us."

Israel Crosses the Jordan

3 Then Joshua rose early in the morning; and they set out ^afrom ¹Acacia Grove and came to the Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they crossed over. ²So it was, ^bafter three days, that the officers went through

2:11 Here Rahab made a dramatic statement of her faith in the Lord. He is God in heaven: She affirmed God's sovereignty over heaven and earth in language reminiscent of the Psalms (compare Ps. 113:5, 6) and not unlike the confession of Melchizedek to Abram (Gen. 14:19, 20). The fact that non-Israelites came to true faith indicates that God's great mercy reached other nations. neither did there remain any more courage: The phrase suggests their breath was taken away; the people of Jericho were left breathless, and their hearts melted from fear of the Israelites.

2:12 Rahab asked the spies to swear to her. Even though to swear in God's name was a serious matter, the spies agreed to Rahab's request (vv. 14, 17, 20).

2:15 The Hebrew phrase translated her house was on the city wall suggests that Rahab's house was in the city wall rather than on top of it. The phrase might be rendered "in the double walls." This refers to a kind of defensive wall found around many cities in biblical times. The walls were built double and connected by cross-walls between them. The resulting spaces could be used for storage or as living quarters. Rahab's family may have lived in one of these residences. A dwelling in the wall would be a humble dwelling, just the spot for a poor prostitute . . . and for God's grace.

2:16 Get to the mountain: The only hills near Jericho are to the west. This is the opposite direction from the route the pursuers had taken; they had gone east, down to the Jordan (v. 7).

2:18, 21 The spies gave Rahab a line of scarlet cord to hang out the window as a sign of the agreement they had made. This is probably not the same rope she used to let the spies down, since the words are different. The cord's color is undoubtedly significant; it represents the color of the blood of atonement (Ex. 12:7, 13). It also alludes to the story of Tamar, since a scarlet thread was tied to the wrist of her first son (Gen. 38:28, 30). Both of these women were non-Israelite ancestors of Jesus (Matt. 1:3, 5).

2:22 A "day" for the ancient Israelites could mean any portion of a day. Thus three days would refer to parts of three days, as in "part of today, tomorrow, and part of the next day."

2:24 fainthearted: The spies reported to Joshua exactly what Rahab had said to them (v. 9).

3:1 The location of Acacia Grove is unknown today, but it was where Israel had been camped for some time after arriving at the plains of Moab, at the northern end of the Dead Sea (Num. 22:1; 25:1). It was where Israel was when Balaam came with the intent of cursing Israel (Num. 22-24), and where many Israelites had gone after prostitutes among the Moabite women (Num. 25:1-3). The day after the spies returned from Jericho, Joshua led the people from this place to the Jordan.

3:2 After three days, the officers went through the camp with instructions about the crossing itself. These instructions (v. 3) were different from the instructions given in 1:11, and this three-day period started on the day after the spies returned from Jericho. The previous three-day period in 1:11 (and 2:22) began when the spies went into Jericho to begin with. After these two three-day periods, the Israelites crossed the Jordan on the next day, the seventh day after the book's action begins (3:5). This seven-day period immediately precedes the dedication of Israelite males in the camp;³ and they commanded the people, saying, “When you see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God,⁴ and the priests, the Levites,² bearing it, then you shall set out from your place and go after it.^{4e} Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure. Do not come near it, that you may know the way by which you must go, for you have not passed this way before.”

⁵And Joshua said to the people, f“Sanctify³ yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.”

⁶Then Joshua spoke to the priests, saying, g“Take up the ark of the covenant and cross over before the people.”

So they took up the ark of the covenant and went before the people.

⁷And the LORD said to Joshua, “This day I will begin to *h*exalt⁴ you in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, *i*as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. ⁸You shall command *j*the priests who bear the ark of the covenant, saying, ‘When you have come to the edge of the water of the Jordan, *k*you shall stand in the Jordan.’”

⁹So Joshua said to the children of Israel, “Come here, and hear the words of

ch. 5. It is then followed by another seven-day period of marching around Jericho.

3:3 Chapter 3 emphasizes the significance of the ark of the covenant, mentioning it more than 11 times. The priests were responsible for carrying it (v. 3) in accordance with the rules given to Moses (Deut. 10:8; 31:9). They were to carry the ark with poles and not to touch it (Ex. 25:12, 13; 37:3–5; Num. 4:4–15). The ark symbolized God’s presence. Everyone had to be careful to keep a healthy distance from it (3:4). The priesthood was restricted to Levites in general, and more specifically to Aaron’s family (Num. 25:7–13; Deut. 18:1, 5). All priests were Levites, but not all Levites were priests. In later times Zadok, who was descended from Aaron through his third son, Eleazar (1 Chr. 6:1–8, 50–53), became a prominent priest. From that time on, Zadok’s descendants became responsible for the temple service (Ezek. 44:15–31).

3:4 The Hebrew word for yet is emphatic and might be translated “be very sure.” This emphasizes the importance of the command to keep one’s distance from the ark. Two thousand cubits was more than half a mile.

3:5 Sanctify yourselves: The Book of Joshua emphasizes the idea of holiness. The basic meaning of holiness is separation from things that are unclean or common. Wonders translates the Hebrew word for what today are called miracles. These mighty acts of God astonished people and prompted them to praise Him (Ps. 9:1; 96:3). In ch. 3, God performs the miracle of stopping the waters of the Jordan (vv. 14–17).

3:7 With the words I will begin to exalt you, God reaffirmed Joshua’s place as successor to Moses (1:5, 9), that they may know: God performed miracles not only to bring about certain events but to reveal Himself to His people.

3:9 Here, Joshua functions as a prophet of God, even though he is never specifically called a prophet, because he stood before the people as spokesman for God.

3:10 The miraculous events that follow not only brought the Israelites across the Jordan; they also attested to the fact that the living God was with them (4:24). Canaanites . . . Jebusites: This text mentions seven people groups. Canaanites sometimes denoted anyone living in Canaan, regardless of their ethnic identity (Gen. 36:2, 3; Judg. 5:19). In this case the Canaanites were probably the peoples living near the sea (5:1) who were known later as the Phoenicians. Their largest cities were Tyre and Sidon. As for the Perizzites, we know little about them. They appear to have lived in the forested areas of central Palestine (Gen. 13:7). Amorites is sometimes a synonym for Canaanites in its broader usage (Gen. 15:16; Judg. 1:34, 35). Sometimes the name refers to the peoples living in the cities in the central hill country of Canaan (Num. 13:29; Deut. 1:7), or to kingdoms east of the Jordan (13:10, 21). Here the name probably refers to inhabitants of the central hill country. The Jebusites lived in Jerusalem (15:8; 18:28).

3:12 twelve men: One man from each tribe was selected. The Hebrew emphasizes that it was to be only one from each tribe; it literally states “one man, one man per tribe.”

3:13 The reference to the ark here parallels the phrase in v. 11. The reference to the LORD, the Lord of all the earth uses both His name and His title. Much as “Baal” was the name of the Canaanites’ most important god, “the LORD” (Yahweh) is God’s personal name. This was the name God revealed to Moses at the burning bush (Ex. 3:13–15; 6:2, 3). The term translated LORD means “master.” It refers to God’s status as sovereign of the universe.

3:15 The parenthetical statement for the Jordan overflows is significant because it makes the point that a great miracle was involved. God did not merely slow the Jordan to a trickle during a time of drought; rather, He stopped the waters when the river was high. during the whole time of harvest: This phrase refers to the early summer harvest. At this time, the river was still swollen from the spring melting and rains. The Israelites crossed on the tenth day of the first month (4:19), which corresponds to March–April.

3:16 Adam: A city about 18 miles north of Jericho, near where the Jordan and Jabbok Rivers converge. The Jordan flows between high limestone cliffs near Jericho. Sometimes parts of these cliffs collapse into the river causing the waters to back up. God could have miraculously caused such a slide to occur at precisely the moment when the Israelites needed to cross over. The Sea of the Arabah is the Dead Sea, into which the Jordan flows from the north. The upstream stood still, and rose in a heap very far away ⁵at Adam, the city that is beside ⁶Zaretan. So the waters that went down ⁷into the Sea of the Arabah, ⁸the Salt Sea, failed, and were cut off; and the people crossed over opposite Jericho. ¹⁷Then the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan; ¹⁸and all Israel crossed over on dry ground, until all the people had crossed completely over the Jordan.

The Memorial Stones

4 And it came to pass, when all the people had completely crossed ^aover the Jordan, that the LORD spoke to Joshua, saying: ^{2b}“Take for yourselves twelve men from the people, one man from every tribe, ³and command them, saying, ‘Take for yourselves twelve stones from here, out of the midst of the Jordan, from the place where ^cthe priests’ feet stood firm. You shall carry them over with you and leave them in ^dthe lodging place where you lodge tonight.”

⁸And the children of Israel did so, just as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones from the midst of the Jordan, as the LORD had spoken to Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them to the place where they lodged, and laid them down there. ⁹Then Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of the Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant stood; and they are there to this day.

¹⁰So the priests who bore the ark stood in the midst of the Jordan until everything was finished that the LORD had commanded Joshua to speak to the people, according to all that Moses had commanded Joshua; and the people hurried and crossed over. ¹¹Then it came to pass, when all the people had completely crossed over, that the ⁱark of the LORD and the priests crossed over in the presence of the people. ¹²And ^jthe men of Reuben, the men of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh crossed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses had spoken to them. ¹³About forty thousand ¹prepared for war crossed over before the Arabah itself is the region of the Jordan valley, running from the Sea of Galilee in the north to the Dead Sea in the south. The Dead Sea is the lowest place on earth, 1286 feet below sea level. The phrase Salt Sea is added to the name because the sea has no outlet; it loses its water by evaporation. The concentration of salt and other minerals is so high that nothing can live in it.

3:17 A synonym for the term translated dry ground is found in 4:22, as well as in Ex. 14:16, 22, 29 where it refers to the dry ground of the bottom of the Red Sea. This crossing of the Jordan was similar to the crossing of the Red Sea. The miracle was so effective in both cases that the Israelites crossed on dry ground, not mud or shallow water.

4:3 The twelve stones (one stone per tribe) would mark the spot where God performed His wonderful miracle in stopping the waters of the Jordan so the Israelites could cross. The stones would remind the people of the great event and serve as conversation starters with their children, who would ask what they symbolized (vv. 6, 21).

4:6 The Hebrew term for sign can mean “miracle” (Ex. 7:3), but here it means “memorial marker.” The same idea is found in Ex. 12:13, 14; 13:8, 9, where there are instructions for celebrating the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread. These observances were signs to the Israelites and their children that God had miraculously delivered them out of Egypt. when your children ask: The stones would inevitably stimulate a child’s questions in the same way that the Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread would. These questions would be opportunities for instruction (Ex. 12:26, 27; 13:8; compare Deut. 6:20–24).

4:8 the children of Israel did so: A standard feature of Hebrew narratives is repetition. This verse repeats almost verbatim the instructions given in v. 5. Far from being an unimaginative feature of a primitive storytelling style, such repetitions are a sophisticated literary device. Often they show that instructions, usually God’s or those of His representatives, were carried out exactly, “to the letter.” The pattern is for a character in the story to give the instructions and then for the narrator to confirm, using the same words, that the instructions were carried out. The phrase as the LORD had spoken to Joshua confirms the obedience of the Israelites even further. This literary device is used to highlight the importance of obedience to the words of God.

4:10 the people hurried and crossed over: This paragraph represents something of a flashback, since 3:17 and 4:1 have already stated that the crossing was completed. The purpose is to look back and reflect upon the people’s obedience.

4:11 The priests who were standing on dry ground in the middle of the river (3:17) were finally able to cross over themselves with the ark. This foreshadows the more detailed account of the priests’ coming out of the water in v. 18.

4:12 The men of the tribes east of the Jordan acted exactly as Moses had spoken—that is, in direct obedience to the instructions Moses gave when Israel was still on the Plains of Moab (Num. 32:20–22; Deut. 3:18–20).

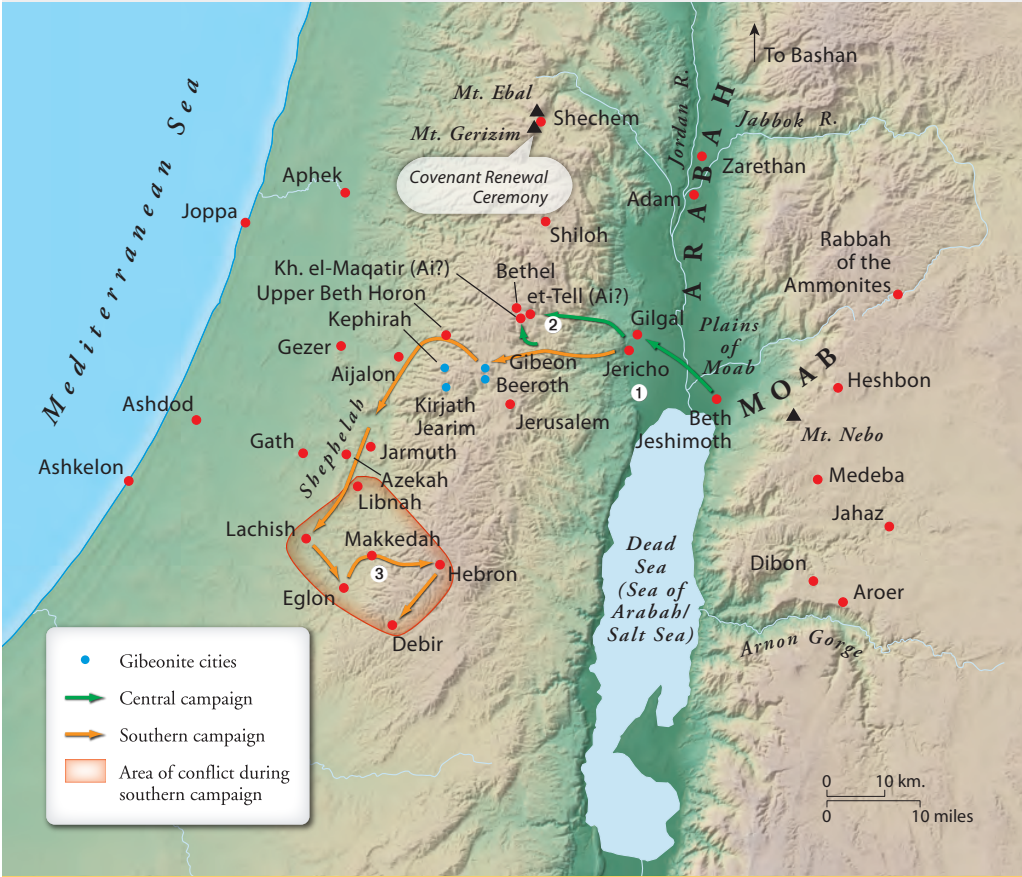

4:13 The number of warriors from Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh is forty thousand, much smaller than that listed in Num. 26. There the warriors from Reuben alone number 43,730 (Num. 26:7). The number here was most likely a portion of the warriors from the three tribes; the rest probably stayed with the women, children, and elderly to protect them. The reference to Jericho (the first in the book) foreshadows the dramatic events to follow in ch. 6. Jericho was six miles west of the Jordan, ten miles northwest of the

Conquest of Canaan

1 ENTRY INTO CANAAN

When the Israelite tribes approached Canaan after four decades of wilderness existence, they had to overcome two Amorite kingdoms on the Medeba plateau and in Bashan. Under Moses' leadership, they also subdued the Midianites in order to consolidate their control over the Transjordanian region.

The conquest of Canaan followed a course that in retrospect appears as though it had been planned by a brilliant military strategist. Taking Jericho gave Israel control of its strategic plains, fords, and roads as a base of operations. When Israel next gained control of the Bethel, Gibeon, and Upper Beth Horon regions, it dominated the center of the north-south Palestinian ridge. Subsequently, Israel was able to break the power of the allied urban centers in separate campaigns south and north (for the northern campaign, see map, p. 353).

2 THE CENTRAL CAMPAIGN

The destruction of both Jericho and Ai led to a major victory against the Canaanites in the Valley of Aijalon — the battle of the long day (see Josh. 10:12–14)—which then allowed Joshua to proceed against the cities of the western foothills.

Archaeological evidence for the conquest is mixed, in part because the chronological problems are unsolved. On the one hand, clay tablets containing cuneiform letters to the Egyptian court have been found at Tell el-Amarna in Egypt from c. 1375 B.C. These mention bands of Hapiru that threaten many of the cities of Canaan and create fear among the Canaanite inhabitants.

On the other hand, numerous towns were destroyed c. 1230 B.C. by unknown assailants, presumably the “Sea Peoples,” but possibly including the Israelites as well. The biblical chronology based on 1 Kin. 6:1 seems to demand an even earlier dating, near the end of the fifteenth century.

3 THE SOUTHERN CAMPAIGN

Azekah, Libnah, Lachish, Eglon, and Debir were all captured by Joshua in his campaign against the southern coalition of Canaanite cities that was led by the king of Jerusalem.

Several of these towns, most notably Lachish, contain destruction evidence that might possibly be correlated with the Israelite conquest, but with Jericho and Ai the historical implications are not clear.

The Second Generation Circumcised

5 So it was, when all the kings of the Amorites who were on the west side of the Jordan, and all the kings of the Canaanites ^awho were by the sea, ^bheard that the LORD had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the children of Israel until ¹we had crossed over, that ²their heart melted; ^cand there was no spirit in them any longer because of the children of Israel.

²At that time the LORD said to Joshua, “Make ^dflint knives for yourself, and circumcise the sons of Israel again the second time.” ³So Joshua made flint knives for himself, and circumcised the sons of Israel at ³the hill of the foreskins. ⁴And this is the reason why Joshua circumcised them: ^eAll the people who came out of Egypt who were males, all the men of war, had died in the wilderness on the way, after they had come out of Egypt. ⁵For all the people who came out had been circumcised, but all the people born in the wilderness, on the way as they came out of Egypt, had not been circumcised. ⁶For the children of Israel walked ^fforty years in the wilderness, till all the people who were men of war, who came out of northern end of the Dead Sea. It was near a large freshwater spring 825 feet below sea level.

4:14 the LORD exalted Joshua: Once again, God affirmed Joshua’s place as Moses’ successor (1:5, 17; 3:7). In this context, they feared him indicates respect, reverence, or awe, not terror. The Israelites obeyed Joshua in the same way they had obeyed Moses.

4:16 The Hebrew word for Testimony also means “reminder,” and it is used in Ex. 31:18 to refer to the tablets on which the Ten Commandments were written, “the two tablets of the Testimony.” “The tablets of the covenant” are mentioned in Deut. 9:11, which shows that “testimony” and “covenant” are closely related ideas. The ark is called “the ark of the Testimony” because it contained the two stone tablets on which were written the Ten Commandments (Ex. 40:20; Deut. 10:1-5).

4:18 This verse is a mirror image of 3:15. This neatly concludes the miraculous episode, showing the forces of nature resuming their natural course and reminding us of the marvelous nature of the miracle of God stopping the waters.

4:19 The crossing of the Jordan was on the tenth day of the first month, that is, the month of Nisan (Abib), corresponding to March–April. This was an important day because it coincides with the day that the Passover lamb was selected (Ex. 12:3). It foreshadows the keeping of the Passover in 5:10, on the fourteenth day of the month, when the lamb is actually killed (Ex. 12:6, 18). The location of Gilgal is uncertain; it was somewhere east of Jericho in the Jordan valley. At Gilgal, the Israelites celebrated several religious rituals, including circumcision and Passover (ch. 5). There also a sanctuary and an altar were built for God (9:23, 27).

4:20 The stones which the Israelites had brought up out of the Jordan River (v. 8) were now set up permanently at Gilgal.

4:21–24 The 12 stones were a memorial for them and their children, as had been stated earlier (vv. 6, 7). The crossing of the Jordan has many similarities to the crossing of the Red Sea. The text makes this explicit in 4:23. that all the peoples . . . may know: The miracle was performed for a greater purpose than merely getting the Israelites across the Jordan River. It also was a sign to all peoples that God was powerful. Indeed the inhabitants of Jericho had heard about how great Israel’s God was (2:10, 11).

5:1 God’s drying up the waters of the Jordan caused the inhabitants of Canaan to fear Israel greatly. Such reactions of fear or opposition were common as Israel entered the land (see 9:1–4; 10:1–2; 11:1–5). The language here especially recalls the same thought expressed earlier by Rahab (2:10, 11). This verse forms a transition between the Jordan crossing in chs. 3; 4 and the adversaries to be encountered later in chs. 6–12.

5:2 Flint is a rock found in abundance in biblical lands, and its use is known from almost all periods of ancient history; many flint knives have been found in excavations. Flint was gradually replaced by metals, such as copper, bronze, and iron. Only in two places in the OT is the Hebrew word flint found, here and in Ex. 4:26, both in connection with circumcision. This they had to do again the second time (vv. 4, 5). The males of the generation that left Egypt in the Exodus had all been circumcised. However, that generation died in the wilderness and the practice had been neglected. Thus it was necessary to perform it again, especially before the important celebration of Passover. The original instructions for Passover had emphasized the importance of circumcising all participants before the ceremony (Ex. 12:44, 48).

5:6, 7 God would deny covenant benefits (Gen. 12:1–3; 15:18–21; 17:1–8) to individuals who did not obey Him. Anyone who was not circumcised was to be cut off from enjoying the blessings of God’s people (Gen. 17:14). God’s promises to Abraham’s descendants would be fulfilled to the nation as a whole, but not every individual would automatically participate: Faith and obedience were required.

Egypt, were ⁴consumed, because they did not obey the voice of the LORD—to whom the LORD swore that ⁸He would not show them the land which the LORD had sworn to their fathers that He would give us, ^h“a land flowing with milk and honey.” ⁷Then Joshua circumcised ⁱtheir sons whom He raised up in their place; for they were uncircumcised, because they had not been circumcised on the way.

⁸So it was, when they had finished circumcising all the people, that they stayed in their places in the camp ^jtill they were healed. ⁹Then the LORD said to Joshua, “This day I have rolled away ^kthe reproach of Egypt from you.” Therefore the name of the place is called ^lGilgal ⁵to this day.

¹⁰Now the children of Israel camped in Gilgal, and kept the Passover ^mon the fourteenth day of the month at twilight on the plains of Jericho. ¹¹And they ate of the produce of the land on the day after the Passover, unleavened bread and ⁶parched grain, on the very same day. ¹²Then ⁿthe manna ceased on the day after they had eaten the produce of the land; and the children of Israel no longer had manna, but they ate the food of the land of Canaan that year.

¹⁴So He said, “No, but as Commander of the army of the LORD I have now come.”

And Joshua ^qfell on his face to the earth and ^rworshiped, and said to Him, “What does my Lord say to His servant?”

¹⁵Then the Commander of the LORD’s army said to Joshua, ^s“Take your sandal off your foot, for the place where you stand is holy.” And Joshua did so.

The Destruction of Jericho

6 Now ^aJericho was securely shut up because of the children of Israel; none went out, and none came in. ²And the LORD said to Joshua: “See! ^bI have given Jericho into your hand, its ^cking, and the mighty men of valor. ³You shall march around the city, all you men of war; you shall go all around the city once. This you shall do six days. ⁴And seven priests shall bear seven ^dtrumpets of rams’ horns before the ark. But the seventh day you shall march around the city ^eseven times, and ^fthe priests shall blow the trumpets. ⁵It shall come to pass, when they make a long blast with the ram’s horn, and when you hear the sound of the trumpet, that all the people shall shout with a great shout; then the wall of the city will fall down flat. And the people shall go up every man straight before him.”

This truth is emphasized in 5:7 with the statement that God raised up another generation to replace the one He had consigned to perish in the wilderness. The land God had promised to Israel was no wilderness, but a land flowing with milk and honey, a fertile land ready to supply all the Israelites’ needs. God had described the land this way to Moses decades before (Ex. 3:8); the phrase appears 15 times in the Pentateuch.

5:10 The Israelites celebrated the Passover on the fourteenth day of the month, four days after they crossed the Jordan River (4:19), at twilight. The Israelites scrupulously kept the instructions concerning the Passover (see Ex. 12:6).

5:11, 12 The celebration of the Passover marked a significant turning point in Israel’s life: right after this they began to live from the land they were about to possess. The miraculous provision of manna in the wilderness stopped.

5:14 The stranger did not respond to Joshua’s question, but instead identified Himself. He was the Commander of the army of the LORD. This elicited a response of humble worship from Joshua. Rather than any further questions about this Man’s loyalties, Joshua asked how he could serve this One greater than him: What does my Lord say to His servant? The Book of Job ends in a similar manner. God did not answer Job’s questions either. There as here it was the encounter with God that mattered most (Job 42:5, 6). Questions were silenced, and humble worship was evoked.

5:15 The command given to Joshua to take your sandal off your foot is virtually identical with the one given to Moses at the burning bush (Ex. 3:5). This reinforces the theme developed in the Book of Joshua about Joshua’s filling of Moses’ role as leader of Israel. Joshua was confronted with the living God, just as Moses had been (Ex.

33:9–11). John 1:18 strongly implies that appearances such as this were preincarnate appearances of the Savior Jesus, and not of God the Father, who cannot be seen (John 6:46).

6:2 The verb have given communicates that something has already happened, emphasizing the role of God in Israel’s victories (2:24).

6:3 The site of Jericho measured less than half a mile in circumference, only about seven acres, so the march around the city would have been completed quickly. The phrase men of war (also found in 5:4, 6; 10:24) is essentially synonymous with “mighty men of valor” (v. 2). It is used several times in the Pentateuch to refer to the adult males who came out of Egypt but who were not allowed to enter the Promised Land (Num. 31:28, 49; Deut. 2:14, 16). Now a new generation of warriors, ready to fight the Lord’s battles, was called by this phrase.

6:4 The number seven figures prominently in this passage: seven priests, seven trumpets, seven days, and seven trips around the city. Seven is a significant number in the Scriptures, beginning with the seven days of creation. It is a number that signifies completion. Its use here helps to demonstrate that the conquest of Jericho was part of a larger spiritual exercise that sanctified the people and the land for God. Another reminder of the spiritual significance of the event is the presence of the ark with the people. See ch. 3 for the importance of the ark in the crossing of the Jordan River.

6:5 The terms ram’s horn and trumpet refer to the same kind of instrument. These terms refer to a horn that could produce only a few notes; it was used mainly as a signal. Here it both signaled God’s presence and announced Jericho’s impending doom. It is the most commonly mentioned instrument in the OT.

⁶Then Joshua the son of Nun called the priests and said to them, “Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark of the LORD.” ⁷And he said to the people, “Proceed, and march around the city, and let him who is armed advance before the ark of the LORD.”

⁸So it was, when Joshua had spoken to the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the LORD advanced and blew the trumpets, and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them. ⁹The armed men went before the priests who blew the trumpets, ^{9a}and the rear guard came after the ark, while the priests continued blowing the trumpets. ¹⁰Now Joshua had commanded the people, saying, “You shall not shout or make any noise with your voice, nor shall a word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I say to you, ‘Shout!’ Then you shall shout.” ¹¹So he had ^hthe ark of the LORD circle the city, going around it once. Then they came into the camp and ^llodged in the camp.

¹⁵But it came to pass on the seventh day that they rose early, about the dawning of the day, and marched around the city seven times in the same manner. On that day only they marched around the city seven times. ¹⁶And the seventh time it happened, when the priests blew the trumpets, that Joshua said to the people: “Shout, for the LORD has given you the city! ¹⁷Now the city shall be ^jdoomed by the LORD to destruction, it and all who are in it. Only ^kRahab the harlot shall live, she and all who are with her in the house, because ^lshe hid the messengers that we sent. ¹⁸And you, ^mby all means abstain from the accursed things, lest you become accursed when you take of the accursed things, and make the camp of Israel a curse, ⁿand trouble it. ¹⁹But all the silver and gold, and vessels of bronze and iron, are ²consecrated to the LORD; they ³shall come into the treasury of the LORD.”

²⁰So the people shouted when the priests blew the trumpets. And it happened when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that ^othe wall fell down flat. Then the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city. ²¹And they ^putterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, ox and sheep and donkey, with the edge of the sword.

²²But Joshua had said to the two men who had spied out the country, “Go into the harlot’s house, and from there bring out the woman and all that she has, ^qas you swore to her.” ²³And the young men who had been spies went in and brought out Rahab, ^rher father, her

6:6, 7 Joshua’s instructions here repeat God’s instructions to him in vv. 2–5. The repetition highlights the importance of the solemn ceremony of marching around the city.

6:9 Armed men is another military term. It means “men equipped for war,” emphasizing their strength as they prepared for battle. The term rear guard is rare, found only in vv. 9, 13, in Num. 10:25, and figuratively of God in Is. 52:12. The contingent of warriors assigned to the ark is indeed impressive: first the armed men (vv. 7, 9), next the priests blowing horns, then the ark itself carried by priests (v. 8), and finally the rear guard (v. 9).

6:11 he had the ark . . . circle the city: The narrative continues placing the ark in a prominent position. The people circled the city as well, but the focus is on the ark.

6:12 The phrase rose early in the morning is found in 3:1; 6:15; 7:16; 8:10; 8:14, as well as several times in Judges. It indicates a good start to a day. In this case, the task at hand would not consume much time, but it was of such spiritual significance that Joshua in his eagerness made an early start.

6:15 On the seventh day the Israelites marched around the city seven times, symbolizing completion of the task.

6:17, 18 The important Hebrew word translated as doomed . . . to destruction, accursed, or curse occurs in these two verses five times. This word indicates that the city of Jericho, along with its inhabitants and everything in it, was to be completely destroyed as an offering to the Lord. The concept was related to warfare—things would be offered to the Lord by being utterly destroyed. This was not limited to Jericho, however—it could happen anywhere, with respect to material wealth (7:1, 11), people (10:28, 35, 39, 40; 11:11, 20), or even entire cities (8:26; 10:1, 37; 11:12, 21). God wanted Israel to keep itself undefiled in order to reflect His holiness. In this particular circumstance, it was vitally important that the Israelites not be tempted by the pagan worship practices of the Canaanites. God’s command that they devote the city of Jericho to Him was similar to His command to give Him the firstfruits of the harvest. Whenever Israel disobeyed this command, the effects were disastrous (see ch. 7). The word trouble foreshadows the problems Achan would bring on the community (7:16–24).

6:19 The word translated consecrated means “holy.” The valuable metal objects were not to be destroyed, but rather to be set apart for the Lord.

6:20 With a great blast of the horns and a great shout from the people, God miraculously delivered Jericho into their hands: the wall fell down flat (“under itself”). The account of the taking of Jericho in vv. 8–20 is related in a slow, climax-building style. This first great obstacle to Israel’s possession of the land fell merely at a shout of the people. The fact that it was utterly destroyed in a moment illustrates God’s complete and effortless mastery over all His people’s opponents.

6:23 The two spies who had visited Rahab’s house went into her home and rescued her and her entire family. These two men mother, her brothers, and all that she had. So they brought out all her relatives and left them outside the camp of Israel. ²⁴But they burned the city and all that was in it with fire. Only the silver and gold, and the vessels of bronze and iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD. ²⁵And Joshua spared Rahab the harlot, her father's household, and all that she had. So ^sshe dwells in Israel to this day, because she hid the messengers whom Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

²⁶Then Joshua ⁴charged them at that time, saying, "Cursed be the man before the LORD who rises up and builds this city Jericho; he shall lay its foundation with his firstborn, and with his youngest he shall set up its gates."

²⁷So the LORD was with Joshua, and his fame spread throughout all the country.

Defeat at Ai

⁷But the children of Israel ¹committed a ^atrespass regarding the ^baccursed² things, for ^cAchan the son of Carmi, the son of ³Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed things; so the anger of the LORD burned against the children of Israel.

²Now Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Beth Aven, on the east side of Bethel, and spoke to them, saying, "Go up and spy out the country." So the men went up and spied out Ai. ³And they returned to Joshua and said to him, "Do not let all the people go up, but let about two or three thousand men go up and attack Ai. Do not weary all the people there, for the people of Ai are few." ⁴So about three thousand men went up there from the people, ^dbut they fled before the men of Ai. ⁵And the men of Ai struck down about thirty-six men, for they chased them from before the gate as far as Shebarim, and struck them down on the descent; therefore ^ethe ⁴ hearts of the people melted and became like water.

⁶Then Joshua ^ftore his clothes, and fell to the earth on his face before the ark of the LORD until evening, he and the elders of Israel; and they ^gput dust on their heads. ⁷And Joshua said, "Alas, Lord ⁵God, ^hwhy have You brought this people over the Jordan at all—to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? Oh, that we had been content, and dwelt on the other side of the Jordan! ⁸O Lord, what shall I say when Israel turns its ⁶back before its enemies? ⁹For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land will hear it, and surround us, and ⁱcut off our name from the earth. Then ^jwhat will You do for Your great name?"

rescued her so that there would be no mistake about whom they were to rescue. Remarkably, this prostitute, who was saved from utter destruction, became a member of the family line of Jesus (Ruth 4:18–22; Matt. 1:5).

6:25 she dwells in Israel to this day: This may indicate that this portion of the Book of Joshua, if not the entire book, was written within the lifetime of Rahab.

6:26 Joshua charged them: Literally "caused them to take an oath." The word cursed is one of the common Hebrew words for cursing; it is the opposite of blessed. Joshua cursed any attempts at rebuilding Jericho. The city was occupied sporadically after that (18:21; Judg. 3:13; 2 Sam. 10:5), but never to the previous extent. Joshua's curse found a dramatic fulfillment many centuries later when Hiel of Bethel laid its foundation and rebuilt its gates at great personal cost (1 Kin. 16:34). The language of the 1 Kings account consciously echoes that of this passage.

6:27 As a result of this first dramatic conquest in the land of Canaan, it was apparent that the LORD was with Joshua, and news of this spread far and wide.

7:1 This verse is a transition between the story of the conquest of Jericho and that of the defeat at Ai. It sets up the next chapter (especially vv. 20, 21). The phrase committed a trespass means "committed a treacherous violation." The names of Achan and his forebears in this verse are found again in 1 Chr. 2:6, 7. Usually whenever the anger of the LORD burned against Israel; He raised up an adversary against the nation to threaten and overpower it. Here God used the small army of Ai. The Lord's anger did not subside until Achan and his family had been punished (7:26).

7:2 Ai, which is beside Beth Aven, on the east side of Bethel: That is, Ai was a small city west of Jericho. spy out: The Hebrew word for spies (see 2:1) and spying is related to the word for "feet." The spies investigated the land by going through it on foot.

7:4 Israel's force of three thousand men was a very small contingent indeed compared to the totals that they had available.

According to 4:13, the number of warriors from east of the Jordan alone was 40,000.

7:5 Israel suffered thirty-six casualties before retreating. Although minor, this was Israel's first defeat in the land and a great surprise, especially after the inspiring events of the siege of Jericho. the descent: The topography west of Jericho rises sharply up out of the Jordan valley. It appears that the men of Ai chased the Israelites eastward, down the steep hills, toward Jericho, from where they had come. the hearts of the people melted: In an ironic twist, the very words that Rahab used to describe the inhabitants of Jericho's fears in the face of the Israelites (2:11) are now used of the Israelites' fears of the men of tiny Ai. The effects of sin are often very demoralizing.

7:6 tore his clothes, and fell to the earth . . . put dust on their heads: The actions of mourning here are much more dramatic than typical mourning customs in the modern world. However, these were common actions in Israel and the ancient Middle East. Other mourning customs in Israel included weeping (Ps. 6:6), beating the chest (Is. 32:12), lifting up of the hands (Ezra 9:5; Ps. 141:2), lying or sitting in silence (Judg. 20:26; 2 Sam. 12:16), bowing the head (Lam. 2:10), fasting (2 Sam. 3:35), wearing sackcloth (Gen. 37:34), and sprinkling ashes, dust, or dirt (2 Sam. 15:32). However, the Israelites were strictly prohibited from practicing some pagan mourning rites, such as cutting the body or shaving the beard (Lev. 19:28; Deut. 14:1; Jer. 16:6).

7:7 Joshua's bitter words echoed various complaints by the Israelites in the wilderness (Ex. 16:3; 17:3; Num. 11:4–6; 14:2, 3; 20:3–5). The certainty of the past was often preferable to the difficulties of the present and the uncertainty of the future. Joshua's desire to have remained on the other (east) side of the Jordan demonstrated his selective memory, since that spot had problems of its own. Indeed the Israelites had at times wanted to return to Egyptian slavery (Num. 11:4–6)!

7:9 Despite Joshua's shortsightedness in v. 7, here he showed that he was aware of the larger issue at stake: God's great name—His reputation.

The Sin of Achan

¹⁰ So the LORD said to Joshua: “Get up! Why do you lie thus on your face? ¹¹ Israel has sinned, and they have also transgressed My covenant which I commanded them. ¹² For they have even taken some of the ⁷ accursed things, and have both stolen and ¹ deceived; and they have also put it among their own stuff. ¹³ Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because ⁸ they have become doomed to destruction. Neither will I be with you anymore, unless you destroy the accursed from among you. ¹⁴ Get up, ⁹ sanctify ⁸ the people, and say, ¹⁵ “Sanctify yourselves for tomorrow, because thus says the LORD God of Israel: “There is an accursed thing in your midst, O Israel; you cannot stand before your enemies until you take away the accursed thing from among you.” ¹⁶ In the morning therefore you shall be brought according to your tribes. And it shall be that the tribe which ¹⁷ the LORD takes shall come according to families; and the family which the LORD takes shall come by households; and the household which the LORD takes shall come man by man. ¹⁸ Then it shall be that he who is taken with the accursed thing shall be burned with fire, he and all that he has, because he has ¹⁹ transgressed ⁹ the covenant of the LORD, and because he ²⁰ has done a disgraceful thing in Israel.”

²² So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran to the tent; and there it was, hidden in his tent, with the silver under it. ²³ And they took them from the midst of the tent, brought them to Joshua and to all the children of Israel, and laid them out before the LORD. ²⁴ Then Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achan the son of Zerah, the silver, the garment, the wedge of gold, his sons, his daughters, his oxen, his donkeys, his sheep, his tent, and ²⁵ all that he had, and they brought them to

7:10–15 God’s response to Joshua and the elders’ mourning reinforced the importance of holiness. Israel—not just Achan—had sinned, and God would not tolerate it. This passage also shows that God had consistent standards for both Israel and the Canaanites. He had ordered Israel to exterminate the Canaanites because of their sin; He could not allow Israel to accommodate corruption, even that of one man, especially when the instructions concerning the infraction were so clear (v. 11; Deut. 7:26).

7:11 Hebrew has several words for sin. Sinned means “missing the mark” of a standard set by God; transgressed means “crossing a boundary” set by God. This verse highlights the seriousness of Achan’s offense, attributed here to the nation Israel, by referring to the sin in various ways: Israel had (1) sinned, (2) transgressed the Lord’s covenant, (3) taken some of the accursed things, (4) stolen, (5) deceived, and (6) put the things among their own stuff. The quick, staccato accumulation of these verbs accentuates the severity of the action, since it was essentially one act. My covenant: The word covenant refers to many different dealings of God with His people at different times. Here the specific reference appears to be to the portion of the covenant that referred to the annihilation of the Canaanites (Deut. 20:10–20).

7:12 That God would declare the people of Israel doomed to destruction, as Jericho had been, because of their sin was a serious statement. It meant God would no longer be with Israel until the sin was removed from the camp. God had specifically promised to be with His people (1:5, 9). This threat to withdraw His presence emphasizes once again God’s absolute standards and His demand for holiness.

7:13 The relationship between obedience and blessing and disobedience and cursing is well illustrated here: Israel would have no further successes until the sin had been uncovered.

7:15, 16 The Hebrew word translated a disgraceful thing denotes a blatant and senseless disregard for God’s will. The text does not say by what method God indicated that the tribe of Judah was taken and the guilty party found out.

7:19 give glory to the LORD . . . and make confession . . . and tell me: These three actions commanded by Joshua are aspects of one event. By telling Joshua his sin, Achan was confessing to God, and by his confession, he was indeed glorifying God. We too dishonor God when we hide our sins from Him, and we honor Him when we confess them.

7:21 a beautiful Babylonian garment: Literally, “one beautiful garment of Shinar.” The land of Shinar is mentioned in Gen. 11:2 as the place where men built the Tower of Babel. two hundred shekels of silver: The shekel was the basic unit of weight for silver, and it was slightly more than four-tenths of an ounce. The total weight of the silver was considerable—more than 80 ounces. The gold Achan took weighed fifty shekels, or about 20 ounces. coveted: Achan’s actions, besides violating God’s instructions, also were a violation of the tenth commandment (Ex. 20:17). Achan had made fruitless attempts to hide his sin from God, from whom nothing can be hidden (Ps. 139:7–12).

7:24 Achan was brought out to be stoned, not only with each of the items he had stolen, but also with all that he had and his entire household. This was a severe punishment, but it illustrated God’s firm insistence on holiness. Achan’s sin had infected all Israel (7:1), and ridding Israel of the stain of this sin required the annihilation of everything with which Achan had intimate contact. Ironically for Achan, God allowed the Israelites to take the spoil in the next victory, at the second battle of Ai (8:2)! Achan’s greed was his own downfall.

^athe Valley of Achor. ²⁵And Joshua said, ^b“Why have you troubled us? The LORD will trouble you this day.” ^cSo all Israel stoned him with stones; and they burned them with fire after they had stoned them with stones.

²⁶Then they ^draised over him a great heap of stones, still there to this day. So ^ethe LORD turned from the fierceness of His anger. Therefore the name of that place has been called ^fthe Valley of ²Achor to this day.

The Fall of Ai

8 Now the LORD said to Joshua: ^a“Do not be afraid, nor be dismayed; take all the people of war with you, and arise, go up to Ai. See, ^bI have given into your hand the king of Ai, his people, his city, and his land. ²And you shall do to Ai and its king as you did to ^cJericho and its king. Only ^dits spoil and its cattle you shall take as booty for yourselves. Lay an ambush for the city behind it.”

³So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai; and Joshua chose thirty thousand mighty men of valor and sent them away by night. ⁴And he commanded them, saying: “Behold, ^eyou shall lie in ambush against the city, behind the city. Do not go very far from the city, but all of you be ready. ⁵Then I and all the people who are with me will approach the city; and it will come about, when they come out against us as at the first, that ^fwe shall flee before them. ⁶For they will come out after us till we have drawn them from the city, for they will say, ‘They are fleeing before us as at the first.’ Therefore we will flee before them. ⁷Then you shall rise from the ambush and seize the city, for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand. ⁸And it will be, when you have taken the city, that you shall set the city on fire. According to the commandment of the LORD you shall do. ⁹See, I have commanded you.”

⁹Joshua therefore sent them out; and they went to lie in ambush, and stayed between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of Ai; but Joshua lodged that night among the people. ¹⁰Then Joshua rose up early in the morning and mustered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai. ¹¹^hAnd all the people of war who were with him went up and drew near; and they came before the city and camped on the north side of Ai. Now a valley lay between them and Ai. ¹²So he took about five thousand men and set them in ambush between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of ⁱthe city. ¹³And when they had set the people, all the army that was on the north of the city, and its rear guard on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

¹⁴Now it happened, when the king of Ai saw it, that the men of the city hurried and rose early and went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at an appointed place before the plain. But he ^jdid not know that there was an ambush against him behind the city. ¹⁵And Joshua and all Israel ^kmade as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness. ¹⁶So all the people who were in Ai were called together to pursue them. And they pursued Joshua and were drawn away from the city. ¹⁷There was not a man left in Ai or Bethel who did not go out after Israel. So they left the city open and pursued Israel.

8:1 The words Do not be afraid, nor be dismayed echo the words God used to encourage Joshua in 1:9. The sins of Achan had broken the special relationship God had established with His people, and so God reiterated His encouragement to Joshua. These words reinforce the statement of 7:26 that God had forgiven Israel, that He had “turned from the fierceness of His anger.” people of war: The usual term is “men of war” (5:4, 6). This phrase seems to emphasize the unity of the entire nation in doing battle, even though it was most likely only the men who actually engaged in the battles. I have given: The conquest of the city was certain because God had willed it.
8:2 booty for yourselves: In contrast to the instructions concerning Jericho (6:17–19), this time the Israelites were allowed to take and keep spoils of war for themselves. Had Achan been less greedy, he could have participated in this as well. However, the Israelites were still to kill the inhabitants of Ai.
8:4 A select group of men was to lie in ambush . . . behind the city, that is, to the west. The main group of people would then be stationed north of the city (vv. 12, 13).
8:7 the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand: Here as elsewhere in the historical books, military victories are attributed to God. Israel was to depend completely upon Him for its successes.
8:8 commandment: After the disobedience in ch. 7, strict obedience was important here. Joshua urged obedience to God’s commands, and the people complied (vv. 2, 8, 27).

8:13 The phrase its rear guard refers to the ambush forces stationed to the west of the city (vv. 3, 12). The largest contingent of warriors was stationed to the north. It appears that Joshua spent the night with the people, across the valley from Ai (v. 11), but late in the night he got up and went into the valley in preparation for the day’s events (v. 13).
8:15 the way of the wilderness: This may indicate merely that the men of Ai fled in disarray into the wilderness. The same phrase is found again in a similar context, where a coalition of Israelites set an ambush for the Benjamites at Gibeah (Judg. 20:42). The phrase occurs one other place, at Ex. 13:18, referring to the route that Israel took from Egypt through the desert.
8:17 Bethel is an important city in the Bible. It has a fine pedigree that goes back to patriarchal times, when Abraham offered a sacrifice to God there (Gen. 13:3) and Jacob had a dream from God there (Gen. 28:10–22). Bethel was near Ai to the west (7:2), although its exact site is disputed. The inhabitants of Bethel came out of their city to help the men of Ai. Since the Israelite ambush was stationed between Bethel and Ai, they may have felt threatened by the Israelites. Or it may be that Ai was a small outpost for the larger city of Bethel (7:3) and an attack on Ai was understood to be an attack on ¹⁸Then the LORD said to Joshua, “Stretch out the spear that is in your hand toward Ai, for I will give it into your hand.” And Joshua stretched out the spear that was in his hand toward the city. ¹⁹So those in ambush arose quickly out of their place; they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand, and they entered the city and took it, and hurried to set the city on fire. ²⁰And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and behold, the smoke of the city ascended to heaven. So they had no power to flee this way or that way, and the people who had fled to the wilderness turned back on the pursuers.

²¹Now when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city and that the smoke of the city ascended, they turned back and struck down the men of Ai. ²²Then the others came out of the city against them; so they were caught in the midst of Israel, some on this side and some on that side. And they struck them down, so that they ^klet none of them remain or escape. ²³But the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

²⁴And it came to pass when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness where they pursued them, and when they all had fallen by the edge of the sword until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned to Ai and struck it with the edge of the sword. ²⁵So it was that all who fell that day, both men and women, were twelve thousand—all the people of Ai. ²⁶For Joshua did not draw back his hand, with which he stretched out the spear, until he had ^lutterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. ²⁷^mOnly the livestock and the spoil of that city Israel took as booty for themselves, according to the word of the LORD which He had ⁿcommanded Joshua. ²⁸So Joshua burned Ai and made it ^oa heap forever, a desolation to this day. ²⁹^pAnd the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until evening. ^qAnd as soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his corpse down from the tree, cast it at the entrance of the gate of the city, and ^rraise over it a great heap of stones that remains to this day.

Joshua Renews the Covenant

³⁰Now Joshua built an altar to the LORD God of Israel ^sin Mount Ebal, ³¹as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the Book of the Law of Moses: ^t“an altar of Bethel. The text does not record Bethel's defeat, although its king is listed among those conquered by Joshua (12:16). It may be that in the defeat of Ai, Bethel was also defeated and no further reference was needed.

8:18 God told Joshua to stretch out the spear toward the city to begin the attack. Evidently this signal was relayed in some way to those lying in ambush (v. 19).

8:19 set the city on fire: Among all the cities that the Israelites captured, only three are said to have been burned: Jericho (6:24), Ai (8:19), and Hazor (11:11). The people of Israel were to live in and enjoy the cities of the land. Most of Israel's battles were in the field; they generally did not have to destroy the cities.

8:23 The Israelites were to treat the king of Ai exactly as they had the king of Jericho (v. 2). Chapter 6 does not specify what they did to the king of Jericho, but we can infer from 8:29 that they killed him and exposed his body in a humiliating way.

8:26 Joshua did not draw back his hand: This verse shows Joshua maintaining his arm outstretched, with his spear in hand, until the defeat of Ai was completed. The upraised spear was more than a signal to start the battle; it was also a symbol of God's presence and help in the battle (v. 1). This episode closely parallels that in Ex. 17:8–16, where the Israelites battled the Amalekites, and Moses stretched out his hand with “the rod of God” in it (Ex. 17:9). In that account, Moses' outstretched arm stood for God's presence, because the battle went in Israel's favor when Moses' hands were up, and against Israel when he tired and dropped his hands. This episode in Joshua shows yet another way in which Joshua was the worthy successor to Moses (see 1:1, 5; 24:29). Note that Joshua was the military leader when Moses stretched out his hand, and now Joshua was in Moses' position while others carried on the battle.

8:27 according to the word of the LORD: God had specified that the Israelites could take the city's possessions and livestock, but nothing else (v. 2), and this verse indicates that they carried out His instructions. This undoubtedly includes their treatment of the king of Ai (v. 29).

8:28 The word heap refers to a mound of ruins. Ancient cities were usually built on high points of land near water supplies, and when a city was destroyed a new city was built on the same site atop the packed and settled debris from the former city. Thus, over time, cities came to be on top of high mounds of compacted ruins. Ai was not rebuilt; therefore it remained a heap of ruins. The Hebrew word (tel) for heap is found in only a few places in the Bible (8:28; Deut. 13:16; 11:13; Jer. 30:18; 49:2), and in such place names in the Bible as Tel Melah and Tel Harsha (Ezra 2:59) or Tel Abib (Ezek. 3:15). The equivalent Arabic word tell is used today as part of the names of many sites in Israel. Ai's very name means “The Ruin,” so the judgment implicit in its name is now made explicit in this wordplay.

8:29 As God instructed (v. 27), Joshua executed the king of Ai and exposed his body on a tree (see the similar action in 10:26). But he took down the body at sundown in accordance with the injunction in Deuteronomy that a body could not remain exposed overnight (Deut. 21:22, 23). In these texts, hanged means exposing the dead body on a sharpened stake as a mark of shame and horror, not hanging by the neck. a great heap of stones: A different Hebrew word for “heap” is used here from the one in v. 28, but the connection is clear. The king's fate here is exactly the same as Achan's fate in 7:26. God would not favor His own people when they blatantly disobeyed, any more than He would favor wicked Canaanites; for his sin Achan was expelled from Israel and treated like a Canaanite. 8:30 Mount Ebal is mentioned only here and in Deut. 11:29; 27:4, 13. It and Mount Gerizim, directly south of it, were the sites to be used for proclaiming blessings and curses when the Israelites came into the land; specifically, Ebal was to be the site of the curses (Deut. 11:29). Here it was the site of an altar. Ebal and Gerizim are two important peaks in central Canaan flanking an east-west pass through the north-central hill country. Almost the entire Promised Land is visible from the top of Mount Ebal.

8:31 Moses . . . had commanded this in Deut. 27:2–10. This is another example of the explicit fulfillment of God's words; the Israelites had disobeyed enough that they wanted to make doubly sure they did it right this time. An altar of whole stones refers to unfinished stones (Deut. 27:4), which was in accord with God's whole stones over which no man has wielded an iron tool.” And “they offered on it burnt offerings to the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings.”³² And there, in the presence of the children of Israel, ^vhe wrote on the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he had written.³³ Then all Israel, with their elders and officers and judges, stood on either side of the ark before the priests, the Levites, ^wwho bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, ^xthe stranger as well as he who was born among them. Half of them were in front of Mount Gerizim and half of them in front of Mount Ebal, ^yas Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.³⁴ And afterward ^zhe read all the words of the law, ^athe blessings and the cursings, according to all that is written in the ^bBook of the Law.³⁵ There was not a word of all that Moses had commanded which Joshua did not read before all the assembly of Israel, ^cwith the women, the little ones, ^dand the strangers who were living among them.

³But when the inhabitants of ^eGibeon ^fheard what Joshua had done to Jericho and Ai, ⁴they worked craftily, and went and ²pretended to be ambassadors. And they took old sacks on their donkeys, old wineskins torn and ³mended, ⁵old and patched sandals on their feet, and old garments on themselves; and all the bread of their provision was dry and moldy. ⁶And they went to Joshua, ^gto the camp at Gilgal, and said to him and to the men of Israel, “We have come from a far country; now therefore, make a ⁴covenant with us.”

⁷Then the men of Israel said to the ^hHivites, “Perhaps you dwell among us; so ⁱhow can we make a covenant with you?”

⁸But they said to Joshua, ^j“We are your servants.”

And Joshua said to them, “Who are you, and where do you come from?”

⁹So they said to him: ^k“From a very far country your servants have come, because of the name of the LORD your God; for we have ^lheard of His fame, and all that He did in Egypt, ¹⁰and ^mall that He did to the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan—to Sihon king of Heshbon, and Og king of Bashan, who was at Ashtaroht. ¹¹Therefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spoke to us, saying, ‘Take provisions with you for the journey, and go to meet earlier instructions about making altars (Ex. 20:25). The unfinished stones would have contrasted with the finished stones found in many Canaanite altars. This was a reminder that, even in such rituals as offering sacrifices, the Israelites were to be different or distinct from their neighbors. Burnt offerings were sacrifices in which the animals were entirely consumed (7:1–10; Ex. 29:18; Lev. 1:1–17). Peace offerings were offerings in which portions of the sacrificial animals were to be joyfully eaten by the ones presenting them (7:11–21; Lev. 3:1–17).

8:32 Joshua publicly wrote a copy of the law on stones, which echoed the instructions for a king in Deut. 17:18. While Joshua was not a king, several indications in the book show him in a kingly light, acting with the authority of a king and in ways in which kings were supposed to act (1:5–9; Deut. 17:14–20).

8:33 This Hebrew word for stranger could more precisely be translated “resident alien.” It refers to those foreigners who lived as permanent residents within Israel. These were different from foreigners or outsiders who had incidental contact with Israel, such as travelers or traders, who had few rights within Israel (Ex. 12:43; Lev. 22:10, 25). Resident aliens were allowed to take gleanings from the fields (Lev. 19:10; 23:22), and the Israelites were repeatedly instructed to give special care to them, along with the poor, the widow, and the orphan (Ex. 22:21; 23:9; Deut. 10:17–22). This special concern for aliens within Israel’s borders was rooted in Israel’s own alien status in Egypt, which God wanted them to remember (Ex. 22:21; 23:9; Deut. 10:17–22; 23:7). This is part of the missionary message of the OT: Israel was to treat aliens within its own borders in such a way that they would want a relationship with Israel’s God. In this passage we see aliens participating right along with the rest of the Israelites in the covenant affirmation ceremony.

8:34, 35 This was the first public reading of the Book of the Law, the entire body of the Law given by Moses, mentioned after Moses’ death.

9:1, 2 Though a coalition of Canaanite kings banded together to oppose Israel, the text does not say whether this coalition ever actually fought Israel. It disappears from the scene after v. 2. Six ethnic groups in Canaan, who often are mentioned together (3:10), are listed here. God told Israel to destroy these nations, and He did not want Israel to become allies with them under any circumstances (Ex. 23:28–33; Deut. 7:1–5; 20:16–18).

9:3 Gibeon was relatively close to Ai and about five miles northwest of Jerusalem. It is known mainly for the deceit of its inhabitants described in this chapter.

9:6 The Gibeonites went to great lengths to make it look as though they had come from a far country. Israel was allowed to make treaties with cities that were far from them (Ex. 34:11, 12; Deut. 20:10–18). Thus if the Gibeonites’ claim of v. 6 had been truthful, the treaty that the Israelites made with them would have been permissible. A covenant was a legal treaty. The literal wording in Hebrew is “cut a covenant,” which may have referred to the ancient custom of sacrificing an animal to ratify it (Gen. 15:10).

9:7 The people of Gibeon are called Hivites, and were among the groups slated for destruction (Ex. 34:11; Deut. 20:17). Israel should not have made a treaty with them. This verse shows that the Israelites were initially suspicious of the Gibeonites.

9:9, 10 The fame of the Israelites’ victories had preceded them among the Gibeonites, in the same way that it did among the inhabitants of Jericho earlier (2:9, 10).

them, and say to them, “We are your servants; now therefore, make a covenant with us.”¹² This bread of ours we took hot for our provision from our houses on the day we departed to come to you. But now look, it is dry and moldy.¹³ And these wineskins which we filled were new, and see, they are torn; and these our garments and our sandals have become old because of the very long journey.”

¹⁴Then the men of Israel took some of their provisions; ¹⁵but they ¹⁶did not ask counsel of the LORD. ¹⁷So Joshua ¹⁸made peace with them, and made a covenant with them to let them live; and the rulers of the congregation swore to them.

¹⁹Then all the rulers said to all the congregation, “We have sworn to them by the LORD God of Israel; now therefore, we may not touch them. ²⁰This we will do to them: We will let them live, lest ²¹wrath be upon us because of the oath which we swore to them.” ²²And the rulers said to them, “Let them live, but let them be ²³woodcutters and water carriers for all the congregation, as the rulers had ²⁴promised them.”

²²Then Joshua called for them, and he spoke to them, saying, “Why have you deceived us, saying, ²³‘We are very far from you,’ when ²⁴you dwell near us? ²⁵Now therefore, you are ²⁶w cursed, and none of you shall be freed from being slaves—woodcutters and water carriers for the house of my God.”

²⁴So they answered Joshua and said, “Because your servants were clearly told that the LORD your God ²⁵commanded His servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you; therefore ²⁶we were very much afraid for our lives because of you, and have done this thing. ²⁷And now, here we are, ²⁸in your hands; do with us as it seems good and right to do to us.” ²⁹So he did to them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, so that they did not kill them. ³⁰And that day Joshua made them ³¹woodcutters and water carriers for the congregation and for the altar of the LORD, ³²in the place which He would choose, even to this day.

The Sun Stands Still

10 Now it came to pass when Adoniz-Zedek king of Jerusalem ¹heard how Joshua had taken ²Ai and had utterly destroyed it—³as he had done to Jericho and its king, so he had done to ⁴Ai and its king—and ⁵how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel and were among them, ⁶that they ⁷feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, like one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all its men were mighty. ⁸Therefore Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem sent to Hoham king of Hebron, 9:14 The Israelites took some of the Gibeonites’ provisions in order to inspect them, to confirm the Gibeonites’ words. Significantly, the Israelites did not ask counsel of the LORD, contrary to God’s explicit instructions to Joshua (Num. 27:21). The Israelites’ confirmation of the Gibeonites’ claim was purely in their own strength and on their own initiative. The mistake on Israel’s part was not so much that they were deceived, but that they did not ask for the Lord’s counsel. Similarly, many Christians have found themselves in difficult or disastrous circumstances because they rushed to a decision without properly consulting the Lord, His Scriptures, and His people for guidance.

9:15 Joshua made peace with them: The treaty made in this chapter has much in common with typical ancient Middle Eastern treaties of the times. A subordinate group makes the agreement with a more powerful party in order to receive protection. Its binding nature (v. 18) forms the basis for the actions taken in 10:1–27, where the Gibeonites found themselves threatened by a Canaanite coalition and appealed to the Israelites for help.

9:17 Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kirjath Jearim were all towns near Gibeon. The first two were in Benjaminite territory (18:25, 26), and the third was on its border (18:14, 15).

9:20 the oath which we swore: Oath taking and swearing were solemn affairs. To take an oath was to give a sacred and unbreakable word to follow through on what was promised. From time to time, even God swore by Himself or His holiness or His great name to take certain actions (Gen. 22:16–18; Ps. 89:35; Jer. 44:26). Swearing falsely was a grave sin (Ezek. 17:16–21; Zech. 5:3, 4; Mal. 3:5). Because of the sacred, unbreakable nature of an oath, this covenant the Israelites made with the Gibeonites could not be revoked, even though it was obtained under false pretenses.

9:24 The report that reached the Gibeonites concerning the Israelites (v. 3) frightened them so much that they conjured up this deception. Their words your servants were clearly told bear witness to the great events of the Exodus that were not forgotten even 40 years after the event (Deut. 1–3).

9:27 The phrase the place which He would choose is particularly important in Deuteronomy. It indicates that the Gibeonites were to serve only at sanctioned Israelite worship centers and not Canaanite ones. Until the Jerusalem temple was built, these centers included Shiloh (18:1) and Gibeon itself (1 Chr. 16:39). That they did so to this day (a phrase also found in 4:9; 5:9; 7:26; 8:29) shows that the Gibeonites did indeed continue this service for some time, although it is not specifically mentioned again in the OT.

10:2 Political and military calculations led the five Canaanite kings to conclude that if such a great city as Gibeon had to make peace with the seemingly invincible Israelites, their only option was to band together and attack (v. 5). Ai was a strong city, a fact to which Israel closed their eyes when they became overconfident in themselves (7:3).

Piram king of Jarmuth, Japhia king of Lachish, and Debir king of Eglon, saying, ⁴“Come up to me and help me, that we may attack Gibeon, for ⁵it has made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.” ⁶Therefore the five kings of the ⁷Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon, ⁸gathered together and went up, they and all their armies, and camped before Gibeon and made war against it.

¹¹So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he and ¹²all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valor. ¹³And the LORD said to Joshua, ¹⁴“Do not fear them, for I have delivered them into your hand; ¹⁵not a man of them shall ¹⁶stand before you.” ¹⁷Joshua therefore came upon them suddenly, having marched all night from Gilgal. ¹⁸So the LORD ¹⁹routed them before Israel, killed them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, chased them along the road that goes ²⁰to Beth Horon, and struck them down as far as ²¹Azekah and Makkedah. ²²And it happened, as they fled before Israel and were on the descent of Beth Horon, ²³that the LORD cast down large hailstones from heaven on them as far as Azekah, and they died. ²⁴There were more who died from the hailstones than the children of Israel killed with the sword.

²⁵Then Joshua spoke to the LORD in

¹⁷ So the sun stood still,
And the moon stopped,
Till the people had revenge
Upon their enemies.

¹⁸Is this not written in the Book of Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and did not hasten to go down for about a whole day. ¹⁹And there has been ²⁰no day like that, before it or after it, that the LORD heeded the voice of a man; for ²¹the LORD fought for Israel.

²²Then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.

The Amorite Kings Executed

²³But these five kings had fled and hidden themselves in a cave at Makkedah. ²⁴And it was told Joshua, saying, “The five kings have been found hidden in the cave at Makkedah.”

²⁵So Joshua said, “Roll large stones against the mouth of the cave, and set men by it to guard them. ²⁶And do not stay there yourselves, but pursue your enemies, and attack their rear guard. Do not allow them to enter their cities, for the LORD your God has delivered them into your hand.” ²⁷Then it happened, while Joshua and the children of Israel made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they had finished, that those who escaped entered fortified cit-

10:5 The name Amorites probably refers to the inhabitants of the central mountain region of Palestine, although only Jerusalem and Hebron are really in the hill country. The king of Jerusalem was leader of a coalition of five kings against Gibeon. The events at Ai had struck fear into the kings’ hearts, especially now that Gibeon, a prominent city, had made a treaty with Israel (ch. 9). Gibeon’s treaty with Israel may have been a renunciation of one with Jerusalem. This could explain the special concern of the king of Jerusalem.

10:7 Joshua ascended from Gilgal because Gilgal and Jericho were in the deep Jordan valley; he would have had to go up into the hill country in the central portion of Canaan to help the Gibeonites.

10:9 For Joshua’s men to have marched all night from Gilgal and then attacked speaks well of their stamina. Their night march covered about 20 miles up steep terrain, with gear, under stress, in the middle of the night, and with a battle still before them.

10:10 This verse summarizes the victory; vv. 11–13 give the details. the LORD routed them: Despite Joshua’s presence with his warriors (v. 7), it was God who gave the victory and God who received the credit. the road that goes to Beth Horon: One escape route for the Canaanite kings went northwest, down from the hill country toward the coast. Azekah was a town over the hills to the southwest of Gibeon, some distance away. That some were fleeing in this direction while others were fleeing toward Beth Horon indicates the completeness of the rout. The location of Makkedah is unknown, but presumably it was somewhere near Azekah.

10:12 In the sight of Israel, Joshua commanded the Sun and the Moon to stand still over Gibeon until the Israelites completed their task. The words of this verse form a two-part section of well-balanced poetry, and the words in v. 13 comment on them with a three-part echo.

10:13 The Book of Jasher (mentioned again in 2 Sam. 1:18) confirms what the Book of Joshua reports here. It is not part of the Bible, and no part of it has survived.

10:14 the LORD heeded: This is the climax of the section. The author of Joshua marvels (perhaps quoting from the Book of Jasher), not that a miracle happened, but that God listened to the voice of one man and fought on Israel’s behalf so grandly. This is plain proof that one person can gain God’s attention in prayer.

10:19 delivered them into your hand: Again Joshua gave God credit for the Israelites’ victory. enter their cities: The fortified cities of Canaan offered some protection to their people. That is why the ambush at Ai was designed to draw the people out of the city (8:17). In v. 20, we see that some people escaped into the fortified cities.

10:20, 21 The slaughter of the Canaanites was great, but some escaped. This explains why there were still people in these towns later (see especially vv. 31–37). No one moved his tongue: Literally, “sharpened his tongue.” It means “to criticize” or “to slander.”

ies. ²¹ And all the people returned to the camp, to Joshua at Makkedah, in peace.

²² Then Joshua said, “Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings to me from the cave.” ²³ And they did so, and brought out those five kings to him from the cave: the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

²⁴ So it was, when they brought out those kings to Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said to the captains of the men of war who went with him, “Come near, put your feet

10:24 Joshua told the captains to put their feet on the necks of these kings as a clear declaration of victory. See Ps. 110:1: “I [will] make Your enemies Your footstool”; and 1 Cor. 15:25–27, where God places Jesus’ enemies “under His feet” (Ps. 8:6). Ancient sculptural reliefs show Assyrian kings doing this to their vanquished enemies. 10:25 be strong and of good courage: Joshua encouraged the people in the same terms God had used to encourage him (1:6, 9; 10:8). Now Joshua had the authority to give this exhortation to others.

10:26 hanged them on five trees . . . until evening: Joshua did to these five kings what he had earlier done to the king of Ai (8:29). As before, he took the bodies down before sundown in accordance with Mosaic legislation (8:29).

Miracles

Open the Bible wherever you like and you will soon find the mention of an event that only God could do. These stories of God’s intervention in nature occur without apology throughout the Bible. But the Bible usually gives the barest of details. Sometimes the reader is left wondering exactly what happened.

The account of Israel’s victory over the five kings of the Amorites is a perfect example. Joshua 10:13 says that in response to Joshua’s prayer, “the sun stood still, and the moon stopped.” This miraculous event played a key role in Israel’s victory that day. Even accepting this as a miracle, which the narrative surely bids us to do, leaves some questions unanswered. We know that the sun does not move around the earth, so it was not the sun that literally stopped, but what took place that day? And how did it help Israel?

Some take the text to mean that God stopped the earth’s rotation. “The sun stood still” means that the position of the sun in the sky remained constant. Since the sun’s position is determined by the earth’s rotation, the earth’s rotation must have stopped. This delay gave the Israelites the daylight they needed to finish routing their enemies rather than letting them escape.

Others suggest that God caused an unusual refraction of light in the earth’s atmosphere that caused the sun to remain visible for a very lengthy period of time. The sun appeared to stop, but without any change in the rate of the earth’s rotation. Again, this gave Israel time to finish their rout.

Others reinterpret the miracle. The verb translated “stand [stood] still” in verses 12, 13 can also be translated “cease, stop.” Some scholars therefore say that Joshua was asking that the sun stop shining, not that it stop moving. The long night’s march, largely uphill and with full battle gear, left his troops tired. Joshua asked God to stop the sun from beating down on his troops before exhaustion overcame them. Joshua was seeking a cooler day, not a longer one.

Of course, we do not know exactly what happened. What we know for sure is that God intervened in the normal course of nature at exactly the right moment to give the Israelites victory over their enemies. As the writer of Joshua points out, the greatest marvel lies not in the occurrence of the miracle itself but that “the LORD heeded the voice of a man” (Josh. 10:14).

Joshua prays for the sun to stand still.

²⁸On that day Joshua took Makkedah, and struck it and its king with the edge of the sword. He utterly ^edestroyed ⁴them—all the people who were in it. He let none remain. He also did to the king of Makkedah ^fas he had done to the king of Jericho.

²⁹Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, to ^gLibnah; and they fought against Libnah. ³⁰And the LORD also delivered it and its king into the hand of Israel; he struck it and all the people who were in it with the edge of the sword. He let none remain in it, but did to its king as he had done to the king of Jericho.

³¹Then Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, to Lachish; and they encamped against it and fought against it. ³²And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, who took it on the second day, and struck it and all the people who were in it with the edge of the sword, according to all that he had done to Libnah. ³³Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua struck him and his people, until he left him none remaining.

³⁴From Lachish Joshua passed to Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it and fought against it. ³⁵They took it on that day and struck it with the edge of the sword; all the people who were in it he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

³⁶So Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, to ^hHebron; and they fought against it. ³⁷And they took it and struck it with the edge of the sword—its king, all its cities, and all the people who were in it; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon, but utterly destroyed it and all the people who were in it.

³⁸Then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to ⁱDebir; and they fought against it. ³⁹And he took it and its king and all its cities; they struck them with the edge of the sword and utterly destroyed all the people who were in it. He left none remaining; as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir and its king, as he had done also to Libnah and its king.

⁴⁰So Joshua conquered all the land: the ^jmountain country and the ⁵South and the lowland and the wilderness slopes, and ^kall their kings; he left none remaining, but ^lutterly destroyed all that breathed, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded. ⁴¹And Joshua conquered them from ^mKadesh Barnea as far as ⁿGaza, ^oand all the country of Goshen, even as far as Gibeon. ⁴²All these kings and their land Joshua took at one time, ^pbecause the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel. ⁴³Then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.

The Northern Conquest

11 And it came to pass, when Jabin king of Hazor heard these things, that he ^asent to Jobab king of Madon, to the king ^bof Shimron, to the king of Achshaph, ²and to the kings who were from the north, in the mountains, in the 10:28–43 After the in-depth account of the battle in 10:1–27, the narrative now moves quickly to summarize the Israelites’ southern campaign in Canaan. The kings and people of seven southern cities are mentioned in a series of similar accounts. The Israelites had entered Canaan in the middle, at Jericho. Subsequently their campaigns went through the middle first, turning south (ch. 10) and then north (ch. 11). The fact that exactly seven cities are listed suggests that this may be a summarizing account, describing the destruction of representative cities. Only bare details of their destructions are given, and the successive accounts contain many repeated phrases. Three of the cities (Lachish, Eglon, and Hebron) are ones whose kings had already opposed the Israelites (v. 3). The picture in this section is unequivocally one of complete and swift annihilation of the people throughout the entire region. However, the work was not complete. 10:28 The first city mentioned is the one toward which the Canaanite coalition had fled, Makkedah (vv. 10, 16). The five kings had fled and hidden themselves in a cave. 10:30 Here and in vv. 32, 42, we are reminded that the LORD was Israel’s warrior.

10:33 The account of the capture of Gezer is mentioned only incidentally to the account of the capture of Lachish. According to 16:10, Canaanites were still (or again) living in Gezer some time later. 10:40 This verse presents the first conclusion to the accounts that had begun in 9:1, 2. Here we see that Joshua was victorious over all who lived in the mountain country (the word is the same as “hills” in 9:1) and the South and the lowland and the wilderness slopes. The word for South is “Negev,” which refers to the desert in the southern part of the land. The wilderness slopes are either the western slopes leading down to the lowland near the Mediterranean Sea or else the steep slopes going down to the Dead Sea to the east of the central mountainous area. This summary statement covers the central and southern portions of the land of Canaan, but it does not include the coastlands (13:2–6).

10:41 Neither Kadesh Barnea nor Gaza has been mentioned previously in Joshua; their inclusion here marks the southernmost limits of the land conquered. Gaza was a Philistine city, unconquered in 13:3. Goshen, even as far as Gibeon marks the southern and northern limits of this conquest. Goshen here is not the area in the northeastern Nile delta where the Israelites had lived before (Gen. 45:10; 46:28; Ex. 8:22; 9:26), but rather the city in the southern hill country of Canaan mentioned in 11:16; 15:51.

11:1–23 After conquering the southern coalition arrayed against them, Israel now faced a hostile coalition in the north as well, which it defeated (vv. 1–15).

11:1 Hazor was a large and strategic city in northern Israel; it is called “the head of all those kingdoms” in v. 10.

11:2 The geographical description here names areas rather than cities. Chinnereth is another name for the Sea of Galilee (see 12:3). There was also a town called Chinnereth on the northwest side of the sea (19:35). the heights of Dor on the west: Dor was a seaport on the Mediterranean, and no hills are nearby; some commentators understand this to mean “the dunes of Dor.”

The Northern Campaign

Late Bronze Age Hazor was burned by Joshua (Josh. 11:13). Excavations have revealed three clearly datable destruction layers, one of which may provide the strongest evidence yet for a historically verifiable date for the conquest.

The excavator thought Joshua burned the latest level (c. 1230 B.C.), but others argue that it must actually have been the earliest of the three levels, c. 1400 B.C.

the Perizzite, the Jebusite in the mountains, ^fand the Hivite below ^gHermon ^hin the land of Mizpah. ⁴So they went out, they and all their armies with them, as many people ⁱas the sand that is on the seashore in multitude, with very many horses and chariots. ⁵And when all these kings had ¹met together, they came and camped together at the waters of Merom to fight against Israel.

⁶But the LORD said to Joshua, ^j“Do not be afraid because of them, for tomorrow about this time I will deliver all of them slain before Israel. You shall ^khamstring their horses and burn their chariots with fire.” ⁷So Joshua and all the people of war with him came against them suddenly by the waters of Merom, and they attacked them. ⁸And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who defeated them and chased them to ²Greater ¹Sidon, to the ³Brook ^mMisrephoth, and to the Valley of Mizpah eastward; they attacked them until they left none of them remaining. ⁹So Joshua did to them as the LORD had told him: he hamstringed their horses and burned their chariots with fire.

¹⁰Joshua turned back at that time and took Hazor, and struck its king with the sword; for Hazor was formerly the head of all those kingdoms. ¹¹And they struck all the people who were in it with the edge of the sword, ⁿutterly destroying them. There was none left ^obreathing. Then he burned Hazor with fire.

11:3 The inclusion of the Jebusite, that is, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, is striking because Jerusalem was south of Jericho. Evidently, the Canaanites so feared the Israelite threat that they sought help from far and wide. Mount Hermon in the land of Mizpah was in the far north, the highest point in northern Palestine. Mizpah was a name of several cities in Israel's history, including one near Lachish (15:38), one in Benjamin in the south (18:26), and another one in Gilead east of the Jordan (Judg. 10:17).

11:4 Horses at this time were for pulling chariots. These vehicles accompanied the infantry and carried a rider with a bow or a supply of spears. The Canaanite armies did not use mounted warriors. These armies came well-armed to fight the Israelites, but it did not matter. God still defeated them (vv. 6–9). Only in the battles of Jericho and Ai did the Israelites initiate the action. Here, as in the other battles described in Joshua, the enemy—usually well-armed and in great numbers—attacked the Israelites. God limited the size of the Israelite army so that the Israelites would not trust their military power. Similarly, the instructions for a king in Deut. 17:14–20 explicitly state that the king was not to “multiply horses for himself” (17:16); that is, not to depend on his military might, but rather on God.

11:6 God promised to deliver Israel's enemies into their hands by tomorrow about this time. This is especially significant in light of the impressive numbers arrayed against Israel. These are the same words used many years later by Elisha to predict the escape of Samaria from a siege imposed by the Syrians (2 Kin. 7:1). In both cases God's promise came true.

11:8 Greater Sidon was a Phoenician city on the Mediterranean coast, and the Brook Misrephoth was south of it. The defeat of the Canaanites described here shows them fleeing in all directions in a total rout.

11:9 as the Lord had told him: Joshua was careful to do exactly as instructed (see v. 6).

11:10 Hazor was formerly the head: This is probably why Joshua struck at Hazor first, and why the text details its destruction. Excavation of Hazor has shown several destructions in the Late Bronze Age, one from about 1400 B.C. that could easily be attributed to Joshua.

11:11 Jericho and Ai were the only other cities burned. Most of the cities of Canaan were taken without being destroyed; their armies were defeated on the battlefield. In this way, most of the cities could be inhabited by Israel without rebuilding.

Summary of Joshua's Conquests
¹⁶Thus Joshua took all this land: ^uthe

11:14 Here, as with Ai, the Israelites were allowed to take all the spoil for themselves (8:2, 27). Their treatment of the inhabitants was the pattern for all their Canaanite targets: They left none breathing, but killed everyone (6:21; 8:22; 10:28, 30, 32, 33, 35, 37, 39, 40; 11:8, 11, 12). This complete annihilation of a population group has posed a significant problem for some people, who have felt that Joshua showed unjustified bloodthirstiness. Yet God had told Moses why Israel was to carry out this destruction in Canaan (Deut. 7:2-11; 20:16-18): the Canaanites were being judged by God for their wickedness.

11:16, 17 These verses summarize both the northern campaign and this entire section of the book (chs. 9-11). Verse 16 mentions many of the same territories as does 10:40, 41. The southern limit of the conquest is given here; Mount Halak is near Kadesh Barnea (10:41), and Seir is the hill country of Edom, southeast of the Dead Sea. Baal Gad . . . Mount Hermon: This is the northern limit of the conquest. Baal Gad was in the Lebanon valley, northwest of Mount Hermon. 11:20 to harden their hearts: The persons whose hearts God hardened were not good people, but were people already committed to doing evil (Ps. 14:1-3; Rom. 3:10-18). The marvel is that

God's Judgment

Stereotypes, fiction though they are, sometimes have one foot in reality. That is why many people believe them. Stereotypes arise from headlines that, to an extent, tell some of the story. But they fudge on the details. And in the final analysis, stereotypes fail to justly describe their subjects. Concerning the OT, nowhere has this been more of a problem than in the stereotyping of God's judgment on the Canaanites.

Of Israel's attacks on the northern part of Canaanite cities, the Bible states, "But they struck every man with the edge of the sword until they had destroyed them, and they left none breathing. As the LORD had commanded Moses His servant, so Moses commanded Joshua, and so Joshua did" (11:14, 15). God clearly commanded Israel to annihilate the Canaanites, and that is exactly what Joshua did.

Headlines such as this have caused many people to question God's basic justice. How can a holy, just, and loving God command such extreme violence? Indeed, many have thought of this issue as the OT's biggest challenge to modern readers. Some have gone so far as to allege that there is no connection between the "God of the Old Testament" and the "God of the New Testament revealed in Jesus."

However, this stereotype breaks down under examination. The Bible gives reasons for the Canaanites' destruction—and these reasons are in concert with the whole tenor of the Bible in both Testaments.

The primary reason for the Canaanites' destruction was that they were guilty of gross sin. Abraham got a preview of this when God promised him the land. God said fulfillment of the promise would be delayed in part because "the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete" (Gen. 15:16; the Amorites were the Canaanites). For many years, the Canaanites' sins would not justify annihilation. But that time would arrive, and it did arrive by the time of Joshua.

What were the sins of the Canaanites? The gruesome list in Lev. 18 gives some of the details, including incest, adultery, child sacrifice, homosexuality, and bestiality. Of course, every person has sinned in some fashion (Ps. 14:3). On this level, the Canaanites only received what all peoples deserved; others were spared only by God's grace. But Canaan was not a community of upstanding citizens. It was a thoroughly debased society, hostile to all God's ways (Deut. 9:4, 5).

To a lesser degree, God was merely protecting His people. God promised Abraham that He would curse anyone who cursed Israel (Gen. 12:3). The Canaanites sought to destroy Israel on at least two occasions (Josh. 9:1, 2; 11:1-5), and God would not allow that.

The stereotype also breaks down because it overlooks the highly localized nature of the judgment on Canaan. The Israelites did not have a license to kill. They had no right to do the same to whatever peoples they encountered, at any time or in any place. This destruction targeted the sinful Canaanites of that time only. As harsh as it may seem to us, the Canaanites brought God's judgment on themselves by their own sin.

The New Testament states that one day Jesus Christ will judge the wicked nations of the earth (Matt. 25:31-46). God once judged all the wicked with an overwhelming flood (Gen. 6-9), and the same God will one day again judge everyone who has ever lived (2 Pet. 3:10-13). The judgment against the Canaanites is merely one instance of His judgment on the wicked even as He extends forgiveness to others.

²¹And at that time Joshua came and cut off ^bthe Anakim from the mountains: from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. ²²None of the Anakim were left in the land of the children of Israel; they remained only ^cin Gaza, in Gath, ^dand in Ashdod.

²³So Joshua took the whole land, ^eaccording to all that the LORD had said to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel ^faccording to their divisions by their tribes. Then the land ^grested from war.

Building a Fortress

Archaeologists have found that the Indo-Aryans (a group of non-Semitic people originally from the plateau of Iran) exerted a strong influence upon Palestine, introducing many new weapons and tools. They brought horse-drawn chariots, the composite bow, and new types of city fortifications. They outfitted nearly every major city from central Syria to the Nile Delta with a defensive wall called a glacis. The glacis contained alternating layers of pounded earth, clay, and gravel, covered with plaster. It sloped down from the rock city walls to a dry moat below. Perhaps it was designed to frustrate cavalymen and battering rams. The Indo-Aryan cities also had huge cyclopean walls—a row of boulders leaning against a massive earthen fill. The city of Hazor provided a superb example of this.

God has reached out to so many in order to graciously make them His children. See Rom. 9:14–24 concerning God's hardening of Pharaoh's heart.

11:21, 22 The destruction of the Anakim from the hill country was especially significant. Their fearsome presence had caused the Israelites to rebel against God's command to enter Canaan many years before (Num. 13:22, 28, 32, 33). But as this generation learned, their size did not matter.

11:23 This verse ends this section (chs. 9–11). It is a transitional verse, looking back to summarize the conquests and looking forward to anticipate the inheritance of the land. The statement the land rested from war draws the first section of the book to a close. The next section before the distribution of Israel's inheritance is the list of defeated Canaanite kings (ch. 12). The idea of rest for the entire nation is found in such passages as Deut. 12:10; 25:19, and it is echoed in the summarizing passages of Joshua, 21:44; 23:1.

12:1–6 The Israelites' earlier conquests east of the Jordan are mentioned here, their victories over Sihon, king of Heshbon, and Og, king of Bashan. The Israelites defeated them under Moses' leadership and took possession of their land at that time (Num. 21:21–35). The detailed description of the territory they ruled makes more impressive the victory Israel had won. Verse 6 confirms that this indeed had been given as an inheritance to the two and one-half tribes who settled there.

12:6, 7 The language of these verses makes it plain that Joshua succeeded Moses in his various roles, first as conqueror and second as giver of the land. The two men are described in the same way: As conquerors, Joshua and the children of Israel (v. 7), follow Moses ... and the children of Israel (v. 6). As land-giver, Joshua gave (v. 7), as Moses ... had given (v. 6).

(Heb. nachalah) (13:7; Deut. 4:20; Ps. 16:5; 94:14) Strong's #5159

The word inheritance, meaning “possession” or “property,” is linked to the promises of God, particularly those involving the Promised Land (Gen. 13:14–17). When this word is used of the Promised Land, it does not merely refer to what a person wills to his children. Rather God, the Owner of the entire world, had granted His people a specific parcel of ground. He had fixed its boundaries and promised to deliver it to them. However, the concept of Israel’s inheritance transcends a simple association with the land. David and Jeremiah both affirm that God Himself is the real inheritance of His people (Ps. 16:5; Jer. 10:16). God’s people can find joy and fulfillment in their relationship with God. Nothing this world can offer as an inheritance compares with God Himself (1 Pet. 1:4).

13:1–7 Despite the picture of complete victory in chs. 10; 11, God told Joshua that there remains very much land yet to be possessed. This included territories of the Philistines and their neighbors to the south, the Phoenician coastland to the north, and the northern, mountainous territories of Lebanon. The famous five cities of the Philistines are mentioned (Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron). A hint that their territory remained to be taken appears already in 11:22, in the references to Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. But Joshua was too old to command the remaining struggle for the land. God Himself would drive out the remaining inhabitants; Joshua merely had to apportion the land to the nine and one-half tribes west of the Jordan.

13:3 the five lords of the Philistines: The word lords here translates a Philistine word, not a Hebrew word; it is the only clearly Philistine word recorded in the Bible. It is related to the Greek word that means “tyrant.”

13:14 to the tribe of Levi He had given no inheritance: This is an important concept in the Book of Joshua. Here, previous directives about the Levites’ inheritance were obeyed (Num. 18:20–24;

The Land of Reuben

of Gad according to their families, the cities and their villages.

Half the Tribe of Manasseh (East)

²⁹ Moses also had given an inheritance to half the tribe of Manasseh; it was for half the tribe of the children of Manasseh according to their families: ³⁰ Their territory was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and ^tall the towns of Jair which are in Bashan, sixty cities; ³¹ half of Gilead, and ^uAshtaroth and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were for the ^vchildren of Machir the son of Manasseh, for half of the children of Machir according to their families.

The Land Divided West of the Jordan

14 These are the areas which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, ^awhich Eleazar the priest, Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel distributed as an inheritance to them. ² Their inheritance was ^bby lot, as the LORD had commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes and the half-tribe. ³ ^cFor Moses had given the inheritance of the two tribes and the half-tribe on the other side of the Jordan; but to the Levites he had given no inheritance among them. ⁴ For ^dthe children of Joseph were two tribes: Manasseh and Ephraim. And they gave no part to the Levites in the land, except ^ecities to dwell in, with their common-lands for their livestock and Deut. 10:8, 9; 18:1-5). Originally, the tribe of Levi was sentenced to be landless for its violent behavior (Gen. 49:5-7), but later the Levites redeemed themselves (Ex. 32:25-28) and were promised a blessing (Deut. 33:8-11). Of the original 12 sons of Jacob, Joseph's inheritance was divided between his 2 sons, Ephraim and Manasseh. This would make 13 tribes, but excluding Levi from land inheritance kept the number to 12 (14:3, 4). The Levites did have cities in the territories of each tribe (21:1-42). Instead of a land inheritance, the sacrifices of God would be their privileged inheritance.

13:22 Balaam was the pagan fortune-teller who had been hired by Balak, king of Moab, to curse the Israelites in the wilderness (Num. 22-24). He found that he could speak only what God told him to, yet he sinned by inciting the Moabite women to seduce the Israelite men (Num. 25:1-9; 31:16). Hence, the children of Israel also killed ... Balaam. This record of Balaam's death echoes the notice found at Num. 31:8. The story of how God turned Balaam's desire to curse Israel into a blessing instead is celebrated in several passages (24:9, 10; Deut. 23:4, 5; Neh. 13:2; Mic. 6:5).

13:23 Large Canaanite cities such as Jericho were typically protected by walls. But there were many smaller villages around the cities. Thus the cities and their villages made up the small city-states typical of Canaan at this time. The villages were permanent settlements without walls, outlying farming villages.

13:33 Levi ... as He had said to them: This verse reiterates the information about the Levites' landless inheritance (compare v. 14); here, however, the inheritance is said to be God Himself and not the sacrifices. Because of their unique position, the Levites' relationship with God would be special.

14:2 God's place as the giver of the land is also highlighted by mention of the lot. God had commanded the casting of lots to determine Israel's inheritance (Num. 26:55). Thus that their inheritance was by lot does not mean that it was by chance, but that God Himself determined who got what land (18:6, 8, 10; Prov. 16:33). The lot is also mentioned in 15:1; 16:1; 17:1.

Caleb Inherits Hebron

⁶Then the children of Judah came to Joshua in Gilgal. And Caleb the son of Jephunneh the ^gKenizzite said to him: “You know ^hthe word which the LORD said to Moses the man of God concerning ⁱyou and me in Kadesh Barnea. ⁷I was forty years old when Moses the servant of the LORD ^jsent me from Kadesh Barnea to spy out the land, and I brought back word to him as it was in my heart. ⁸Nevertheless ^kmy brethren who went up with me made the ^lheart of the people melt, but I wholly ^lfollowed the LORD my God. ⁹So Moses swore on that day, saying, ^m“Surely the land ⁿwhere your foot has trodden shall be your inheritance and your children’s forever, because you have wholly followed the LORD my God.” ¹⁰And now, behold, the LORD has kept me ^oalive, ^pas He said, these forty-five years, ever since the LORD spoke this word to Moses while Israel ²wandered in the wilderness; and now, here I am this day, eighty-five years old. ^{11q}As yet I am as strong this day as on the day that Moses sent me; just as my strength was then, so now is my strength for war, both ^rfor going out and for coming in. ¹²Now therefore, give me

¹³And Joshua ^vblessed him, ^wand gave Hebron to Caleb the son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. ^{14x}Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he ^ywholly followed the LORD God of Israel. ¹⁵And ^zthe name of Hebron formerly was Kirjath Arba (Arba was the greatest man among the Anakim).

^aThen the land had rest from war.

The Land of Judah

15 So this was the ¹lot of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families:

^aThe border of Edom at the ^bWilderness of Zin southward was the extreme southern boundary. ²And their ^csouthern border began at the shore of the Salt Sea, from the bay that faces southward. ³Then it went out to the southern side of ^dthe Ascent of Akrabbim, passed along to Zin, ascended on the south side of Kadesh Barnea, passed along to Hebron, went up to Adar, and went around to Karkaa. ⁴*From there* it passed ^etoward

14:6 Caleb is described here and elsewhere as the Kenizzite (14:14; Num. 32:12). The Kenizzites were a non-Israelite group descended from Esau through Kenaz (Gen. 15:19; 36:11, 15, 42). Some of this group had apparently associated themselves with Judah at an early stage (Num. 13:6). It seems that Caleb, one of the most faithful to God of his time, was just a generation removed from a non-Israelite family.

14:7–9 These verses review events recorded in Num. 13; 14. The promise of Caleb’s inheritance mentioned in v. 9 refers to God’s words in Num. 14:24.

14:10 The span of eighty-five years indicates the period of time covered by most of the Book of Joshua. According to v. 7, Caleb was 40 when he was sent in to spy out the land. Now it was 45 years later. Since 40 years were spent in the wilderness, the conquest occupied 5 years.

14:12 It was the Anakim who had frightened 10 of the Israelite spies 45 years before, triggering Israel’s rebellion against God (Num. 13). Caleb was no more afraid of them now than he had been then, even though he was now considerably older. As he says, it may be that the LORD will be with me—a use of understatement to express certainty.

14:13 Joshua blessed him: To bless others in the name of the Lord expresses the desire for them to experience God’s best (Gen. 27:27–29; 47:10; 49:1–28; Judg. 5:24; Neh. 11:2). It is more than wishful thinking, because blessing in the name of God taps into the power and resources of God. In the Bible, blessings include children (Gen. 1:28; 28:3), land (Gen. 26:3; 28:4), wealth (Gen. 28:12–14), and a good reputation among others (Gen. 12:3; 22:18). When people are said to bless God, it means they are worshiping Him, ascribing worth to Him and His name (Ps. 104:1), and identifying Him as the source of their good (Ps. 103:1, 2).

14:14 Caleb’s wholehearted devotion to God was never in question, even in the wilderness: He wholly followed the LORD (v. 8). As a result, he received the land that he requested. In the Bible, people are sometimes rewarded in this life for their faithfulness to God, but not always (Heb. 11:32–40). The believer’s ultimate blessing will come in eternity. Those who set their hope on that promise will lose nothing, no matter what they suffer in this life.

14:15 Kirjath Arba: This was the former name of the city of Hebron (Gen. 23:2); it means “city of Arba.” Arba was the founding ancestor of the Anakim and is mentioned only here and in 15:13; 21:11. the land had rest from war: This comment echoes 11:23, which concludes the account of the southern and northern campaigns.

15:1–12 The boundaries of Judah in southern Canaan are now described in detail. This reinforces the importance of the inheritance and the exact location that each tribe received.

(Heb. shaqat) (11:23; 14:15) Strong’s #8252

This Hebrew word translated rest means “to be at peace.” It implies a freedom from anxiety and conflict. God had promised the Israelites rest in the Promised Land (Ex. 33:14; Deut. 3:1–20; 12:9, 10). For the nomadic Israelites, this meant freedom from wandering and fighting. In the Book of Joshua, the idea of rest is related specifically to the conflicts and hostilities Israel had with their neighbors. God promised His people a peaceful place to settle. Obtaining this rest depended on Israel’s complete obedience to God’s command to drive out the Canaanites (11:23; 14:15). The NT writers also speak of the concept of rest. Christians are told that heaven will bring them rest from death, pain, sin, and all other earthly struggles (Heb. 4:1; Rev. 21:4).

⁵The east border was the Salt Sea as far as the mouth of the Jordan.

And the ^fborder on the northern quarter began at the bay of the sea at the mouth of the Jordan. ⁶The border went up to ^gBeth Hoglah and passed north of Beth Arabah; and the border went up ^hto the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben. ⁷Then the border went up toward ⁱDebir from ^jthe Valley of Achor, and it turned northward toward Gilgal, which is before the Ascent of Adummim, which is on the south side of the valley. The border continued toward the waters of En Shemesh and ended at ^kEn Rogel. ⁸And the border went up ^lby the Valley of the Son of Hinnom to the southern slope of the ^mJebusite city (which is Jerusalem). The border went up to the top of the mountain that lies before the Valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end of the Valley ⁿof ²Rephaim northward. ⁹Then the border went around from the top of the hill to ^othe fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and extended to the cities of Mount Ephron. to the inhabitants of Debir (formerly the name of Debir was Kirjath Sepher).

¹⁶^aAnd Caleb said, “He who ⁴attacks Kirjath Sepher and takes it, to him I will give Achsah my daughter as wife.” ¹⁷So ^bOthniel the ^cson of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it; and he gave him ^dAchsah his daughter as wife. ¹⁸^eNow it was so, when she came to him, that she persuaded him to ask her father for a field. So ^fshe dismounted from her donkey, and Caleb said to her, “What do you wish?” ¹⁹She answered, “Give me a ^gblessing; since you have given me land in the South, give me also springs of water.” So he gave her the upper springs and the lower springs.

The Cities of Judah

²⁰This was the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families:

³³In the lowland: ⁿEshtaol, Zorah, Ashnah, ³⁴Zanoah, En Gannim, Tappuah, Enam, ³⁵Jarmuth, ^oAdullam, Socoh, Azekah, ³⁶Sharaim, Adithaim, Gederah, and Gederothaim: fourteen cities with their villages; ³⁷Zenan, Hadashah, Migdal Gad, ³⁸Dilean, Mizpah, ^pJokthe-el, ³⁹^qLachish, Bozkath, ^rEglon, ⁴⁰Cabbon, ⁵Lahmas, Kithlish, ⁴¹Gederath, Beth Dagon, Naamah, and Makkedah: sixteen cities with their villages; ⁴²^sLibnah, Ether, Ashan, ⁴³Jiphtah, Ashnah, Nezib, ⁴⁴Keilah, Achzib, and Mareshah: nine cities with their villages; ⁴⁵Ekron, with its towns and villages; ⁴⁶from Ekron to the sea, all that lay near ^tAshdod, with their villages; ⁴⁷Ashdod with its towns and villages, Gaza with its towns and villages—as far as ^uthe Brook of Egypt and ^vthe Great Sea with its coastline.

15:13–19 This second passage about Caleb’s inheritance (see 14:6–15 for the first one) explains how he also took Debir, another city that originally had been taken by Joshua (10:38, 39) but which had evidently fallen back into Canaanite hands. This section closely parallels Judg. 1:12–15.

15:20–63 The cities that Judah inherited number more than a hundred and include their surrounding villages. The list has four parts: (1) cities in the south (vv. 21–32); (2) cities in the lowland (vv. 33–47); (3) cities in the mountain country (vv. 48–60); and (4) cities in the wilderness near the Dead Sea (vv. 61, 62).

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Jebusites

Ancient Jerusalem was once called Jebus, and its original inhabitants were called the Jebusites. When the Israelites invaded Palestine under the leadership of Joshua, the Jebusites were ruled by Adoni-Zedek, one of five Amorite kings who resisted the Hebrew conquest. These five kings were defeated and slain by Joshua, but the Jebusites were not driven out of Jebus (Jerusalem). After David was anointed king, he led his army against the Jebusites. His military commander, Joab, apparently entered the city through an underground water shaft and led the conquest (2 Sam. 5:6–9; 1 Chr. 11:4–8). The site on which Solomon's temple was built in Jerusalem was previously a threshing floor that belonged to a Jebusite by the name of Araunah (2 Sam. 24:16–24), or Ornan (1 Chr. 21:24, 25). David refused to accept this property as a gift from Araunah and paid him 50 shekels of silver for the land.

of Jerusalem, ^b the children of Judah could not drive them out; ^c but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Judah at Jerusalem to this day.

Ephraim and West Manasseh

16 The lot ¹ fell to the children of Joseph from the Jordan, by Jericho, to the waters of Jericho on the east, to the ^a wilderness that goes up from Jericho through the mountains to ² Bethel, ² then went out ³ from ^b Bethel to Luz, passed along to the border of the Archites at Ataroth, ³ and went down westward to the boundary of the Japhletites, ^c as far as the boundary of Lower Beth Horon to ^d Gezer; and ⁴ it ended at the sea.

The Land of Ephraim

⁵ ^f The border of the children of Ephraim, according to their families, was thus: The border of their inheritance on the east side was ^g Ataroth Addar ^h as far as Upper Beth Horon.

15:63 The Jebusites, who inhabited Jerusalem before the Israelites arrived, stubbornly held on to Jerusalem because the tribe of Judah did not destroy them completely. God did not want Israel to make peace with the inhabitants of the land, but instead to drive them out and utterly destroy them (Num. 33:52–55; Deut. 7:1–5; 20:16–18). Judg. 1:21 repeats this verse almost verbatim, except that it states that Benjamin (not Judah) failed to drive out the Jebusites. This is because Jerusalem sat astride the boundary between Benjamin and Judah. In the early period, Jerusalem did not strictly belong to either tribe. The tribe of Judah did capture Jerusalem later (Judg. 1:8), but Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites in their portion (Judg. 1:21). Apparently Judah took the unfortified southwestern hill, while the tribe of Benjamin failed to take the walled city on the eastern hill. The details are not entirely clear, but it is stated that Jebusites and Israelites lived together (15:63; Judg. 1:21). The city effectively belonged to the Jebusites until the time of David (2 Sam. 5:5–10). 16:1–4 A single lot determined the inheritance of both of the tribes of Joseph—Ephraim and Manasseh. That these two tribes together received only one lot caused them later to complain (17:14–18).

16:9 The separate cities: Some of Ephraim's cities were actually part of Manasseh's inheritance (see also 17:9). The reason for this is not clear, but it may have its basis in the greater blessing extended to Ephraim by Jacob (Gen. 48). Manasseh also inherited towns from the territories of two other tribes, Issachar and Asher (17:11).

16:10 they did not drive out the Canaanites: This previews the many statements about incomplete conquests in Judg. 1. forced laborers: The status of the Canaanites in Gezer was somewhat similar to that of the Gibeonites (9:27), except that there was no treaty involved here, so the status of these Canaanites was somewhat lower.

The Other Half-Tribe of Manasseh (West)

17 There was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh, for he was the ^afirst-born of Joseph: namely for ^bMachir the firstborn of Manasseh, the father of Gilead, because he was a man of war; therefore he was given ^cGilead and Bashan. ²And there was a lot for ^dthe rest of the children of Manasseh according to their families: ^efor the children of ^fAbiezer, the children of Helek, ^gthe children of Asriel, the children of Shechem, ^hthe children of Hephher, and the children of Shemida; these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph according to their families.

³But ⁱZelophehad the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but only daughters. And these are the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. ⁴And they came near before ^jEleazar the priest, before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the rulers, saying, ^k“The Lord commanded Moses to give us an ^linheritance among our brothers.” Therefore, according to the commandment of the Lord, he gave them an inheritance among their father’s brothers. ⁵Ten shares fell to ^mManasseh, besides the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side of the Jordan, ⁶because the daughters of Manasseh received an inheritance among his sons; and the rest of Manasseh’s sons had the land of Gilead.

¹⁰Southward it was Ephraim’s, northward it was Manasseh’s, and the sea was its border. Manasseh’s territory was

More Land for Ephraim and Manasseh

¹⁴sThen the children of Joseph spoke to Joshua, saying, “Why have you given us only ^tone ⁵lot and one share to inherit, since we are ^ua great people, inasmuch as the Lord has blessed us until now?”

¹⁵So Joshua answered them, “If you are a great people, then go up to the forest country and clear a place for yourself there in the land of the Perizzites and the giants, since the mountains of Ephraim are too confined for you.”

¹⁶But the children of Joseph said, “The mountain country is not enough for us; and all the Canaanites who dwell in the land of the valley have ^vchariots of iron, both those who are of Beth Shean and its towns and those who are ^wof the Valley of Jezreel.”

The Remainder of the Land Divided

18 Now the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together ^aat Shiloh, and ^bset up the tabernacle

17:1 Manasseh’s firstborn child Machir (Gen. 50:23; Num. 26:29) had already received a separate portion, Gilead and Bashan—that is, Manasseh’s portion east of the Jordan (13:29–31). The rest of Manasseh’s portion was west of the Jordan (vv. 2–13).

17:3–6 Here Joshua faithfully carried out the commands of God through Moses in the matter of the inheritance of Zelophehad, who had no sons (Num. 26:33; 27:1–11). Joshua made sure that the daughters received their inheritance as promised. This brief narrative emphasizes once again how God keeps His promises, a persistent theme throughout the Book of Joshua. The faith of the daughters of Zelophehad in claiming the land recalls that of Caleb, who also claimed land on the basis of God’s promise (14:6–15).

17:14–18 The episode here revives the complaint of the two tribes of Joseph that they together had received only one lot. Joshua encouraged them to take land in the hill country despite their fears of the Canaanites there (vv. 15, 17, 18; Num. 13:28–33). The episode presents a sharp contrast to Caleb’s willingness to take the initiative in claiming his land (14:6–15). It also reminds us that plenty of land remained to be taken (see 13:1).

18:1 Up to this point, Israel’s central encampment in the land had of meeting there. And the land was subdued before them. ²But there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes which had not yet received their inheritance.

³Then Joshua said to the children of Israel: ^c“How long will you neglect to go and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers has given you? ⁴Pick out from among you three men for each tribe, and I will send them; they shall rise and go through the land, survey it according to their inheritance, and come back to me. ⁵And they shall divide it into seven parts. ^dJudah shall remain in their territory on the south, and the ^ehouse of Joseph shall remain in their territory on the north. ⁶You shall therefore ¹survey the land in seven parts and bring the survey here to me, ^fthat I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God. ^{7g}But the Levites have no part among you, for the priesthood of the LORD is their inheritance. ^hAnd Gad, Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave them.”

⁸Then the men arose to go away; and Joshua charged those who went to ²survey the land, saying, “Go, walk ⁱthrough the land, survey it, and come back to me, that I may cast lots for you here before the LORD in Shiloh.” ⁹So the men went, passed through the land, and ³wrote the survey in a book in seven parts by cities; and they came to Joshua at the camp in Shiloh. ¹⁰Then Joshua cast ^jlots for them in Shiloh before the LORD, and there ^kJoshua divided the land to the children of Israel according to their ⁴divisions.

The Land of Benjamin

up through the mountains westward; it ended at the Wilderness of Beth Aven. ¹³The border went over from there toward Luz, to the side of Luz ⁿ(which is Bethel) southward; and the border descended to Ataroth Addar, near the hill that lies on the south side ^oof Lower Beth Horon.

¹⁵The south side began at the end of Kirjath Jearim, and the border extended on the west and went out to ^qthe spring of the waters of Nephtoah. ¹⁶Then the border came down to the end of the mountain that lies before ^rthe Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is in the Valley of the ⁶Rephaim on the north, descended to the Valley of Hinnom, to the side of the Jebusite city on the south, and descended to ^sEn Rogel. ¹⁷And it went around from the north, went out to En Shemesh, and extended toward Gelliloth, which is before the Ascent of Adummim, and descended to ^tthe stone of Bohan the son of Reuben. ¹⁸Then it passed along toward the north side of ⁷Arabah, and went down to Arabah. ¹⁹And the border passed along to the north side of Beth Hoglah; then ⁸the border ended at the north bay at the ^uSalt Sea, at the south end of the Jordan. This was the southern boundary.

²⁰The Jordan was its border on the east side. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, according to its boundaries all around, according to their families.

²¹Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, according to their families, were Jericho, Beth Hoglah, Emek Keziz, ²²Beth Arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel, ²³Avim, Parah, Ophrah, ²⁴Chephar Hammoni, Ophni, and Gaba: twelve cities with their villages; ^{25v}Gibeon, ^wRamah, Beeroth, ²⁶Mizpah, Chephirah, Mozah, ²⁷Rekem, Irpeel, Taralah, ²⁸Zelah, Eleph, ^xJebus (which is Jerusalem), Gibeath, been at Gilgal, near Jericho, where they had observed several religious ceremonies (4:19, 20; 5:2–12; 9:6). Now the entire congregation moved to Shiloh, about 15 miles northwest of Jericho, where they set up the tent of meeting. This would remain an important Israelite religious center for several hundred years (19:51; 21:2; Judg. 18:31; 21:12; 1 Sam. 1:9) until the taking of Jerusalem in David's day. The ark was kept there (1 Sam. 3:3), and it was brought into battle against the Philistines, who captured it when Samuel was judge (1 Sam. 4). Soon after this, Shiloh was destroyed (Ps. 78:60; Jer. 7:14). tabernacle of meeting: This is the first of two references to the tabernacle in this book; the other reference is in 19:51. The tabernacle was an elaborate portable tent that served as God's "home" when the Israelites were in the wilderness. The name tabernacle or tent of meeting usually means this tabernacle.

18:3 How long will you neglect to go: Joshua's rebuke of the seven tribes shows that it was not enough to defeat the inhabitants of the land; they also had to take possession of it. The Israelites had easily defeated the Canaanites (chs. 9–11) but they did not diligently follow up on their victories and occupy all of the land. This laziness disobeyed God's instructions in 13:1 and showed a lack of faith in His promises.

18:9 wrote the survey in a book: See 18:11—19:51.

and Kirjath: fourteen cities with their villages. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin according to their families.

Simeon's Inheritance with Judah

19 The ^asecond lot came out for Simeon, for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families. ^bAnd their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah. ^{2c}They had in their inheritance Beersheba (Sheba), Moladah, ³Hazar Shual, Balah, Ezem, ⁴Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, ⁵Ziklag, Beth Marcaboth, Hazar Susah, ⁶Beth Lebaoth, and Sharuhon: thirteen cities and their villages; ⁷Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan: four cities and their villages; ⁸and all the villages that were all around these cities as far as Baalath Beer, ^dRamah of the South. This was the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families.

⁹The inheritance of the children of Simeon was included in the share of the children of Judah, for the share of the children of Judah was ¹too much for them. ^eTherefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of ²that people.

The Land of Zebulun

¹⁰The third lot came out for the children of Zebulun according to their families, and the border of their inheritance was as far as Sarid. ^{11f}Their border went toward the west and to Maralah, went to Dabbasheth, and extended along the brook that is ^geast of Jokneam. ¹²Then from Sarid it went eastward toward the sunrise along the border of Chisloth Tabor, and went out toward ^hDaberath, bypassing Japhia. ¹³And from there it passed along on the east of ⁱGath Hephher, toward Eth Kazin, and extended to Rimmon, which borders on Neah. ¹⁴Then the border went around it on the north side of Hannathon, and ³it ended in the Valley of Jiphtah El. ¹⁵Included were Kattath, Nahallal, Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem: twelve cities with their villages. ¹⁶This was the inheritance of the children of Zebulun according to their families, these cities with their villages.

The Land of Issachar

¹⁷The fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar according to ^{24k}The fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families. ²⁵And their territory included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Achshaph, ²⁶Alammelech, Amad, and Mishal; it reached to ^lMount Carmel westward, along the Brook Shihor Libnath. ²⁷It turned toward the sunrise to Beth Dagon; and it reached to Zebulun and to the Valley of Jiphtah El, then northward beyond Beth Emek and Neiel, bypassing ^mCabul which was on the left, ²⁸including ⁴Ebron, Rehob, Hammon, and Kanah, ⁿas far as Greater Sidon. ²⁹And the border turned to Ramah and to the fortified city of Tyre; then the border turned to Hosah, and ended at the sea by the region of ^oAchzib. ³⁰Also Ummah, Aphek, and Rehob were included: twenty-two cities with their villages. ³¹This was the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages.

The Land of Naphtali

19:1, 9 Simeon did not get an independent inheritance, but rather inherited scattered lands within Judah's allotment. Their father Jacob had predicted this (Gen. 49:5-7). Later Simeon and Judah acted together (Judg. 1:3). In 1 Chr. 4:24-27 Simeon is described as a much smaller tribe than Judah.

Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages.

The Land of Dan

⁴⁰sThe seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families. ⁴¹And the territory of their inheritance was Zorah, ^tEshtaol, Ir Shemesh, ⁴²uShaalabbin, ^vAijalon, Jethlah, ⁴³Elon, Timnah, ^wEkron, ⁴⁴Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, ⁴⁵Jehud, Bene Berak, Gath Rimmon, ⁴⁶Me Jarkon, and Rakkon, with the region ⁶near ⁷Joppa. ⁴⁷And the ^xborder of the children of Dan went beyond these, because the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem and took it; and they struck it with the edge of the sword, took possession of it, and dwelt in it. They called Leshem, ^yDan, after the name of Dan their father. ⁴⁸This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages.

Joshua's Inheritance

⁴⁹When they had ⁸made an end of dividing the land as an inheritance according to their borders, the children of Israel gave an inheritance among them to Joshua the son of Nun. ⁵⁰According to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked for, ²Timnath ^aSerah in the mountains of Ephraim; and he built the city and dwelt in it. ⁵¹^bThese were the inheritances which Eleazar the priest, Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel divided as an inheritance by lot ^cin Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of meeting. So they made an end of dividing the country.

cities of refuge, of which I spoke to you through Moses, ³that the slayer who kills a person accidentally or unintentionally may flee there; and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood. ⁴And when he flees to one of those cities, and stands at the entrance of the gate of the city, and ²declares his case in the hearing of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city as one of them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them. ⁵^bThen if the avenger of blood pursues him, they shall not deliver the slayer into his hand, because he struck his neighbor unintentionally, but did not hate him beforehand. ⁶And he shall dwell in that city ^cuntil he stands before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the one who is high priest in those days. Then the slayer may return and come to his own city and his own house, to the city from which he fled.”

⁷So they appointed ^dKedesh in Galilee, in the mountains of Naphtali, ^eShechem in the mountains of Ephraim, and ^fKirjath Arba (which is Hebron) in ^gthe mountains of Judah. ⁸And on the other side of the Jordan, by Jericho eastward, they assigned ^hBezer in the wilderness on the plain, from the tribe of Reuben, ⁱRamoth in Gilead, from the tribe of Gad, and ^jGolan in Bashan, from the tribe of Manasseh. ⁹^kThese were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel and for the stranger who ³dwelt among them, that whoever killed a person accidentally might flee there, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood ¹until he stood before the congregation.

Cities of the Levites

21 Then the heads of the fathers’ ^ahouses of the ^aLevites came near to ^bEleazar the priest, to Joshua the son of Nun, and to the heads of the fathers’ ^ahouses of the tribes of the children

19:47 Dan’s capture of Leshem is recounted also in Judg. 18, which gives more detail (in that account the city is called Laish). The Danites were forced out of their territory in the south (Judg. 1:34) and migrated north (Judg. 18:27–31), where they captured Leshem and renamed it Dan.

19:49, 50 The section ends, appropriately enough, with Joshua receiving his inheritance in Ephraim. According to the word of the LORD: The Bible does not record the command granting Joshua this particular inheritance, though the promise to Caleb and Joshua in Num. 14:30 did guarantee both of these faithful spies an inheritance in the land.

19:51 This is a summary statement about the allotments for each tribe, echoing elements from 14:1; 17:4; 18:6, 10. It is a fitting summary to the entire section of chs. 13–19. The involvement of Eleazar the priest, Joshua, . . . and the heads of the . . . tribes, as well as the mention of the tabernacle at Shiloh, all lend an air of importance and solemnity. The entire distribution of the land had taken place under God’s watchful eye, decently and in order. The land was God’s to give, and He had now given it.

20:3 accidentally or unintentionally: Literally, “through error and without knowing.” God’s law made allowance for motives and intent just as modern criminal codes distinguish unintentional killing from murder. The word translated avenger in avenger of blood is translated close relative in Ruth 3:13; 4:1. The basic meaning of the word is “protector of family rights.” Num. 35 gives the demands and limitations on the avenger of blood, but it does not give license to take revenge—God clearly reserved that task for Himself alone (Deut. 32:35; Is. 34:8; Rom. 12:19). God’s provision of the cities of refuge put a limit on private acts of vengeance.

20:7, 8 The cities of refuge were evenly distributed so that none was more than a day’s journey from any part of Israel’s land. Golan, Ramoth Gilead, and Bezer were on the east side of the Jordan River, and Kedesh, Shechem, and Kirjath Arba (Hebron) were on the west. Despite their importance here and in the Pentateuch, cities of refuge as such are not mentioned again in the Bible.

21:1–3 The Levites came to Joshua to claim their rightful share of territory, which included cities throughout the territories God had

of Israel. ²And they spoke to them at ^cShiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, ^d“The LORD commanded through Moses to give us cities to dwell in, with their common-lands for our livestock.” ³So the children of Israel gave to the Levites from their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their common-lands:

⁴Now the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites. And ^ethe children of Aaron the priest, who were of the Levites, ^fhad thirteen cities by lot from the tribe of Judah, from the tribe of Simeon, and from the tribe of Benjamin. ^{5g}The rest of the children of Kohath had ten cities by lot from the families of the tribe of Ephraim, from the tribe of Dan, and from the half-tribe of Manasseh.

⁶And ^hthe children of Gershon had thirteen cities by lot from the families of the tribe of Issachar, from the tribe of Asher, from the tribe of Naphtali, and from the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan.

⁷ⁱThe children of Merari according to their families had twelve cities from the tribe of Reuben, from the tribe of Gad, and from the tribe of Zebulun.

⁹So they gave from the tribe of the children of Judah and from the tribe of the children of Simeon these cities which are ^ldesignated by name, ¹⁰which were for the children of Aaron, one of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi; for the lot was theirs first. ^{11l}And they gave them ²Kirjath Arba (Arba was the father of ^mAnak), ⁿwhich is Hebron, in the mountains of Judah, with the common-land surrounding it. ¹²But ^othe fields of the city and its villages they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh as his possession.

¹³Thus ^pto the children of Aaron the priest they gave ^qHebron with its common-land (a city of refuge for the slayer), ^rLibnah with its common-land, ^{14s}Jattir with its common-land, ^tEshtemoa with its common-land, ^{15u}Holon promised (Num. 35:1–8). The common-lands refers to land that surrounded each city.

21:4–8 Here the Levitical cities are determined by the lot. The word lot occurs five times in these five verses; in this case it was a God-directed method of choosing the cities. God was in control of every aspect of the inheritance process.

21:4, 9–42 The priestly branch of the Kohathites, descended through Aaron, received 13 cities from Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. Thus the Aaronic priests were strategically located to serve in the temple and in the territory that remained in the hands of descendants of Judah through the years before and following the Babylonian exile. Some of the cities were not actually in Israel's possession at this time (for example, Gezer, v. 21), and some appear never to have been in Israel's control for any length of time (for example, the Philistine cities of Eltekeh and Gibbethon, v. 23). These names may simply reflect the actual allotments in Joshua's day. Much land remained to be taken even after it had been allotted (13:1; 15:63; 16:10; 17:12, 13).

cities of the Gershonites according to their families were thirteen cities with their common-lands.

had spoken to the house of Israel. All came to pass.

Eastern Tribes Return to Their Lands

22 Then Joshua called the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, ² and said to them: “You have kept ^a all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, ^b and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you. ³ You have not ¹ left your brethren these many days, up to this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God. ⁴ And now the LORD your God has given ^c rest to your brethren, as He promised them; now therefore, return and go to your tents and to the land of your possession, ^d which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side of the Jordan. ⁵ But ^e take ² careful heed to do the commandment and the law which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, ^f to love the LORD your God, to walk in all His ways, to keep His commandments, to hold fast to Him, and to serve Him with all your heart and with all your soul.” ⁶ So Joshua ^g blessed them and sent them away, and they went to their tents.

21:43–45 This glorious conclusion to these two chapters and to the entire section (chs. 13–21) celebrates the fact that all came to pass exactly as God promised. What has been visible all along is now said plainly—the God of Israel is a promise-keeping God, who gave Israel the land in accordance with the promises He had made with its ancestors, including Moses and the patriarchs. And in addition to giving them the land, He also granted them rest.

22:2, 3 The obedience to Moses and Joshua of the tribes settled east of the Jordan is commended here. The issue of the unity of the nation had arisen at the beginning, and these tribes had proven faithful.

22:4 rest . . . as He promised: This idea of rest as a gift from God is part of the fabric of the Book of Joshua. It had been promised by God (1:13, 15), and once again God fulfilled His promises.

22:5 The passionate exhortation to take careful heed captures the heart of this chapter. The words echo the call to faithfulness in Deut. 4:29; 6:5; 10:12, 13; 11:13. The verbs in this verse give a comprehensive picture of what a proper relationship to God includes: to love God, to walk in His ways, to hold fast (or cling) to Him, and to serve Him. This is the essence of the “first and great commandment,” to love God wholeheartedly (Deut. 6:5; Matt. 22:37). Loving God is much more than an affirmation or a feeling; it is obedience, loyalty, and service to God above all else.

22:6 Joshua blessed them: The blessing here involves many riches from the spoils of the land (v. 7).

(Heb. halak) (22:5; Gen. 17:1; Deut. 10:12; Ps. 119:3) Strong's #1980

Walk can mean, literally, to move at a pace slower than a run or, figuratively, one's conduct of life. The literal sense predominates in the OT, but the figurative meaning of the word does occur (Gen. 5:24; 6:9; Eccl. 11:9). In the NT the word usually is used literally in the Gospels, while it is usually used figuratively in Paul and John's letters. The figurative sense has decidedly spiritual overtones. One either walks (conducts his life) as a Christian or as a non-Christian (Rom. 8:4; Eph. 2:2, 10; 1 John 1:6, 7). The believer can walk “in darkness” or “in the light,” and constantly is urged to choose the latter; only such a path is “worthy of the calling with which you were called” (Eph. 4:1).

⁹So the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel at Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go to the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, which they had obtained according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

¹⁰And when they came to the region of the Jordan which is in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh built an altar there by the Jordan—a great, impressive altar. ¹¹Now the children of Israel ^kheard someone say, “Behold, the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh have built an altar on the ⁴frontier of the land of Canaan, in the region of the Jordan—on the children of Israel’s side.” ¹²And when the children of Israel heard of it, ^lthe whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered together at Shiloh to go to war against them.

²¹Then the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh answered and said to the heads of the ¹divisions of Israel: ²²“The LORD ^vGod of gods, the LORD God of gods, He ^wknows, and let Israel itself know—if it is in rebellion, or if in treachery against the LORD, do not save us this day. ²³If we have built ourselves an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer on it burnt offerings or grain offerings, or if to offer peace offerings on it, let the LORD Himself ^xrequire an account. ²⁴But in fact we have done it ²for fear, for a reason, saying, ‘In time to come your descendants may speak to our descendants, saying, “What have you to do with the LORD God of Israel? ²⁵For the LORD has made the Jordan a border between you and us, ^{you} children of Reuben and children of Gad. You have no part in the 22:11 have built an altar: The account does not reveal why this altar was built until after the events have developed into a full-blown crisis. See vv. 21–29.

22:12 God had commanded Israel not to offer burnt offerings or sacrifices at any location except the tabernacle (see Lev. 17:8, 9) and not to worship other gods (Deut. 13:12–15). The punishment for violating both laws was death, and this is why Israel gathered ... to go to war against their brethren.

22:13, 14 Everything was done “by the book.” First, the nine and a half tribes west of the Jordan acted in perfect unity, carefully choosing one representative each, the highest ranking ruler from each tribe. Second, they sent the priest Phinehas to head up the delegation, reflecting their concern that true worship and ritual be maintained. All present probably remembered the tragedy at Baal Peor (Num. 25), when drastic actions had to be taken to stop the plague (v. 17).

22:16 We know how serious Phinehas and his companions considered the offense—if it were indeed such an offense—from the term he used for it, treachery. This is the same Hebrew word used of Achan’s sin in v. 20 (see 7:1).

22:17 The iniquity of Peor included the fact that the Israelites worshiped the Moabite gods and committed immoral acts with the women of Moab. The tribes west of the Jordan feared that this could happen again. The phrase not cleansed till this day implies that Israel had never completely rid itself of this sin, that it always flirted with, and at times participated in, the idolatry and attractions of neighboring pagan religious systems.

22:18 He will be angry with the whole congregation: No one can sin alone. If the tribes east of the Jordan were indeed sinning, then the entire nation would feel the effects, as in the case of Achan’s sin (v. 20; 7:1).

22:22 The repetition of the LORD God of gods reveals the deep emotion in the response of the tribes east of the Jordan. In an agitated state of mind, their words came out somewhat awkward, yet completely sincere. They firmly maintained their innocence and tried to convince their fellow countrymen of it.

22:23–25 The tribes from east of the Jordan were afraid that geographical distance would isolate them and in time cause the Israelites west of the Jordan to reject them. Thus they built the altar to prevent the existing unity from being lost.

LORD.” So your descendants would make our descendants cease fearing the LORD.²⁶ Therefore we said, ‘Let us now prepare to build ourselves an altar, not for burnt offering nor for sacrifice,²⁷ but that it may be ^a a ³ witness between you and us and our generations after us, that we may ² perform the service of the LORD before Him with our burnt offerings, with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your descendants may not say to our descendants in time to come, “You have no part in the LORD.”’²⁸ Therefore we said that it will be, when they say this to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say, ‘Here is the replica of the altar of the LORD which our fathers made, though not for burnt offerings nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between you and us.’²⁹ Far be it from us that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn from following the LORD this day, ^a to build an altar for burnt offerings, for grain offerings, or for sacrifices, besides the altar of the LORD our God which is before His tabernacle.”

³² And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the rulers, returned from the children of Reuben and the children of Gad, from the land of Gilead to the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought back word to them.³³ So the thing pleased the children of Israel, and

23 Now it came to pass, a long time after the LORD ^a had given rest to Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua ^b was old, advanced in age.² And Joshua ^c called for all Israel, for their elders, for their heads, for their judges, and for their officers, and said to them:

“I am old, advanced in age.³ You have seen all that the ^d LORD your God has done to all these nations because of you, for the ^e LORD your God is He who has fought for you.⁴ See, ^f I have divided to you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from the Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, as far as the Great Sea westward.⁵ And the LORD your God ^g will expel them from before you and drive them out of your sight. So you shall possess their land, ^h as the LORD your God promised you.⁶ ⁱ Therefore be very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, ^j lest you turn aside from it to the right hand or to the left, ⁷ and lest you ^k go ¹ among these nations, these who remain among you. You shall not ^l make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause anyone to ^m swear by them; you shall not ⁿ serve them nor bow down to them, ⁸ but you shall ^o hold fast to the LORD your God, as you have done to this day.⁹ ^p For the LORD has ² driven out from before you great and strong nations; but as for you, no one has been able to stand against you to this day.¹⁰ ^q One man of you shall chase a thousand, for the LORD your God is He who fights for you, ^r as He

22:28 Here is the replica: The eastern tribes chose their words carefully; the word replica clearly shows that they never intended this altar to be a substitute for the true altar at the tabernacle. Rather, they intended it only to serve as a witness. The same Hebrew word is used elsewhere for the pattern for the tabernacle given to Moses (Ex. 25:9, 40) and the “plans” of the temple that David gave to Solomon (1 Chr. 28:11).

22:30–34 The eastern tribes’ impassioned defense quickly defused the crisis, satisfying the people’s representatives. The representatives’ response occupies only one verse, an abrupt ending to a crisis that is described in 20 preceding verses (vv. 10–29). The western tribes accepted the words of the tribes east of the Jordan on this matter, and the altar remained.

22:34 The climax of the chapter asserts that the altar was a witness . . . that the LORD is God. Previously, the chapter indicated only that it was to be a witness (vv. 27, 28), without saying what it would be a witness of. In a similar vein, Jesus told His disciples that people would know they were His disciples by seeing their love for each other; that is, their love would point people to Christ (John 13:35).

23:3 He who has fought for you: A reminder that the land belonged to the Lord and that He gave it to Israel, even to the extent of fighting on their behalf (1:3; 8:7; 10:14, 19, 42).

23:6 be very courageous: Again, Joshua used the same words that God had spoken to him years earlier when He commissioned him (1:7–9). See also Joshua’s words to the eastern tribes in 22:5.

23:9 That no one has been able to stand against the tribes of Israel was a fulfillment of God’s promise in 1:5.

23:10 One man . . . shall chase a thousand: These words are similar to the promises in Lev. 26:7, 8. The power God’s people had over their enemies was so dramatic it had to be miraculous.

promised you. ^{11s}Therefore take careful heed to yourselves, that you love the LORD your God. ¹²Or else, if indeed you do ^tgo back, and cling to the remnant of these nations—these that remain among you—and ^umake marriages with them, and go in to them and they to you, ¹³know for certain that ^vthe LORD your God will no longer drive out these nations from before you. ^wBut they shall be snares and traps to you, and scourges on your sides and thorns in your eyes, until you perish from this good land which the LORD your God has given you.

¹⁴“Behold, this day ^xI ³ am going the way of all the earth. And you know in all your hearts and in all your souls that ^ynot one thing has failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spoke concerning you. All have come to pass for you; not one word of them has failed. ^{15z}Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all the good things have come upon you which the LORD your God promised you, so the LORD will bring upon you ^aall harmful things, until He has destroyed you from this good land which the LORD your God has given you. ¹⁶⁴When you have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which He commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed down to them, then the ^banger of the LORD will burn against you, and you shall perish quickly from the good land which He has given you.”

23:11 The exhortation to love the LORD your God comes from Deut. 6:5.

23:12 The word translated cling is the same word translated hold fast in v. 8, bringing the different instances of clinging into sharp contrast. God wanted His people to cling to Him, not to the Canaanites they were driving out. This required, among other things, that they not make marriages with unbelieving foreigners under any circumstances (Ex. 34:11–16; Deut. 7:1–4). Years later Solomon ignored this command and proved how destructive the sin of intermarriage could be (1 Kin. 3:1; 11:1–8; 2 Cor. 6:14).

23:13, 14 they shall be snares and traps: See Ex. 23:33; Num. 33:55; Deut. 7:16. not one thing has failed: A strong affirmation of God’s faithfulness, one of the book’s main themes.

23:16 you shall perish quickly from the good land: This indeed happened to Israel in its later history. This warning saw its most dramatic fulfillment when Judah was carried into Babylonian captivity because of its repeated rebellion against God (2 Kin. 25). But Israel’s rebellion began almost immediately, during the period of the judges, when Israel began to do precisely what was warned against here (Judg. 2:16–23; 3:1–6).

24:1 Shechem is a site with an ancient tradition of religious significance and covenant making in Israel, going back to Abraham’s day (8:30–35; Gen. 12:6; 33:18–20; 34:1–31; 37:12–17; Deut. 11:26–32; 27:1–26; Judg. 9:31–57). Archaeological excavation has uncovered a series of temples, sanctuaries, and ceremonial standing stones from almost every period of its existence.

24:2 Israel’s ancestors did not worship the true God at first; until God called them, Abraham and his relatives had served other gods (Gen. 31:1–4, 19, 34, 35). The words of this verse are used in the Passover celebration of the Jews all over the world today. When they recite these words, those who celebrate confess that the Lord’s choice of their fathers was not because of an innate superiority in Abraham. Abraham and others were mere idolaters. But God chose Abraham and Sarah to be His special people for reasons known only to Him. Likewise in our case, it is not because of something wonderful in ourselves that God has reached out to us, but because of His loving, sovereign, gracious choice.

24:5 Afterward I brought you out: God’s review of His gracious actions on behalf of His people (vv. 2–5) included Joshua’s generation. God did not just make Himself known in ages past; He also worked mightily and graciously for the people of Joshua’s day. Christians today are part of a long lineage of the people of faith (Heb. 11).

¹⁹ But Joshua said to the people, ^{19a} “You cannot serve the LORD, for He is a ^{19b} holy God. He is ^{19c} a jealous God; ^{19d} He will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins. ²⁰ If you forsake the LORD and serve foreign gods, ^{20a} then He will turn and do you harm and consume you, after He has done you good.”

²¹ And the people said to Joshua, “No, but we will serve the LORD!”

²² So Joshua said to the people, “You are witnesses against yourselves that ^{22a} you have chosen the LORD for yourselves, to serve Him.”

And they said, “We are witnesses!”

²³ “Now therefore,” he said, ^{23a} “put away the foreign gods which are among you, and ^{23b} incline your heart to the LORD God of Israel.”

²⁴ And the people ^{24a} said to Joshua, “The LORD our God we will serve, and His voice we will obey!”

²⁶ Then Joshua ^{26a} wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God. And he took ^{26b} a large stone, and ^{26c} set it up there ^{26d} under the oak that was by the sanctuary of the LORD. ²⁷ And Joshua said to all the people, “Behold, this stone shall be ^{27a} a witness to us, for ^{27b} it has heard all the words of the LORD which He spoke to us. It shall therefore be a witness to you, lest you deny your God.” ²⁸ So ^{28a} Joshua let the people depart, each to his own inheritance.

24:12 God’s use of the hornet to aid Israel fulfilled the promise of Ex. 23:28. The hornet may be: (1) symbolic of the pharaoh of Egypt, whose symbols were a bee or hornet; (2) symbolic of God’s terror or panic among the Canaanites (2:9–11, 24; 5:1; 6:27; Ex. 15:14–16); or (3) actual hornets. Whatever the case, the point is that God fought for Israel. The phrase two kings refers to Sihon and Og, whom Israel had defeated in the wilderness (Num. 21:21–35). These victories were God’s, not dependent upon Israel’s military power. The sword and bow are mentioned in connection with the first Israelite capture of Shechem by Jacob (Gen. 48:22).

24:13 A land for which you did not labor fulfills the promises given by Moses in Deut. 6:10, 11. The land was God’s gracious gift to His people.

24:14, 15 Joshua’s words in these verses contain a rare appeal to Israel to choose between God and the many false substitutes. If Israel would not choose to serve the Lord, they would have to choose between the gods that their ancestors worshiped and the gods of the Amorites (that is, the Canaanites). Of course, the appeal is rhetorical; from God’s perspective there is only one option. With his famous words, Joshua clearly and unambiguously took his stand on the side of the living God. Joshua modeled a perfect leader’s actions. A leader must be willing to move ahead and commit himself to the truth regardless of the people’s inclinations. Joshua’s bold example undoubtedly encouraged many to follow with the affirmations of vv. 16–18.

24:16–18 In their response to Joshua’s challenge, the people acknowledged their debt to God for all their good fortune. This was a crucial point. As long as they remembered what God had done for them, they would be inclined to serve Him. Moses had said this many years before (Deut. 8:11–17).

24:19 Immediately after Joshua exhorted the Israelites to serve God (v. 14), he stated you cannot serve the Lord! This use of exaggeration emphasizes the gravity of the obligation to which the people committed themselves. Theirs was not to be a nominal, superficial faith. Subsequent history shows that Israel’s record was poor in this regard. Joshua’s challenge is also for Christians. Although salvation is God’s free gift through Jesus Christ to those who believe, truly following Christ is the difficult way of the cross (Matt. 16:24; John 1:12; 1 Cor. 15:1–5).

24:22–27 Joshua and the people sealed their covenant to serve the Lord by writing these words in the Book of the Law of God and by erecting a large stone under an oak tree, the same tree that Jacob had encountered when he came to Shechem. This tree was near the Lord’s sanctuary, which was probably not a formal building or temple but the “holy place” created at Shechem by the act of bringing the tabernacle there. The reference to the people presenting themselves “before God” (v. 1) may indicate that the tabernacle was there. The stone under the oak tree functioned as a legal reminder or witness of the covenant just entered into by the people. Now the stone and the people were both witnesses. This echoes the function of the altar built by the tribes that settled east of the Jordan, which also was a witness (22:34). A large standing stone that dates to the Late Bronze Age (that is, roughly the time represented in this story) has been found at Shechem, and is possibly the stone mentioned here.

24:28 When Joshua dismissed the people, it was each to his own inheritance, fittingly closing this section with a reminder of one of the book’s major themes.

Num. 20:28; Josh. 14:1 / Ex. 6:25

24:29 This first reference to Joshua as the servant of the LORD shows clearly how Joshua had “grown into the job” that Moses had vacated. Now the book comes full circle, recalling the references in 1:1 to Moses as the servant of the Lord and to Joshua as merely Moses’ assistant.

24:30 Joshua was buried on his own land, in the city he had asked for and built, Timnath Serah (19:50).

24:32 The brief account of the transfer of Joseph’s body to Canaan from Egypt notes the fulfillment of Joseph’s prophecy given hundreds of years earlier (Gen. 50:24, 25).

24:33 Eleazar the high priest had figured significantly in the land distribution, and now he too received a decent burial in his own land.

THE BOOK OF JUDGES

THE BOOK OF JUDGES is a historical narrative that contrasts God’s faithfulness with Israel’s apostasy. Despite the repeated falling away of His people, God provided deliverers—namely, the judges—time and again. He did not do this unthinkingly or mechanically, nor was He manipulated by Israel’s cries for help (3:9, 15; 4:3; 6:6; 10:10). He did not spare Israel from the consequences of its actions, as its constant trouble with foreign oppressors indicates. Rather, God delivered Israel from oppression because of His promises to Abraham and his descendants. He remembered His vow to give the land of Canaan to Israel. Thus the preservation of God’s people was not due to their merit or goodness, nor even to their willingness to repent. Rather, God demonstrated His compassion and pity on a wayward people who grieved Him continually (2:16, 18) by providing bold leaders to rescue them. In fact, the real hero of Judges is God Himself, who alone remains faithful despite the failings of His people—and even of the judges.

Author and Date The author of this collection of historical writings about the judges who ruled Israel during a span of several centuries is never identified. Neither are there any clues elsewhere in Scripture. Late Jewish tradition ascribed its authorship to Samuel. This is certainly possible, but there is no way of knowing for sure.

Certainly the book was written after the last events recorded in it (about 1050 B.C.). The reference in 18:30 to “the day of the captivity of the land” refers most likely to the Babylonian exile (sixth century B.C.). This suggests that a later version of the book may have been compiled during the Exile or afterward. However, the reference to Jebusites living in Jerusalem “to this day” (1:21) suggests that a portion of the book may have been written prior to David’s capture of Jerusalem around 1000 B.C. It would seem likely that Jebusites who survived the battle would have left voluntarily or been expelled. Yet a few scriptural references suggest that some Jebusites remained in Jerusalem after David’s conquest (2 Sam. 24:16), so this is not a conclusive argument. If one believes that Judges was written sometime late in the eleventh century B.C., then it becomes more credible to suggest that Samuel wrote most or all of the book. Yet, like the question of authorship, the approximate date of the composition of Judges remains cloaked in uncertainty.

Purpose Judges was written to show the consequences of disobedience to God and the necessity of summoning a righteous king who would lead the people to God. In contrast to the serene way in which the Book of Joshua ends, with Israel in harmony with God’s commands, Judges reveals that Israel began to disobey God even in the time of Joshua, and that this disobedience grew more serious—and more debased—over time. Judges 2:16–23 establishes the cyclical pattern of sin, slavery, and salvation that would dominate the time of the judges. However, the book makes clear that the cycle had a downward spiral. Each new outbreak of disobedience and idolatry took Israel further away from God and deeper into sin and misery. By the end of the book, it is clear that Israel had violated its covenant with God in almost every imaginable way.

The purpose of the message is supported by the structure of the book itself. A close examination of chapters 17–21 leads to the conclusion that they are out of sequence with the events in the earlier chapters. Clues within the text support the theory that the events described in these latter chapters actually took place early in the period of the judges. For instance, we see the near unanimous action of Israel's tribal convocation, which successfully unites to take punitive action against Benjamin in chapter 20. This tribal league was clearly active during the time of Phinehas and in Joshua's day (Josh. 22:9–34). In these chapters, the Philistines are not mentioned as a military threat; the military campaigns described in chapters 20; 21 would have been unlikely in later times, when the Philistines dominated much of Israel's territory. Furthermore, Bethel and Mizpah are both named as sites of a major religious sanctuary (20:1, 18, 31; 21:1) rather than Shiloh, which was a more prominent religious center in the Philistine period (1 Sam. 1:3, 9; 3:21; 4:4).

This arrangement of the narrative, while not strictly chronological, reinforces the theme that the period of the judges was one of steep decline. The sordid events in these last chapters, while they may have occurred early in the period, are purposely placed at the end of the book as a fitting epitaph to a degenerate time.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

In stark contrast to the Book of Joshua, Judges does not offer a complimentary picture of God's people. Instead of obedient men and women conquering a land by trusting God's power, we see an idolatrous nation disobeying God and tasting continual defeat. But thankfully, this book also provides a glimpse of what Jesus would do for all of us who, like the ancient Jews, struggle with disobedience. Each one of the 17 judges is a kind of "savior." (Fourteen are listed in Judges and three more in 1 Samuel.) They rule with a hand on the gavel and an eye toward God. Thus, like Jesus, they provide spiritual direction and restore the guilty into fellowship with God. Also like Jesus they invite those for whom they came to follow them (Judg. 3:28; Mark 1:17).

Canaan

Canaan, the land bridge of the ancient world, linked Egypt and Mesopotamia. Thus this region became an incredible melting pot of peoples and religions. The Canaanites were culturally united but without any political identity. They lived mainly along the coastline. The Amorites occupied the hill country and had arrived in the land during the time of Abram, around 2090 B.C. The Hittites usually represented the non-Semitic elements in the population. The Perizzites and the Hivites (which also included the Girgashites and the Jebusites) were the descendants of an old Hurrian immigration which had arrived in Canaan between 1700 and 1500 B.C. The Sidonians were the forefathers of the Phoenicians and lived along the coastline. Finally, the Philistines were “the peoples of the sea” who arrived in Palestine following the dissolution of the Greek Mycenaean Empire after the Trojan War. They brought with them superior weapons and a more sophisticated culture.

city on fire. ^{9j}And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites who dwelt in the mountains, in the ¹South, and in the lowland. ¹⁰Then Judah ²went against the Canaanites who dwelt in ^kHebron. (Now the name of Hebron was formerly ^lKirjath

1:1–2:5 The introductory passage of Judges shows continuing military activity (1:1–26), which indicates that all military conquests had not been completed during Joshua’s day. It then explicitly details the incomplete conquests of several tribes (1:27–36). That Israel had disobeyed God’s directions for conquest is evident in 2:1–5, where the Angel of the Lord makes such an accusation. In sharp contrast to the peaceful and unified picture of Israel at the end of the Book of Joshua, the breakdown of Israelite society is already evident.

1:1–21 Judges begins with a record of conquests in southern Palestine. The tribe of Judah assumed leadership and allied with Simeon in campaigns against the Canaanites who had not been driven out of their respective territories. They fought a series of successful campaigns, “going up” against Bezek and Jerusalem, “going down” against Hebron, Debir, and Zephath, and concluding with an invasion of Philistine territory. They had mixed success against the Canaanites, but their successes (vv. 4–18, 20) outweighed their failures (vv. 19, 21).

1:1 Now after the death of Joshua it came to pass that: Judges begins as the Book of Joshua does, with reference to the death of the previous leader—Moses in Josh. 1:1, Joshua here. Yet no new leader was commissioned to lead Israel after Joshua; rather, the tribe of Judah was designated to lead in the fight against the Canaanites (1:1–4). The choice of Judah was the first hint that Jacob’s prediction for Judah (Gen. 49:8–12) was coming to pass. The prophecy would come to fruition with the establishment of the monarchy under David and his descendants; David was from the tribe of Judah.

1:3 History bound the tribes of Judah and Simeon together. They were both descended from the same mother (Gen. 29:33, 35), and Simeon had inherited land in Judah’s territory (Josh. 19:1, 9). Theirs was a natural alliance.

1:4 the Canaanites and the Perizzites: See Josh. 3:10. The site of the battle of Bezek between Israelites and Canaanites is unknown. Many scholars believe that it took place near present-day

Khirbet Bezqa, about three miles northeast of Gezer, northwest of Jerusalem. However, 1 Sam. 11:8–11 mentions a town called Bezek northeast of Shechem in the territory of Manasseh, where Saul took a census of the people. Considering that Judah was leading a campaign on behalf of all Israel (vv. 1, 2), a battle in Manasseh’s territory is quite possible. Later, Judah spearheaded a campaign in its own territory (vv. 8–19).

1:6, 7 Adoni-Bezek: The name of this minor king means “Lord of Bezek.” To cut off his thumbs and big toes would prevent Adoni-Bezek from ever engaging in battle again, since a thumb was needed to hold a sword and the big toes were necessary for running. The practice of mutilating vanquished enemies is recorded in ancient sources found in Mesopotamia and Greece and was practiced by Adoni-Bezek himself. As a result of his wounds, however, Adoni-Bezek died.

1:8, 9 After the battle at Bezek, Judah pressed the campaign against the Canaanites elsewhere in Jerusalem and the mountains, the southland, and the lowland. Jerusalem was captured and burned, but not settled. Verse 21 states that Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites from the city. For more on this differing account, see Josh. 15:63. The complete conquest and settlement of Jerusalem was not accomplished until David’s day (2 Sam. 5:6–10).

1:10–15 The capture of Hebron and Debir appears as a new conquest, but these victories had already been recounted in Josh. 15. This passage is probably a reference to the earlier victory (or else the passage in Joshua is anticipating the victories to come). The account in vv. 11–15 is taken almost verbatim from Josh. 15:15–19, and it is the third account of Caleb’s inheritance (the other account is found in Josh. 14:6–15).

1:10 The name Hebron means “Confederacy.” This city’s name was formerly Kirjath Arba (literally “city of four”). Arba was also the name of a leader of the Anakim (Josh. 14:15). From the names it is conjectured that Hebron was originally a close-knit alliance of Arba.) And they killed Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmi.

¹¹From there they went against the inhabitants of Debir. (The name of Debir was formerly Kirjath Sepher.)

¹²Then Caleb said, "Whoever attacks Kirjath Sepher and takes it, to him I will give my daughter Achsah as wife."

And she dismounted from her donkey, and Caleb said to her, "What do you wish?" ¹⁵So she said to him, ^q"Give me a blessing; since you have given me land in the South, give me also springs of water."

four cities. Hebron, about 20 miles southwest of Jerusalem, was where Abraham settled and built an altar (Gen. 13:18). they killed Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmi: Caleb drove these three men out of Hebron (v. 20; Josh. 15:14).

1:11 Debir was the next city captured by the Israelites. Its former name Kirjath Sepher means "City of the Book"; it may have been an administrative center where records were kept. However, the modern archaeological site, Tell Beit Mirsim, has not yielded any great library or records. Nevertheless, archaeologists have uncovered a strongly fortified city, which was destroyed close to 1200 B.C. 1:14, 15 As a dowry, Caleb's daughter asked for springs of water in addition to the land he had given her. Land without fresh water was almost worthless, so her request was an astute one.

Five Cities of the Philistines

Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, and Gath comprise a list of familiar biblical names. Each of these cities was a commercial emporium with important connections both north (as far as Mesopotamia) and south (as far as Egypt) by way of the coastal highway that served as one of the major highways of the ancient world. Also the ships of Phoenicia, Cyprus, Crete, and the Aegean called at Philistia's seaports. Among these seaports was a place today called Tel Qasile on the Yarkon River (the "Brook Kanah" of Josh. 16:8; 17:9) just north of modern Tel Aviv. A Philistine temple has been found at Tel Qasile.

The Philistine plain itself was an arid, loam-covered lowland between the Mediterranean Sea and the foothills of the Judahite plateau on the east. To the south lay a stretch of undulating sand dunes adjacent to the sea. No area in biblical history was more frequently contested than the western foothills, lying on the border between Judah and Philistia. Originally a part of Judah's tribal allotment, the coastal area was never totally wrested away from the Philistines. Beth Shemesh, Timnah, Azekah, and Ziklag were among the towns coveted by both Israelites and Philistines, and they figure in the stories of Samson, Goliath, and David. The area to the north of Philistia, the plain of Sharon, was also contested at various periods. During Saul's reign the Philistines even held Beth Shean and the Valley of Jezreel. Later, from about the time of Baasha on, a long border war was conducted by the Israelites at Gibbethon.

^{16r}Now the children of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, went up ^sfrom the City of Palms with the children of Judah into the Wilderness of Judah, which lies in the South near ^tArad; ^uand they went and dwelt among the people. ^{17v}And Judah went with his brother Simeon, and they attacked the Canaanites who inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. So the name of the city was called ^wHormah. ¹⁸Also Judah took ^xGaza with its territory, Ashkelon with its territory, and Ekron with its territory. ¹⁹So the LORD was with Judah. And they drove out the mountaineers, but they could not drive out the inhabitants of the lowland, because they had ^ychariots of iron. ^{20z}And they gave Hebron to Caleb, as Moses had said. Then he ⁴expelled from there the ^athree sons of Anak. ^{21b}But the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites who inhabited Jerusalem; so the

(The name of the city was formerly ^eLuz.) ²⁴ And when the spies saw a man coming out of the city, they said to him, “Please show us the entrance to the city, and ^fwe will show you mercy.” ²⁵ So he showed them the entrance to the city, and they struck the city with the edge of the sword; but they let the man and all his family go. ²⁶ And the man went to the land of the Hittites, built a city, and called its name Luz, which is its name to this day.

^{27g} However, Manasseh did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth Shean and its villages, or ^hTaanach and its villages, or

1:16 References to the South (that is, the Negev) in vv. 9, 15 included mention of the descendants of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, Jethro (Ex. 3:1). This family connection had led to friendly relations between the Israelites and the Kenites, who were Midianites, in the wilderness (Num. 10:29–32). Their harmonious settling with Judah fulfilled Moses' words of Num. 10:29. City of Palms is a reference to Jericho (Deut. 34:3; 2 Chr. 28:15), nestled deep in the Jordan valley, northeast of Jerusalem.

1:18 Gaza . . . Ashkelon . . . Ekron were three of five major cities in the Philistine kingdom (the other two were Ashdod and Gath; see Josh. 13:2, 3). Israel was not able to hold these cities for very long. By Samson's day, all three cities were in Philistine hands again (14:19; 16:1; 1 Sam. 5:10).

1:19 they could not drive out the inhabitants of the lowland: Since the three Philistine cities mentioned in v. 18 were in the lowlands, this verse must mean that the Israelites had no success beyond these three cities, and perhaps even means that they lost control of them very quickly. Chariots of iron were effective on the flat coastal plains but not in the hill country of Canaan. Thus the Israelites, who did not have chariots, were better matched against the mountaineers.

1:21 Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites: This verse duplicates Josh. 15:63 almost exactly, except that the tribe of Judah is held responsible there for not driving out the Jebusites from Jerusalem. Note also that, in 1:8, the account states that Judah did capture Jerusalem. See Josh. 15:63.

1:22–36 In contrast to their successes in the south (vv. 1–21), the Israelites suffered more failures in the north. They initially seized Bethel (formerly Luz), a major city in Ephraimite territory (vv. 22–26), but advanced little after that. Six tribes—Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Naphtali, and Dan—failed to drive the Canaanites from their territories.

1:22 The house of Joseph was Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen. 48:5, 6; Deut. 33:17), who had split the inheritance of their father. They are the next two tribes mentioned in this passage in Judges (vv. 27, 29). Bethel means “The House of God.” It was a site with an honored history, beginning with Abraham's first sacrifice to God (Gen. 13:3–4) and Jacob's revelation from God there (Gen. 31:13). Joshua had captured the city (Josh. 12:16), perhaps as part of the defeat of Ai (Josh. 8:17).

1:23 Luz means “Deceit” or “Perversion,” but Jacob had changed its name to Bethel many years earlier after his encounter with God there.

1:26 land of the Hittites: Archaeologists have unearthed a great Hittite kingdom in Asia Minor (present-day Turkey), dating from about 1800 to 1200 B.C. However, the relationship between the Hittites of Canaan and the Hittites of this discovery is unclear.

1:27 Manasseh did not drive out: Here begins a long record of disobedience that began when the Israelites failed to uproot the Canaanites (see Josh. 10:28–43). That failure resulted in much grief in the years following. Besides the tribe of Manasseh, Benjamin (v. 21), Ephraim (v. 29), Zebulun (v. 30), Asher (v. 31), Naphtali (v. 33), and

The Pattern of Bochim

God told the Israelites to dispossess the Canaanites by taking over their cities, destroying their idols and altars, and refusing to enter into agreements with them (2:2). The people had disobeyed, so the Angel of the Lord came with words of discipline (2:1).

The timing of the sermon was important. The days of Israel's conquest of Canaan were drawing to a close, yet many cities remained in the hands of, or at least were still influenced by, the Canaanites (1:27–35). Joshua's life was over (2:8), and a new generation was coming into power (2:10).

The people's spiritual failures were a serious matter, setting a dangerous precedent of idolatry that persisted from that day forward (2:3), as the Book of Judges shows. Apparently the people tearfully repented of their wrongs and, in the presence of Joshua, offered a sacrifice to atone for their sins (2:5, 6). But the pattern of spiritual adultery was established.

Unbelievers today are free to worship whatever “gods” they will. But God's people cannot adapt to their ways. Like Israel, believers may need to limit their neighborliness if necessary to preserve their own faith and godliness. They must allow nothing to distract them from unswerving allegiance to the Lord. Otherwise they invite a host of thorny issues and a legacy of tears.

the inhabitants of ⁱDor and its villages, or the inhabitants of Ibleam and its villages, or the inhabitants of Megiddo and its villages; for the Canaanites were determined to dwell in that land. ²⁸And it came to pass, when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites ⁷under tribute, but did not completely drive them out.

³⁰Nor did ^kZebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron or the inhabitants of Nahalol; so the Canaanites dwelt among them, and ⁸were put under tribute.

³³ⁿNor did Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth Shemesh or the inhabitants of Beth Anath; but they dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land. Nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth Shemesh and Beth Anath were put under tribute to them.

³⁴And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountains, for they would not allow them to come down to the valley; ³⁵and the Amorites were determined to dwell in Mount Heres, ^oin Aijalon, and in ⁹Shaalbim; yet when the strength of the house of Joseph became greater, they ¹were put under tribute.

Israel's Disobedience

2 Then the Angel of the LORD came up from Gilgal to Bochim, and said: ^a“I led you up from Egypt and ^bbrought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and ^cI said, ‘I will never break My covenant with you. ²And ^dyou shall make no ¹covenant with the inhabitants of this land; ^eyou shall tear down their altars.’ ^fBut you have not obeyed My voice. Why have you done this? ³Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they shall be ^gthorns² in your side, and ^htheir gods shall ³be a ⁱsnare to you.’” ⁴So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

⁵Then they called the name of that place ⁴Bochim; and they sacrificed there to the LORD. ⁶And when ^jJoshua had dismissed the people, the children of Israel went each to his own inheritance to possess the land.

Death of Joshua

⁷^kSo the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD which He had done for Israel. ⁸Now ¹Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died when he was one hundred and ten years old. ⁹^mAnd they buried him within the border of his inheritance at ⁿTimnath Heres, in the mountains of Ephraim, on the north side of Mount Gaash. ¹⁰When all that generation had ⁵been gathered to their fathers, another generation arose after them who ^odid not know the LORD

Dan (v. 34) also did not do as God had commanded. We then see in ch. 2—and indeed throughout the rest of the book—the effects this had on Israel’s life: The people turned to the gods of the Canaanites and abandoned the Lord. Moreover, the Canaanites were determined to dwell in that land and relied on their superior weaponry (v. 19) to intimidate the Israelites. Yet that difficulty could have been removed had the Israelites exercised their faith more completely.

1:28 They put the Canaanites under tribute means they forced their captives to work as involuntary, unpaid laborers. David, Solomon, and other kings continued this practice (2 Sam. 20:24). The Israelites enslaved the Canaanites in many areas (vv. 30, 33, 35; Josh. 16:10; 17:13).

1:34 Amorites were Canaanite peoples living in the central hill country of Canaan, and they blocked Dan’s entry into this region. Eventually, the Danites were forced to migrate northward (18:1; Josh. 19:47). For more on the Amorites, see Josh. 3:10.

2:1 The Angel of the LORD appears as God’s representative here, speaking authoritatively to the people about their covenant disobedience. Gilgal was the site where Israel had first encamped west of the Jordan (Josh. 4:19). Bochim was possibly near Bethel. I led you up from Egypt: See Ex. 23:20–23. The reference to you is plural, indicating that the Angel is addressing the entire nation.

2:2, 3 you shall make no covenant: God’s commands to make no covenants with pagan nations and to tear down their altars are found in Ex. 23:32; 34:13; Deut. 12:3. Verses 1, 2 here contain a string of commands that God had given Israel under Moses, but Israel’s disobedience meant that these nations would become snares to them, just as God had warned (Ex. 23:33; Num. 33:55; Josh. 23:13). An example of a pagan ritual that ensnared Israel is given in Judg. 8:27.

2:6–3:6 This section constitutes a second introduction to the book after the prologue in 1:1–2:5. It depicts the political and spiritual conflicts of the period and elaborates on the moral breakdown presented in ch. 1. The recurring pattern presented in 2:16–23 owed much to the disobedience chronicled in ch. 1; each time the nation lapsed, it found itself oppressed by enemies. The final section (3:1–6) emphasizes God’s purposes in testing Israel (2:22; 3:1, 4).

2:6–10 The author identifies the death of Joshua as a starting point for the trouble to come. This passage closely follows Josh. 24:28–30, in some places word for word, which suggests that the proper paragraph break here should be between vv. 5 and 6. Joshua’s death is mentioned in v. 8, although according to 1:1 it has already occurred. The grammatical construction in 1:1 is a common one, and it is clear that the events of ch. 1 are events that followed Joshua’s death. Most likely the reference to Joshua’s death in 1:1 is correctly placed and this subsequent passage has been inserted by the author out of sequence. It is a “flashback” that leads into the second major section of the book (2:6–3:6). Its resemblance to Josh. 24:28–30 is meant to tie the events of Joshua’s era to those of the next generation.

2:10 Another generation arose . . . who did not know the LORD: The peaceful resolution that characterized the end of the nor the work which He had done for Israel.

Israel's Unfaithfulness

¹¹ Then the children of Israel did ^pevil in the sight of the LORD, and served the Baals; ¹² and they ^qforsook the LORD God of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt; and they followed ^rother gods from among the gods of the people who were all around them, and they ^sbowed down to them; and they provoked the LORD to anger. ¹³ They forsook the LORD ^tand served ⁶Baal and the ⁷Ashtoreths. ¹⁴ ^u And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel. So He ^vdelivered them into the hands of plunderers who despoiled them; and ^wHe sold them into the hands of their enemies all around, so that they ^xcould no longer stand before their enemies. ¹⁵ Wherever they went out, the hand of the LORD was against them for calamity, as the LORD had said, and as the LORD had ^ysworn to them. And they were greatly distressed.

and bowed down to them. They turned quickly from the way in which their fathers walked, in obeying the commandments of the LORD; they did not do so. ¹⁸ And when the LORD raised up judges for them, ^bthe LORD was with the judge and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge; ^cfor the LORD was moved to pity by their groaning because of those who oppressed them and harassed them. ¹⁹ And it came to pass, ^dwhen the judge was dead, that they reverted and behaved more corruptly than their fathers, by following other gods, to serve them and bow down to them. They did not cease from their own doings nor from their stubborn way.

²⁰ Then the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and He said, "Because this nation has ^etransgressed My covenant which I commanded their fathers, and has not heeded My voice, ²¹ I also will no longer drive out before them any of the nations which Joshua ^fleft when he died, ²² so ^gthat through them I may ^htest Israel, whether they will keep the ways of the LORD, to walk in them as their fathers kept them, or not." ²³ Therefore the LORD left those nations, without driving them out immediately; nor did He deliver them into the hand of Joshua.

Book of Joshua gave way to an ominous future. The meaning of did not know is that the people deliberately refused to acknowledge God's authority. It is not simply that they were ignorant, but that they were in unbelief.

2:11 The children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD is a statement also found in 3:7, 12; 4:1; 6:1; 10:6; 13:1 and in 1 and 2 Kings. Israel would stray frequently from the Lord. Only God's grace and the leadership of a few godly men and women spared the nation from complete corruption. served the Baals: See 3:7.

2:13 This verse is almost identical to the second half of 3:7. the Ashtoreths: Ashtoreth (Astarte) was a female fertility goddess and a goddess of love and war, closely associated with Baal (10:6; 1 Sam. 7:4; 12:10). She is not mentioned very often in Canaanite texts, but she appears by the name of Ishtar in Mesopotamian texts. The Ashtoreths mentioned here were local shrines of this far-flung cult (3:7).

2:15 As the LORD had sworn refers to God's promise to deliver Israel into their enemies' hands if they forsook Him (Deut. 28:25; Josh. 23:13).

2:16 The LORD raised up judges: The judges of Israel did not normally hold court, listen to complaints, or make legal decisions (except for Deborah, see 4:4, 5). Rather, they were political leaders who delivered Israel from foreign threat or oppression. Yet the message conveyed is that the Lord alone is the true Judge of His people (11:27), and He hands out blessing and punishment. Six of the judges (Shamgar, Tola, Jair, Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon) are known as "minor" judges because of the few details given about them in the narrative. The "major" judges—Othniel, Ehud, Deborah, Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson—were distinguished by their military prowess or heroic deeds. Many scholars have suggested that the major judges rescued Israel from enemies, while the minor judges worked in the court as magistrates. However, this judgment is misleading. For instance, the two minor judges Shamgar (3:31) and Tola (10:1, 2) clearly were military heroes. Deborah, a major judge, was a war leader but settled disputes between the Israelites as well.

2:17 Played the harlot is a powerful and familiar metaphor used to describe Israel's unfaithfulness to God. Ezekiel and Hosea, in particular, would later use this comparison to describe Israel's unfaithfulness.

2:18 The Hebrew verb translated moved to pity is elsewhere translated relent (1 Sam. 15:29; Jon. 3:10). Here, the idea is that God changed His course (that is, relented) because of His compassion for the suffering Israelites (see 10:16).

2:19 Their fathers refers to those of the preceding generation, whereas in v. 17 fathers refers to those of Joshua's day.

2:20 this nation: Hebrew writers rarely used the word nation to refer to Israel. The phrase here has a contemptuous ring. Usually the word was used for Israel's neighbors, while Israel itself was called the people. The choice of the impersonal word nation reflects the distance between God and His people.

2:21 I also will no longer drive out . . . any of the nations: This fulfilled a promise that God had made to the Israelites through Joshua. See vv. 15, 23.

(Heb. shaphat) (2:16; 15:20; 1 Sam. 7:15) Strong's #8199

The Hebrew word for judge means "to deliver" or "to rule." The judges of Israel had a wide range of responsibilities. Like their modern counterparts, OT judges could decide controversies and hand down verdicts (Ex. 18:16). These judges were also involved in the execution of their judgment in both vindicating the righteous (Ps. 26:1) and destroying the wicked (Ex. 7:3). Many judges were God's appointed military leaders who, empowered by God's Spirit (6:34; 15:14), fought Israel's oppressors and thereby delivered the people. Later, Israel's king functioned as the national judge (1 Sam. 8:5). Ultimately, Israel's perfect Judge is God. He alone is capable of perfectly judging the wicked and delivering the righteous (Is. 11:4).

The Nations Remaining in the Land

3 Now these are ^athe nations which the LORD left, that He might test Israel by them, that is, all who had not ¹known any of the wars in Canaan ²(this was only so that the generations of the children of Israel might be taught to know war, at least those who had not formerly known it), ³*namely*, ^bfive lords of the Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites who dwelt in Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal Hermon to the entrance of Hamath. ⁴And they were left, that He might test Israel by them, to ²know whether they would obey the commandments of the LORD, which He had commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

⁵Thus the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. ⁶And ^dthey took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons; and they served their gods.

Othniel

⁷So the children of Israel did ^eevil in the sight of the LORD. They ^fforgot the LORD their God, and served the Baals and ³Ashterahs. ⁸Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and He ^gsold them into the hand of ^hCushan-Rishathaim king of Mesopotamia; and the children of Israel served Cushan-Rishathaim eight years. ⁹When the children of Israel ⁱcried out to the LORD, the LORD ^jraised up a deliverer for the children of Israel, who delivered them: ^kOthniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother. ¹⁰^lThe Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he

The Canaanite Gods

El was the chief god of the Canaanites. According to legend, he was the father of all gods and mortals. Although he was the first of the gods, his power was relatively weak and unimpressive. Asherah was El's wife, the mother of the gods and the goddess of the sea. Her name appears frequently in the OT, and so do the "wooden images" (in Hebrew literally "Ashterahs") associated with her cult. Baal was the Canaanite storm-god. He was the most powerful deity in Canaanite cosmology, probably because of his association with fertility. Ashtoreth was a female fertility goddess and a goddess of love and war, closely associated with Baal. She also appears to have had some association with the stars. Anath, Baal's sister and wife, was also a goddess of love and war. In the Canaanite texts about Baal, she exhibited a rather bloodthirsty personality.

3:1–6 This concluding passage demonstrates that God intended to test Israel (2:22; 3:1, 4). The ultimate result of being approved after testing (2 Tim. 2:15) is the reward of His kingdom (2 Tim. 2:12; James 1:12). The stage is now set for the accounts of the judges who would deliver Israel.

3:1 that He might test Israel: This trial was a testing by fire, so to speak. The idea of testing implies difficulty and adversity; elsewhere the same word refers to God's testing of Abraham (Gen. 22:1) and Hezekiah (2 Chr. 32:31). Here God was testing Israel to refine it.

3:3 five lords of the Philistines: See Josh. 13:3. Sidonians: Sidon was a port city northwest of Israel, in what today is Lebanon. These people were part of the broader Canaanite culture and worshiped the same gods. Little is known about the Hivites. From the geographical description in this verse, it appears that they lived in northern Palestine (Josh. 9:7). Mount Lebanon was beyond the northern borders of Israel. Evidently, hostile nations surrounded Israel on every side.

3:5 Canaanites: On the various peoples in this verse, see Josh. 3:10.

3:7–16:31 The main part of the Book of Judges concerns 12 people whom God appointed to deliver Israel from various crises.

3:7–11 The first judge was Othniel, who delivered Israel from Cushan-Rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia. Verses 7 and 8 repeat much of the material from 2:11–14. Because of the Israelites' sin, God allowed them to slip under foreign control for eight years.

3:7 the Baals and Ashterahs: The plural is used for both gods because each was worshiped in different forms in the different local communities. In Num. 25:5, the Baal of Peor is mentioned. Place names such as Mount Baal Hermon (3:3), Baal Gad (Josh. 11:17), Baal Hazor (2 Sam. 13:23), and Baal Hamon (Song 8:11) occur with some frequency. Baal-Berith (that is, "The Baal of the Covenant") was another Baal manifestation worshiped by the Israelites (8:33). On Ashtoreth, another Canaanite goddess, see 2:13.

3:8 Cushan-Rishathaim was from much farther away than Israel's other enemies. It is remarkable that Othniel, who was from Judah, a region far to the south, was chosen to lead in this campaign. Cushan-Rishathaim's name means "Cushan of Double Wickedness"; this may not have been his actual name, but instead a name pinned on him by the author of Judges for ridicule. Note that this name is found four times in two verses (vv. 8, 10), which may support the point that the author was mocking the king.

3:9 Othniel was the hero who captured the city of Kirjath Sepher (1:13; Josh. 15:17). He was from Judah and was Caleb's near kinsman and son-in-law. The Spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he prevailed against Cushan-Rishathaim.

3:11 The land had rest for forty years is the first of several references to 40-year or 80-year periods of peace in the Book of Judges (3:30; 5:31; 8:28).

3:12–30 The second judge was Ehud, who delivered Israel from LORD strengthened ⁿEglon king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD. ¹³Then he gathered to himself the people of Ammon and ^oAmalek, went and ⁴defeated Israel, and took possession of ^pthe City of Palms. ¹⁴So the children of Israel ^qserved Eglon king of Moab eighteen years.

¹⁵But when the children of Israel ^rcried out to the LORD, the LORD raised up a deliverer for them: Ehud the son of Gera, the Benjamite, a ^sleft-handed man. By him the children of Israel sent tribute to Eglon king of Moab. ¹⁶Now Ehud made himself a dagger (it was double-edged and a cubit in length) and fastened it under his clothes on his right thigh. ¹⁷So he brought the tribute to Eglon king of Moab. (Now Eglon was a very fat man.) ¹⁸And when he had finished presenting the tribute, he sent away the people who had carried the tribute. ¹⁹But he himself turned back ^tfrom the ⁵stone images that were at Gilgal, and said, "I have a secret message for you, O king."

He said, "Keep silence!" And all who attended him went out from him.

²⁰So Ehud came to him (now he was sitting upstairs in his cool private chamber). Then Ehud said, "I have a message from God for you." So he arose from his seat. ²¹Then Ehud reached with his left hand, took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly. ²²Even the ⁶hilt went in after the blade, and the fat closed over the blade, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly; and his entrails came out. ²³Then Ehud went out through the porch and shut the doors of the upper room behind him and locked them.

²⁴When he had gone out, ⁷Eglon's servants came to look, and to their surprise, the doors of the upper room were locked. So they said, "He is probably ^uattending⁸ to his needs in the cool chamber." ²⁵So they waited till they were ^vembarrassed, and still he had not opened the doors of the upper room. Therefore they took the key and opened them. And there was their master, fallen dead on the floor.

²⁶But Ehud had escaped while they delayed, and passed beyond the ⁹stone images and escaped to Seirah. ²⁷And it happened, when he arrived, that ^whe blew the trumpet in the ^xmountains of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mountains; and ¹he led them. ²⁸Then he said to them, "Follow me, for ^ythe LORD has delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand." So they went down after him, seized the ^zfords of the Jordan leading to Moab, and did not allow anyone to cross over. ²⁹And at that time they killed about ten thousand men of Moab, all stout men of valor; not a man escaped. ³⁰So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And ^athe land had rest for eighty years.

Shamgar

Eglon king of Moab. Verses 12–14 give us the familiar background, beginning with Israel's apostasy and the resulting conquest by Eglon, lasting 18 years (v. 14 echoes v. 8). The story of Eglon's death is both graphic and hair-raising, reflecting the violence and chaos of this period in Israel's history. Yet it is also a literary masterpiece, skillfully weaving details together in a compelling narrative.

3:12 Moab was a plateau southeast of the Dead Sea. It was populated by nomadic herders and farmers in small agrarian settlements but had no large cities. It sat on either side of the King's Highway, an important north-south trade route. The ancestor of the Moabites was the offspring of Lot's incestuous relationship with his older daughter (Gen. 19:37), so the Moabites and Israelites were distantly related. The Bible frequently mentions conflict between the two peoples, except for the Book of Ruth, the events of which occurred during a time of stable relations between Moab and Israel. The Moabites worshiped Chemosh and his consort Ashtar, as well as Baal.

3:13 The City of Palms was Jericho (1:16). It is the only city on record that Eglon captured, although he ruled the Israelites 18 years (v. 14). The reference to Jericho is surprising since one might assume the city had been completely destroyed by Joshua. However, the Israelites may have rebuilt the site because of its plentiful water supply and strategic location, advantages that Eglon certainly would have noticed.

3:19 The Hebrew word for images is used many times to refer to idols made of wood, stone, or metal (Deut. 7:5, 25; Is. 10:10; Hos.

11:2). These images were clearly important in this passage—and prominent enough to be landmarks—since they appear again in v. 26, bracketing the account of Ehud's murder of Eglon. Gilgal had been the site of the Israelites' first encampment in Canaan and was an important religious center (Josh. 4:19).

3:20 upstairs in his cool private chamber: In ancient cities, the coolest place in the house was on the roof (compare the small upper room that a Shunammite woman and her husband made for the prophet Elisha, 2 Kin. 4:10).

3:26 Seirah is mentioned only here in the Bible, and its location is unknown.

3:27 The trumpet described here is the ram's horn, which could sound only a few notes. Ram's horns were used to signal others (Josh. 6:5).

3:31 Shamgar is mentioned only here and in 5:6. This short passage does not fit the pattern usually associated with the rise of the judges. Missing is the customary prelude of apostasy and sin. Chronologically this verse may be out of place. The next chapter begins with the death of Ehud, the previous judge. Moreover, Shamgar delivered Israel but did not judge it. Even the name Shamgar is not Hebrew. Yet he was the son of Anath—clearly a Semitic name. This may mean that he was from the town of Beth-Anath in Galilee; more probably, however, Anath is derived from the name of the Canaanite warrior goddess. If so, then it is ironic that God used a foreign warrior to deliver Israel.

Deborah

4 When Ehud was dead, ^athe children of Israel again did ^bevil in the sight of the LORD. ²So the LORD ^csold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in ^dHazor. The commander of his army was ^eSisera, who dwelt in ^fHarosheth Hagoyim. ³And the children of Israel cried out to the LORD; for Jabin had nine hundred ^gchariots of iron, and for twenty years ^hhe had harshly oppressed the children of Israel.

⁴Now Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, was judging Israel at that time. ⁵ⁱAnd she would sit under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in the mountains of Ephraim. And the children of Israel came up to her for judgment. ⁶Then she sent and called for ^jBarak the son of Abinoam from ^kKedesh in Naphtali, and said to him, “Has not the LORD God of Israel commanded, ‘Go and ^ldeploy troops at Mount ^lTabor; take with you ten thousand men of the sons of Naphtali and of the sons of Zebulun; ⁷and against you ^mI will deploy Sisera, the commander of Jabin’s army, with his chariots and his multitude at the ⁿRiver Kishon; and I will ²deliver him into your hand?’”

⁸And Barak said to her, “If you will go with me, then I will go; but if you will not go with me, I will not go!”

⁹So she said, “I will surely go with you; nevertheless there will be no glory for you in the journey you are taking, for the LORD will ^osell Sisera into the hand of a woman.” Then Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh. ¹⁰And Barak called ^pZebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; he went up with ten thousand men ^qunder ³his command, and Deborah went up with him.

¹¹Now Heber ^rthe Kenite, of the children of ^sHobab the father-in-law of Moses, had separated himself from the Kenites and pitched his tent near the terebinth tree at Zaanaïm, ^twhich is beside Kedesh.

¹⁴Then Deborah said to Barak, ⁴“Up! For this is the day in which the LORD has delivered Sisera into your hand. ^uHas not the LORD gone out before you?” So Barak went down from Mount Tabor with ten thousand men following him. ¹⁵And the LORD routed Sisera and all his chariots and all his army with the edge of the sword before Barak; and Sisera alighted from his chariot and fled away on foot. ¹⁶But Barak pursued the chariots and the army as far as Harosheth Hagoyim, and all the army of Sisera fell by the edge of the sword; not a man was ^vleft.

4:1—5:31 The fourth judge was Deborah, whose triumphs—along with Barak’s—make up the first extended account in the Book of Judges. Unique to this episode is the poetic victory hymn (ch. 5) that follows the narration of the Israelite victory.

4:1–3 This new chapter follows the pattern of the Book of Judges by echoing the events of ch. 3. Again the people sinned and suffered oppression, this time enduring 20 years of Canaanite rule.

4:2 Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor: Years earlier Joshua had defeated a king of Hazor named Jabin (Josh. 11:1–15). Probably Jabin was a title rather than a proper name, resembling the use of the title Abimelech among the Philistines (Gen. 20:2; 26:1) or Ben-Hadad among the kings of Damascus. The name Jabin has been found in a text from Mari, an archaeological site on the Euphrates River. The system of small rival kingdoms prominent in Joshua’s day still prevailed during the period of the judges (Josh. 2:2), but Jabin was clearly more powerful than most. Hazor, having been destroyed earlier (Josh. 11:11), had now been rebuilt. The site of Sisera’s headquarters, Harosheth Hagoyim, is unknown, but the ensuing battle was played out in northern Israel around Mt. Tabor (v. 6) and the River Kishon (v. 7).

4:4–10 The campaign of the Israelite tribes began with the introduction of Deborah. This episode also demonstrated widespread cooperation between the tribes. In response to the threat in the north, Deborah, who lived in the south of Ephraim near the territory of Judah (v. 5), ordered the Israelites to send troops against Sisera. At least six tribes contributed soldiers: Naphtali, Zebulun, Ephraim, Benjamin, western Manasseh (Machir), and Issachar (v. 6; 5:14, 15).

4:4 Deborah is one of five women to be called a prophetess in the OT. The others are Miriam (Ex. 15:20), Huldah (2 Kin. 22:14; 2 Chr. 34:22), Isaiah’s wife (Is. 8:3), and Noadiah, a false prophetess (Neh. 6:14).

4:5 Ramah and Bethel were in the southern part of the land, near Judah. Ramah was in the territory of Benjamin (Josh. 18:25), and Bethel was near the border between Benjamin and Ephraim (Josh. 8:17; 18:13).

4:6, 7 Deborah summoned Barak from Kedesh in Naphtali, a settlement southwest of the Sea of Galilee. The soldiers were to gather at Mt. Tabor, where the territories of Issachar, Naphtali, and Zebulun met (v. 6). The battle would be fought along the River Kishon, which flows northwest into the Mediterranean, south of Mt. Tabor.

4:8, 9 Barak hesitated to lead the Israelites in battle. His lack of nerve forced Deborah to go with him, and subsequently the glory for the victory would go to a woman. We naturally assume that Deborah would be this woman, but we discover later that Jael, a Kenite woman, killed the notorious Sisera (vv. 17–22). Both women were heroines in a time when Israel’s leadership was mostly bankrupt. In fact, Deborah is shown in the best light of all the judges in the book. She is called a prophetess (v. 4), and many sought out her decisions (v. 5). For this reason, she is called “a mother in Israel” (5:7). She is probably included among the “leaders” in Israel (5:2), and she instructed Barak in the strategy of the battle (4:9, 14). She also was a prominent author of the victory song (5:1) and gave her name to a place in Israel, the palm tree of Deborah (v. 5).

4:11–16 The details of the victory are now recounted. Verse 11 anticipates the narrative in vv. 17–22 by introducing Heber, Jael’s husband, who lived near Kedesh and who was distantly related to the Israelites. The emphasis in vv. 12–16 is on God’s power and His work.

4:13 The centerpiece of Sisera’s impressive army was nine hundred chariots of iron; they were swift, maneuverable weapons of war. However, the chariots seem to have become mired in the waters of the River Kishon (5:19–22).

¹⁷ However, Sisera had fled away on foot to the tent of ^wJael, the wife of Heber the Kenite; for there was peace between Jabin king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite. ¹⁸ And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said to him, “Turn aside, my lord, turn aside to me; do not fear.” And when he had turned aside with her into the tent, she covered him with a ⁵blanket.

¹⁹ Then he said to her, “Please give me a little water to drink, for I am thirsty.” So she opened ^xa jug of milk, gave him a drink, and covered him. ²⁰ And he said to her, “Stand at the door of the tent, and if any man comes and inquires of you, and says, ‘Is there any man here?’ you shall say, ‘No.’”

²¹ Then Jael, Heber’s wife, ^ytook a tent peg and took a hammer in her hand, and went softly to him and drove the peg into his temple, and it went down into the ground; for he was fast asleep and weary. So he died. ²² And then, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said to him, “Come, I will show you the man whom you seek.” And when he went into her tent, there lay Sisera, dead with the peg in his temple.

4:17–24 The details of Sisera’s death are told in the slow, suspenseful manner that characterized the story of Eglon’s death (3:12–30). The story’s conclusion is that God Himself subdued Jabin.

5:1–31 This chapter contains the victory song of Deborah and Barak. The hymn praises God for His triumph over the Canaanites and bears the hallmarks of very archaic Hebrew. Its vivid descriptions of the events seem as if they might have come from eyewitnesses to them, which Deborah and Barak were.

5:1 The verb sang here is in a feminine singular form, which supports the point made earlier about Deborah’s prominence over Barak (4:8, 9).

5:2–9 The introduction to the hymn is set off by calls to worship at the beginning and end—Bless the LORD! (vv. 2, 9). Verse 3 also contains a call to worship similar to that found in many psalms.

5:2 When leaders lead: The phrase literally means “the long-haired ones who let their hair hang loose.” The precise meaning of the phrase is obscure, but it may mean that loosed locks or flowing hair were signs of great strength or leadership. People willingly offer themselves tells of the glad cooperation of the Israelites. The Hebrew term is related to the noun for “voluntary offerings” (Lev. 7:16; 22:23).

5:4, 5 A brief historical review now follows the calls to worship in vv. 2, 3. These verses refer to the Lord’s marching from Seir and Edom, which likely refers to God’s transferring His “abode” from the wilderness (Mt. Sinai, v. 5) into Canaan, by way of the land of Edom. This corresponds to the movement of His people from Sinai (Kadesh) northward into Canaan (Num. 10:12; 20:22).

5:6–8 Another historical review now follows the first one, detailing the bleak state of affairs before the battle until Deborah arose as a deliverer (vv. 6, 7). Israel had even chosen new gods, resulting in divine judgment (v. 8; 10:14).

5:7 The phrase a mother in Israel occurs twice in the OT, here and 2 Sam. 20:19. The title is given to Deborah as one of honor, respect, and prominence.

5:10–18 This section begins again with calls to worship in vv. 10–12. Verse 13 describes the battle in very general terms. Verses 14, 15, 18 praise the tribes who heeded Deborah’s call. Ten of the twelve sing praise

(Heb. zamar) (5:3; 2 Sam. 22:50; 1 Chr. 16:9; Ps. 47:6, 7; 147:1) Strong’s #2167

This Hebrew word usually refers to singing which exalts God, sometimes to singing accompanied with a musical instrument (Ps. 98:5; 149:3). In the Scripture, such singing is frequently addressed to the Lord and is an expression of gratitude for something He has done for the worshiper (Ps. 9:11; 105:2) or for His mercy and justice (Ps. 101:1). This word often is used as a summons for God’s people to praise Him (5:3; Is. 12:5). The English word psalm is derived from the Greek translation of this Hebrew word.

tribes are mentioned here, five and a half favorably, because they responded to Deborah and Barak's summons. Four and a half tribes are criticized because they did not join their countrymen: Reuben (vv. 15, 16), Gad and eastern Manasseh (Gilead), Dan, and Asher (v. 17). Judah and Simeon are not mentioned in the song or in ch. 4.

5:10 This verse calls all classes of society to bear witness to the mighty acts of God, from the ruling classes, those riding on white donkeys, to the lowest classes, those who walk along the road.

5:17 The reference to Dan remaining on ships probably reflects the location of their original inheritance, which was along the south-central coastal plain where they would have had access to the sea (Josh. 19:40–46). Later they migrated northward, having been forced out of their territory (1:34; 18:1; Josh. 19:47). Some scholars connect this tribe with the Danunians, a sea people who invaded the eastern Mediterranean shortly after 1200 B.C. However, the Bible clearly establishes the existence of the tribe of Dan many years earlier (Gen. 30:6; 49:16–18).

5:19–23 The victory proper is now described in vivid terms, and a curse is pronounced on Meroz, a site otherwise unknown (v. 23). The stars themselves were fighting against Sisera (v. 20), a vivid metaphor of God's intervention. The prose account says, "And the LORD routed Sisera and all his chariots and all his army with the edge of the sword before Barak" (4:15). The frantic pounding of the horses' hooves, their galloping, galloping, suggests the chaos caused by the waters of the River Kishon (vv. 21, 22; see 4:7).

5:24–30 The poem now contrasts the two women who waited on Sisera: Jael, who killed him (vv. 24–27), and his mother, who longed for his return (vv. 28–30). Sisera's mother appears for the first time; in her futile waiting, she and her companions delude themselves as they dream up imagined glories that he was taking part in.

5:26 The poem speaks of Sisera sinking and falling at Jael's feet as she strikes his head, while the prose account tells us he was already lying down when she struck him (4:21). The poem is using graphic, emotive language, which it repeats several times to make the point. Sisera's death probably was a bloodier affair than the prose account indicates.

27 At her feet he sank, he fell, he lay still;
At her feet he sank, he fell;
Where he sank, there he fell ^wdead.

28 “The mother of Sisera looked through

And cried out through the lattice,

29 Her wisest ⁸ladies answered her, had sown, Midianites would come the East would come up against them.

⁴Then they would encamp against them

5:28-30 The point of this pathetic story of Sisera’s mother is not to elicit sympathy for her, but rather to remind us of Jael’s stunning accomplishment. Sisera’s mother expected her son to shower his people with great plunder; instead, Sisera lay dead at Jael’s feet. Three times in the OT we read of women who looked through the window: Sisera’s mother, Saul’s daughter Michal (2 Sam. 6:16), and Jezebel (2 Kin. 9:30). All three opposed God’s will and suffered accordingly. 5:31 The hymn concludes with praise to the Lord, as many psalms do. The prose account resumes with another period of 40 years of rest (3:11).

6:1-8, 32 The fifth judge was Gideon, who twice fought the Midianites, first under God’s instructions and later on his own initiative. Gideon’s story is the second major account in the Book of Judges. In this narrative—along with the subsequent tragedy of Abimelech that follows in ch. 9—we can see, in ways not evident previously, the continuing deterioration of Israel’s spiritual state. First, God now rebuked Israel when it called upon Him (6:7-10). Second, the judge himself contributed to the spiritual decline (8:24-27). Third, Israel’s tribes fought among themselves for the first time (8:16, 17; 9:23-54), prior to an even worse dissension later (12:1-6; 20:1-48). Despite God’s continued intervention and Gideon’s flashes of righteousness, Israel eroded spiritually and politically.

6:1 Midian was located in the Arabian peninsula, southeast of Israel and east of the Sinai peninsula. The Midianites were descendants of Abraham through his wife Keturah (Gen. 25:1, 2), so they were distantly related to the Israelites. Midianites bought Joseph from his brothers (Gen. 37:25-36), welcomed Moses in the wilderness (Ex. 2:15-21), and hired Balaam to curse Israel (Num. 22:7). Generally speaking, Israel counted Midian among its foes. In this account, the Midianites were menacing Israel, burning, looting, and leaving many near starvation (6:4, 5).

6:2 the dens, the caves: Caves were not used for permanent dwellings in OT times. That the Israelites were forced to abandon their homes and live in caves indicates the desperate straits they were in.

6:3 The Amalekites were a nomadic people who lived in the Sinai desert and the Negev, the desert south of Israel. They were descendants of Esau (Gen. 36:12) and here joined the Midianites against Israel. People of the East were unspecified nomads who also plundered Israel. These easterners are also mentioned in several prophetic contexts (Is. 11:14; Jer. 49:28; Ezek. 25:4).

6:5 as numerous as locusts: Locust plagues were—and still are—a fairly common occurrence in the Middle East. In the prophet Joel’s day, such an attack would be prophesied as a punishment upon the land (Joel 1:4, 15-17; 2:1-11).

6:8 the LORD sent a prophet: Rather than sending a deliverer, God sent a prophet to condemn His people. This prophet reminded the Israelites of God’s faithfulness, and how the people had nevertheless rejected Him (vv. 8-10).

6:11-40 Gideon’s call is the centerpiece of ch. 6. It begins with the appearance of the Angel of the Lord to Gideon (vv. 11-24), followed by an account of Gideon’s destruction of an altar of Baal (vv. 25-35), after which we see Gideon’s wavering faith (vv. 36-40). Through it all, Gideon was ambivalent about being called to deliver Israel, much as Moses had been years earlier.

6:11 The Palestinian terebinth tree is a large tree with a thick trunk and heavy branches, sometimes confused with the oak. It can grow

^lthe Abiezrite, while his son ^mGideon threshed wheat in the winepress, in order to hide it from the Midianites. ¹² And the ⁿAngel of the LORD appeared to him, and said to him, “The LORD is ^owith you, you mighty man of valor!”

¹³ Gideon said to Him, “O ³my lord, if the LORD is with us, why then has all this happened to us? And ^pwhere are all His miracles ^qwhich our fathers told us about, saying, ‘Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt?’ But now the LORD has ^rforsaken us and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.”

¹⁴ Then the LORD turned to him and said, ^s“Go in this might of yours, and you shall save Israel from the hand of the Midianites. ‘Have I not sent you?’”

¹⁵ So he said to Him, “O ⁴my Lord, how can I save Israel? Indeed ^umy clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father’s house.”

¹⁶ And the LORD said to him, ^v“Surely I will be with you, and you shall ⁵defeat the Midianites as one man.”

¹⁷ Then he said to Him, “If now I have found favor in Your sight, then ^wshow me a sign that it is You who talk with me. ^{18x}Do not depart from here, I pray, until I come to You and bring out my offering and set it before You.”

And He said, “I will wait until you come back.”

^{19y} So Gideon went in and prepared a young goat, and unleavened bread from an ephah of flour. The meat he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot; and he brought them out to Him under the terebinth tree and presented them. ²⁰ The Angel of God said to him, “Take the meat and the unleavened bread and ^zlay them on this rock, and ^apour out the broth.” And he did so.

²² Now Gideon ^cperceived that He was the Angel of the LORD. So Gideon said, “Alas, O Lord God! ^dFor I have seen the Angel of the LORD face to face.”

²³ Then the LORD said to him, ^e“Peace be with you; do not fear, you shall not die.” ²⁴ So Gideon built an altar there to the LORD, and called it ⁶The-LORD-Is-Peace. To this day it is still ^fin Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

²⁵ Now it came to pass the same night that the LORD said to him, “Take your father’s young bull, the second bull of seven years old, and ^gtear down the altar of ^hBaal that your father has, and ⁱcut down the ⁷wooden image that is beside as high as 25 feet. The terebinth figures in the stories of Abraham, who pitched his tent near the terebinth trees of Mamre (Gen. 13:18; 18:1), and of Jacob, who hid a treasure beneath a terebinth tree (Gen. 35:4). The exact location of Ophrah is unknown, but it was a city somewhere in the territory of Manasseh. It is not the same as the Benjaminite city of the same name (Josh. 18:23; 1 Sam. 13:17). Abiezrite: See v. 24. A winepress was a square or circular pit carved into rock in which grapes were crushed (Is. 16:10; Jer. 48:33). Wheat was usually separated on open threshing floors so the wind could carry away the chaff in the winnowing process (2 Sam. 24:18). The fact that Gideon was forced to thresh wheat hidden inside a winepress—despite the fact that he had access to a threshing floor (v. 37)—shows again the desperate state the Israelites were in.

6:13 My lord was a polite form of address, but the LORD is the personal name of God (Yahweh), the full meaning of which was revealed to Moses at Mt. Sinai (Ex. 3:13–16). The Hebrew word for miracles means “wonderful things,” and it is translated elsewhere as wonders (Ex. 3:20; Josh. 3:5).

6:15 I am the least in my father’s house: Gideon’s objection is reminiscent of the words spoken by Moses (Ex. 3:11) and Jeremiah (Jer. 1:6).

6:16 I will be with you was God’s great promise of His presence that He had given to Moses and Joshua previously (Ex. 3:12; Josh. 1:5, 9). This should have greatly encouraged Gideon, but he still expressed doubts (vv. 17, 36–40). Often we are quick to judge those who doubt God even when they have firsthand evidence of His mighty works. But we all fail to trust God fully at times. God accomplished His will despite Gideon’s weakness, and He can do the same through us.

6:17 Gideon’s faith needed such bolstering that he asked God for a sign. Here as elsewhere, Gideon was slow to respond to God (vv. 39, 40).

6:19 An ephah of flour was two-thirds of a bushel, or about 20 pounds of flour.

6:22 Gideon perceived: When the Angel of the Lord vanished, then Gideon realized who it was and feared for his life. This reaction of fear appears to have been rooted in the knowledge that anyone who gazed upon God would die. In Ex. 33:20, God, speaking to Moses, says, “You cannot see My face; for no man shall see Me, and live.” The context of Ex. 33:18–23 suggests that it was the fullness of God’s glory that Moses could not see, since Moses did speak with God and know Him “face to face” (Ex. 33:11; Num. 12:8; Deut. 34:10), and he even beheld the form of God Himself (Num. 12:8). Yet Gideon’s fear was a proper response for those who found themselves in the presence of God’s Angel. This was also Manoah’s reaction when the Angel visited him (13:21, 22).

6:24 To this day: This expression, especially common in the Books of Joshua and Judges (1:21, 26; 15:19; Josh. 4:9; 5:9; 6:25; 7:26), lends authenticity to the account. It is the author’s way of declaring to later generations that they could verify the story by going and seeing this altar themselves. Abiezrites were descendants of Joseph through his son Manasseh. They were part of the tribe of Manasseh that settled west of the Jordan River (Num. 26:30 [Jeezer]; Josh. 17:1, 2).

6:25–35 Gideon’s first test was to topple the local shrines to Baal and Asherah, replacing them with an altar to the Lord. Gideon obeyed, but his fearfulness caused him to do this by night (v. 27). His forthcoming military tests are foreshadowed in the text (vv. 33–35). The battle he would lead would take place in the central highlands of northern Israel (Ophrah, Gideon’s hometown, was in the Jezreel Valley, southwest of the Sea of Galilee).

6:25 The Hebrew word for wooden image here is Asherah, the name of the Canaanite goddess. Sacred wooden poles were erected at places where she was worshipped. The widespread worship of this goddess is attested to in 3:7 and elsewhere (1 Kin. 15:13; 18:19). The second bull is not a second animal, but a phrase by which the Lord was specifying more clearly to Gideon which bull should it; ²⁶and build an altar to the LORD your God on top of this ⁸rock in the proper arrangement, and take the second bull and offer a burnt sacrifice with the wood of the image which you shall cut down.” ²⁷So Gideon took ten men from among his servants and did as the LORD had said to him. But because he feared his father’s household and the men of the city too much to do it by day, he did it by night.

²⁸And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, there was the altar of Baal, torn down; and the wooden image that was beside it was cut down, and the second bull was being offered on the altar which had been built. ²⁹So they said to one another, “Who has done this thing?” And when they had inquired and asked, they said, “Gideon the son of Joash has done this thing.” ³⁰Then the men of the city said to Joash, “Bring out your son, that he may die, because he has torn down the altar of Baal, and because he has cut down the wooden image that was beside it.”

³¹But Joash said to all who stood against him, “Would you ⁹plead for Baal? Would you save him? Let the one who would plead for him be put to death by morning! If he is a god, let him plead for himself, because his altar has been torn down!” ³²Therefore on that day he called him ¹Jerubbaal, ¹saying, “Let Baal plead against him, because he has torn down his altar.”

³³Then all ^kthe Midianites and Amalekites, the people of the East, gathered together; and they crossed over and encamped in ^lthe Valley of Jezreel. ³⁴But ^mthe Spirit of the LORD came upon Gideon; then he ⁿblew the trumpet, and the Abiezrites gathered behind him. ³⁵And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh, who also gathered behind him. He also sent messengers to ^oAsher, ^pZebulun, and Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.

The Sign of the Fleece

³⁶So Gideon said to God, “If You will save Israel by my hand as You have said— ³⁷^qlook, I shall put a fleece of wool on the threshing floor; if there is dew on the fleece only, and it is dry on all the ground, then I shall know that You will save Israel by my hand, as You have said.” ³⁸And it was so. When he rose early the next morning and squeezed the fleece together, he wrung the dew out of the fleece, a bowlful of water. ³⁹Then Gideon said to God, ^r“Do not be angry with me, but let me speak just once more: Let me test, I pray, just once more with the fleece; let it now be dry only on the fleece, but on all the ground let there be dew.” ⁴⁰And God did so that night. It was dry on the fleece only, but there was dew on all the ground.

Gideon’s Valiant Three Hundred

⁷Then ^aJerubbaal (that is, Gideon) and all the people who were with him rose early and encamped beside the well of Harod, so that the camp of the Midianites was on the north side of them by the hill of Moreh in the valley.

²And the LORD said to Gideon, “The people who are with you are too many be sacrificed. The need to specify the bull underscores Gideon’s continued reluctance (v. 17).

6:26 The wood of the image means literally “the wood of the Asherah” (vv. 28, 30). The proper sacrifice that Gideon was to offer would be burnt with the wood of the destroyed idol.

6:28 The phrase early in the morning occurs at 6:28, 38; 7:1; 9:33; 19:5, 8, 9; 21:4.

6:31 Would you plead for Baal: Joash’s questions are rhetorical. He refused to put his son to death, arguing that Baal should be able to take care of himself if he were indeed a god. Other examples of rhetorical questions are found at 9:2, 28; 11:25; 18:3; 20:28.

6:32 Gideon’s father called him Jerubbaal to deride those who would put their trust in Baal. The name means “Let Baal Plead,” and it echoes the question of v. 31. Thus Gideon became a living reminder of Baal’s impotence.

6:35 Gideon sent messengers through the territories of four northern tribes adjacent to each other: Manasseh, Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali.

6:36–40 Before the fight itself, Gideon asked for signs to “test” God’s guidance once more.

6:39 Let me test: The word translated test is the same one used when God tested Israel (2:22; 3:1). Gideon’s desire to test God’s sign could have been a violation of the law which prohibited people from testing God (Deut. 6:16; the Hebrew word translated tempt is the same word translated test here). Gideon himself was aware that he was doing something unwise, if not sinful, since he asked God not to be angry with him.

6:40 Despite Gideon’s lack of faith, God did so that night. That is, He accommodated both of his requests. Many people have relied on Gideon’s example as a way of seeking guidance from the Lord, “putting out a fleece” in some way. Occasionally God has chosen to answer such requests, even as He did for Gideon. Nevertheless, Gideon already knew God’s will for his life (vv. 14–16, 36). His requests only made evident his weak faith. Isaiah modeled a proper response to God’s clearly revealed will: he said “Here am I! Send me” (Is. 6:8). So too did the disciples, who dropped their nets immediately and followed Jesus (Mark 1:18–20).

7:1–8:3 God figures prominently in Gideon’s victory over the Midianites, especially in the amazing story of the 300 men who would subdue their numerically superior foes. The reassurances from God that Gideon had received before the encounter were now reinforced by a dream (7:9–15). The battle itself did not involve any significant combat, for God Himself provided the victory (7:16–25). The Israelites blew horns, broke jars, and shouted, causing the enemy to kill each other in their confusion. The survivors fled across the Jordan with the Israelites in pursuit.

7:2 lest Israel claim glory for itself: Right from the beginning, God made it clear that the glory for this victory was to be His. This for Me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel ^bclaim glory for itself against Me, saying, ‘My own hand has saved me.’ ³Now therefore, proclaim in the hearing of the people, saying, ‘Whoever is fearful and afraid, let him turn and depart at once from Mount Gilead.’” And twenty-two thousand of the people returned, and ten thousand remained.

⁴But the LORD said to Gideon, “The people are still too many; bring them down to the water, and I will test them for you there. Then it will be, that of whom I say to you, ‘This one shall go with you,’ the same shall go with you; and of whomever I say to you, ‘This one shall not go with you,’ the same shall not go.” ⁵So he brought the people down to the water. And the LORD said to Gideon, “Everyone who laps from the water makes even more incredible the Israelites’ request that Gideon rule over them because he had “delivered us from the hand of Midian” (8:22, 23).

³ ^c Deut. 20:8

7:3 When Gideon allowed those who were fearful to leave, more than two-thirds departed, leaving only ten thousand. Mosaic law allowed military exemptions for several classes of people, including those who had just built a home, those who had just planted a vineyard, those engaged to be married, and those who were fearful (Deut. 20:5–8).

7:4, 5 Gideon thinned his army even more by employing a strange distinction, namely, how his men drank water from a brook. Some commentators have suggested that the men who did not get down on their knees were maintaining a higher degree of military readiness by drinking out of their hands. However, they may be reading too much into the account, for the text does not indicate any reason for Gideon’s preference. The reference to the way a dog laps might even be derogatory since dogs were despised creatures in the ancient world (1 Sam. 17:43; 2 Kin. 8:13; Matt. 7:6). If so, God’s role in the victory becomes even more apparent, since the three hundred who were left were the ones who did not even have the common sense to drink in a normal fashion. God’s comment in v. 7 seems to reinforce this suggestion.

Determining God’s Will

Christians believe that they should carefully obey God’s will. But how can we know what His will is? How should we go about making decisions that honor the Lord?

The example of Gideon is frequently cited as a model for godly decision-making. Before acting, Gideon carefully considered whether the Lord wanted him to rally an army and attack the Midianites. Twice he set out a fleece (a clump of wool) to make sure of God’s intentions (6:36–40). On this basis, some have argued that before Christians make major decisions with long-range consequences, they should “put out a fleece before the Lord,” seeking some tangible sign that indicates His will with certainty.

Is that an appropriate way to know God’s will? In considering the question, it is important to note that this is the only occasion in the Bible when God revealed His will through a fleece. It is also worth noting Gideon’s extreme hesitation, doubt, and fear. The Lord had already told him what to do through the Angel of the Lord (6:11–16). In fact, the Angel had already given Gideon a confirming sign (6:17–22).

In light of these facts, Gideon’s use of the fleece would appear to demonstrate a lack of faith more than any zeal to be certain of God’s will. Fortunately, God was very patient with him and granted his request for a confirming sign. But it seems that using a fleece to determine God’s will was the exception rather than the rule, and thus does not serve as the best pattern for how we can depend on God for guidance.

Is there a more reliable way? Yes, God has clearly and objectively told us what He wants throughout the Bible. For example, the Ten Commandments give straightforward instructions to guide our behavior in numerous areas of life. Likewise, one of the New Testament letters to the Thessalonians says plainly, “This is the will of God” (1 Thess. 4:3). The passage then goes on to outline some of God’s will in regard to sexuality.

Thus when it comes to making choices in life, God calls us to clear thinking—thinking that is based on our relationship with Him and our allegiance to His values, which are clearly spelled out in Scripture. God has made us to be thinking, discerning, analytical persons who assume responsibility for working our way through life in accordance with His general plans and purposes. He challenges us to learn all that we can about any situation, relationship, responsibility, or opportunity that we have, weigh it in light of His precepts and principles, and then act. As we act, we can take comfort from the fact that He is at work within us, “both to will and to do for His good pleasure” (Phil. 2:13).

Let all the other people go, every man to his ¹place.”⁸ So the people took provisions and their trumpets in their hands. And he sent away all the rest of Israel, every man to his tent, and retained those three hundred men. Now the camp of Midian was below him in the valley.

¹³ And when Gideon had come, there was a man telling a dream to his companion. He said, “I have had a dream: To my surprise, a loaf of barley bread tumbled into the camp of Midian; it came to a tent and struck it so that it fell and overturned, and the tent collapsed.”

¹⁴ Then his companion answered and

7:10 Ironically, Gideon himself was afraid, but he had not been dismissed to go home as had the other men (v. 3).

7:12 This verse notes again the strength of Israel’s enemies, including their intimidating numbers and their innumerable camels (6:3–5).

7:13 Tumbled in this context literally means “overturned.” The word is also used in Genesis to describe the sword “which turned every way” at the entrance to the Garden of Eden (Gen. 3:24) and the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 19:25, 29). Here, the loaf “overturned” the Midianite camp.

7:14, 15 The sword of Gideon is the key to the interpretation of the dream. Coming from the mouth of one of Israel’s enemies, it provided the confirmation that Gideon needed, in light of his earlier fear (v. 10). As a result, he worshiped God for being so patient with his wavering faith (v. 15).

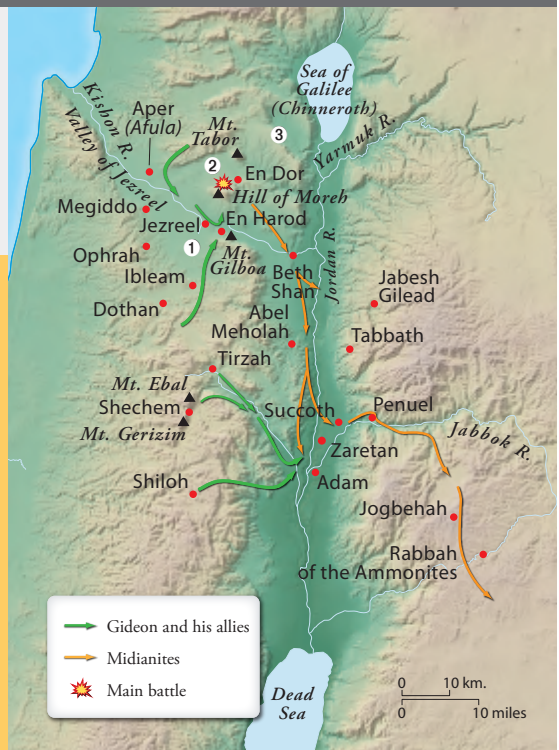

Gideon’s Battles

The story of Gideon begins with a graphic portrayal of one of the most striking facts of life in the Fertile Crescent: the periodic migration of nomadic peoples into the settled areas of Canaan. Each spring the tents of the bedouin herdsman appeared virtually overnight, scattered on the hills and fields of the farming districts. Conflict between these two ways of life (herdsmen and farmers) was inevitable.

1 In the biblical period, the vast numbers and warlike practice of the herdsmen reduced the village people to near vassalage. God’s answer was twofold: (1) religious reform, starting with Gideon’s own family; and (2) military action, based on a coalition of northern Israelite tribes. The location of Gideon’s hometown, “Ophrah of the Abiezrites” (6:24), is not known with certainty, but it probably was ancient Aper (modern Afula) in the Valley of Jezreel.

2 The battle at the well of Harod is justly celebrated for its strategic brilliance. Denied the use of the only local water source, the Midianites camped in the valley and fell victim to the small band of Israelites that attacked them from the heights of the hill of Moreh.

3 The main battle took place north of the hill near the village of En Dor at the foot of Mount Tabor. Fleeing by way of the Jordan valley, the Midianites were trapped when the Ephraimites seized the fords of the Jordan from below Beth Shean to Beth Barah near Adam.

said, “This is nothing else but the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel! Into his hand ⁱGod has delivered Midian and the whole camp.”

¹⁵And so it was, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream and its interpretation, that he worshiped. He returned to the camp of Israel, and said, “Arise, for the LORD has delivered the camp of Midian into your hand.” ¹⁶Then he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put a trumpet into every man’s hand, with empty pitchers, and torches inside the pitchers. ¹⁷And he said to them, “Look at me and do likewise; watch, and when I come to the edge of the camp you shall do as I do: ¹⁸When I blow the trumpet, I and all who are with me, then you also blow the trumpets on every side of the whole camp, and say, ‘The sword of the LORD and of Gideon!’”

¹⁹So Gideon and the hundred men who were with him came to the outpost of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, just as they had posted the watch; and they blew the trumpets and broke the pitchers that were in their hands. ²⁰Then the three companies blew the trumpets and broke the pitchers—they held the torches in their left hands and the trumpets in their right hands for blowing—and they cried, “The sword of the LORD and of Gideon!” ²¹And ^jevery man stood in his place all around the camp; ^kand the whole army ran and cried out and fled. ²²When the three hundred ^lblew the trumpets, ^mthe LORD set ⁿevery man’s sword against his companion throughout the whole camp; and the army fled to ^qBeth Acacia, toward Zererah, as far as the border of ^oAbel Meholah, by Tabbath.

²⁴Then Gideon sent messengers throughout all the ^qmountains of Ephraim, saying, “Come down against the Midianites, and seize from them the watering places as far as Beth Barah and the Jordan.” Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together and ^rseized the watering places as far as ^sBeth Barah and the Jordan. ²⁵And they captured ^ttwo princes of the Midianites, ^uOreb and Zeeb. They killed Oreb at the rock of Oreb, and Zeeb they killed at the winepress of Zeeb. They pursued Midian and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the ^vother side of the Jordan.

Gideon Subdues the Midianites

8 Now ^athe men of Ephraim said to him, “Why have you done this to us by not calling us when you went to fight with the Midianites?” And they reprimanded him sharply.

²So he said to them, “What have I done now in comparison with you? Is not the ¹gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than ²the vintage of ^bAbiezer? ³*God has delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb. And what was I able to do in comparison with you?*” Then their ^danger toward him subsided when he said that.

⁴When Gideon came ^eto the Jordan, he and ^fthe three hundred men who were with him crossed over, exhausted but still in pursuit. ⁵Then he said to the men of ^gSuccoth, “Please give loaves of bread to the people who follow me, for they are exhausted, and I am pursuing Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.”

⁶And the leaders of Succoth said, ^h“Are ³the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hand, that ⁱwe should give bread to your army?”

⁷So Gideon said, “For this cause, when the LORD has delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into my hand, ^jthen I will tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers!” ⁸Then he went up from there ^kto Penuel and spoke to them in the same way. And the men of Penuel

7:16 The ram’s-horn trumpet was used as a signal call. See 3:27 and Josh. 6:5.

7:19 middle watch: According to Jewish tradition the nighttime hours were divided into three watches, which would put the time of this attack at roughly 10:00 P.M.

7:20 The sword of the LORD and of Gideon: Here the full version of the war cry is given. A more literal rendering of the Hebrew is “A sword for the LORD and for Gideon!”

7:23 The same tribes mentioned in 6:35 now pursued the Midianites, with the exception of Zebulun, which is not mentioned. Ephraim also joined in the pursuit (v. 24).

7:24, 25 The watering places probably refer to small tributaries that flowed into the Jordan River. Seizing them would seal off the enemy’s escape routes. The other side of the Jordan is the east side of the Jordan, where the Israelites caught the enemy (Josh. 13:32; 18:7).

8:1–3 The men of Ephraim complained to Gideon that they had been called out late (v. 1). Gideon’s flattering response had a calming effect on these men.

8:4–28 Gideon followed up the victory with a second military campaign, one which contrasts dramatically with the first. He pursued the two Midianite kings until he caught and killed them, and he punished the towns of Succoth and Penuel. In this account, there is no indication of God’s involvement as there had been previously; rather, Gideon is merely settling a private score (vv. 18, 19).

8:5 Succoth was east of the Jordan, near the Jabbok River. Zebah and Zalmunna are unflattering names meaning “Victim” and “Protection Refused.” They may be wordplays on the real names of these kings, much like the name Cushan-Rishathaim (3:8). Yet the author may have had more sympathy for these two kings than for Cushan-Rishathaim, since Gideon is cast in a poor light in this chapter.

answered him as the men of Succoth had answered. ⁹So he also spoke to the men of Penuel, saying, “When I ^lcome back in peace, ^mI will tear down this tower!”

¹⁰Now Zebah and Zalmunna were at Karkor, and their armies with them, about fifteen thousand, all who were left of ⁿall the army of the people of the East; for ^oone hundred and twenty thousand men who drew the sword had fallen. ¹¹Then Gideon went up by the road of those who dwell in tents on the east of ^pNobah and Jogbehah; and he ^qattacked the army while the camp felt ^rsecure. ¹²When Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued them; and he ^rtook the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and routed the whole army.

¹³Then Gideon the son of Joash returned from battle, from the Ascent of Heres. ¹⁴And he caught a young man of the men of Succoth and interrogated him; and he wrote down for him the leaders of Succoth and its elders, seventy-seven men. ¹⁵Then he came to the men of Succoth and said, “Here are Zebah and Zalmunna, about whom you ^sridiculed me, saying, ‘Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hand, that we should give bread to your weary men?’” ¹⁶And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness and briers, and with them he ⁵taught the men of Succoth. ¹⁷And he tore down the tower of ^vPenuel and killed the men of the city.

¹⁹Then he said, “They were my brothers, the sons of my mother. As the LORD lives, if you had let them live, I would not kill you.” ²⁰And he said to Jether his firstborn, “Rise, kill them!” But the youth would not draw his sword; for he was afraid, because he was still a youth.

²¹So Zebah and Zalmunna said, “Rise yourself, and kill us; for as a man is, so is his strength.” So Gideon arose and ^xkilled Zebah and Zalmunna, and took the crescent ornaments that were on their camels’ necks.

Gideon’s Ephod

²²Then the men of Israel said to Gideon, ^y“Rule over us, both you and your son, and your grandson also; for you have ^zdelivered us from the hand of Midian.”

²³But Gideon said to them, “I will not rule over you, nor shall my son rule over you; ⁴the LORD shall rule over you.”

²⁴Then Gideon said to them, “I would like to ⁶make a request of you, that each of you would give me the earrings from his plunder.” For they had golden earrings, ^bbecause they were Ishmaelites.

²⁵So they answered, “We will gladly give them.” And they spread out a garment, and each man threw into it the earrings from his plunder. ²⁶Now the weight of the gold earrings that he requested was one thousand seven hundred shekels of gold, besides the crescent ornaments,

8:11, 12 Gideon’s aggression contrasts sharply with the caution and fear so evident in ch. 6.

8:14 he wrote down for him the leaders: Literacy in early civilizations was at first limited to an educated elite, as in Mesopotamia and Egypt. Their writing systems were complex and only a tiny portion of the population could read and write. However, the spread of alphabetic systems vastly simplified the task of reading and writing. Hundreds of potsherds from throughout Palestine have simple inscriptions on them, indicating that some degree of literacy had become widely accessible by Gideon’s day. Even a youth whom Gideon happened upon wrote down for Gideon the names of 77 men.

8:18 The killings to which Gideon refers do not appear anywhere else in the text. The answer from the two kings was flattering: As you are, so were they; they compared Gideon to the son of a king. Gideon, despite his refusal of a kingship, was not immune to the vanity that royalty encouraged. By naming one of his sons Abimelech, which means “My Father Is King” (v. 31), he may have succumbed to the temptation of exalting himself as a king over Israel.

8:21 As a man is, so is his strength was a challenge to Gideon’s manhood, and Gideon responded by killing the two kings himself.

Crescent ornaments have been found at many sites in Palestine, but they are mentioned again only one other time in the Bible (Is. 3:18).

8:22 Immediately following his execution of the two kings, Gideon’s men asked him to rule over them. This request, while understandable from a human perspective (v. 18), failed to acknowledge that it was God, not Gideon, who had delivered His people.

8:23 Gideon’s answer was theologically correct: the LORD shall rule over you. The word order of the Hebrew makes it clear that God’s claim was exclusive; it might be paraphrased, “It is the LORD, and no one else, who shall rule over you.” This statement is widely assumed to indicate that God intended that Israel should never have a king, but that He would be their only King. However, God had promised Abraham and his descendants that they would count kings among their descendants (Gen. 17:6, 16; 35:11; 49:10). When the people of Israel asked Gideon to rule because of his military success, Gideon could only refuse, since their motivation was flawed and shortsighted.

8:24–27 Despite Gideon’s theologically correct answer in v. 23, these verses show that he was not careful to lead Israel in true worship of the Lord. By making the ephod, he encouraged idolatry. The total weight of the offerings brought for making the ephod—one thousand seven hundred shekels—was impressive. Assuming the unit of weight here to be the shekel (it is not specified in the Hebrew text), the total weight was more than 42 pounds of gold (a shekel was about two-fifths of an ounce). The original ephod was an ornate ceremonial garment worn by the high priest (Ex. 28; 39). Some scholars believe that the ephod made by Gideon resembled an idol, but there is no clear indication here that this was the case. By placing the ephod in his own city, Gideon might have been “playing” at being judge. Perhaps tellingly, nowhere are we told that he “judged” Israel, whereas we read this of several of the other judges. After Gideon another man also made an ephod, with equally dismal results (17:5). It became a snare recalls the narrator’s introductory comment in 2:3.

pendants, and purple robes which were on the kings of Midian, and besides the chains that were around their camels' necks. ²⁷Then Gideon ^cmade it into an ephod and set it up in his city, ^dOphrah. And all Israel ^eplayed the harlot with it there. It became ^fa snare to Gideon and to his house.

²⁸Thus Midian was subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted their heads no more. ^gAnd the country was quiet for forty years in the days of Gideon.

Death of Gideon

²⁹Then ^hJerubbaal the son of Joash went and dwelt in his own house. ³⁰Gideon had ⁱseventy sons who were his own offspring, for he had many wives. ^{31j}And his concubine who was in Shechem also bore him a son, whose name he called Abimelech. ³²Now Gideon the son of Joash died ^kat a good old age, and was buried in the tomb of Joash his father, ^lin Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

³³So it was, ^mas soon as Gideon was dead, that the children of Israel again ⁿplayed the harlot with the Baals, ^oand made Baal-Berith their god. ³⁴Thus the children of Israel ^pdid not remember the LORD their God, who had delivered them from the hands of all their enemies on every side; ^{35q}nor did they show kindness to the house of Jerubbaal (Gideon) in accordance with the good he had done for Israel.

Abimelech's Conspiracy

⁹Then Abimelech the son of Jerubbaal went to Shechem, to ^ahis mother's brothers, and spoke with them and with all the family of the house of his mother's father, saying, ²"Please speak in the hearing of all the men of Shechem: 'Which is better for you, that all ^bseventy of the sons of Jerubbaal reign over you, or that ³And his mother's brothers spoke all these words concerning him in the hearing of all the men of Shechem; and their heart was inclined to follow Abimelech, for they said, "He is our ^dbrother." ⁴So they gave him seventy shekels of silver from the temple of ^eBaal-Berith, with which Abimelech hired ^fworthless and reckless men; and they followed him. ⁵Then he went to his father's house ^gat Ophrah and ^hkilled his brothers, the seventy sons of Jerubbaal, on one stone. But Jotham the youngest son of Jerubbaal was left, because he hid himself. ⁶And all the men of Shechem gathered together, all of Beth Millo, and they went and made Abimelech king beside the terebinth tree at the pillar that was in Shechem.

The Parable of the Trees

⁷Now when they told Jotham, he went and stood on top of ⁱMount Gerizim, and lifted his voice and cried out. And he said to them:

"Listen to me, you men of Shechem,
That God may listen to you!

⁸ "The ^jtrees once went forth to anoint a king over them.

And go to sway over trees?"

¹⁰ "Then the trees said to the fig tree,
" You come and reign over us!"

¹¹ But the fig tree said to them,
"Should I cease my sweetness and my good fruit,
And go to sway over trees?"

8:29–32 This transitional section tells of Gideon's death, but also introduces Gideon's fateful legacy: his son Abimelech, whose violent story is told in ch. 9.

8:31 Although Gideon had 70 sons (v. 30), only Abimelech is mentioned by name. The name means "My Father Is King." Some scholars argue that Gideon did, in fact, become king, at least in practice if not in name, for he gave his son a royal name and acted as the people's leader (vv. 24–27).

8:33 Baal-Berith means "Baal of the Covenant," an ironic contrast to the covenant God of Israel whom the Israelites should have been worshiping. This god is also called "El-Berith" (9:46).

9:1–57 Abimelech's violent grab for power is the theme of ch. 9. The seeds of his offense were sown in Israel's persistent infidelity to God, which led to another rejection of the Lord (8:22, 24–27, 33–35).

9:1–6 Abimelech killed his own brothers to strengthen his royal claims. He began by traveling to Shechem, where ironically, Israel had reaffirmed the covenant years earlier (Josh. 24). He earned the trust of the Shechemites (v. 2) and hired men to kill all his brothers but one. Abimelech was then made king at Shechem (v. 6).

9:4 The temple of Baal-Berith was a pagan sanctuary, a vivid sign of Israel's continuing apostasy (8:33). worthless and reckless men: Abimelech's character can certainly be judged by the company that he kept. The same can be said of Jephthah (11:3).

9:6 Sadly, the coronation took place at the terebinth tree where Jacob had put away his foreign gods many years before (Gen. 35:4). Here too, Joshua had commemorated his covenant with God (Josh. 24:26).

9:7–21 Jotham, the only brother of Abimelech who escaped, condemned Abimelech's treachery publicly by telling a fable—a story in which creatures take on human characteristics. In this fable, the noble trees of the forest reject a call to kingship, which is finally conferred on the lowly bramble bush (vv. 8–15). The fable indicts the Shechemites for choosing the ignoble Abimelech as king. The story is not an indictment of kings in general (8:23).

- 12^a “Then the trees said to the vine,
 ‘You come and reign over us!’
 13 But the vine said to them,
 ‘Should I cease my new wine,
^mWhich cheers both God and men,
 And go to sway over trees?’
 14 “Then all the trees said to the bramble,
 ‘You come and reign over us!’
 15 And the bramble said to the trees, over you,

Then come and take shelter in my ⁿshade;
 But if not, ^olet fire come out of the

 And devour the ^pcedars of Lebanon!’

16 “Now therefore, if you have acted in truth and sincerity in making Abimelech king, and if you have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his house, and have done to him ^qas ¹he deserves— ¹⁷for my ^rfather fought for you, risked his life, and ^sdelivered you out of the hand of Midian; ¹⁸but you have risen up against my father’s house this day, and killed his seventy sons on one stone, and made Abimelech, the son of his ^ufemale servant, king over the men of Shechem, because he is your brother— ¹⁹if then you have acted in truth and sincerity with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then ^vrejoice in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you. ²⁰But if not, ^wlet fire come from Abimelech and devour the men of Shechem and Beth Millo; and let fire come from the men of Shechem and from Beth Millo and devour Abimelech!’

went to ^xBeer and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

Downfall of Abimelech

²² After Abimelech had reigned over Israel three years, ²³^y God sent a ^zspirit of ill will between Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the men of Shechem ^adealt treacherously with Abimelech, ²⁴^b that the crime done to the seventy sons of Jerubbaal might be settled and their ^cblood be laid on Abimelech their brother, who killed them, and on the men of Shechem, who aided him in the killing of his brothers. ²⁵ And the men of Shechem set ²men in ambush against him on the tops of the mountains, and they robbed all who passed by them along that way; and it was told Abimelech.

²⁶ Now Gaal the son of Ebed came with his brothers and went over to Shechem; and the men of Shechem put their confidence in him. ²⁷ So they went out into the fields, and gathered grapes from their vineyards and trod them, and ³made merry. And they went into ^dthe house of their god, and ate and drank, and cursed Abimelech. ²⁸ Then Gaal the son of Ebed said, ^e“Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? Is he not the son of Jerubbaal, and is not Zebul his officer? Serve the men of ^fHamor the father of Shechem; but why should we serve him? ²⁹^g If only this people were under my ⁴authority! Then I would remove Abimelech.” So ⁵he said to Abimelech, “Increase your army and come out!”

9:20 let fire come: Jotham issued a warning to the people of Shechem—fire would devour them and Abimelech too if they had not acted properly. The threat was fulfilled when fire devoured a large number of Shechemites and Abimelech was killed by a Shechemite woman (vv. 49, 54).

9:22–25 Very quickly the harmony between the Shechemites and Abimelech disintegrated. Abimelech, who relied on the Shechemites to rise to power, now became the target of their lawlessness (vv. 22–25). This discord spread into open revolt under Gaal son of Ebed (vv. 26–33). Abimelech quelled the revolt and leveled Shechem in the process (vv. 34–45). He also burned Shechem’s stronghold, its tower (vv. 46–49). Abimelech himself came to a violent end at nearby Thebez (vv. 50–55).

9:23 A spirit of ill will can be translated literally “an evil spirit.” The only other person in Scripture whose affliction is described with these words is Saul (1 Sam. 16:14, 15, 16, 23; 18:10; 19:9). Here, the spirit causes dissension between Abimelech and the Shechemites. Some scholars think God sent a demon to possess Saul and to afflict Abimelech and the Shechemites, but this goes against our understanding of God’s nature. The most probable explanation is that God was responsible for the estrangement between the two sides, because both parties had sinned (9:1–6) and merited judgment. Abimelech had made himself king through a treacherous act, and he exercised authority poorly when in power. Saul, too, came to power because of the ill-advised wishes of the people of Israel, and he quickly demonstrated his unsuitability for the office despite his clear anointing. Significantly, it is the next king, David, who holds up the standard for Israel’s future rulers.

(Heb. tamim) (9:16, 19; Gen. 6:9; Deut. 18:13) Strong’s #8549

This word means “unblemished,” “blameless,” or “perfect.” The Lord required that offerings dedicated to Him be unblemished (Lev. 22:21; Num. 6:14). The term can also be used to describe a people (2 Sam. 22:24; Ps. 119:80) or a course of action (Prov. 11:20; 28:18) that is blameless. The Bible describes Noah this way (Gen. 6:9), although he was not completely without fault (Gen. 9:21). In declaring His covenant to Abraham, the Lord commanded His servant to be blameless (Gen. 17:1). In his farewell discourse, Moses gave the charge to the children of Israel to be blameless (Deut. 18:13). Many years later Joshua did likewise, exhorting the people to serve the Lord in sincerity and in truth (Josh. 24:14).

his anger was aroused. ³¹And he sent messengers to Abimelech secretly, saying, “Take note! Gaal the son of Ebed and his brothers have come to Shechem; and here they are, fortifying the city against you. ³²Now therefore, get up by night, you and the people who are with you, and ⁶lie in wait in the field. ³³And it shall be, as soon as the sun is up in the morning, that you shall rise early and rush upon the city; and when he and the people who are with him come out against you, you may then do to them ⁷as you find opportunity.”

³⁴So Abimelech and all the people who were with him rose by night, and ⁸lay in wait against Shechem in four companies. ³⁵When Gaal the son of Ebed went out and stood in the entrance to the city gate, Abimelech and the people who were with him rose from lying in wait. ³⁶And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, “Look, people are coming down from the tops of the mountains!”

But Zebul said to him, “You see the shadows of the mountains as if they were men.”

³⁷So Gaal spoke again and said, “See, people are coming down from the center of the land, and another company is coming from the ⁹Diviners’ Terebinth Tree.”

³⁸Then Zebul said to him, “Where indeed is your mouth now, with which you ^hsaid, ‘Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him?’ Are not these the people whom you despised? Go out, if you will, and fight with them now.”

³⁹So Gaal went out, leading the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech. ⁴⁰And Abimelech chased him, and he fled from him; and many fell wounded, to the very entrance of the gate. ⁴¹Then Abimelech dwelt at Arumah, and Zebul ¹drove out Gaal and his brothers, so that they would not dwell in Shechem.

⁴²And it came about on the next day that the people went out into the field, and they told Abimelech. ⁴³So he took his people, divided them into three companies, and lay in wait in the field.

And he looked, and there were the people, coming out of the city; and he rose against them and ²attacked them. ⁴⁴Then Abimelech and the company that was with him rushed forward and stood at the entrance of the gate of the city; and the other two companies rushed upon all who were in the fields and killed them. ⁴⁵So Abimelech fought against the city all that day; ⁱhe took the city and killed the people who were in it; and he ^jdemolished the city and sowed it with salt.

⁴⁶Now when all the men of the tower of Shechem had heard that, they entered the ³stronghold of the temple ^kof the god Berith. ⁴⁷And it was told Abimelech that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together. ⁴⁸Then Abimelech went up to Mount ^lZalmon, he and all the people who were with him. And Abimelech took an ax in his hand and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it and laid it on his shoulder; then he said to the people who were with him, “What you have seen me do, make haste and do as I have done.” ⁴⁹So each of the people likewise cut down his own bough and followed Abimelech, put them against the ⁴stronghold, and set the stronghold on fire above them, so that all the people of the tower of Shechem died, about a thousand men and women.

⁵⁰Then Abimelech went to Thebez, and he ⁵encamped against Thebez and took it. ⁵¹But there was a strong tower in the city, and all the men and women—all the people of the city—fled there and shut themselves in; then they went up to the top of the tower. ⁵²So Abimelech came as far as the tower and fought against it; and he drew near the door of the tower to burn it with fire. ⁵³But a certain woman ^mdropped an upper millstone on Abimelech’s head and crushed his skull. ⁵⁴Then ⁿhe called quickly to the young man, his armorbearer, and said to him, “Draw your sword and kill me, lest men say of me, ‘A woman killed him.’” So his young man thrust him through, and he died. ⁵⁵And when the men of Israel saw

9:37, 38 the Diviners’ Terebinth Tree: On trees as landmarks, see 6:11. Where indeed is your mouth now is Zebul’s challenge to Gaal, taunting him to back up the boastful words he had uttered earlier (v. 28).

9:43 Interestingly, Abimelech divided his forces into three companies to attack Shechem, perhaps in conscious imitation of his father’s success with three companies of men (7:16).

9:45 Sowing Shechem with salt turned it into a barren, uninhabitable desert. See the association of salt and barrenness in Jer. 17:6.

9:46 the temple of the god Berith: In Hebrew, the last phrase reads “El-Berith.” El can be translated “god,” but it was also the name of a well-known Canaanite god, the father of Baal. The “god Berith” means El-Berith, the Baal-Berith named in 8:33.

9:48 The location of Mount Zalmon is uncertain. Some scholars identify it with Mount Ebal, just northwest of Shechem. Others identify it with Mount Gerizim, also near Shechem. The snow-covered Mount Zalmon mentioned in Ps. 68:14 appears to be a different place.

9:53 an upper millstone: Mills used for grinding grain were typically made with two large stones. The upper one was moved back and forth or rotated on the lower one, and the grain was ground between them. An upper millstone would have easily crushed Abimelech’s skull, as this verse asserts.

9:54 kill me: Being killed by a woman was a disgrace to a warrior.

that Abimelech was dead, they departed, every man to his ⁶place.

⁵⁶Thus God repaid the wickedness of Abimelech, which he had done to his father by killing his seventy brothers. ⁵⁷And all the evil of the men of Shechem God returned on their own heads, and on them came ⁷the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

10 After Abimelech there ^aarose to save Israel Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt in Shamir in the mountains of Ephraim. ²He judged Israel twenty-three years; and he died and was buried in Shamir.

Moab, the gods of the people of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines; and they forsook the LORD and did not serve Him. ⁷So the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and He ^hsold them into the hands of the ⁱPhilistines and into the hands of the people of ^jAmmon. ⁸From that year they ²harassed and oppressed the children of Israel for eighteen years—all the children of Israel who ^{were} on the other side of the Jordan in the ^kland of the Amorites, in Gilead. ⁹Moreover the people of Ammon crossed over the Jordan to fight against Judah also, against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was severely distressed.

¹⁰And the children of Israel cried out to the LORD, saying, “We have ^msinned against You, because we have both forsaken our God and served the Baals!”

¹¹So the LORD said to the children of Israel, “Did I not deliver you ⁿfrom the Egyptians and ^ofrom the Amorites and ^pfrom the people of Ammon and ^qfrom the Philistines? ¹²Also ^rthe Sidonians ^sand Amalekites and ³Maonites ^toppressed you; and you cried out to Me, and I delivered you from their hand. ¹³Yet you have forsaken Me and served other gods. Therefore I will deliver you no more. ¹⁴Go and ^vcry out to the gods which you have chosen; let them deliver you in your time of distress.”

¹⁵And the children of Israel said to the

9:56–57 The key to understanding Abimelech’s fate may be found in the comments in vv. 23, 24, 56, 57. He was not a true king; he had established his reign through murder. God actively intervened against Abimelech, repaying his evil act of murdering his brothers. Note that his sin was murder (v. 56), not declaring himself king. Jotham’s use of the fable proved to be prophetic: the fire that devoured the cedars (vv. 15, 20) would burn up both Shechem and Abimelech (vv. 49, 53).

10:1, 2 Tola was the sixth judge, the second of the minor judges (Shamgar was the first). He arose to save Israel, perhaps a necessary deed after the reign of Abimelech. This brief account echoes the time of Deborah in several ways (compare 4:4, 5; 5:7).

10:3–5 Jair was the seventh judge, the third minor judge, and he judged Israel for 22 years. He was rather well off (v. 4), and he lived in Gilead, east of the Jordan, as would the next judge, Jephthah (11:1). Jair’s abundance of children forms a sharp contrast with Jephthah’s childlessness in the next chapter. (See also 12:8–10.)

10:4 thirty donkeys . . . thirty towns: Literally, the Hebrew has “thirty donkeys . . . thirty donkeys.” However, the word used here for donkeys is an unusual one that resembles the Hebrew word for towns. A later scribe mistakenly repeated the word for donkey.

10:6–12:7 Jephthah was the eighth judge. Like those of Deborah and Gideon, his story is relatively detailed. Jephthah freed Israel from Ammonite oppression, but suffered a personal tragedy of his own making in the process.

10:6–18 A lengthy introduction precedes the story of Jephthah. These verses repeat the themes of apostasy and God’s unfailing mercy. A new theme here is the emphasis on Israel’s confession and repentance (vv. 10, 15, 16).

10:6 The gods of Syria . . . Sidon . . . Moab . . . Ammon . . . the Philistines demonstrate the extent of Israel’s idolatry. Not only did the people worship the major Canaanite gods (Baal, Asherah, Ashtoreth), but they also absorbed the religions of other groups. The more extensive list here indicates the depths of Israel’s decline. The lists earlier in the book merely mention the Baals, Ashtoreths, and Asherahs (for example, at 2:13; 3:7). Seven gods are mentioned here, a symbolic number that forms a counterpoint to the seven nations mentioned in vv. 11, 12.

10:7 The Philistines and . . . the people of Ammon were the Israelites’ principal adversaries at this time. The next two major judges—Jephthah and Samson—were God’s instruments against these two groups, Jephthah against the Ammonites and Samson against the Philistines.

10:11, 12 In these two verses, we find seven peoples from whom God had already delivered the Israelites: Egyptians: God had dramatically saved Israel from Egyptian oppression (Ex. 14; 15); Amorites: God had rescued His people from Sihon and Og, kings of the Amorites (Josh. 2:10); Ammon: The Ammonites had been part of a coalition under Eglon, whom Ehud defeated (3:13); Philistines: Shamgar had already won a victory over the Philistines (3:31); Sidonians: There is no record of a previous triumph, but these people were among Israel’s oppressors (3:3), and they might well have been part of the Canaanite coalition mentioned in 4:2. Amalekites: They had already opposed the Israelites in the time of the judges (3:13; 6:3), and their enmity with Israel went back much further (Ex. 17:8–16). God had given relief in each case. The Maonites appear later in Israel’s history as adversaries (2 Chr. 20:1; 26:7 [Meunites]), but they are not mentioned earlier. Possibly what is meant is the Midianites, a people who had been defeated by Gideon (chs. 7; 8). The symbolic number seven, representing completeness, is probably the most important element here, especially when we note that seven groups of gods are mentioned in v. 6.

10:14 The gods which you have chosen is a response of confrontation. The Israelites “chose new gods” at the time of Deborah LORD, “We have sinned! ¹⁰Do to us whatever seems best to You; only deliver us this day, we pray.” ^{16x}So they put away the foreign gods from among them and served the LORD. And ¹⁷His soul could no longer endure the misery of Israel.

¹⁷Then the people of Ammon gathered together and encamped in Gilead. And the children of Israel assembled together and encamped in ¹⁸Mizpah. ¹⁸And the people, the leaders of Gilead, said to one another, “Who is the man who will begin the fight against the people of Ammon? He shall ^abe head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.”

Jephthah

11 Now ^aJephthah the Gileadite was ^ba mighty man of valor, but he was the son of a harlot; and Gilead begot Jephthah. ²Gilead’s wife bore sons; and when his wife’s sons grew up, they drove Jephthah out, and said to him, “You shall have ^cno inheritance in our father’s house, for you are the son of another woman.” ³Then Jephthah fled from his brothers and dwelt in the land of ^dTob; and ^eworthless men banded together with Jephthah and went out raiding with him.

⁴It came to pass after a time that the *f*people of Ammon made war against Israel. ⁵And so it was, when the people of Ammon made war against Israel, that the elders of Gilead went to get Jephthah from the land of Tob. ⁶Then they said to Jephthah, “Come and be our commander, that we may fight against the people of Ammon.”

⁷So Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, ⁸“Did you not hate me, and expel me from my father’s house? Why have you come to me now when you are in ¹distress?”

^{8h} And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, “That is why we have ¹turned ²again to you now, that you may go with us and fight against the people of Ammon, and be ^jour head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.”

⁹So Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, “If you take me back home to fight against the people of Ammon, and the LORD delivers them to me, shall I be your head?”

¹⁰And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, ^k“The LORD will be a witness between us, if we do not do according to your words.” ¹¹Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him ^lhead and commander over them; and Jephthah spoke all his words ^mbefore the LORD in Mizpah.

¹²Now Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the people of Ammon, saying, ⁿ“What do you have against me, that you have come to fight against me in my land?”

¹³And the king of the people of Ammon answered the messengers of Jephthah,

(5:8). When Israel cried out to God, He reminded them again of their faithless ways. Other examples of confrontation include the Angel’s indictment (2:1–5) and the prophet’s message (6:7–10).

10:16 Not only is God a God of great justice; He is a God of great mercy, as the phrase His soul could no longer endure the misery of Israel reminds us. Despite their constant sinning and backsliding, God still loved the Israelites and shared their misery, much as parents are moved by their children’s suffering.

11:1–3 Jephthah, like Jair before him (10:3), was from Gilead. He was a “mighty man of valor,” but he was illegitimate, which caused his half brothers to expel him from his father’s house. Like Abimelech before him (9:4), he attracted “worthless men” (v. 3), which did not bode well for his future. The territory of Gilead was in the northern part of the territory east of the Jordan (Josh. 17:1, 3; 5:17). The Gileadites were descended from a man named Gilead (Num. 26:29, 30; 27:1; 36:1), as was Jephthah himself. In this passage and in Josh. 17:1, 3, the term refers both to a region and a person. mighty man of valor: See Josh. 1:14. The land of Tob is probably an area east of Gilead. Ironically, its name means “Good,” a quality that Jephthah certainly lacked.

11:4–6 After negotiations and consultation with God, Jephthah was commissioned as head and commander over Israel. after a time: We return to the narrative left off in 10:17, 18 (see 11:1–3). Come and be our commander: Here we see a leader for Israel being commissioned by the people. God is given little place in the proceedings other than to confirm the choice (v. 10), another sign of spiritual deterioration. A commander was someone who performed some of the functions of a judge, but it is perhaps significant that the word judge is not used here since God was the only One who raised up judges.

11:8 That you may go with us and fight is almost the same phrase that the Israelites used when they asked Samuel for a king in 1 Sam. 8:20: “that our king may . . . go out before us and fight.” In both cases, even though God gave them the permission they sought, the request was improper.

11:10 The LORD will be a witness: Literally, “The LORD will be listening.” This is not the normal Hebrew word for “witness” used in covenant-making ceremonies (Deut. 30:19; Josh. 24:22), but the sense is the same. God is called to be a witness to the covenant agreement (1 Sam. 20:12).

11:11 The people made Jephthah head and commander because he had demanded somewhat opportunistically to be their “head” as the price for helping them as “commander,” so in the end he was made both. Jephthah’s words before the LORD are a strange mixture of faith and foolishness. While Jephthah did acknowledge God here and later (11:21, 23, 27, 30, 31; 12:3), his self-interest and foolishness often overruled his faith. The Book of Hebrews has a more positive view of Jephthah than does Judges: Gideon, Barak, Samson, and Jephthah, along with others, are listed as examples of those “who through faith subdued kingdoms, worked righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions” (Heb. 11:32, 33). Undoubtedly they demonstrated faith that allowed God to “subdue kingdoms” through them, but just as clearly the Book of Judges reveals some of their less-than-admirable characteristics.

11:12–28 A lengthy account now covers diplomatic negotiations between Jephthah and the Ammonites, consisting largely of an impressive speech from Jephthah through messengers to the king of Ammon. Interestingly enough, Jephthah’s name means “He Opens.” Israel took away my land: The Ammonites claimed that Israel had taken their land. Jephthah responded with a careful rebuttal. He declared that the LORD God of Israel Himself had dispossessed these peoples (vv. 21, 23, 24) and that Israel was not an aggressor

^o“Because Israel took away my land when they came up out of Egypt, from ^pthe Arnon as far as ^qthe Jabbok, and to the Jordan. Now therefore, restore those lands peaceably.”

¹⁴So Jephthah again sent messengers to the king of the people of Ammon, ¹⁵and said to him, “Thus says Jephthah: ^r‘Israel did not take away the land of Moab, nor the land of the people of Ammon; ¹⁶for when Israel came up from Egypt, they walked through the wilderness as far as the Red Sea and ^scame to Kadesh. ¹⁷Then ^tIsrael sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, ‘Please let me pass through your land.’ ^uBut the king of Edom would not heed. And in like manner they sent to the ^vking of Moab, but he would not consent. So Israel ^wremained in Kadesh. ¹⁸And they ^xwent along through the wilderness and ^ybypassed the land of Edom and the land of Moab, came to the east side of the land of Moab, and encamped on the other side of the Arnon. But they did not enter the border of Moab, for the Arnon was the border of Moab. ¹⁹Then ^zIsrael sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, king of Heshbon; and Israel said to him, ‘Please ^alet us pass through your land into our place.’ ^{20b}But Sihon did not trust Israel to pass through his territory. So Sihon gathered all his people together, encamped in Jahaz, and fought against Israel. ²¹And the LORD God of Israel ^cdelivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they ^ddefeated³ them. Thus Israel gained possession of all the land of the Amorites, who inhabited that country. ²²They took possession of ^eall

May the LORD, ^kthe Judge, ^lrender judgment this day between the children of Israel and the people of Ammon.’” ²⁸However, the king of the people of Ammon did not heed the words which Jephthah sent him.

Jephthah's Vow and Victory

²⁹Then ^mthe Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah, and he passed through Gilead and Manasseh, and passed through Mizpah of Gilead; and from Mizpah of Gilead he advanced toward the people of Ammon. ³⁰And Jephthah ⁿmade a vow to the LORD, and said, “If You will indeed deliver the people of Ammon into my hands, ³¹then it will be that whatever comes out of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the people of Ammon, ^oshall but merely a recipient of the Lord's generosity. The Ammonites had brought their misfortune upon themselves by hindering Israel's advance into the Promised Land. Israel would not have taken Ammonite land, since God had expressly commanded them not to (Deut. 2:19). Later, Sihon king of the Amorites had taken some Ammonite territory (Num. 21:26), and then Israel had taken Sihon's land (Num. 21:25). Thus the Ammonites were only indirectly affected by Israel's expansion. In addition, the Ammonites never really had true claim to the land to begin with; it was in fact the land of the Amorites (vv. 19–22; Num. 21:24 also rebuts the Ammonites' claim). Also, Israel had occupied the land in dispute for at least 300 years, long enough to make a legitimate claim on it (v. 26). Jephthah ended his speech with an appeal to God to judge the opposing claims (v. 27).

11:17 The review of the past in this and the following verses recalls the events in the wilderness described in Num. 20:14–21.

11:24 Whatever Chemosh your god gives you was a derisive jab at the Ammonites' deity. Jephthah's point was that Israel's God had given His people much territory, whereas Chemosh, the god of the Ammonites, had done very little for them. The reference to Chemosh as an Ammonite god is unexpected, since elsewhere the Ammonites' god is named Molech (1 Kin. 11:7) or Milcom (1 Kin. 11:5, 33; 2 Kin. 23:13). Chemosh is customarily associated with the Moabites (1 Kin. 11:7, 33). However, Ammon and Moab lived side by side and shared a common heritage, both nations having descended from Lot (Gen. 19:37, 38). The two are often mentioned together

(see 3:12, 13; Deut. 2:18, 19; 23:3–5), including in v. 15 in this chapter. It is likely that the two nations shared cultural and religious ideas, including the worship of Chemosh.

11:26 Three hundred years may be an approximation, but it still gives us an important clue for determining the date of the Exodus and understanding how long the period of the judges lasted.

11:27 the Lord, the Judge: This is the only place in the Book of Judges where a single individual is specifically called a judge. Significantly, it is a name of God. He ultimately was—and is—the source of all justice. He has the right to judge every man and woman. With His divine authority and power, God always judges with justice, while at the same time He is loving, compassionate, and perfect.

11:29–40 The conflict with the Ammonites escalated, ending with Jephthah's victory aided by the Spirit of the Lord (vv. 29, 32, 33). However, the narrative focuses on his rash vow (vv. 30, 31, 34–40). To induce God to help him, Jephthah promised to sacrifice to the Lord whatever came out of his house to meet him upon his victorious return. This misguided pledge demonstrated a clear lack of faith, since earlier Jephthah had indicated that he believed God would intervene on his behalf (vv. 9, 27). Note that the Spirit of the Lord had come upon him before he made his vow (v. 29). The tragic result of Jephthah's vow was the sacrifice of his only child—his daughter.

11:31 Some have interpreted Jephthah's vow whatever comes out of the doors as a clear intention to offer a human sacrifice. His surprise then is not that he had to sacrifice a human being, but that surely be the LORD's, ²and I will offer it up as a burnt offering."

³²So Jephthah advanced toward the people of Ammon to fight against them, and the LORD delivered them into his hands. ³³And he ⁵defeated them from Aroer as far as ⁹Minnith—twenty cities—and to ⁶Abel Keramim, with a very great slaughter. Thus the people of Ammon were subdued before the children of Israel.

Jephthah's Daughter

³⁴When Jephthah came to his house at Mizpah, there was ³his daughter, coming out to meet him with timbrels and dancing; and she was his only child. Besides her he had neither son nor daughter. ³⁵And it came to pass, when he saw her, that he ¹tore his clothes, and said, "Alas, my daughter! You have brought me very low! You are among those who trouble me! For I ⁴have ⁷given my word to the LORD, and ²I cannot ⁸go back on it."

³⁶So she said to him, "My father, if you have given your word to the LORD, ¹⁰do to me according to what has gone out of your mouth, because ^xthe LORD has avenged you of your enemies, the people of Ammon." ³⁷Then she said to her father, "Let this thing be done for me: let me alone for two months, that I may go and wander on the mountains and ⁹bewail my virginity, my ¹friends and I."

³⁸So he said, "Go." And he sent her away for two months; and she went with her friends, and bewailed her virginity

And it became a custom in Israel ⁴⁰that the daughters of Israel went four days each year to ³lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite.

Jephthah's Conflict with Ephraim

12 Then ^athe men of Ephraim ¹gathered together, crossed over toward Zaphon, and said to Jephthah, "Why did you cross over to fight against the people of Ammon, and did not call us to go with you? We will burn your house down on you with fire!"

²And Jephthah said to them, "My people and I were in a great struggle with the people of Ammon; and when I called you, you did not deliver me out of their hands. ³So when I saw that you would not deliver me, I ^btook my life in my hands and crossed over against the people of Ammon; and the LORD delivered them into my hand. Why then have you come up to me this day to fight against me?" ⁴Now Jephthah gathered together all the men of Gilead and fought against Ephraim. And the men of Gilead defeated Ephraim, because they said, "You Gileadites ^care fugitives of Ephraim among the Ephraimites and among the Manassites." ⁵The Gileadites seized the ^dfords of the Jordan before the Ephraimites arrived. And when any Ephraimite who escaped the unfortunate person was his daughter. The phrase to meet me seems to refer more appropriately to a human than to an animal, and it is difficult to see why Jephthah would try to persuade God by offering a common animal sacrifice. Undoubtedly, Jephthah knew that human sacrifice was strictly forbidden in Israel (Lev. 18:21; 20:2; Deut. 12:31; 18:10; Jer. 19:5; Ezek. 20:30, 31; 23:37, 39), but his foolishness and lack of faith impelled him to make a reckless vow in order to try to manipulate God (11:39).

11:35 I have given my word is literally "I have opened my mouth." In light of his eloquent speech to the Ammonites (vv. 15–27), it is ironic that he "opened his mouth" once too often in making this vow. But did Jephthah have to follow through on his vow? Ordinarily the answer would be yes. Vows were made only to God, and they were solemn pledges that had to be kept. People were not forced to take them, but if they did, they had to be honored (Deut. 23:21–23; Ps. 15:4; Eccl. 5:4, 5). But Jephthah had vowed something sinful in itself if his intent was to make a human sacrifice in the literal sense.

11:39 Those who believe that Jephthah intended to sacrifice a human being must also ponder whether Jephthah carried out his vow. The text does not explicitly say that he killed his daughter, only that he carried out his vow. When the verse goes on to say that she knew no man, some take this to mean that she was "sacrificed" by being dedicated to a life of perpetual virginity. Several arguments can be made for this interpretation. First, human sacrifice was contrary to the law of Moses (Lev. 18:21; 20:2–5; Deut. 12:31; 18:10). Second, the great respect that Jephthah had for God surely would have prevented him from making such a perverse offering. Third, the fact that Jephthah permitted his daughter to bewail her virginity (vv. 37, 38) for two months fits an explanation of perpetual virginity better than human sacrifice. Fourth, the indication that his daughter "knew no man" also seems to be a detail that would support the idea of celibacy. Fifth, the Bible provides evidence that such devoted service for women did exist at the central sanctuary (Ex. 38:8; 1 Sam. 2:22; Luke 2:36, 37). Sixth, the conjunction in Jephthah's pivotal statement in v. 31, that whatever or whoever came out of the door "shall be the LORD's, and I will offer it up as a burnt offering" could be translated or. Thus, if a person came out first, he would dedicate that person to the LORD, or if an animal came out first, he would offer the animal as a burnt sacrifice.

12:1–7 A final episode, in which the tribe of Ephraim sulks because they were left out of the battle, is similar to an incident when the same tribe challenged Gideon (8:1–3). However in the first incident, Gideon placated Ephraim, whereas in the second, Jephthah did not, and a civil war erupted. The Ephraimites were defeated, and that tribe does not play an important role in Israel's subsequent history.

12:4 You Gileadites are fugitives of Ephraim is the taunt that triggers the civil war. The insult may have its roots in the division of the nation into eastern and western groups (5:17; Josh. 1:12–15). Despite the emphasis in Joshua on the unity of all the tribes (Josh. 1:12–15; 22:1–34), the practical reality in the period of the judges was dramatically different. As in so many other ways, the life of the tribes deteriorated here also.

12:5 The fords of the Jordan were crossing points of strategic military value. Earlier on, the Israelites under Ehud had seized the fords and held them against the Moabites (3:28, 29). Under Gideon they had seized the "watering places," another name for the same place (7:24).

said, “Let me cross over,” the men of Gilead would say to him, “Are you an Ephraimite?” If he said, “No,” ⁶then they would say to him, “Then say, ‘Shibboleth!’” ² And he would say, “Sibboleth,” for he could not ³pronounce it right. Then they would take him and kill him at the fords of the Jordan. There fell at that time forty-two thousand Ephraimites.

⁷ And Jephthah judged Israel six years. Then Jephthah the Gileadite died and was buried among the cities of Gilead.

Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon

⁸ After him, Ibzan of Bethlehem judged Israel. ⁹ He had thirty sons. And he gave away thirty daughters in marriage, and brought in thirty daughters from elsewhere for his sons. He judged Israel seven years. ¹⁰ Then Ibzan died and was buried at Bethlehem.

¹³ After him, Abdon the son of Hillel the Pirathonite judged Israel. ¹⁴ He had forty sons and thirty grandsons, who ¹rode on seventy young donkeys. He judged Israel eight years. ¹⁵ Then Abdon the son of Hillel the Pirathonite died and was buried in Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, ² in the mountains of the Amalekites.

12:6 Shibboleth . . . Sibboleth: This test devised by the Gileadites to catch the Ephraimites is the most famous example in the Bible of linguistic differences between the tribes. Today the English word shibboleth means an otherwise minor difference that becomes a sticking point because it distinguishes one side from another. The Gileadites chose this word because the “s” sound at the beginning was pronounced “sh” by one side and “s” by the other.

12:8–10 Ibzan was Israel’s ninth judge. He allowed his 30 sons and 30 daughters to marry foreigners (v. 9). It is interesting to note that the judges who immediately preceded and followed the childless Jephthah both had 30 sons.

12:11, 12 Elon was the tenth judge.

12:13–15 Abdon was the eleventh judge, and like Jair and Ibzan had many children. He too possessed some wealth (vv. 13–15).

13:1–16:31 Samson, the last of the judges, lived at the beginning of the eleventh century B.C. He was unusual among the judges in many ways. He did not lead an army, but carried on his campaign against the Philistines single-handed. He is mentioned in Heb. 11:32 in the list of judges who accomplished great things through faith. The Book of Judges, in contrast, paints a darker picture of a man who violates a number of the Ten Commandments as well as his Nazirite vow (13:5). Samson’s story brings the accounts of the judges to an end. His checkered history of heroism and moral failure resembles Israel’s troubles during the time of the judges. Although we can find instances of obedience and humility in his life (15:18; 16:28, 30), for the most part his life was a string of careless adventures, with no true concern for following the Lord.

13:1–25 The story of Samson opens typically with a statement about sinful conditions in Israel, but the rest of ch. 13 continues with a long introduction to the life of Samson. The chapter details the encounter between Samson’s parents and the Angel of the Lord, who announces Samson’s birth and mission. The Angel emphasizes the requirements of the Nazirite vow that Samson is to observe in his life. It is as if the narrator wants to make sure the reader understands that Samson’s life and accomplishments were under God’s protection, provision, and guidance.

13:2 Zorah was in the foothills west of Jerusalem, near Philistine territory, in the lowlands that separated the Philistine plain from the hill country of Judah. Manoah, Samson’s father, was from the tribe of Dan, in whose territory Zorah lay (Josh. 19:41). Zorah is also mentioned among the inheritance of Judah (Josh. 15:33), indicating that it was along the border between the two tribes.

13:3 The Angel of the Lord made a supernatural appearance, described here as “very awesome” (v. 6). Manoah’s wife recognized him as “a Man of God” (v. 6). However, His essential character, embodied in His Name, was not to be revealed to them (vv. 6, 17, 18).

⁶So the woman came and told her husband, saying, ⁱ“A Man of God came to me, and His ^jcountenance ^lwas like the countenance of the Angel of God, very awesome; but I ^kdid not ask Him where He was from, and He did not tell me His name. ⁷And He said to me, ‘Behold, you shall conceive and bear a son. Now drink no wine or similar drink, nor eat anything unclean, for the child shall be a Nazirite to God from the womb to the day of his death.’”

⁸Then Manoah prayed to the LORD, and said, “O my Lord, please let the Man of God whom You sent come to us again and teach us what we shall do for the child who will be born.”

⁹And God listened to the voice of Manoah, and the Angel of God came to the woman again as she was sitting in the field; but Manoah her husband was not with her. ¹⁰Then the woman ran in haste and told her husband, and said to him, “Look, the Man who came to me the other day has just now appeared to me!”

¹¹So Manoah arose and followed his wife. When he came to the Man, he said to Him, “Are You the Man who spoke to this woman?”

And He said, “I am.”

¹²Manoah said, “Now let Your words come to pass! What will be the boy’s rule of life, and his work?”

¹³So the Angel of the LORD said to Manoah, “Of all that I said to the woman let her be careful. ¹⁴She may not eat anything that comes from the vine, ^lnor may she drink wine or similar drink, nor eat anything unclean. All that I commanded her let her observe.”

¹⁵Then Manoah said to the Angel of the LORD, “Please ^mlet us detain You, and we will prepare a young goat for You.”

¹⁶And the Angel of the LORD said to Manoah, “Though you detain Me, I will not eat your food. But if you offer a burnt offering, you must offer it to the LORD.” (For Manoah did not know He was the Angel of the LORD.)

¹⁷Then Manoah said to the Angel of the LORD, “What is Your name, that when Your words come to pass we may honor You?”

¹⁸And the Angel of the LORD said to him, ⁿ“Why do you ask My name, seeing it is wonderful?”

¹⁹So Manoah took the young goat with the grain offering, ^oand offered it upon the rock to the LORD. And He did a wondrous thing while Manoah and his wife looked on— ²⁰it happened as the flame went up toward heaven from the altar—the Angel of the LORD ascended in the flame of the altar! When Manoah and his wife saw this, they ^pfell on their faces to the ground. ²¹When the Angel of the LORD appeared no more to Manoah and his wife, ^qthen Manoah knew that He was the Angel of the LORD.

²²And Manoah said to his wife, ^r“We shall surely die, because we have seen God!”

²³But his wife said to him, “If the LORD had desired to kill us, He would not have accepted a burnt offering and a grain offering from our hands, nor would He

This could mean that the Angel was God Himself (Ex. 3:14, 15) or His divine representative (2:1).

13:5 The Angel declared that the woman’s son should be a Nazirite from birth and for the rest of his life. The regulations of the Nazirite vows are found in Num. 6:1–21. The vow was voluntary (Num. 6:2), had limited duration (Num. 6:5, 8, 13, 20), and included three provisions: (1) abstinence from wine, strong drink, and the fruit of the vine; (2) not cutting the hair; and (3) no contact with the dead (Num. 6:3–8). A Nazirite who became unclean went through elaborate cleansing rituals (Num. 6:9–21). Note that both Samson’s mother and Samson himself were to follow the regulations (13:4, 5, 7). Samson’s Nazirite service was remarkable in three ways. First, he did not take his vow voluntarily; it was his before birth (vv. 5, 7). Second, his service was to be lifelong, not temporary (vv. 5, 7). Third, he eventually broke every one of its stipulations: His head was sheared (16:17, 19); he associated with the dead (14:6–9; 15:15); and he drank at his wedding feast (14:10–20). (The Hebrew word for feast in 14:10 is related to the word that means “drink.”) The announcement that he shall begin to deliver Israel was welcome news. The Philistines had been a thorn in Israel’s side for many years. Yet Samson’s successes would prove to be temporary.

13:6 Man of God was a term used for prophets elsewhere in the OT, including Moses (Deut. 33:1; Josh. 14:6), an anonymous prophet who spoke to Eli about his sons (1 Sam. 2:27), Samuel (1 Sam. 9:6–10), Elijah (1 Kin. 17:18, 24), Elisha (about 35 times), and others. At first, Samson’s mother may have thought she was talking to a prophet, but His radiant appearance convinced her otherwise. Throughout this entire episode the Man of God did not tell . . . His name (vv. 16–18).

13:14 The requirements for Samson’s Nazirite vow were somewhat irregular (v. 5). Samson’s mother was also required to observe a strict ritual (v. 4).

13:18 it is wonderful: The word used here is related to the word for “wonders” (6:13). The Angel’s name is too wonderful to comprehend, and so He does not reveal it to Samson’s parents. Immediately afterward, the Angel did a “wondrous thing” by ascending into the heavens in a flame (vv. 19, 20).

13:21, 22 When Manoah discovered that it was the Angel of the LORD, he feared for their lives because he and his wife had seen God. Gideon expressed a similar fear when he recognized the Angel of the Lord (6:22).

²⁴So the woman bore a son and called his name ^sSamson; and ^tthe child grew, and the LORD blessed him. ²⁵^uAnd the Spirit of the LORD began to move upon him at ²Mahaneh Dan ^vbetween Zorah and ^wEshtaol.

³Then his father and mother said to him, “Is there no woman among the daughters of ^dyour brethren, or among all my people, that you must go and get a wife from the ^euncircumcised Philistines?”

was seeking an occasion to move against the Philistines. For at that time ^gthe Philistines had dominion over Israel.

⁵So Samson went down to Timnah with his father and mother, and came to the vineyards of Timnah.

Now ^hto his surprise, a young lion ^{came} roaring against him. ⁶And ^hthe Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and he tore the lion apart as one would have torn apart a young goat, though ^{he had} nothing in his hand. But he did not tell his father or his mother what he had done.

⁷Then he went down and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well. ⁸After some time, when he returned to get her, he turned aside to see the carcass of the lion. And behold, a swarm of bees and honey ^{were} in the carcass of the lion. ⁹He took some of it in his hands and went along, eating. 13:24 The name Samson is related to the Hebrew word for sun. The story makes no comment on the meaning of his name. The choice of name may have been influenced by the fact that there was a town named Beth-Shemesh near Samson's hometown of Zorah, or the name may be related to the name of a sun-god, Shamash. The LORD blessed him is one of the few editorial comments by the narrator of Samson's story (see also the comments at 14:4; 15:20; 16:20; 16:31). For the most part, the narrator is content to tell the story without comment, letting the details speak for themselves.

13:25 The Spirit of the LORD began to move upon him: The Hebrew verb translated move can also be translated impel. The Spirit of the LORD was pushing Samson toward doing the work that God wanted him to do (14:4). The verb here is different from the one in 14:6 that is translated came mightily.

14:1—16:31 The actual exploits of Samson fall into two parts (14:1—15:20 and 16:1—31), each climaxing with a mass destruction of Philistines. In the first part, the Spirit of the LORD comes “mightily upon him” three times. Significantly, this fails to happen in ch. 16, when Samson was acting more on his own and falling out of favor with God.

14:1—15:20 The episodes in this first section concern Samson's marriage to a Philistine woman and the cycle of offense and retaliation that surrounds it. Such marriages with foreigners were prohibited for Israelites (Ex. 34:16; Deut. 7:3). Samson's request for a wife defied the tradition that allowed the parents to arrange the marriage (14:2, 3). Despite Samson's disobedient and careless life, God intended to use him for His own purposes against the Philistines (v. 4), who were ruling over Israel at that time. It was the LORD (and no other) who ultimately was to rule over Israel.

14:1 Timnah was a town on the northwest border of Judah (Josh. 15:10) and was counted in the allotment of the tribe of Dan (Josh. 19:43). By Samson's day it was occupied by the Philistines. Samson's saga unfolds on the coastal plain where the Philistines lived, and in the lowlands and foothills near Jerusalem.

14:3 The Philistines were Israel's neighbors but were almost always at war with them. They did not practice the ceremony of circumcision. Being uncircumcised appears as a cause for disdain or derision several times in Scripture (15:18; 1 Sam. 14:6; 17:26, 36; 18:25; 31:4; 2 Sam. 1:20; 1 Chr. 10:4). She pleases me well is literally “she is right in my eyes.” The phrase is usually used to describe a person or action that is right in the LORD's eyes (see Deut. 6:18; 12:25). Samson's words revealed his self-centered attitude. Instead of seeking to serve God, he was seeking to please himself. Samson's comment here foreshadows the author's summary of the entire period of the judges in 17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25.

14:4 The narrator adds that Samson's parents did not know that it was of the LORD. God would use Samson's defiant wish as a way of defeating the Philistines and providing relief for His people. For the five major cities of the Philistines and their rulers, see Josh. 13:3.

14:5–20 At his wedding feast, Samson challenged his 30 companions with a riddle. The riddle was based upon his astounding feat of killing a lion with his bare hands. When the guests could not solve it, they enlisted the help of Samson's wife, and she extracted the answer. In a rage, Samson killed 30 Philistines in Ashkelon to obtain the garments he needed to pay his companions. But in his absence, his wife was given to his best man.

14:6 the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him: In the OT as a whole, there are 39 references to “the Spirit of the LORD” or “the Spirit of God,” as well as various other references such as “His Spirit” or “Your Spirit” or “the Spirit.” The OT speaks numerous times of God's Spirit coming mightily upon individuals, usually to empower them physically for great feats of strength. Other judges received this power: Othniel (3:10), Gideon (6:34), and Jephthah (11:29). Yet the Spirit empowered others for the important task of speaking God's word (Gen. 41:38; Num. 24:2; 1 Sam. 10:6, 10; 19:20, 23; 2 Sam. 23:2). Probably the most important manifestation of the Spirit in the OT was the Spirit's ongoing presence. First Samuel 16:13 states that the Spirit lived with David from that day forward, and this is confirmed by David's statement in Ps. 51:11: “Do not cast me away from Your presence, and do not take Your Holy Spirit from me.” This type of ongoing presence of the Spirit is something the NT emphasizes.

14:10 The word translated feast denotes a banquet with considerable drinking, another violation of Samson's Nazirite vow (13:5).

¹²Then Samson said to them, “Let me ^jpose a riddle to you. If you can correctly solve and explain it to me ^kwithin the seven days of the feast, then I will give you thirty linen garments and thirty ^lchanges of clothing. ¹³But if you cannot explain it to me, then you shall give me thirty linen garments and thirty changes of clothing.”

And they said to him, ^m“Pose your riddle, that we may hear it.”

¹⁴So he said to them:

“Out of the eater came something to eat,
And out of the strong came something sweet.”

Now for three days they could not explain the riddle.

¹⁵But it came to pass on the ²seventh day that they said to Samson’s wife, ⁿ“Entice your husband, that he may explain the riddle to us, ^oor else we will burn you and your father’s house with fire. Have you invited us in order to take what is ours? Is that not so?”

¹⁶Then Samson’s wife wept on him, and said, ^p“You only hate me! You do not love me! You have posed a riddle to the sons of my people, but you have not explained it to me.”

And he said to her, “Look, I have not explained it to my father or my mother; so should I explain it to you?” ¹⁷Now she had wept on him the seven days while their feast lasted. And it happened on the seventh day that he told her, because she pressed him so much. Then she explained the riddle to the sons of her people. ¹⁸So the men of the city said to him on the seventh day before the sun went down:

“What is sweeter than honey?
And what is stronger than a lion?”

And he said to them:

“If you had not plowed with my heifer,
You would not have solved my riddle!”

¹⁹Then ^qthe Spirit of the LORD came upon him mightily, and he went down to Ashkelon and killed thirty of their men, took their apparel, and gave the changes of clothing to those who had explained the riddle. Samson Defeats the Philistines

1 ^a Gen. 38:17

14:12 The Hebrew phrase let me pose a riddle to you literally reads “let me riddle you a riddle,” using repetition to grab the reader’s attention. The Hebrew word for linen garments is not the usual word for clothes, but appears only three times in the Bible, here and in two others. In Prov. 31:24; Is. 3:23, it refers to fine linens worn or sold by women. Samson’s offer was extravagant given the value of such finery. The Hebrew for changes of clothing is used in Gen. 45:22; 2 Kin. 5:22 in reference to valuable gifts.

14:14 This is the best example of a riddle in the Scriptures. The Hebrew word for riddle occurs 21 times in the OT, 11 of them in ch. 14. The queen of Sheba posed riddles to Solomon (1 Kin. 10:1), and Daniel had skill in “interpreting dreams, solving riddles, and explaining enigmas” (Dan. 5:12).

14:17 Samson’s wife pleaded with him for seven days to get the secret of the riddle, knowing the threat she faced from the young men.

14:18 The Hebrew word for sun is not the one commonly used. Perhaps the unusual word was chosen in order to avoid confusion with Samson’s name, which resembles the common Hebrew word for sun (13:24). Samson’s statement expresses his outrage that the men had not played fairly with him but had consulted his wife.

14:19 Ashkelon was one of the five main cities of the Philistines.

15:1–20 When Samson could not gain access to his wife, he retaliated by burning the Philistines’ fields, using three hundred foxes (vv. 1–5). In response, the Philistines burned to death his wife and father-in-law. Then Samson killed more Philistines (vv. 6–8). The cycle of retaliation escalated, with the Philistines raiding Judah (vv. 9, 10). The men of Judah, not wanting to be involved in what they saw as a private dispute, delivered Samson to the Philistines (vv. 11–13). The first section ends with the Spirit of the Lord coming upon Samson, empowering him to break his bonds and kill a thousand Philistines (vv. 14–17). After this, Samson called upon the Lord for the first time, and the Lord answered his call, giving him water to drink (vv. 18, 19).

15:1 The time of wheat harvest was late May or early June. The wheat harvest was associated with the second of the three great festivals in Israel, the Feast of Weeks, also known as Pentecost (Lev. 23:15–22; Deut. 16:9–12). Samson came to visit his wife with a young

(Heb. chidah) (14:12, 19; Prov. 1:6; Hab. 2:6) Strong’s #2420

The core meaning of this word is “an enigmatic saying.” In Samson’s story, the riddle is used in a contest of wits. Proverbs attributes enigmatic sayings to the wise (1:6). When the queen of Sheba tested Solomon’s wisdom, her questions are described by this same Hebrew word (1 Kin. 10:1; 2 Chr. 9:1). In the Lord’s confrontation with Miriam and Aaron, God describes Himself as speaking in “dark sayings” (the same Hebrew word) to the prophets, but to Moses face-to-face (Num. 12:6–8). Perhaps Paul had this last concept in mind when he admonished the Corinthians that even someone with the ability to understand all mysteries would not amount to anything if that person did not possess the love of God (1 Cor. 13:2).

²Her father said, “I really thought that you thoroughly ^bhated her; therefore I gave her to your companion. Is not her younger sister better than she? Please, take her instead.”

³And Samson said to them, “This time I shall be blameless regarding the Philistines if I harm them!” ⁴Then Samson went and caught three hundred foxes; and he took torches, turned the foxes tail to tail, and put a torch between each pair of tails. ⁵When he had set the torches on fire, he let the foxes go into the standing grain of the Philistines, and burned up both the shocks and the standing grain, as well as the vineyards and olive groves.

⁶Then the Philistines said, “Who has done this?”

And they answered, “Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, because he has taken his wife and given her to his companion.” ^cSo the Philistines came up and burned her and her father with fire.

⁷Samson said to them, “Since you would do a thing like this, I will surely take revenge on you, and after that I will cease.” ⁸So he attacked them hip and thigh with a great slaughter; then he went down and dwelt in the cleft of the rock of ^dEtam.

⁹Now the Philistines went up, encamped in Judah, and deployed themselves ^eagainst Lehi. ¹⁰And the men of Judah said, “Why have you come up against us?”

So they answered, “We have come up to ^farrest Samson, to do to him as he has done to us.”

¹¹Then three thousand men of Judah went down to the cleft of the rock of Etam, and said to Samson, “Do you not know that the Philistines ^grule over us? What is this you have done to us?”

And he said to them, “As they did to me, so I have done to them.”

¹²But they said to him, “We have come down to arrest you, that we may deliver you into the hand of the Philistines.”

Then Samson said to them, “Swear to me that you will not kill me yourselves.”

¹³So they spoke to him, saying, “No, but we will tie you securely and deliver you into their hand; and we will surely not kill you.” And they bound him with two ^gnew ropes and brought him up from the rock.

¹⁴When he came to Lehi, the Philistines came shouting against him. Then ^hthe Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him; and the ropes that were on his arms became like flax that is burned with fire, and his bonds ²broke loose from his hands. ¹⁵He found a fresh jawbone of a donkey, reached out his hand and took it, and ⁱkilled a thousand men with it.

¹⁶Then Samson said:

“With the jawbone of a donkey,
 Heaps upon heaps,
 With the jawbone of a donkey
 I have slain a thousand men!”

¹⁷And so it was, when he had finished speaking, that he threw the jawbone from his hand, and called that place ³Ramath Lehi.

¹⁸Then he became very thirsty; so he cried out to the LORD and said, ^j“You have given this great deliverance by the hand of Your servant; and now shall I die of thirst and fall into the hand of the uncircumcised?” ¹⁹So God split the hollow place that is in ⁴Lehi, and water came out, and he drank; and ^khis spirit returned, and he revived. Therefore he called its name ⁵En Hakkore, which is in Lehi to this day. ²⁰And ^lhe judged Israel ^mtwenty years ⁿin the days of the Philistines.

goat, meant as a gift. Tamar also received such a gift before she had sexual relations with Judah (Gen. 38:17).

15:4 The three hundred foxes were probably jackals. The two animals are similar, and the same Hebrew word is used for both. Foxes are solitary animals, but jackals travel in packs and large numbers of them could be caught more easily.

15:5 the shocks and the standing grain: Shocks are bundles of wheat stacked together in the fields. Samson's jackals burned whole crops of grain, grapes, and olives. This damage naturally outraged the Philistines. According to the law, anyone who burned someone else's fields had to pay restitution (Ex. 22:6). At another time, Absalom set fire to Joab's fields in order to attract his attention and gain an audience with the king; Joab reacted with anger (2 Sam. 14:28–32).

15:6 the Philistines . . . burned her: The Philistines held Samson's wife and father-in-law responsible for the deed and killed them both. Samson's wife had earlier escaped such a death by telling Samson's companions the answer to a riddle (14:15).

15:8 The exact meaning of the phrase he attacked them hip and thigh is obscure. The following phrase—with a great slaughter—perhaps gets us closer to the meaning, suggesting that he not only killed but dismembered them. It may be that the expression hip and thigh originated in the art of wrestling, where brute strength like Samson's would have been a great help. Etam is otherwise unknown, but Samson obviously found a secure place to hide, perhaps a cave that was accessible only through a narrow fissure in the rocky crags near Zorah.

15:13 two new ropes: Ropes were made of leather, hair, or plant fibers; one common fiber was flax (Josh. 2:6). The reference in v. 14 to the ropes becoming like burned flax suggests that this was the fiber. Being new, these ropes were the strongest possible.

15:15 A fresh jawbone would have been tough, resilient, and virtually unbreakable.

15:16 Heaps upon heaps is a wordplay, since the Hebrew word for heaps resembles the word for donkey. A double expression similar to the one used here is found in Ex. 8:14, where the frogs of the second plague were piled in heaps.

Samson and Delilah

16 Now Samson went to ^aGaza and saw a harlot there, and went in to her. ²When the Gazites were told, “Samson has come here!” they ^bsurrounded the place and lay in wait for him all night at the gate of the city. They were quiet all night, saying, “In the morning, when it is daylight, we will kill him.” ³And Samson lay low till midnight; then he arose at midnight, took hold of the doors of the gate of the city and the two gateposts, pulled them up, bar and all, put them on his shoulders, and carried them to the top of the hill that faces Hebron.

⁴Afterward it happened that he loved a woman in the Valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah. ⁵And the lords of the Philistines came up to her and said to her, ^d“Entice him, and find out where his great strength lies, and by what means we may overpower him, that we may bind him to afflict him; and every one of us will give you eleven hundred pieces of silver.”

⁶So Delilah said to Samson, “Please tell me where your great strength lies, and with what you may be bound to afflict you.”

⁷And Samson said to her, “If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings, not yet dried, then I shall become weak, and be like any other man.”

⁸So the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven fresh bowstrings, not yet dried, and she bound him with them. ⁹Now men were lying in wait, staying with her in the room. And she said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” But he broke the bowstrings as a strand of yarn breaks when it touches fire. So the secret of his strength was not known.

¹⁰Then Delilah said to Samson, “Look, you have mocked me and told me lies. Now, please tell me what you may be bound with.”

¹¹So he said to her, “If they bind me securely with ^enew ropes ^fthat have never been used, then I shall become weak, and be like any other man.”

¹²Therefore Delilah took new ropes and bound him with them, and said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” And men were lying in wait, staying in the room. But he broke them off his arms like a thread.

¹³Delilah said to Samson, “Until now you have mocked me and told me lies. Tell me what you may be bound with.”

¹⁴So she wove it tightly with the batten of the loom, and said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” But he

16:1–31 Chapter 16 presents the conclusion of the Samson stories. Samson’s involvement with two more Philistine women is detailed here. Verses 1–3 tell of a dalliance with a prostitute in Gaza, followed by another display of strength. Verses 4–22 chronicle his foolish affair with Delilah, which led to his downfall. Yet the story ends with Samson’s destruction of the Philistines in their pagan temple.

16:1 Gaza is one of the five major Philistine cities, three miles inland from the Mediterranean coast. a harlot: Two Hebrew words are commonly used for prostitutes. One refers to priests and priestesses who performed sexual acts in the service of pagan gods (1 Kin. 14:24; Hos. 4:14). The other word refers to a common prostitute, such as the one Samson was consorting with.

16:2 At the gate reads literally “in the gate.” The gates of the Early Iron Age were at least two stories high, with guard rooms on either side of a narrow opening. The Philistines waited in the recesses of the gate, hoping to trap Samson. He evidently slipped through unnoticed while they waited in one of the rooms.

16:3 Given the large size of city gates, Samson’s feat was astounding. Hebron is 40 miles east of Gaza. Samson’s trip to the top of a hill that faces Hebron would have taken the better part of a day.

16:4–22 The account of Samson’s downfall shows Delilah acting in cooperation with the leaders of the Philistines who were seeking to capture him. After three unsuccessful efforts, she succeeded in persuading him to reveal the source of his strength: his uncut hair. When he broke the final stipulation of the Nazirite vow by allowing his hair to be cut, the Lord left him (v. 20), and he was captured.

16:4 Delilah was the third Philistine woman that Samson entangled himself with (14:1; 16:1).

16:5 Eleven hundred pieces of silver was a large sum of money; the same price would be paid to make two idols (17:2). This price was multiplied by five (each of the five lords offered the same amount). The total reward probably weighed more than a hundred pounds.

16:7 The first test of Samson’s strength was breaking seven fresh bowstrings of animal gut. Newer animal strings would be stronger than old ones. Samson was showing contempt for his adversaries, who wanted to capture him quickly.

16:11 In this second test, Samson toyed with the Philistines, suggesting they use the new ropes that had proven worthless on an earlier occasion (15:13).

16:13 The third test involving the web of the loom got closer to revealing Samson’s secret, since his hair was involved. The loom that held Samson’s hair was likely an upright one, supported by two posts that were firmly anchored in the ground. This was a more difficult test of strength for Samson, but he passed this one easily, too.

16:14 she wove it tightly Samson was about to be fastened with a household implement, just as Jael had earlier “fastened” Sisera with a tent peg (4:21). Samson was able to free himself in this case, but like Sisera he eventually would fall victim to a woman’s plot.

(Heb. teshu’ah) (15:18; 1 Sam. 19:5; 2 Kin. 13:17; Prov. 21:31) Strong’s #8668

The basic meaning of this term is “victory” or “safety.” In the Scriptures, deliverance is almost always credited to God, who is frequently praised by the psalmists for His miraculous accomplishments (Ps. 51:14, 15; 71:14, 15). Elsewhere God’s people are reminded that deliverance is not found in horses (Ps. 33:17) or in the capabilities of people (Ps. 108:12; 146:3); salvation is found only in the Lord (Lam. 3:26; Jer. 3:23). A day is coming when the Lord will provide everlasting salvation for His people (Is. 45:17). Placing our hope in the Lord and in that final day of justice is never inappropriate, for He will provide deliverance for His people.

¹⁵ Then she said to him, ^f“How can you say, ‘I love you,’ when your heart is not with me? You have mocked me these three times, and have not told me where your great strength lies.” ¹⁶ And it came to pass, when she pestered him daily with her words and pressed him, so that his soul was ²vexed to death, ¹⁷ that he ^gtold her all his heart, and said to her, ^h“No razor has ever come upon my head, for I have been a Nazirite to God from my mother’s womb. If I am shaven, then my strength will leave me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.”

¹⁸ When Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, “Come up once more, for he has told me all his heart.” So the lords of the Philistines came up to her and brought the money in their hand. ¹⁹ ⁱ Then she lulled him to sleep on her knees, and called for a man and had him shave off the seven locks of his head. Then ³ she began to torment him, and his strength left him. ²⁰ And she said, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” So he awoke from his sleep, and said, “I will go out as before, at other times, and shake myself free!” But he did not know that the LORD ^j had departed from him.

And they stationed him between the pillars. ²⁶ Then Samson said to the lad who held him by the hand, “Let me feel the pillars which support the temple, so that I can lean on them.” ²⁷ Now the temple was full of men and women. All the lords of the Philistines were there—about three thousand men and women on the ^o roof watching while Samson performed.

²⁸ Then Samson called to the LORD, saying, “O Lord God, ^p remember me, I pray! Strengthen me, I pray, just this 16:16 Delilah pestered him, just as Samson’s wife had done earlier (14:17). Samson’s foolishness prevented him from learning the lesson of his earlier experience.

16:17, 18 A razor in Samson’s day would have been like a bronze knife with a handle of wood or bone. a Nazirite to God: See 13:5. he had told her all his heart: Delilah knew that Samson was finally telling the truth. This reference contrasts with the one in v. 15, where he withheld his heart from Delilah.

16:20, 21 He did not know is another editorial comment by the narrator. See similar comments in 13:16; 14:4. the Lord had departed from him: See 14:6. They shackled Samson’s hands or feet with a pair of bronze fetters. Samson became a grinder, forced to grind grain, most likely with a hand mill. Larger, animal-driven mills were not used until several centuries later. Grinding was typically a woman’s job (9:53), so this only added to Samson’s humiliation.

16:23–31 Samson’s story ends with a measure of vindication: the Philistines and their gods were toppled at the hands of God. Samson’s hair had begun to grow again (v. 22), and his second prayer to the Lord—his first was in 15:18—resulted in a great slaughter of his enemies, some three thousand people, more than he had killed during his entire life. His call to the Lord is somewhat ambiguous; it appears to be more earnest than his first, but his motive—revenge for his blindness—is less than exemplary. Samson was buried with his father, following his 20 years of judging Israel (15:20). Samson’s life is ultimately a story about God’s faithfulness in spite of human weakness. God’s hand can be seen throughout the story. When the Philistines captured Samson, they attributed this to their god and celebrated his victory (16:23, 24). We know, however, that it was God who had allowed it (v. 20), and that it was God who gained the ultimate triumph against Dagon and the Philistine rulers (vv. 27, 30).

16:23 Dagon was the principal Philistine god. He is known as Dagan in Syrian and Mesopotamian inscriptions. Temples dedicated to him have been unearthed at Ugarit in northern Syria, dating to the centuries just before Samson, and at Mari on the Euphrates River in Syria, dating to the eighteenth century B.C. A Philistine temple for Dagon was at Beth Shan, in northern Israel, in the days of Saul (1 Sam. 31:9, 10; 1 Chr. 10:10), and it was in another such temple that the Philistines stored the ark of the covenant for a time (1 Sam. 5:1–7). Dagon was once commonly thought to be a fish god, but modern excavations have shown that he was a god of grain. In fact, one of the Hebrew words for grain is dagan. Our god has delivered: The Philistine hymn of triumph reminds us of the language found in the Psalms.

16:26, 27 the pillars which support the temple: Numerous temples from this era with the supporting pillars described here have been excavated. Many were built around a courtyard. The roof, supported by the pillars, was where the spectators gathered. A crowd straining to see the spectacle of Samson would put considerable pressure on the structure of the building.

16:28 Samson demonstrated faith in calling upon God and in believing that God would help him. This is consistent with the praise of Samson in Heb. 11:32. Yet Samson’s plea was basically a desire for revenge against the Philistines.

The Philistines

During the time of the judges, the Philistines emerged for the first time as a distinct people on the southwest coast of Canaan. The Philistines who are mentioned in the Pentateuch are not the same people, but an earlier group of Aegean settlers. The Philistines of Canaan migrated inland, manufacturing their own crude but distinctive pottery, carrying on a limited overseas trade, and eventually developing superior iron weapons, which they used to their advantage against the Israelites. The Bible pictures the Philistines as a coarse, “uncircumcised” people (14:3; 15:18). Recent archaeological discoveries have shown that initially the Philistines had their own highly developed culture. Yet they quickly followed the practices of the Canaanites and lost their true distinctives within a couple of centuries. Their major god was Dagon (known from Mesopotamian and Syrian sources as Dagan).

So the dead that he killed at his death were more than he had killed in his life.

Micah’s Idolatry

17 Now there was a man from the mountains of Ephraim, whose name was ^aMicah. ² And he said to his mother, “The eleven hundred shekels of silver that were taken from you, and on which you ^bput a curse, even saying it in my ears—here is the silver with me; I took it.”

And his mother said, ^c“May you be blessed by the LORD, my son!” ³ So when he had returned the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother, his mother said, “I had wholly dedicated the silver from my hand to the LORD for my son, to ^dmake a carved image and a molded image; now therefore, I will return it to you.” ⁴ Thus he returned the silver to his mother. Then his mother ^etook two hundred shekels of silver and gave them to the silversmith, and he made it into a carved image and a molded image; and they were in the house of Micah.

16:31 The story of the judges concludes with final editorial comments. Samson, the last judge, had been empowered by God’s Spirit, just as the first had been. Despite the manifold failings of the judges themselves, God had delivered Israel and caused other nations to bow before Him.

17:1—21:25 The book closes with two appendixes, the first in chs. 17; 18 and the second in chs. 19–21. They seem to be unrelated to the material preceding them and to each other. For instance, these chapters do not describe the cyclical pattern of sin, servitude, and salvation seen in the earlier chapters. While chs. 2–16 describe foreign threats to Israel, these last chapters show an internal breakdown of Israel’s worship and unity. Furthermore, the events in these chapters appear to have taken place early in the period of the judges. Note that Phinehas, the grandson of Aaron who had figured in earlier events (Num. 25:6–15; 31:6; Josh. 22:30, 31), was still ministering before the ark at the time of the events of chs. 19–21 (20:28). The whole episode of the Danite migration (ch. 18) logically fits in the progression of events described in 1:34, during which the Amorites forced the Danites out of their allotted territory. Their migration in search of new land probably would have come soon after this, not some three centuries or more later. Thus these chapters may have been written independently of the book’s earlier chapters.

Yet there is a certain logic to placing them at the end of the book. For one, the structure highlights the theme of the disintegration of Israel. The many violations of Mosaic law receive only minimal comments. However, a muted note of disdain for Israel’s wanton behavior is evident in places.

17:2, 3 These eleven hundred shekels of silver cannot help but remind us of the reward that the Philistine lords gave to Deliah. Micah, an Ephraimite, had stolen some silver from his mother, which he later returned to her. We learn that she had dedicated this silver to the Lord, but returned it to Micah so that he could make a carved image and a molded image. A carved image would be made of wood or rock. Carved is the same Hebrew word used in the Ten Commandments: “You shall not make for yourself a carved image.” A molded image was one cast from a mold (2 Kin. 17:16). Micah’s mother approved of his action, claiming that these images would be offered on the Lord’s behalf. Today the temptation to mix elements of true worship of God with practices unacceptable to Him remains with us, albeit in different ways.

⁵The man Micah had a ^fshrine, and made an ^gephod and ^hhousehold ⁱidols; and he consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest. ⁶ⁱIn those days there was no king in Israel; ^jeveryone did what was right in his own eyes.

⁷Now there was a young man from ^kBethlehem in Judah, of the family of Judah; he was a Levite, and ^lwas staying there. ⁸The man departed from the city of Bethlehem in Judah to stay wherever he could find a place. Then he came to the mountains of Ephraim, to the house of Micah, as he journeyed. ⁹And Micah said to him, “Where do you come from?”

So he said to him, “I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah, and I am on my way to find a place to stay.”

¹⁰Micah said to him, “Dwell with me, ^mand be a ⁿfather and a priest to me, and I will give you ten shekels of silver per year, a suit of clothes, and your sustenance.” So the Levite went in. ¹¹Then the Levite was content to dwell with the man; and the young man became like one of his sons to him. ¹²So Micah ^oconsecrated ²the Levite, and the young man ^pbecame his priest, and lived in the house of Micah. ¹³Then Micah said, “Now I know that the LORD will be good to me, since I have a Levite as ^qpriest!”

The Danites Adopt Micah's Idolatry

18 In ^athose days there was no king in Israel. And in those days ^bthe tribe of the Danites was seeking an inheritance for itself to dwell in; for until that day their inheritance among the tribes of Israel had not fallen to them. ²So the children of Dan sent five men of their family from their territory, men of valor from ^cZorah and Eshtaol, ^dto spy out the land and search it. They said to them, “Go, search the land.” So they went to the mountains of Ephraim, to the ^ehouse of Micah, and lodged there. ³While they were at the house of Micah, they recognized the voice of the young Levite. They turned aside and said to him, “Who brought you here? What are you doing in this place? What do you have here?”

⁴He said to them, “Thus and so Micah did for me. He has ^hhired me, and I have become his priest.”

⁵So they said to him, “Please ^ginquire ^hof God, that we may know whether the journey on which we go will be prosperous.”

⁶And the priest said to them, ⁱ“Go in peace. ¹The presence of the LORD be with you on your way.”

⁷So the five men departed and went to ^jLaish. They saw the people who were there, ^khow they dwelt safely, in the manner of the Sidonians, quiet and secure. There were no rulers in the land who might put them to shame for anything. They were far from the ^lSidonians, and they had no ties ²with anyone.

⁸Then the spies came back to their brethren at ^mZorah and Eshtaol, and their brethren said to them, “What is your report?”

⁹So they said, ⁿ“Arise, let us go up against them. For we have seen the land, and indeed it is very good. Would you ^odo nothing? Do not hesitate to go, and enter to possess the land. ¹⁰When you go, you will come to a ^psecure people and a large land. For God has given it into your hands, ^qa place where there is no lack of anything that is on the earth.”

17:5 a shrine: Literally “a house of God.” This was a perversion of the true sanctuary where all worship was to take place. At this time, “the house of God” was at Shiloh (18:31). Micah also made an ephod (8:27) and various household idols. The word for idols is the same one used in Gen. 31:19, the story of Rachel’s theft of Laban’s household gods. Such idols are condemned in 1 Sam. 15:23. Micah further violated the law by appointing his own son as his private priest. Micah sinned because his son had not descended from Aaron (as priests were supposed to be) nor was he even a Levite (Ex. 28:1; 40:12–15; Num. 16:39, 40; 17:8).

17:6 what was right in his own eyes: This editorial comment is echoed in the last verse of the book (21:25). The author suggests that times were so bad that people did whatever they wanted, not what was right in the Lord’s eyes (14:3). We may infer that a king who focused Israel’s attention on the Lord would have prevented the outbreaks of sin and oppression so prevalent during the time of the judges.

17:9 The Levite from Bethlehem in Judah had been living there as a resident alien. Levites did not have a permanent land inheritance, but they had been granted 48 cities, scattered throughout the other tribes’ territories (Josh. 21). However, Bethlehem was not one of these cities, and this Levite was seeking a place to settle down. He was only too happy to accept Micah’s offer (vv. 10, 11).

17:10 be a father and a priest to me: To be called a father was a title of honor (see the reference to Deborah as a “mother in Israel” in 5:7). Micah wanted the Levite to be his priest, since his priestly background would lend legitimacy to his service. Micah thought this would bring him God’s favor (v. 13). In later years, prophets were occasionally referred to as “fathers” (2 Kin. 6:21; 8:9; 13:14).

18:1 The Danites were looking for a place to settle because they had been unable to settle effectively in their allotted territory. Compare their allotment in Josh. 19:41–47 and their failure to capture it all in 1:34, 35.

18:2 The Danites decided to spy out the land, recalling the 12 spies who infiltrated Canaan in Moses’ day (Num. 13) and the two spies that Joshua sent into Jericho (Josh. 2). The Hebrew word for spy is related to the word for foot, the idea being that spies went quietly on foot, scouting what they could see.

18:3 The Danite spies asked rapid-fire questions. Other places in Judges feature similar quick questioning (see 6:31).

18:7 The Danite spies found the city of Laish an attractive place to live and decided to seize it (vv. 7–10). The city was later renamed Dan (Josh. 19:47). the Sidonians, quiet and secure: On the Sidonians, see 3:3. The word for quiet is the same one that describes the “rest” that covered the land periodically (3:11). However, the word can also be rendered “unsuspecting.”

¹¹ And six hundred men of the family of the Danites went from there, from Zorah and Eshtaol, armed with weapons of war. ¹² Then they went up and encamped in ^rKirjath Jearim in Judah. (Therefore they call that place ^sMahanah Dan³ to this day. There it is, west of Kirjath Jearim.) ¹³ And they passed from there to the mountains of Ephraim, and came to ^tthe house of Micah.

¹⁴ “Then the five men who had gone to spy out the country of Laish answered and said to their brethren, “Do you know that ^vthere are in these houses an ephod, household idols, a carved image, and a molded image? Now therefore, consider what you should do.” ¹⁵ So they turned aside there, and came to the house of the young Levite man—to the house of Micah—and greeted him. ¹⁶ The ^wsix hundred men armed with their weapons of war, who were of the children of Dan, stood by the entrance of the gate. ¹⁷ Then ^xthe five men who had gone to spy out the land went up. Entering there, they took ^ythe carved image, the ephod, the household idols, and the molded image. The priest stood at the entrance of the gate with the six hundred men who were armed with weapons of war.

¹⁹ And they said to him, “Be quiet, ^zput your hand over your mouth, and come with us; ^abe a father and a priest to us. Is it better for you to be a priest to the household of one man, or that you be a priest to a tribe and a family in Israel?”

²⁰ So the priest’s heart was glad; and he took the ephod, the household idols, and the carved image, and took his place among the people.

Micah, the men who were in the houses near Micah’s house gathered together and overtook the children of Dan. ²³ And they called out to the children of Dan. So they turned around and said to Micah, ^b“What ails you, that you have gathered such a company?”

²⁴ So he said, “You have ^ctaken away my ^dgods which I made, and the priest, and you have gone away. Now what more do I have? How can you say to me, ‘What ails you?’”

²⁵ And the children of Dan said to him, “Do not let your voice be heard among us, lest ^eangry men fall upon you, and you lose your life, with the lives of your household!” ²⁶ Then the children of Dan went their way. And when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back to his house.

Danites Settle in Laish

²⁷ So they took the things Micah had made, and the priest who had belonged to him, and went to Laish, to a people quiet and secure; ^dand they struck them with the edge of the sword and burned the city with fire. ²⁸ There was no deliverer, because it was ^efar from Sidon, and they had no ties with anyone. It was in the valley that belongs ^fto Beth Rehob. So they rebuilt the city and dwelt there. ²⁹ And ^gthey called the name of the city ^hDan, after the name of Dan their father, who was born to Israel. However, the name of the city formerly was Laish.

³⁰ Then the children of Dan set up for themselves the carved image; and Jonathan the son of Gershom, the son of ⁶Manasseh, and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan ⁱuntil the day of the captivity of the land. ³¹ So they set up for themselves Micah’s carved image which he made, ^jall the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

The Levite’s Concubine

19 And it came to pass in those days, ^awhen there was no king in Israel, that there was a certain Levite staying

18:11 Six hundred men was either a small part of the Danite army or a remnant that had survived recent fighting. Compare this figure with the 62,700 Danite soldiers in Num. 1:38, 39 and the 64,400 in Num. 26:42, 43.

18:15–20 Rather than condemning Micah’s idolatry, the Danites took the gods for themselves. They then made Micah’s Levite their tribal priest.

18:19 The Danites’ offer to Micah’s Levite—be a father and a priest to us—was the same plea Micah had made earlier (17:10). Yet their offer was more attractive, for it allowed him to be priest over an entire tribe. The Levite’s cynical acceptance of this opportunity for greater prestige indicates further how debased conditions had become. Even Levites were selling false spiritual services to the highest bidder.

18:30 The Danites’ priest and his descendants served the tribe for many years. This notice, written much later than the book’s events, is a subtle reminder of Dan’s later apostasy. Jeroboam I would establish idolatrous shrines in Dan and Bethel (1 Kin. 12).

18:31 Micah’s image remained while the house of God was at Shiloh. Therefore, these events took place sometime before about 1050 B.C. when Shiloh was destroyed (Ps. 78:60; Jer. 7:12, 14; 26:6).

19:1–21:25 The concluding section is apparently unrelated to any preceding story. It concerns the brutal rape and murder of a concubine and the bloody events that followed. The story resembles that of the assault on Lot’s home in Sodom (Gen. 19).

19:1 A concubine was a female servant regarded as part of the family, often chosen to bear children. Several of the patriarchs had children with concubines: Abraham with Hagar (Gen. 16); Jacob with Bilhah and Zilpah (Gen. 30:4–13).

in the remote mountains of Ephraim. He took for himself a concubine from ^bBethlehem in Judah. ²But his concubine played the harlot against him, and went away from him to her father's house at Bethlehem in Judah, and was there four whole months. ³Then her husband arose and went after her, to ^cspeak ¹kindly to her and bring her back, having his servant and a couple of donkeys with him. So she brought him into her father's house; and when the father of the young woman saw him, he was glad to meet him. ⁴Now his father-in-law, the young woman's father, detained him; and he stayed with him three days. So they ate and drank and lodged there.

⁵Then it came to pass on the fourth day that they arose early in the morning, and he stood to depart; but the young woman's father said to his son-in-law, ^d"Refresh your heart with a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way."

⁶So they sat down, and the two of them ate and drank together. Then the young woman's father said to the man, "Please be content to stay all night, and let your heart be merry." ⁷And when the man stood to depart, his father-in-law urged him; so he lodged there again. ⁸Then he arose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart, but the young woman's father said, "Please refresh your heart." So they delayed until afternoon; and both of them ate.

⁹And when the man stood to depart— he and his concubine and his servant— his father-in-law, the young woman's father, said to him, "Look, the day is now drawing toward evening; please spend the night. See, the day is coming to an end; lodge here, that your heart may be merry. Tomorrow go your way early, so that you may get ²home."

¹⁰However, the man was not willing to spend that night; so he rose and departed, and came opposite ^eJebus (that is, Jerusalem). With him were the two saddled donkeys; his concubine was also with him. ¹¹They were near Jebus, and the day

¹²But his master said to him, "We will not turn aside here into a city of foreigners, who are not of the children of Israel; we will go on ^gto Gibeah." ¹³So he said to his servant, "Come, let us draw near to one of these places, and spend the night in Gibeah or in ^hRamah." ¹⁴And they passed by and went their way; and the sun went down on them near Gibeah, which belongs to Benjamin. ¹⁵They turned aside there to go in to lodge in Gibeah. And when he went in, he sat down in the open square of the city, for no one would ⁱtake them into his house to spend the night.

¹⁶Just then an old man came in from ^jhis work in the field at evening, who also was from the mountains of Ephraim; he was staying in Gibeah, whereas the men of the place were Benjamites. ¹⁷And when he raised his eyes, he saw the traveler in the open square of the city; and the old man said, "Where are you going, and where do you come from?"

¹⁸So he said to him, "We are passing from Bethlehem in Judah toward the remote mountains of Ephraim; I am from there. I went to Bethlehem in Judah; now I am going to ^kthe house of the LORD. But there is no one who will take me into his house, ¹⁹although we have both straw and fodder for our donkeys, and bread and wine for myself, for your female servant, and for the young man who is with your servant; there is no lack of anything."

²⁰And the old man said, ^l"Peace be with you! However, let all your needs be my responsibility; ^monly do not spend the night in the open square." ²¹ⁿSo he brought him into his house, and gave fodder to the donkeys. ^oAnd they washed their feet, and ate and drank.

Gibeah's Crime

²²As they were ^penjoying themselves, suddenly ^qcertain men of the city, ^rperverted³ men, surrounded the house and

19:3–9 Obligated by custom, the Levite stayed in the home of his concubine's father for five days. Strict codes of hospitality still prevail in many Middle Eastern tribal cultures.

19:10 Jebus (that is, Jerusalem): The city of Jerusalem was at this time in the hands of the Jebusites, and it is called "a city of foreigners" in v. 12. For more on the city and its early history, see Josh. 15:63.

19:12 Gibeah was four miles west of Jerusalem. Because it was in Benjamin, the Levite thought it would be a safer place to spend the night—a fatal misjudgment.

19:15, 16 The open square of the city was a public area just inside the city gate. A traveler could expect an invitation to stay the night, but none was forthcoming from any inhabitant of Gibeah. an old man: The Levite received kindness from an outsider, an old man who was passing through Gibeah. Like the Levite, he was from the hill country of Ephraim.

19:18, 19 The people of Gibeah were cold, even though the Levite had all that he needed with him, and even more than enough: He offered to take care of the old man and his servants, too.

19:22–26 The welcome offered by Gibeah was no hospitality at all; it was the hospitality of Sodom (see Gen. 19), an outrageous affront to the Levite and especially to his concubine. The men of Gibeah demanded to have sexual relations with the old man's guest. Offered the Levite's concubine instead, they assaulted her until she was half dead. This section closely resembles Gen. 19:4–9; indeed, the author may have written this story to make the comparison with beat on the door. They spoke to the master of the house, the old man, saying, ^s“Bring out the man who came to your house, that we may know him carnally!”

²³ But ^tthe man, the master of the house, went out to them and said to them, “No, my brethren! I beg you, do not act so wickedly! Seeing this man has come into my house, ^udo not commit this outrage. ^{24 v}Look, here is my virgin daughter and ⁴the man’s concubine; let me bring them out now. ^wHumble them, and do with them as you please; but to this man do not do such a vile thing!” ²⁵ But the men would not heed him. So the man took his concubine and brought her out to them. And they ^xknew her and abused her all night until morning; and when the day began to break, they let her go.

²⁹ When he entered his house he took a knife, laid hold of his concubine, and ^zdivided her into twelve pieces, ⁵limb by limb, and sent her throughout all the territory of Israel. ³⁰ And so it was that all who saw it said, “No such deed has been done or seen from the day that the children of Israel came up from the land of Egypt until this day. Consider it, ^aconfer, and speak up!”

congregation gathered together as one man before the LORD ^dat Mizpah. ² And the leaders of all the people, all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand foot soldiers ^ewho drew the sword. ³ (Now the children of Benjamin heard that the children of Israel had gone up to Mizpah.)

Then the children of Israel said, “Tell us, how did this wicked deed happen?”

⁴ So the Levite, the husband of the woman who was murdered, answered and said, “My concubine and ^fI went into Gibeah, which belongs to Benjamin, to spend the night. ^{5 g}And the men of Gibeah rose against me, and surrounded the house at night because of me. They intended to kill me, ^hbut instead they ravished my concubine so that she died. ⁶ So ⁱI took hold of my concubine, cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the territory of the inheritance of Israel, because they ^jcommitted lewdness and outrage in Israel. ⁷ Look! All of you are children of Israel; ^kgive your advice and counsel here and now!”

⁸ So all the people arose as one man, saying, “None of us will go to his tent, nor will any turn back to his house; ⁹but now this is the thing which we will do to Gibeah: We will go up ^lagainst it by lot. ¹⁰ We will take ten men out of every hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, a hundred out of every thousand, and a thousand out of every ten thousand, to make provisions for the people, that when they come to Gibeah in Benjamin, they may repay all the vileness that they have done in Israel.” ¹¹ So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, united together as one man.

^{12 m} Then the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, “What is this wickedness that has occurred among you? ¹³ Now therefore, deliver up the men, ⁿthe ¹perverted men

Sodom unmistakable, as if to say, “Things are as bad now as they were in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah!”

19:22 Perverted men is literally the “sons of Belial,” a phrase describing wicked or worthless people. The name Belial came to designate Satan, as it is used in 2 Cor. 6:15. That we may know him means that the men of Gibeah wanted to sodomize the Levite. The same expression is found in Gen. 19:5, where the men of Sodom wanted to force homosexual relations on Lot’s guests.

19:27–30 The Levite’s indifferent reaction to his concubine’s collapse is followed by a gruesome deed: after carrying her away, he cut her body into 12 pieces, sending a piece to each tribe. This gesture was practically a call to arms; Saul did the same with oxen (1 Sam. 11:7).

19:30 The phrase no such deed has been done is ambiguous; it is uncertain whether they were horrified by discovering the dismembered body or by learning about the cruel rape and murder.

20:1–48 An assembly of all Israel convened at Mizpah and decided to unite against Benjamin (vv. 1–11). The Benjamites, who apparently were not at the assembly (v. 3), responded by joining the men of Gibeah for battle (vv. 12–17). After withstanding two assaults, Benjamin was routed and its cities obliterated. The spiritual decay of Israel had resulted in the destruction of its own people with a vengeance once reserved for pagan peoples.

20:1 From Dan to Beersheba is a common expression for the full extent of the land of Israel from north to south (1 Sam. 3:20; 2 Sam. 24:2; 1 Kin. 4:25).

20:2 The assembly usually means the congregation of Israel as assembled for a religious event (1 Chr. 28:8) or a military campaign (Num. 22:4; 1 Sam. 17:47).

20:9, 11 The tribes agreed to send a tenth of their men (v. 10), choosing them by lot. God’s role is not mentioned here. To their credit, the Israelite tribes were united together as one man, a quality notably absent up to this point in the Book of Judges.

who are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death and ^oremove the evil from Israel!" But the children of Benjamin would not listen to the voice of their brethren, the children of Israel. ¹⁴Instead, the children of Benjamin gathered together from their cities to Gibeah, to go to battle against the children of Israel. ¹⁵And from their cities at that time ^pthe children of Benjamin numbered twenty-six thousand men who drew the sword, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah, who numbered seven hundred select men. ¹⁶Among all this people were seven hundred select men who were ^qleft-handed; every one could sling a stone at a hair's breadth and not miss. ¹⁷Now besides Benjamin, the men of Israel numbered four hundred thousand men who drew the sword; all of these were men of war.

¹⁸Then the children of Israel arose and ^rwent up to ²the house of God to ^sinquire of God. They said, "Which of us shall go up first to battle against the children of Benjamin?"

The LORD said, "Judah first!"

¹⁹So the children of Israel rose in the morning and encamped against Gibeah. ²⁰And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin, and the men of Israel put themselves in battle array to fight against them at Gibeah. ²¹Then ^uthe children of Benjamin came out of Gibeah, and on that day cut down to the ground twenty-two thousand men of the Israelites. ²²And the people, that is, the men of Israel, encouraged themselves and again formed the battle line at the place where they had put themselves in array on the first day. ²³^vThen the children of Israel went up and wept before the LORD until evening, and asked counsel of the LORD, saying, "Shall I again draw near for battle against the children of my brother Benjamin?"

And the LORD said, "Go up against him."

day. ²⁵And ^wBenjamin went out against them from Gibeah on the second day, and cut down to the ground eighteen thousand more of the children of Israel; all these drew the sword.

²⁶Then all the children of Israel, that is, all the people, ^xwent up and came to ³the house of God and wept. They sat there before the LORD and fasted that day until evening; and they offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. ²⁷So the children of Israel inquired of the LORD (^ythe ark of the covenant of God was there in those days, ²⁸^zand Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, ^astood before it in those days), saying, "Shall I yet again go out to battle against the children of my brother Benjamin, or shall I cease?"

And the LORD said, "Go up, for tomorrow I will deliver them into your hand."

²⁹Then Israel ^bset men in ambush all around Gibeah. ³⁰And the children of Israel went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day, and put themselves in battle array against Gibeah as at the other times. ³¹So the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were drawn away from the city. They began to strike down and kill some of the people, as at the other times, in the highways ^c(one of which goes up to Bethel and the other to Gibeah) and in the field, about thirty men of Israel. ³²And the children of Benjamin said, "They are defeated before us, as at first."

But the children of Israel said, "Let us flee and draw them away from the city to the highways." ³³So all the men of Israel rose from their place and put themselves in battle array at Baal Tamar. Then Israel's men in ambush burst forth from their position in the plain of Geba. ³⁴And ten thousand select men from all Israel came against Gibeah, and the battle was fierce. ^dBut ⁴the Benjamites did not know that disaster was upon them. ³⁵The LORD ⁵defeated Benjamin before Israel. 20:15 The Benjamite force of twenty-six thousand men was considerably smaller than the Israelite army of four hundred thousand (v. 17).

20:16 The Benjamites counted on seven hundred select men who were left-handed, an advantage since their shots would come from unaccustomed angles. Ironically, the name Benjamin means "Son of the Right Hand."

20:18 Judah first: The book begins and ends with Judah in this prominent position (1:1, 2). This is no accident, since the end of the book points toward the monarchy, whose true expression would come out of Judah.

20:23 Go up against him: The Lord graciously answered the Israelites twice when they called upon Him (v. 18).

20:26 The Israelites suffered a second major defeat (v. 25). The result drove them to fasting and sacrificing at Bethel, something done very rarely in this period. The house of God literally reads "Bethel," and probably the town is meant. Bethel was a Benjamite town that had been religiously prominent since Jacob met God there (Gen. 28:16–19).

20:28 Phinehas was the one who had stopped the plague at Peor (Num. 25:6–11). The fact that he was still alive shows that the organization of the Book of Judges is not strictly chronological. The author likely placed this account at the end of the book to make the point even more strongly about the spiritual deterioration of the nation.

20:31 The highways were probably made of stone or gravel. The Hebrew word means "something raised," that is, a roadway elevated above the normal ground level (Is. 49:11).

20:35 The Lord defeated Benjamin as punishment for the heinous crimes committed in Gibeah (ch. 19) and for disrupting Israel's unity, which He valued.

stroyed that day twenty-five thousand one hundred Benjamites; all these drew the sword.

³⁶So the children of Benjamin saw that they were defeated. ^eThe men of Israel had given ground to the Benjamites, because they relied on the men in ambush whom they had set against Gibeah. ^{37f}And the men in ambush quickly rushed upon Gibeah; the men in ambush spread out and struck the whole city with the edge of the sword. ³⁸Now the appointed signal between the men of Israel and the men in ambush was that they would make a great cloud of ^gsmoke rise up from the city, ³⁹whereupon the men of Israel would turn in battle. Now Benjamin had begun ⁶to strike and kill about thirty of the men of Israel. For they said, “Surely they are defeated before us, as in the first battle.” ⁴⁰But when the cloud began to rise from the city in a column of smoke, the Benjamites ^hlooked behind them, and there was the whole city going up in smoke to heaven. ⁴¹And when the men of Israel turned back, the men of Benjamin panicked, for they saw that disaster had come upon them. ⁴²Therefore they ⁷turned their backs before the men of Israel in the direction of the wilderness; but the battle overtook them, and whoever came out of the cities they destroyed in their midst. ⁴³They surrounded the Benjamites, chased them, and easily trampled them down as far as the front of Gibeah toward the east. ⁴⁴And eighteen thousand men of Benjamin fell; all these were men of valor. ⁴⁵Then ⁸they turned and fled toward the wilderness to the rock of ⁱRimmon; and they cut down five thousand of them on the highways. Then they pursued them relentlessly up to Gidom, and killed two thousand of them. ⁴⁶So all who fell of Benjamin that day were twenty-five thousand men who drew the sword; all these were ⁹men of valor.

^{47j}But six hundred men turned and fled toward the wilderness to the rock of Rimmon, and they stayed at the rock of Rimmon for four months. ⁴⁸And the

Wives Provided for the Benjamites

21 Now ^athe men of Israel had sworn an oath at Mizpah, saying, “None of us shall give his daughter to Benjamin as a wife.” ²Then the people came ^bto ¹the house of God, and remained there before God till evening. They lifted up their voices and wept bitterly, ³and said, “O LORD God of Israel, why has this come to pass in Israel, that today there should be one tribe missing in Israel?”

⁴So it was, on the next morning, that the people rose early and ^cbuilt an altar there, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. ⁵The children of Israel said, “Who is there among all the tribes of Israel who did not come up with the assembly to the LORD?” ^dFor they had made a great oath concerning anyone who had not come up to the LORD at Mizpah, saying, “He shall surely be put to death.” ⁶And the children of Israel grieved for Benjamin their brother, and said, “One tribe is cut off from Israel today. ⁷What shall we do for wives for those who remain, seeing we have sworn by the LORD that we will not give them our daughters as wives?”

⁸And they said, “What one is there from the tribes of Israel who did not come up to Mizpah to the LORD?” And, in fact, no one had come to the camp from ^eJabesh Gilead to the assembly. ⁹For when the people were counted, indeed, not one of the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead was there. ¹⁰So the congregation sent out there twelve thousand of their most valiant men, and commanded them, saying, ^f“Go and strike the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead with the edge of the sword, including the women and children. ¹¹And this is the thing that you shall do: ^gYou shall utterly destroy every male, and every woman who has known a man in-

20:38–42 The burning of Gibeah and the resulting rout of the Benjamites are almost an exact replay of the ambush of Ai (Josh. 8:17–22).
20:47 Six hundred men of Benjamin survived the rout. They would become the remnant that would carry on the tribe’s name (21:12–23).
21:1–25 After the devastating defeat of Benjamin, the remaining Israelites were struck with remorse because Benjamin faced almost certain extinction (vv. 1–7). Thus ch. 21 tells of the provisions they made for the tribe’s survival, though the means they chose were questionable or even brutal.
21:1 The details of an oath at Mizpah appear for the first time. It was presumably made when the people assembled at Mizpah before attacking Benjamin.

21:5 The great oath sworn by the Israelites provided the justification for punishing Jabesh Gilead and for providing wives for the Benjamites. Every tribe was expected to heed the Levite’s call, since he had sent the concubine’s corpse “throughout all the territory of Israel” (19:29).
21:8 Jabesh Gilead was a town east of the Jordan.
21:11 The phrase utterly destroy is found numerous times in the Book of Joshua in regard to the conquest of the Canaanites. However, there is no hint that God supported the bloodbath at Jabesh Gilead.

timately.”¹² So they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead four hundred young virgins who had not known a man intimately; and they brought them to the camp at ^hShiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

¹⁶ Then the elders of the congregation said, “What shall we do for wives for those who remain, since the women of Benjamin have been destroyed?” ¹⁷ And they said, “There must be an inheritance for the survivors of Benjamin, that a tribe may not be destroyed from Israel. ¹⁸ However, we cannot give them wives from our daughters, ^kfor the children of Israel have sworn an oath, saying, ‘Cursed be the one who gives a wife to Benjamin.’” ¹⁹ Then they said, “In fact, there is a yearly ^lfeast of the Lord in ^mShiloh, which is north of Bethel, on the east side of the ⁿhighway

²³ And the children of Benjamin did so; they took enough wives for their number from those who danced, whom they caught. Then they went and returned to their inheritance, and they ^prebuilt the cities and dwelt in them. ²⁴ So the children of Israel departed from there at that time, every man to his tribe and family; they went out from there, every man to his inheritance.

21:12 Four hundred young virgins were captured to become wives for the six hundred survivors of Benjamin (20:47). Still, four hundred were not enough, and the Israelites contrived to take more from Shiloh (vv. 19–22).

21:19 Some scholars believe that the yearly feast of the Lord in Shiloh was the Passover, held in the spring because of the dancing associated with it (vv. 21, 23); they point to the dancing of Miriam and the Israelite women after they had crossed the Red Sea as evidence for this practice (Ex. 15:20). However, the celebration was more likely the Feast of Tabernacles, celebrated in the fall, since vineyards are mentioned (vv. 20, 21). The grape harvest came in the early fall. This may have been the same event that drew Samuel’s parents every year to Shiloh (1 Sam. 1:3).

21:20–23 The Benjamites were allowed to abduct enough women from Shiloh to supply every man with a wife. No justification is given except for the supposed needs of the Benjamites. To sidestep their oath, Israelites allowed the Benjamites to capture the young women. In this way, they could not be held responsible for giving brides to the six hundred, which they swore at Mizpah they would never do (v. 1).

21:24 every man to his inheritance: The Hebrew words here are the same as those found at the end of the Book of Joshua (24:28). However, the book’s final comment (v. 25) indicates that times were far worse than they had been in Joshua’s day.

THE BOOK OF RUTH

THE BOOK OF RUTH is a beautiful story of love, loyalty, and redemption. One of only two books in the Bible named after a woman, this narrative masterpiece tells the story of the salvation of Ruth, the Moabitess. Through her relationship with her mother-in-law Naomi, Ruth learned about the living God and became His devoted follower. Abandoning her family and homeland, she demonstrated both her love for her widowed mother-in-law and her faith in Israel's God. Her faith was well placed, for God not only provided for her; He also placed her in the messianic family line.

Author Traditionally, Samuel has been identified as the author of Ruth. However, some Jewish rabbis have ascribed the writing to Naomi. If the references to David in Ruth 4:17, 22 are an integral part of the original book and not a later appendix, then the book was not written by either since both died before David's birth.

Some evidence in Ruth points to the conclusion that the book was written during David or Solomon's reign. First, the genealogy of David in 4:18–22 indicates this. Second, the first verse of Ruth implies that the book was written after the time of the judges. Third, the fact that the narrator had to explain ancient customs to the intended readers in 4:7 indicates that the book was not written at the time of the events. All this evidence may point to the authorship of Ruth during Solomon's reign—a time regarded as the golden age of Hebrew writing.

Historical Setting The story of Ruth takes place during the time of the judges—a period characterized by extreme spiritual and moral decay in Israel (c. 1380–1050 B.C.). The beautiful love story of Ruth contrasts strongly with the pervasive depravity of the period, giving a rare glimmer of hope in an otherwise bleak era.

The story itself reflects ordinary small town and rural life in Israel—specifically around Bethlehem. Details of cultural elements, such as the description of the barley harvest (1:22), the mention of the threshing floor (3:6), and the events at the city gate (4:1), add plausibility to the story. It is possible that the story was first circulated in Bethlehem by Naomi and her circle of women friends. Later, the author of Ruth retained some of the lovely feminine touches that grace this story.

Themes The Book of Ruth underscores an overarching theme of the Bible: God desires all to believe in Him, even non-Israelites. This was God's plan from the beginning. He had covenanted with Abraham and his descendants in order to bless other nations through the Israelites and draw all nations to Himself (Gen. 12:1–3).

While demonstrating this one significant theme, the Book of Ruth makes some distinctive contributions of its own. First of all, the important idea of loyal love is evident in the book. The Hebrew word translated as kindly in 1:8 means “loyal love” or “covenantal love.” This was a genuine love that keeps promises. When the word is used of God, it refers to God's loving faithfulness to His promises. Even though Ruth was a foreigner and was not familiar with God's law, she displayed this type of love and loyalty to her mother-in-law Naomi. She left her homeland in order to be with Naomi in a time of need. Boaz also showed the same noble quality by protecting and providing for Ruth, a widow of one of his relatives. Yet the story of Ruth ultimately illustrates how God Himself demonstrated such love. He rewarded Ruth for her loyalty to Him by giving her an honored place in the community of faith. He blessed her with a child who would become the ancestor of King David and later of the promised Messiah.

The second concept that the Book of Ruth emphasizes is redemption. God's providential hand in redeeming Ruth and Naomi from poverty is evident. He controlled circumstances so that Ruth and Boaz would meet, and He prompted Boaz to fulfill the responsibilities of the "close relative" or the kinsman-redeemer (3:9). The kinsman-redeemer was "the defender of family rights." This individual was a close relative who had the financial resources to rescue a poverty-stricken family member, stepping in to save that relative from slavery or from having to sell the family's ancestral land. In the story of Ruth, Boaz redeemed the land that Naomi was about to sell. He also took on another of the kinsman-redeemer's responsibilities—the obligation of providing an heir for Ruth's deceased husband, Mahlon. Dying without an heir was considered a tragedy in the ancient Middle East. To rectify this situation, the brother of a deceased man was expected to marry the widow in order to produce a child, who would be considered the heir of the deceased. This was called a levirate marriage. Boaz willingly took on this duty, even though he was not the nearest relative (3:12, 13). He bought the land from Naomi, married Ruth, and carried on the family name through the birth of their son. Through all these actions, Boaz exemplified the compassion and love of a redeemer. His life is an illustration for us of the compassion of Jesus, who is our Redeemer (Gal. 3:13).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

In this short book, the Hebrew word goel is used 13 times. It means "close relative" (3:9) and conveys the concept of kinsman-redeemer. That's exactly who Jesus turned out to be: the kinsman-redeemer for the human race, one who became part of our "family" and who also became our advocate. According to ancient Hebrew law, a person must fulfill certain requirements in order to qualify as a "kinsman-redeemer." And the requirements anticipate what Jesus Himself did for us.

For one thing, this kinsman-redeemer must be a relative of those he redeems (Deut. 25:5, 7–10; John 1:14; Rom. 1:3; Phil. 2:5–8; Heb. 2:14, 15). This family member must also be able to pay the price of redemption (Ruth 2:1; 1 Pet. 1:18, 19) and be willing to redeem the individual who is about to be claimed by another (Ruth 3:11; Matt. 20:28; John 10:15, 18; Heb. 10:7). One final requirement is that the kinsman-redeemer must himself be free and not in debt. Because Jesus was sinless, He was free from the curse of sin. The kinsman-redeemer is a clear picture of the role Jesus would play for us.

Naomi Returns with Ruth

⁶Then she arose with her daughters-in-law that she might return from the country of Moab, for she had heard in the country of Moab that the LORD had ^gvisited ⁴His people by ^hgiving them bread. ⁷Therefore she went out from the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and they went on the way to return to the land of Judah. ⁸And Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, ⁱ"Go, return each to her mother's house. ^jThe LORD deal kindly with you, as you have dealt ^kwith the dead and with me. ⁹The LORD grant that you may find ^lrest, each in the house of her husband."

So she kissed them, and they lifted up

1:1 when the judges ruled: The events of the Book of Ruth took place before the establishment of the monarchy in Israel. The judges were God's servants, who established the teachings of God's law and righteousness during a time of political, spiritual, and moral degeneracy. The story shines as a bright spot during a dark age in Israel's history. Moab is located east of the Dead Sea. The Moabites descended from Lot as a result of his incestuous relation with his older daughter (Gen. 19:30-37). The famine in Israel extended to Bethlehem even though its very name means "House of Bread."

1:2 Due to the famine, Elimelech, whose name means "God Is King," journeyed to Moab with his wife and two sons. The names of the two sons Mahlon and Chilion mean "Sickly" and "Failing." The early deaths of these two sons in Moab showed that their names were appropriate (v. 5). Ephrathites: Ephrathah was another name for the region of Bethlehem (Gen. 48:7; Mic. 5:2).

1:4 The Moabite name Ruth connotes "Friendship." While the Law of Moses did not prohibit Israelite men from marrying Moabite women, it did exclude Moabites from the congregation of Israel for ten generations (Deut. 23:1-4).

1:6 the LORD: This is the first mention of God's name in the story. God Himself is at the center of the book. This verse illustrates the mercy of the Lord, who supported even His disobedient people with food. He visited His people both for blessing, as in this verse, and for discipline (Ex. 20:5).

1:8 The Hebrew word translated as kindly is often used to describe God, and means "loyal love." The word expresses both God's loyalty to His covenant and His love for His people. Here Naomi expressed the hope that the Lord's covenantal love would extend to her daughters-in-law, who were outside the land of Israel and were not Jewish.

1:9 The concept of rest referred to here is the security that is found in marriage.

The Book of Ruth

Set in the dark and bloody days of the judges, the story of Ruth is silent about the underlying hostility and suspicion the two peoples—Judahites and Moabites—felt for each other. The original onslaught of the invading Israelite tribes against towns that were once Moabite had never been forgotten or forgiven, while the Hebrew prophets denounced Moab's pride and arrogance for trying to bewitch, seduce, and oppress Israel from the time of Balaam on. The Mesha Stele (c. 830 B.C.) boasts of the massacre of entire Israelite towns.

Moab encompassed the expansive, grain-rich plateau between the Dead Sea and the eastern desert on both sides of the enormous rift of the Arnon River gorge. Much of eastern Moab was steppe land—semi-arid wastes not profitable for cultivation, but excellent for grazing flocks of sheep and goats. The tribute Moab paid to Israel in the days of Ahab was 100,000 lambs and the wool of 100,000 rams.

their voices and wept. ¹⁰ And they said to her, “Surely we will return with you to your people.”

¹¹ But Naomi said, “Turn back, my daughters; why will you go with me? Are there still sons in my womb, ^m that they may be your husbands? ¹² Turn back, my daughters, go—for I am too old to have a husband. If I should say I have hope, if I should have a husband tonight and should also bear sons, ¹³ would you wait for them till they were grown? Would you restrain yourselves from having husbands? No, my daughters; for it grieves me very much for your sakes that ⁿ the hand of the LORD has gone out against me!”

¹⁵ And she said, “Look, your sister-in-law has gone back to ^p her people and to her gods; ^q return after your sister-in-law.”

¹⁶ But Ruth said:

^r “Entreat ⁵ me not to leave you,
Or to turn back from following after you;
For wherever you go, I will go;
And wherever you lodge, I will lodge;
^s Your people shall be my people,

¹⁸ ^u When she saw that she ⁶ was determined to go with her, she stopped speaking to her.

¹⁹ Now the two of them went until they came to Bethlehem. And it happened, when they had come to Bethlehem, that ^v all the city was excited because of them; and the women said, ^w “Is this Naomi?”

²⁰ But she said to them, “Do not call me ⁷ Naomi; call me ⁸ Mara, for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. ²¹ I went out full, ^x and the LORD has brought me home again empty. Why do you call me Naomi, since the LORD has testified against me, and ⁹ the Almighty has afflicted me?”

²² So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess her daughter-in-law with her, who returned from the country of Moab. Now they came to Bethlehem ^y at the beginning of barley harvest.

Ruth Meets Boaz

² There was a ^a relative of Naomi’s husband, a man of great wealth, of the family of ^b Elimelech. His name was

1:10–13 Naomi’s daughters-in-law insisted on returning with her. In response, Naomi pointed out that she could not provide husbands for them and expressed concern for their happiness. Her love for them is evidenced by the use of the personal words my daughters in vv. 11, 13.

1:13 grieves: Naomi was bitter that she was without husband and sons and attributed her circumstances to God’s discipline.

1:14 In this verse, the responses of Orpah and Ruth are contrasted. Orpah did the expected thing and returned home. Yet Ruth unexpectedly stayed with her impoverished mother-in-law. Though understandable, Orpah’s action meant that she had left the Israelites and their God. On the other hand, Ruth’s action brought her into the Messiah’s family line (4:18–22).

1:15 Naomi tried one last time to convince Ruth to return to Moab.

The word for gods refers to the deities of Moab. Here we are reminded that coming to Israel was also coming to the one Lord; remaining outside of Israel was remaining away from the covenant community.

1:16, 17 In a beautiful, emotionally charged poetic response, Ruth described her determination to remain with Naomi. Her assertion that Naomi’s God would be her God is especially striking. This is an affirmation of faith in the Lord, the God of Israel. Ruth’s use of the divine name Yahweh translated as the LORD in an oath indicates her commitment to the living God. She was choosing to cling not only to Naomi, her land, and her people, but also to her God. In effect, Ruth was forsaking all that she had ever known to follow the one true God. She was following in the footsteps of Abraham, who had forsaken his family and his homeland in response to God’s command (Gen. 12:1, 4).

1:20 Naomi temporarily forgot or ignored the courageous and loyal commitment of Ruth. She wanted her name to reflect her bitterness over her circumstances so she named herself Mara, meaning “Bitter.”

1:21 The concepts of fullness and emptiness appear here. Naomi left for Moab complete, with a husband and two sons. But now she returned to Bethlehem empty. She had no family except for Ruth.

1:22 The theme of return is prominent in this chapter. The word is even used of Ruth—an unusual word for the narrator to use since there is no indication that Ruth had ever been to Israel. Ruth the Moabitess: As the story explains, God extended His protection to Ruth even though she was a foreigner. Ruth and Naomi arrived at the beginning of barley harvest. Barley was the first crop to ripen, and this period would be the beginning of the harvest season. The fact that there was a harvest season indicates that the famine in Israel had ended (1:1, 6).

2:1 Boaz was related to Naomi’s husband, Elimelech. This notice suggests the possibility of a solution for the distressed situation in which Naomi and Ruth found themselves. The status of a widow in the ancient Middle East was difficult at best. In times of trouble, the

(Heb. laqat) (2:2; Lev. 19:10; 23:22) Strong’s #3950

The Hebrew word used here means “to gather together” or “to pick up.” In the OT, people are described as gleaning a variety of objects: stones (Gen. 31:46), money (Gen. 47:14), manna (Ex. 16:4, 5, 26), and even worthless men (Judg. 11:3). The prophet Isaiah used this word to describe how the Lord would “gather up” His people from among all the nations and restore them to their own land (Is. 27:12). The verb occurs 34 times in the OT, with 12 instances here in ch. 2. In this passage, Ruth makes use of the stipulations the Lord gave to Moses. God had told the Israelites not to completely harvest their fields; instead they were to leave some unharvested so that the poor and strangers in the land could gather it up for their survival (Lev. 19:9, 10; 23:22).

^cBoaz. ²So Ruth the Moabitess said to Naomi, "Please let me go to the ^dfield, and glean heads of grain after him in whose sight I may find favor."

And she said to her, "Go, my daughter."

³Then she left, and went and gleaned in the field after the reapers. And she happened to come to the part of the field belonging to Boaz, who was of the family of Elimelech.

⁴Now behold, Boaz came from ^eBethlehem, and said to the reapers, ^f"The LORD be with you!"

And they answered him, "The LORD bless you!"

⁵Then Boaz said to his servant who was in charge of the reapers, "Whose young woman is this?"

⁶So the servant who was in charge of the reapers answered and said, "It is the young Moabite woman ^gwho came back with Naomi from the country of Moab. ⁷And she said, 'Please let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves.' So she came and has continued from morning until now, though she rested a little in the house."

⁸Then Boaz said to Ruth, "You will listen, my daughter, will you not? Do not go to glean in another field, nor go from here, but stay close by my young women. ⁹Let your eyes be on the field which they reap, and go after them. Have I not commanded the young men not to touch you? And when you are thirsty, go to the vessels and drink from what the young men have drawn."

to the ground, and said to him, "Why have I found ⁱfavor in your eyes, that you should take notice of me, since I am a foreigner?"

¹¹And Boaz answered and said to her, "It has been fully reported to me, ^jall that you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband, and how you have left your father and your mother and the land of your birth, and have come to a people whom you did not know before. ¹²^kThe LORD repay your work, and a full reward be given you by the LORD God of Israel, ^lunder whose wings you have come for refuge."

¹³Then she said, ^m"Let me find favor in your sight, my lord; for you have comforted me, and have spoken ^lkindly to your maidservant, though I am not like one of your maidservants."

¹⁴Now Boaz said to her at mealtime, "Come here, and eat of the bread, and dip your piece of bread in the vinegar." So she sat beside the reapers, and he passed parched grain to her; and she ate and ^owas satisfied, and kept some back.

¹⁵And when she rose up to ²glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, "Let her glean even among the sheaves, and do not ³reproach her. ¹⁶Also let grain from the bundles fall purposely for her; leave it that she may glean, and do not rebuke her."

¹⁷So she gleaned in the field until evening, and beat out what she had gleaned, and it was about an ephah of ^pbarley.

¹⁸Then she took it up and went into the city, and her mother-in-law saw what she widow's situation was intolerable. That was why God commanded His people to care for the widow and the orphan (Deut. 24:19–22). As a relative, Boaz could stand up for the rights of these two women. He was described as a man of great wealth, a person of noble character and of high standing in the community. The name Boaz probably means "Swift Strength."

2:2 The Law of Moses allowed the poor to glean in the farmers' fields (Lev. 23:22).

2:3 happened to come: Though Ruth did not intentionally go to the field of Boaz, the Lord providentially directed her steps.

2:7 The sheaves refer to bundles of grain. Ruth was not presumptuous here but in gentleness asked for a favor that she might have claimed as an entitlement. Yet as an alien, her opportunities for gleaning in the fields of Judea may have been severely limited.

2:8, 9 Boaz demonstrated extraordinary concern for Ruth's provision and protection. He even thought of Ruth's need for water in the heat of the day.

2:11, 12 Boaz explained that he favored Ruth because she had shown "loyal love" to her mother-in-law, Naomi. He then gave her a blessing, asking that God would abundantly reward Ruth for her remarkable loyalty. Boaz expressed the idea of God's protection by saying that Ruth had come under God's wings.

2:13 Now Ruth called herself the maidservant of Boaz. She no longer called herself a foreigner as she had in v. 10.

2:14–16 Boaz repeatedly demonstrated God's compassion toward the Moabite woman. Boaz went beyond the letter of the Law. He not only let Ruth glean; he also amply supplied her with food. Here we see how the Law could function in the lives of godly people. It was a guide to righteous living.

2:17 The amount of barley that Ruth gleaned was more than half a bushel, more than would normally be expected for a day's work. The generosity of Boaz and the labor of Ruth produced this substantial supply. Boaz exhibited the highest form of charity by giving in secret so as not to shame the recipient.

(Heb. nokri) (2:10; Gen. 31:15; Ex. 2:22; Deut. 17:15; Is. 28:21) Strong's #5237

A foreigner is a person whose citizenship and loyalty belong to a different country. Because Israel was to be a special nation, there was a great danger that the Israelites would be influenced by the ways of other nations and, in the process, lose something of their special identity. That is why foreigners or outsiders were not permitted to take part in Israel's worship (Ex. 12:43; Ezek. 44:9). On the other hand, among the prophecies of a glorious future for Israel are some in which foreigners who come to worship the Lord are given an honored place (Is. 56:3–8). In NT times, the apostle Paul insisted that the barriers between Jews and foreigners had been broken down in Jesus Christ (Eph. 2:11–3:6).

had gleaned. So she brought out and gave to her ^awhat she had kept back after she had been satisfied.

¹⁹ And her mother-in-law said to her, “Where have you gleaned today? And where did you work? Blessed be the one who ^rtook notice of you.”

So she told her mother-in-law with whom she had worked, and said, “The man’s name with whom I worked today is Boaz.”

²⁰ Then Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, ^s“Blessed be he of the LORD, who ^thas not forsaken His kindness to the living and the dead!” And Naomi said to her, “This man is a relation of ours, ^uone of ⁴our close relatives.”

²¹ Ruth the Moabitess said, “He also said to me, ‘You shall stay close by my young men until they have finished all my harvest.’”

²² And Naomi said to Ruth her daughter-in-law, “It is good, my daughter, that you go out with his young women, and that people do not ⁵meet you in any other field.” ²³ So she stayed close by the young women of Boaz, to glean until the end of barley harvest and wheat harvest; and she dwelt with her mother-in-law.

⁵ And she said to her, “All that you say to me I will do.”

⁶ So she went down to the threshing floor and did according to all that her mother-in-law instructed her. ⁷ And after Boaz had eaten and drunk, and ^ehis heart was cheerful, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of grain; and she came softly, uncovered his feet, and lay down.

⁸ Now it happened at midnight that the man was startled, and turned himself; and there, a woman was lying at his feet.

⁹ And he said, “Who are you?”

So she answered, “I am Ruth, your maidservant. ^fTake² your maidservant under your wing, for you are ^ga ³close relative.”

But if he does not want to perform the duty for you, then I will perform the duty for 2:20 Naomi praised the Lord for His kindness, His “loyal love.” God had not abandoned Ruth and Naomi. Instead, He had faithfully provided for their needs. After utter despair, Naomi once again placed her hope in God.

3:1 Once again, Naomi returned to the subject of security or rest, which she addressed in 1:9. In the first instance, she had asked God to provide her daughters-in-law the “rest” of marriage. Now she was determined to seek this rest for Ruth.
3:2 The threshing floor was located in a public place. There animals would trample the husks in order to separate the grain. Then the mixture would be tossed in the air so the wind would blow away the chaff. Boaz had to stay the night to guard his grain from thieves.
3:3 best garment: This probably referred to an outer garment that Ruth wore to keep warm in the night. eating and drinking: Festivity accompanied the end of the harvest.
3:4 uncover his feet: Ruth would remove the edge of Boaz’s outer garment from his feet and lie down by his uncovered feet. Holding his feet was an act of submission. This was a daring and dramatic action that would call for a decision on his part to be her protector—and, likely, her husband.
3:7, 8 Ruth came softly, that is, secretly, so that no one would see her. That she came at night was also a means of protecting Boaz from embarrassment in case he decided not to exercise his duty as a close relative.
3:9 your wing: Ruth deliberately used the same word that Boaz used in reference to God in 2:12. Though she spoke here of the edge of the garment of Boaz, she was clearly asking him for protection and security in the same way that Boaz spoke of Ruth seeking God’s protection. The final phrase, for you are a close relative, shows that she was seeking his refuge in the sense of requesting him as her marriage partner. Since her husband had died without giving her a child, it was the responsibility of a close relative to marry her in order to provide an heir for her deceased husband.

3:10, 11 Boaz understood that Ruth was making a marriage proposal and praised her for not seeking younger men to marry. He knew that Ruth’s initiative was in keeping with the Law. A levirate marriage would provide her deceased husband with an heir (Deut. 25:5–10). In the ancient Middle East, not having an heir was considered a tragedy for the family. The particular kindness that Boaz spoke of was Ruth’s loyal love toward Naomi in choosing to remain with her even though she faced poverty. virtuous woman: The high praise of Boaz shows that Ruth as a godly woman had not compromised herself.
3:12 The suspense in the narrative increases when Boaz announces that there is a relative closer than he. The nearest relative would have the opportunity to carry out that responsibility first.
3:13 Boaz wanted to take immediate responsibility for Ruth and Naomi, so he asked her to stay with him so she would not be exposed to any danger by returning to her home in the middle of the night. The statement as the Lord lives reinforces the resolve of Boaz to take responsibility for Ruth.

you, as the LORD lives! Lie down until morning.”

¹⁴So she lay at his feet until morning, and she arose before one could recognize another. Then he said, “Do not let it be known that the woman came to the threshing floor.” ¹⁵Also he said, “Bring the shawl that is on you and hold it.” And when she held it, he measured six ephahs of barley, and laid it on her. Then ⁵she went into the city.

¹⁶When she came to her mother-in-law, she said, “Is that you, my daughter?”

Then she told her all that the man had done for her. ¹⁷And she said, “These six ephahs of barley he gave me; for he said to me, ‘Do not go empty-handed to your mother-in-law.’”

¹⁸Then she said, “Sit still, my daughter, until you know how the matter will turn out; for the man will not rest until he has concluded the matter this day.”

Boaz Redeems Ruth

4 Now Boaz went up to the gate and sat down there; and behold, the close relative of whom Boaz had spoken came by. So Boaz said, “Come aside, friend, sit down here.” So he came aside and sat down. ²And he took ten men of the elders of the city, and said, “Sit down here.” So they sat down. ³Then he said to the close relative, “Naomi, who

If you will redeem it, redeem it; but if you will not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know; for there is no one but you to redeem it, and I am next after you.”*

And he said, “I will redeem it.”

⁵Then Boaz said, “On the day you buy the field from the hand of Naomi, you must also buy it from Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, so that you may perpetuate the name of the dead through his inheritance.”

⁶And the close relative said, “I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I ruin my own inheritance. You redeem my right of redemption for yourself, for I cannot redeem it.”

⁷Now this was the custom in former times in Israel concerning redeeming and exchanging, to confirm anything: one man took off his sandal and gave it to the other, and this was a confirmation in Israel.

⁸Therefore the close relative said to Boaz, “Buy it for yourself.” So he took off his sandal. ⁹And Boaz said to the elders and all the people, “You are witnesses this day that I have bought all that was Elimelech’s, and all that was Chilion’s

3:14 before one could recognize another: Ruth left at early dawn, in order to avoid anyone who might recognize her. Boaz probably did not want anyone to misconstrue what had taken place.

3:15 Again Boaz demonstrated loyal love or kindness by his gift of barley grain to Ruth and Naomi. laid it on her: Boaz probably helped raise the barley to Ruth’s head in order for Ruth to carry it home to Naomi.

3:16 Is that you: These words are possibly a comment on the radiance of the woman whose life was about to change so radically.

3:17 empty-handed: The theme of emptiness and fullness is repeated here (1:21).

3:18 Naomi was confident that Boaz would see the matter through to its conclusion the same day. Boaz had repeatedly demonstrated that he was an upright and compassionate man by his continuing provision for the two women.

4:1, 2 Official and legal business typically occurred at the gate of a city, so it was natural for Boaz to speak with the other close relative there in the presence of the elders of the community. During the time of the kings, a ruler might come to the city gate to proclaim a public judgment.

4:3 One of the duties of the close relative was to redeem land that had been sold by the family due to poverty. sold: This verb could be translated “about to sell.” Verse 5 indicates that the sale was still in the future, and v. 9 states that Boaz purchased the land from Naomi.

4:4 Boaz offered the land to the closer relative first; this man initially agreed to purchase it. The Law provided for land to stay within a family, even if it had to be sold temporarily due to poverty. The seller could redeem the land later, or a close relative could redeem it. If neither of these alternatives was possible, the land would be returned to the family in the Year of Jubilee, every fiftieth year. Land was not sold permanently because it ultimately belonged to God (Lev. 25:23).

4:5 To perpetuate the name of the dead makes it clear that the close relative was needed to buy the land but also to take Ruth as his wife. This was in accordance with the levirate law, which provided for an heir for the deceased. Here the dead relative was Mahlon, Ruth’s husband (4:10). In carrying on the name of Mahlon, the line of Elimelech would continue.

4:6 When the close relative discovered that he was expected to marry Ruth, he declined his right of redemption because his own inheritance might be ruined. He apparently did not want the double responsibility of buying the field and supporting Naomi and Ruth. In addition, he did not want the field to be inherited by Ruth’s future son instead of members of his own family.

4:7, 8 The removal of a sandal was part of a legal transaction in ancient Israel (Deut. 25:8–10). It would parallel the modern custom of concluding a transaction by signing a document or handing over a set of keys. By handing over his shoe, the close relative was symbolically handing over his right to walk on the land that was being sold.

4:9 The witnesses at the gate played a significant role in validating

The Hebrew word refers to a relative who acted as a protector or guarantor of the family rights. He could be called upon to perform a number of duties: (1) to buy back property that the family had sold; (2) to provide an heir for a deceased brother by marrying that brother’s wife and producing a child with her; (3) to buy back a family member who had been sold into slavery due to poverty; and (4) to avenge a relative who had been murdered by killing the murderer. The Scripture calls God the Redeemer or the “close relative” of Israel (Is. 60:16), and Jesus the Redeemer of all believers (1 Pet. 1:18, 19).

LORD gave her conception, and she bore a son. ¹⁴Then ^tthe women said to Naomi, "Blessed be the LORD, who has not left you this day without a ⁶close relative; and may his name be famous in Israel! ¹⁵And may he be to you a restorer of life and a ⁷nourisher of your old age; for your daughter-in-law, who loves you, who is ^ubetter to you than seven sons, has borne him." ¹⁶Then Naomi took the child and laid him on her bosom, and became a nurse to him. ¹⁷^v Also the neighbor women gave him a name, saying, "There is a son born to Naomi." the transaction. Chilion and Mahlon: Elimelech's sons would have been the heirs of their father's land. from the hand of Naomi: The land was bought from Elimelech's widow, Naomi.

4:10 acquired: In addition to redeeming the land, Boaz also redeemed Ruth by taking her as his wife. In contrast to the land, Ruth was not bought. She did not require a purchase price nor was Boaz required to redeem her. He willingly chose to be her redeemer. Boaz was a blood relative of Elimelech, and he was financially able to take on the responsibilities of redemption. Mahlon: This verse adds the detail that Ruth had been the wife of the brother named Mahlon, a detail omitted from ch. 1.

4:11 The people and the elders affirmed the legal proceeding with their response, we are witnesses. Then the crowd gave Ruth a remarkable blessing by asking that the LORD make her like Rachel and Leah, Israel's founding mothers (Gen. 35:23–26). Even though Ruth was a Moabite, she was fully and eagerly accepted by the Israelites. The Law of Moses demanded the exclusion of the Moabites from the congregation of Israel for ten generations (1:22). In this exceptional case we see a beautiful example of the spirit of the Law being maintained. Ruth loyally loved Naomi by leaving her homeland and serving her mother-in-law even in the worst of circumstances. In turn, God rewarded Ruth by extending His loyal love to her. He gave this foreigner a godly husband, accepted her as one of His people, and gave her a child who would be an ancestor of King David and ultimately of Jesus (vv. 13, 22).

4:12 The Book of Ruth is replete with allusions to the Pentateuch. Here the name of Tamar refers to another story about the spirit of the Law (Gen. 38). Certainly Tamar's behavior would not normally be commended. Yet she was desperate because her husband's brothers would not fulfill their responsibility to her, and in the end Judah praised her as more righteous than himself (Gen. 38:26). Even in Tamar's deplorable situation, God mercifully blessed her with a son, and this son Perez was an ancestor to King David (v. 18). Like Ruth, Rahab was a Gentile woman. Yet God extended His loyal love to Rahab because of her faith in Him and included her in the messianic line.

4:13 the LORD gave her conception: Children are a gift from God. He fashions every person in the womb of the mother (Ps. 139:13).

4:14, 15 Here the close relative is not Boaz but his newborn son, the grandson of Naomi. The women praised God for His provision for Naomi. They offered a blessing for the child, asking that his fame be extended throughout Israel and that he would comfort Naomi and nourish her in her old age. Naomi's emptiness had been replaced with fullness through the birth of this boy. Sons were considered a great reward, so for the women to state that Ruth is better to Naomi than seven sons was considerable praise for Ruth.

4:17 The theme of Naomi's fullness continues to dominate as the neighbor women declared that a child was born to Naomi. His name was Obed, signifying "One Who Serves." The author at last reveals how Ruth, a Moabite woman, had become part of the royal Davidic line and, thus, the messianic line (see Matt. 1:5).

4:18–22 The story concludes with David's genealogy, beginning with Perez, the son of Judah and Tamar. This genealogy could have been added to the book long after the original writing was complete, but more probably the book as a whole was composed at a later date than the events described. The genealogy of David is not really an appendix, but an essential element demonstrating the author's purpose—and the purpose of the Lord in the building of the family line of King David and the Messiah. The story of Boaz's redemption of a foreign woman points to Jesus' great redemption of all those who believe in Him.

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL

FIRST SAMUEL RECOUNTS King Saul's extraordinary rise to power and influence and his subsequent tragic fall. In this sense, the book reads like a classic Greek tragedy or Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman. Saul's good looks, his physical size, and his success in war made him an obvious choice to be first king of Israel. But the author of 1 Samuel highlights Saul's tragic flaw—his disobedience of God's commands (13:7–12; 15:10–26). Because of his disobedience, God rejected him. Abandoned by God, Saul quickly lost his courage, became jealous of David's success, and eventually lost his mind. From the ashes of this tragedy, God raised up another king who would obey the directives of the one true King, the God of Israel.

Title First Samuel is appropriately named after Samuel, the principal character of the early narratives and the one who anointed Israel's first two kings, Saul and David.

First and Second Samuel were originally one book, "The Book of Samuel" in the Hebrew Scriptures. When these Scriptures were translated into Greek, around 150 B.C., Samuel and Kings were brought together into a complete history of the Hebrew monarchy. This unit of Scripture was divided into four sections: First, Second, Third, and Fourth Kingdoms. Samuel and Kings were later separated again, but the divisions of the Greek translation persisted. The result was a 1 and 2 Samuel and a 1 and 2 Kings.

Author and Date The Jewish tradition suggests that Samuel was the author of the first part of the book (chs. 1–24), and that the prophet Nathan and the seer Gad were the authors of the remainder, including 2 Samuel. Another editor at a later date could have taken the memoirs of Samuel, Nathan, Gad, and others and woven them under the guidance of the Holy Spirit into the wonderfully unified book we have today.

A number of critical scholars have dated the book around the middle of the sixth century—much later than the lives of Samuel and Nathan (c. 1100–1010 B.C.). It is obvious that at least some parts of the book were written after the death of Samuel (25:1; 28:3), and perhaps even after the division of the monarchy (27:6). However, there is no reference to the fall of Samaria to the Assyrians (722 B.C.), and it is reasonable to assume that the book was complete by the last quarter of the eighth century B.C. The eighth-century author used documents dating back to David's reign or shortly after (1025–900 B.C.). The author included eyewitness accounts, and the antiquity of some linguistic features indicate that parts of the book were written at an early period.

Historical Setting At the beginning of 1 Samuel, the nation of Israel was at a religious low point. Even the priesthood was corrupt (2:12–17). To make things worse, Samuel's sons who served as judges in Beersheba were also dishonest (8:2, 3). With such evil leaders as models, the people of Israel showed open disdain for the word of God and refused to listen to His prophet Samuel (8:19).

Yet in the midst of widespread corruption and apostasy, there was a righteous remnant of Israelites who faithfully worshiped God (1:3). The worship center of Israel at this time was located at Shiloh, where the tabernacle was set up (1:3; Josh. 18:1). However, even the contents of the tabernacle were not left undisturbed during these tumultuous and evil times. The ark of the covenant was captured by the Philistines (4:11). After a seven-month sojourn among the Philistine cities (5:1—6:16), the ark was returned to Beth Shemesh (6:19) and then kept at Kirjath Jearim (7:1) until David brought it to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6:1–17).

During this time, the Israelites became dissatisfied with the abusive rule of the judges (8:3). The people longed for the glories of a monarchy such as they saw in the surrounding nations. So the Lord allowed the Israelites to have their way. He gave them a king like the other nations: the handsome and tall King Saul (10:1). Although Saul appeared to be well suited for leading a nation, his reign ended in tragedy because he ignored the word of God. Much of the action of 1 Samuel is associated with the tumultuous life, reign, and decline of Saul, contrasted with the rapid rise of the young and faithful David.

During this early period of the Israelite monarchy (c. 1050–970 B.C.), the great empires of the ancient Middle East were in a state of weakness. The Hittites of Asia Minor had passed into insignificance. Assyria was in a state of decline, and Egypt was weakened by internal conflict. The Philistines constituted Israel's main threat during this period. Their skill in working iron had given them a decided military and economic advantage over Israel. Yet the threat of the Philistines had a positive impact on Israel's political situation. It caused the infant nation to unite under the leadership of its first kings, Saul and David.

Purpose and Literary Form The purpose of 1 Samuel is to provide an official account of the rise of the monarchy during the time of Samuel and the development of it under Saul and David. The book particularly focuses on the rise of David during this period.

In fact, the second half of the book and first half of 2 Samuel amount to an apology for David's rise to the throne. The similarities of this section to the Apology of Hattusilis, a thirteenth-century B.C. writing, are remarkable. In this ancient document, a Hittite king outlined the reasons for the legitimacy of his rule. Such an apology was particularly important in the case of a king—like David—who founded a new dynasty. Hattusilis's dynastic defense included the following elements:

1. A detailed description of the disqualifications of the preceding ruler (compare 1 Sam. 15:1–35).
2. An extended history of events leading up to the new king's accession (compare 1 Sam. 16:1 and 2 Sam. 5:17).
3. A defense of the new king's ability to rule, as evidenced by military achievements (compare 1 Sam. 17:1–58).
4. A record of the new king's leniency on political foes, in contrast to usurpers, who typically assassinated the former king (compare 24:1–10; 26:1–9).
5. A report of the new king's interest in religion (compare 2 Sam. 6:1–19; 7:1–29).
6. A conclusion that included a summary of the new king's reign, demonstrating the divine blessing on his rule as evidenced by the expansion of his kingdom and the establishment of peace with surrounding nations (compare 2 Sam. 8:1–18).

The similarities between the Apology of Hattusilis and 1 Samuel 15:1 through 2 Samuel 8:18 illustrate clearly how that part of 1 and 2 Samuel serves as an apology for David's reign. Part of the apology is the irrefutable evidence that God Himself had chosen David for the throne (16:1–13). Initially, David was a surprising choice—an undistinguished member of a rural family. Yet his remarkable faith in the Lord distinguished David from his fellow Israelites and from Saul (17:1–51). God shaped David’s character while he was on the run from Saul’s erratic wrath. In these distressing times, David learned to trust in God for deliverance. Although he made mistakes, he always turned back to God for mercy. For this reason, David was called the man after God’s own heart (13:14).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

First Samuel focuses on the life of David and reveals details that definitely point to the One who would be called by his name. Like Jesus, David is born in the sleepy little village of Bethlehem. His reputation as a shepherd is validated by his years with his father’s flocks. This lowly shepherd becomes the king of the Jews. He is the anointed king who becomes the forerunner of the messianic King. Through years of struggle and danger, David tastes the kind of rejection Jesus would fully digest. Many of his psalms reveal his firsthand experience of being forsaken (Ps. 22; Matt. 27:46).

David is the most famous of Jesus’ earthly ancestors in the long and distinguished messianic line. In addition to being referred to as the “Son of David” (Luke 18:38), Jesus is called “the seed of David according to the flesh” (Rom. 1:3) and “the Root and the Offspring of David” (Rev. 22:16).

Polygamy

Polygamy was an accepted social custom throughout the ancient Middle East. It was also a common practice among the ancient Israelites. In ancient Israel, failure to have children was regarded as a family tragedy, for several reasons. In an agrarian culture, children were needed to help with the work of everyday life. Without sons, the family name would not be preserved, and without an heir, the family would be unable to maintain its place in the tribal allotments. Finally, a woman without children would never be the mother—or an ancestor—of the promised Messiah (Gen. 3:15). Elkanah most likely took a second wife, Peninnah, for a reason that was legitimate in the ancient world: His first wife was barren. At that time, the blame for not having children was always assigned to the woman, and barrenness was often the cause of divorce. Even though polygamy was an accepted custom, God's law warned rulers against marrying many women (Deut. 17:17).

LORD. ¹⁰^m And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed to the LORD and ⁴wept in anguish. ¹¹Then she ⁿmade a vow and said, "O LORD of hosts, if You will indeed ^olook on the affliction of Your maidservant and ^premember me, and not forget Your maidservant, but will give Your maidservant a male child, then I will give him to the LORD all the days of his life, and ^qno razor shall come upon his head."

1:1 Ramathaim Zophim is another name for Ramah (v. 19), a village about five miles north of Jerusalem. The mountains of Ephraim refers to the hill country primarily occupied by the tribe of Ephraim. Elkanah, whose Hebrew name means "God Has Created," was a Levite (1 Chr. 6:26, 34). He is referred to as an Ephraimite since he lived in the territory of Ephraim.

1:3 yearly: God's law called for the Israelites to attend three annual pilgrim festivals in Jerusalem (Ex. 34:23; Deut. 16:16). The LORD of hosts is a military designation referring to God as the One who commands the angelic armies of heaven (1 Kin. 22:19; Luke 2:13; Rev. 19:14) and the armies of Israel (17:45). Shiloh, located about 20 miles north of Jerusalem, was the religious center for the nation at this time and the location of the tabernacle (Josh. 18:1). Eli, Hophni, and Phinehas served as priests at Shiloh, officiating at the sacrifices presented in the court of the tabernacle. Eli may mean "God Is High." Hophni means "Tadpole." Phinehas may come from an Egyptian word meaning "Black One."

1:4, 5 The double portion was designed to compensate Hannah for her lack of children and demonstrate Elkanah's love for her. the LORD had closed her womb: God is the One who provides the ability to conceive children (see Gen. 33:5; Ps. 127:3).

1:6 Her rival refers to Peninnah, Elkanah's other wife, who took every occasion to flaunt her children before Hannah.

1:7 she went up: God's law demanded that the men of Israel appear before Him on three festival occasions. Many brought their families with them, but it was not required that they do so. This verse shows

Hannah's devotion to the Lord in that she also made annual treks to Shiloh to worship God. she wept and did not eat: Peninnah's constant taunting drove Hannah to depression.

1:8 While Peninnah provoked Hannah, Elkanah sought to encourage her. He suggested that his love for Hannah was a greater blessing than having ten sons.

1:9 eating and drinking: The worship of God involved not only the sacrifice of animals, but also lavish banquets of meat and wine. Eli, Israel's high priest and judge (4:18), was from the family of Ithamar, Aaron's fourth son (1 Kin. 2:27; 1 Chr. 24:1, 3). The last high priest mentioned before him was Phinehas, the son of Eleazar (Judg. 20:28). It is not known why or how the office of high priest passed from the house of Eleazar to that of Ithamar. The doorpost of the tabernacle refers to the entrance of the place of worship, where people would approach Eli for judicial rulings.

1:11 Within the context of her prayer, Hannah made a vow to God. She promised that if God would give her a son, the child would be given back to God. Levites customarily served from age 25 to 50 (Num. 4:3; 8:24-26). Yet Hannah dedicated her son for lifelong service. The words no razor shall come upon his head refer to the law of the Nazirite (Num. 6:2-6). The Nazirite vow involved a designated period of time (usually no more than a few weeks or months) during which there was a commitment to refrain completely from wine, from cutting the hair, and touching any dead body. Hannah promised that her son would be a Nazirite for life.

her mouth. ¹³Now Hannah spoke in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard. Therefore Eli thought she was drunk. ¹⁴So Eli said to her, “How long will you be drunk? Put your wine away from you!”

¹⁵But Hannah answered and said, “No, my lord, I am a woman of sorrowful spirit. I have drunk neither wine nor intoxicating drink, but have ^rpoured out my soul before the LORD. ¹⁶Do not consider your maidservant a ^swicked⁵ woman, for out of the abundance of my complaint and grief I have spoken until now.”

¹⁷Then Eli answered and said, ^t“Go in peace, and ^uthe God of Israel grant your petition which you have asked of Him.”

¹⁸And she said, ^v“Let your maidservant find favor in your sight.” So the woman ^wwent her way and ate, and her face was no longer sad.

And Elkanah ^xknew Hannah his wife, and the LORD ^yremembered her. ²⁰So it came to pass in the process of time that Hannah conceived and bore a son, and called his name ^zSamuel, saying, “Because I have asked for him from the LORD.”

to understand what Hannah was saying. Because of the long time she spent in prayer, Eli assumed that she had drunk too much wine.

1:15 Intoxicating drink is an older translation of the word meaning “beer.” Poured out my soul before the LORD is an excellent description of fervent prayer (see Ps. 62:8; Phil. 4:6, 7; 1 Pet. 5:7).

1:16 The Hebrew for wicked woman, literally “daughter of Belial,” means “without value.” Belial was later used as a proper name for Satan (see 2 Cor. 6:15).

1:17, 18 Go in peace: Hannah’s changed countenance seems to indicate that she experienced God’s peace (see Phil. 4:6, 7) as she waited for the answer to her prayer.

1:19 Elkanah knew Hannah means that he slept with her (see Gen. 4:1). The word remembered indicates that God began to intervene on Hannah’s behalf to answer her prayer.

1:20 The birth of Hannah’s son is part of a long history of godly women and men praying for a child as God’s gift (see Gen. 12:1–3). When Hannah gave birth, she named her son Samuel, which means “Name of God.”

1:22 until the child is weaned: Hebrew children were normally weaned when they were two or three years old.

1:23 According to the law, Elkanah might have declared Hannah’s vow a rash promise and prohibited her from fulfilling it (Num. 30:10–15). The fact that he did not do so shows his love and esteem for Hannah.

1:24, 25 three bulls: God’s law required that a burnt offering be given at the completion of a special vow (Num. 15:3, 8). Two of the bulls likely served as a present for Eli and the third one was sacrificed. One ephah was roughly five gallons. A skin of wine was for the drink offering.

1:26, 27 Hannah offered a testimony of what God had accomplished on her behalf. By telling others, she exalted God and praised Him for His gracious acts toward her.

1:28 lent him to the LORD: The Hebrew word translated lent has the idea of a complete giving up of the child to God. they worshiped: The Hebrew word for worship means “bow down.” This is the humble response of grateful people who acknowledge the majesty of God.

2:1 Hannah began her prayer by rejoicing in the Lord for having been given a child. My horn is exalted: Used figuratively, a horn represents power and strength, like that of an ox (see Dan. 7:21; Zech. 1:18–21). With exalted horn means with head high, conscious of strength. Hannah’s sense of strength was in God, who had answered her prayer.

2:2 No one is holy like the LORD: That which is holy is marked off, separated, and withdrawn from ordinary use. Holy is the opposite of profane or common. The image of a rock when applied to God, speaks of His eternity, stability, and reliability (see Deut. 32:4; 2 Sam. 22:2, 3).

2:3 Hannah addressed all the proud, not only Peninnah, but all who

11 Then Elkanah went to his house at Ramah. But the child ⁴ministered to the LORD before Eli the priest.

The Wicked Sons of Eli

12 Now the sons of Eli were ^acorrupt;⁵
^bthey did not know the LORD. 13 And the priests’ custom with the people was that when any man offered a sacrifice, the priest’s servant would come with a three-pronged fleshhook in his hand while the meat was boiling. 14 Then he would thrust it into the pan, or kettle, or cal-dron, or pot; and the priest would take for himself all that the fleshhook brought up. So they did in ^cShiloh to all the Israelites who came there. 15 Also, before they ^dburned the fat, the priest’s servant would come and say to the man who sacrificed, “Give meat for roasting to the priest, for he will not take boiled meat from you, but raw.”

16 And if the man said to him, “They should really burn the fat first; then you boast. Since the God of knowledge knows all things, He will appraise our performance along with our words and our promises.

2:4, 5 Hannah mentioned three examples—military power, wealth, and the birth of children—of how God reverses human circumstances, humbling the proud and exalting the lowly. Mary made the same point in her song (Luke 1:46–55).

2:6 The word grave refers to the place of the dead for both the righteous and the wicked (see Gen. 37:35). The sovereign God who brings death also brings up from the grave. This verse may refer to God’s power to resurrect the dead (see Ps. 16:10; Dan. 12:2).

2:7, 8 dust . . . ash heap: These parallel terms describe the festering compost piles outside the city walls where people dumped their refuse, including the ash from ovens. It was there that beggars and lepers would sit and solicit alms. Hannah used the image to indicate the deepest degradation: God assists those in the worst circumstances (see Ps. 113:7–9).

2:9, 10 In line with the pattern of ancient wisdom literature, Hannah contrasted the righteous and the wicked. The Lord would keep His saints from stumbling, but the adversaries of the LORD would face certain calamity. The Hebrew word for anointed means “Messiah.” This phrase points to the ultimate King, before whom every knee shall bow (see Phil. 2:10). Hannah saw the work of God in granting her a child as another step in the fulfillment of His promise to the mothers of Israel, that He would one day provide through them a Messiah.

2:12 Were corrupt is literally “were sons of Belial,” persons of no value (30:22). did not know the LORD: They had no personal, intimate knowledge. The priests were teachers of God’s law and officiated at His sacrifices. How tragic for them to know so much about the things of God and yet not know Him personally.

2:13–15 The priests’ rightful share of a sacrifice was the breast and the right thigh of the animal (Lev. 7:34). Eli’s sons sinned by taking any part they wanted and demanding the meat immediately, before the part consecrated to God, the fat, had been burned on the altar (Lev. 3:3, 5).

2:16 if the man said: In this instance, the layperson knew God’s Word and the importance of obedience better than the priests.

darkness

(Heb. choshek) (2:9; Gen. 1:2; Job 10:21; Is. 5:30; 9:2; Joel 2:2, 31) Strong’s #2822

Darkness existed before the light of creation (Gen. 1:2).
Since darkness was associated with the chaos that existed before the creation, it came to be associated with evil, bad luck, or affliction (Job 17:12; 21:17). Darkness was also equated with death. In Sheol, the land of the dead, there is only darkness (Job 10:21, 22; 38:17). Darkness symbolizes human ignorance of God’s will, and thus is associated with sin (Job 24:13–17). Darkness also describes the condition of those who have not yet seen the light concerning Jesus (John 1:4, 5; 12:35; Eph. 5:14) and those who deliberately turn away from the light (John 3:19, 20). Hating the light will bring condemnation (Col. 1:13; 2 Pet. 2:17). Living in extreme darkness describes those who at the end of time have not repented (Rev. 16:10; 18:23).

Prophecy Against Eli's Household

2:17 abhorred: Eli's sons dishonored God by doing their priestly duties with irreverence and disrespect. Those who regularly handle the things of God are sometimes in grave danger of carelessly and presumptuously performing the sacred duties entrusted to them.

2:18 The linen ephod was a sleeveless garment that was worn by priests, especially when officiating at the altar (see 2:28; 22:18; Ex. 28:6–14). Occasionally it was worn by others engaged in religious ceremonies, such as David (2 Sam. 6:14), and here by Samuel.

2:19 The little robe made by Hannah is different from the ephod mentioned in v. 18. It was probably a long outer garment like those worn by people of rank or special status. The fact that Hannah made such a robe indicated her love for her son, whom she could visit only on rare occasions.

2:20 the loan that was given: The word loan here indicates a complete giving up of the child to God (1:28).

2:21 visited Hannah: God came to Hannah to grant her request, as He had to Sarah (Gen. 21:1). In His gracious condescension, He comes near to His people to meet their needs (see Ruth 1:8). In other circumstances, God's visit may be for the purpose of judgment (see Hos. 1:4).

2:23, 24 Eli's protests seem weak in view of the enormity of his sons' sins.

One Woman's Devotion

Out of the materialism and ruthlessness of Israel during the period of the judges, Hannah emerged as a woman of faith. From her home in the hills north of Jerusalem, she had traveled to Shiloh, the national place of worship. Her sadness of heart and persistence in prayer contrasted sharply with the prevalent corruption in worship led by Eli's sons (2:12–17).

Hannah's personal life was one of despair in her childlessness as she recoiled from Peninnah's pestered reproaches. Her prayer exhibited selflessness as she pled for a son whom she might present to God for His use (1:11). Clearly, Hannah was loved and valued for herself by her husband, Elkanah, but even the intensity of a devoted husband's love could not penetrate her inner disquiet nor overcome her yearning for a child (1:8). The throbbing emotions of her despair were so evident in Hannah's prayers that the aged Eli accused her of drunkenness. But beyond her prayers and tears, a vow erupted. Hannah, in effect, made a pact with God; she pledged to give back to Him the precious life He might give to her. God honored her bold and decisive act.

Hannah's faith was rewarded, and she named her son Samuel (in Hebrew, "Name of God") because she "asked for him from the LORD" (1:20). According to custom, she probably nursed him several years, giving time for her to convey to Samuel her own spirit of deep reverence and piety and also to knit her heart with his through maternal bonding. Nonetheless, she kept her word to the Lord. Into the defiled worship center she placed her very young, impressionable son. Although humanly it seemed to border on foolishness, this was an act of saintly sacrifice. Her commitment was to God; her gift had been pre-arranged with Him. With prophetic insight she planted the next generation just as promised.

Samuel grew up to become the last judge, an outstanding and gifted prophet, and the one who would anoint the first two kings of Israel. Samuel was the pivotal spiritual leader who turned the nation toward Yahweh. His mother Hannah played her part in this spiritual awakening as she trusted God, leaving for all posterity an example of determined devotion in her motherhood.

Samuel's First Prophecy

3 Now ^athe boy Samuel ministered to the LORD before Eli. And ^bthe word of the LORD was rare in those days; there was no widespread revelation. ²And it came to pass at that time, while Eli was lying down in his place, and when his eyes had begun to grow ^cso dim that he could not see, ³and before ^dthe lamp of God went out in the ¹tabernacle of the LORD where the ark of God was, and while Samuel was lying down, ⁴that the LORD called Samuel. And he answered, "Here I am!" ⁵So he ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me."

And he said, "I did not call; lie down again." And he went and lay down.

⁶Then the LORD called yet again, "Samuel!"

So Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, "Here I am, for you called me." He

2:26 Compare the description of Samuel's childhood with that of Jesus (Luke 2:52). The contrast between Samuel and Eli's sons is inescapable.

2:27 The man of God was an unidentified prophet or spokesman for the Lord. Your father is a reference to Aaron, the brother of Moses and Miriam and the divinely appointed founder of the priestly house in Israel (Ex. 4:14-16; Num. 3:1-4).

2:29 Eli had warned his sons of divine judgment (v. 25), but he had never really rebuked them for their sins (3:13). By neglecting his parental duty, he was in effect favoring his sons above God.

2:30 I said: As descendants of Aaron, Eli's family benefited from the promise God had given to Aaron and his sons that they would be a priesthood forever (Ex. 29:9).

2:31-34 The prophet predicted the destruction of the priestly family of Eli. The judgment was partially fulfilled in the massacre of the priests of Nob (22:11-19), and was ultimately fulfilled when the priesthood was transferred to the family of Zadok in the time of Solomon (1 Kin. 2:26, 27, 35).

2:34 The deaths of Hophni and Phinehas would validate the truth of the prophecy (4:17).

2:35 The faithful priest refers to Zadok, who was faithful to God and to the line of David and Solomon (1 Kin. 1:7, 8; 2:26, 27, 35). To build him a sure house means to guarantee a long line of succession for this faithful priest.

2:36 The impoverishment predicted here was probably fulfilled when Abiathar, a descendant of Eli, was dismissed from the priesthood by Solomon (see 1 Kin. 2:27).

3:1 The word translated boy means "youth." It was used of David when he slew Goliath (17:33). rare in those days: Samuel was called at a time of extremely limited prophetic activity, probably because there were so few faithful Israelites who would listen (Judg. 21:25).

3:2 lying down in his place: Eli apparently was quartered in the court of the tabernacle, where cells were built for the priests who served the sanctuary.

3:3 The lamp of God is the gold lampstand that was located in the holy place of the tabernacle (see Ex. 27:20, 21; Lev. 24:2-4). The fact that it had not yet gone out indicates that Samuel's call took place just before dawn.

3:4-8 Three times Samuel mistook God's voice for the voice of Eli. Samuel had been assisting Eli in serving the tabernacle, but he did not yet know the LORD in an intimate and personal way. He had never heard God's voice. He had never received the word of the LORD by divine revelation.

answered, “I did not call, my son; lie down again.” ⁷ (Now Samuel ^e did not yet know the LORD, nor was the word of the LORD yet revealed to him.)

⁸ And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. So he arose and went to Eli, and said, “Here I am, for you did call me.”

Then Eli perceived that the LORD had called the boy. ⁹ Therefore Eli said to Samuel, “Go, lie down; and it shall be, if He calls you, that you must say, ^f ‘Speak, LORD, for Your servant hears.’” So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

¹⁰ Now the LORD came and stood and called as at other times, “Samuel! Samuel!”

And Samuel answered, “Speak, for Your servant hears.”

¹¹ Then the LORD said to Samuel: “Behold, I will do something in Israel ^g at which both ears of everyone who hears it will tingle. ¹² In that day I will perform against Eli ^h all that I have spoken concerning his house, from beginning to end. ¹³ For I have told him that I will ⁱ judge his house forever for the iniquity which he knows, because ^k his sons made themselves vile, and he ^l did not ² restrain them. ¹⁴ And therefore I have sworn to the house of Eli that the iniquity of Eli’s

He answered, “Here I am.”

Please do not hide it from me. ⁿ God do so to you, and more also, if you hide anything from me of all the things that He said to you.” ¹⁸ Then Samuel told him everything, and hid nothing from him. The Ark of God Captured

Now Israel went out to battle against the Philistines, and encamped beside

3:10 the LORD came and stood: These words reflect Samuel’s very real sense of God’s presence. This appears to have been a theophany, a visible appearance of God, as in Gen. 12:7.

3:12 from beginning to end: The judgment would extend from the death of Eli’s sons and continue until the whole prophecy given by the man of God (2:27–36) was fulfilled.

3:13 I have told him: The message was given through the anonymous “man of God” (2:27–36). I will judge: No descendants of Eli would serve as priest. made themselves vile: These were supposed to have been the esteemed priests of God, but they turned their privilege into disaster. he did not restrain them: Here we learn of Eli’s personal failure as a father. The word translated restrain occurs only here in the Hebrew Bible. It suggests a rebuke that sets things right.

3:14 shall not be atoned: Eli and his sons were guilty of presumptuous sin (see Num. 15:30, 31). For such a sin, there was no atoning sacrifice.

3:15 The doors of the house refers to the entrance of the court of the tabernacle. After the people settled in Canaan, the tabernacle was set up permanently at Shiloh, and a walled enclosure with doors replaced the curtains which once surrounded the sanctuary.

3:17 The phrase God do so to you, and more also is an oath. Eli was saying, “May God do something terrible, and worse, if you don’t tell me the truth.”

3:18 Let Him do: Eli submitted to God and accepted God’s judgment. Even with all his failures as a father, Eli remained faithful to God.

3:19 the LORD was with him: This was the key to Samuel’s success as a prophet (see Matt. 28:20). God remained with him. let none of his words fall: All the prophecies God delivered through Samuel were fulfilled.

3:20 The expression Dan to Beersheba denotes the whole territory of Israel, from its most northern to its most southern point (see Judg. 20:1). The term prophet means “spokesman” and refers to one who speaks for another (see Ex. 7:1, 2).

4:1 The Philistines, known in Egyptian texts as the “Sea Peoples,” were Indo-Europeans who migrated from the Aegean Islands and Asia Minor to the eastern Mediterranean coastal region in the twelfth century B.C. Migrations had occurred earlier, for Abraham and Isaac had contact with the Philistines as early as the twentieth century B.C. With their aggressive invasions and the fortress cities at Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, Gath, and Gaza, the Philistines established strong political and military control of the southern coastal plain of Palestine. With their iron weapons, the Philistines became a significant threat to Israelite security. The battle mentioned here took place between Ebenezer and Aphek. The name Ebenezer means “Stone of Help,” and it commemorates Israel’s victory at the same site about 20 years later (7:12). Aphek, located 13 miles northeast of Joppa, was a strategic border city at the northern limit of Philistine territory (29:1).

(Heb. shama) (3:10; 17:28; Gen. 3:10; Ex. 2:15; Is. 6:9) Strong’s #8085

The Hebrew word translated hears also means “to listen” or “to obey.” This important OT word appears over 1,100 times. It implies that the listener is giving his or her total attention to the one who is speaking. In some cases, the word connotes more than listening and indicates obedience to what has been said. Abraham was blessed not only for hearing, but for obeying God’s voice (see Gen. 22:18 where the word is translated obeyed). In the present passage Samuel is listening for God’s word and is determined to obey it. This young man is an example of the kind of person God delights to use—one who is always ready to receive His Word and follow it.

Dan to Beersheba

Dan was located further north than any other village in Israel during much of the OT period. Archaeologists excavating at Dan have uncovered remains that include an intact Middle Bronze Age mud-brick, triple-arch gateway as well as pagan altars dated to the period of Israel's divided monarchy. Beersheba was the chief city of the Negev, situated in the territory of Simeon. Midway between the Mediterranean Sea and the southern end of the Dead Sea, Beersheba was considered the southern extremity of the Promised Land, giving rise to the often-used expression, "all Israel from Dan to Beersheba" (1 Sam. 3:20).

And when they joined battle, Israel was ²defeated by the Philistines, who killed about four thousand men of the army in the field. ³And when the people had come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, "Why has the LORD defeated us today before the Philistines? ^cLet us bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD from Shiloh to us, that when it comes among us it may save us from the hand of our enemies." ⁴So the people sent to ⁵And when the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, all Israel shouted so loudly that the earth shook. ⁶Now when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, "What does the sound of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews mean?" Then they understood that the ark of the LORD had come into the camp. ⁷So the Philistines were afraid, for they said, "God has come into the camp!" And they said, ⁸"Woe to us! For such a thing has never happened before. ⁸Woe to us! Who will deliver us from the hand of these mighty gods? These are the gods who struck the Egyptians with all the plagues in the wilderness. ⁹^hBe strong and conduct yourselves like men, you Philistines, that you do not become servants of the Hebrews, ⁱas they have been to you. ³Conduct yourselves like men, and fight!"

¹⁰So the Philistines fought, and ^jIsrael was ⁴defeated, and every man fled to his tent. There was a very great slaughter, and there fell of Israel thirty thousand foot soldiers. ¹¹Also ^kthe ark of God was captured; and ^lthe two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, died.

4:2 The field refers to the flat coastal plain where the Philistines were able to use their chariots to great advantage (13:5).

4:3 The term people refers to the fighting men of Israel before there was a standing Israelite army. Elders refers to the family heads who gave leadership in politics and war before the creation of the monarchy. In preparation for their next battle with the Philistines, the Israelites brought the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle in Shiloh to the battlefield. It was the custom of ancient warriors to take symbols of their gods into battle so that their gods would deliver them (see 2 Sam. 5:21; 1 Chr. 14:12). This apparently was Israel's plan. They failed to recognize that God would be with them even if the ark was in Shiloh! it may save us: It seems that the Israelites viewed the ark superstitiously, believing divine power to be in the ark itself rather than in God.

4:4 who dwells between the cherubim: Cherubim are angels generally regarded as guardians of God's holiness (see Gen. 3:24; Ex. 25:22; 2 Sam. 6:2; 2 Kin. 19:15; Ps. 80:1; 99:1; Is. 37:16; Ezek. 10:9). God revealed Himself to Moses from between the two cherubim mounted at opposite ends of the mercy seat of the ark of the covenant (Ex. 25:22; Num. 7:89).

4:5, 7 the earth shook: The presence of the ark gave the Israelites a false sense of victory. God has come into the camp: The shouting of the Israelites at the sight of the ark struck fear in the hearts of the Philistines. They clearly viewed the ark as some sort of idol.

4:8 these mighty gods: The Philistines were polytheists, and they assumed that the Israelites also had many gods. The Philistines had heard the report of what God had accomplished for His people at the time of the Exodus (see Deut. 2:25).

4:11 The loss of the ark, symbolic of God's presence among His people, was a great tragedy for Israel—even worse than the loss of life (v. 10). The ark probably never returned to Shiloh. The Lord destroyed Shiloh because of the wickedness of His people (Jer. 7:12), and archaeological excavations indicate that the city was destroyed around 1050 B.C., perhaps by the Philistines. The deaths of Eli's sons, Hophni and Phinehas, mark the first step in God's judgment on the house of Eli (2:34).

4:12 Torn clothes and dirt on the head were traditional signs of mourning (see Josh. 7:6).

4:13 by the wayside: Eli was sitting by the city gate (v. 18), anxiously awaiting news of the battle.

was Eli, sitting on ^a a seat ^b by the wayside watching, for his heart ^c trembled for the ark of God. And when the man came into the city and told it, all the city cried out. ¹⁴ When Eli heard the noise of the outcry, he said, “What does the sound of this tumult mean?” And the man came quickly and told Eli. ¹⁵ Eli was ninety-eight years old, and ^d his eyes were so ^e dim that he could not see.

¹⁶ Then the man said to Eli, “I am he who came from the battle. And I fled today from the battle line.”

And he said, ^f “What happened, my son?”

¹⁷ So the messenger answered and said, “Israel has fled before the Philistines, and there has been a great slaughter among the people. Also your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead; and the ark of God has been captured.”

¹⁸ Then it happened, when he made mention of the ark of God, that Eli fell off the seat backward by the side of the gate; and his neck was broken and he died, for the man was old and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years.

Ichabod

¹⁹ Now his daughter-in-law, Phinehas’ wife, was with child, due to be delivered; and when she heard the news that the ark of God was captured, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and gave birth, for her labor pains came upon her. ²⁰ And about the time of her death ^g the women who stood by her said to her, “Do not fear, for you have borne a son.” But she did not answer, nor did she ^h regard it. ²¹ Then she named the child ⁱ Ichabod, ^j saying, ^k “The glory has departed from Israel!” because the ark of God had been captured and because of her father-in-law and her husband. ²² And she said,

The Philistines and the Ark

⁵ Then the Philistines took the ark of God and brought it ^a from Ebenezer to Ashdod. ² When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of ^b Dagon¹ and set it by Dagon. ³ And when the people of Ashdod arose early in the morning, there was Dagon, ^c fallen on its face to the earth before the ark of the LORD. So they took Dagon and ^d set it in its place again. ⁴ And when they arose early the next morning, there was Dagon, fallen on its face to the ground before the ark of the LORD. ^e The head of Dagon and both the palms of its hands were broken off on the threshold; only ² Dagon’s torso was left of it. ⁵ Therefore neither the priests of Dagon nor any who come into Dagon’s house ^f tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod to this day.

⁶ But the ^g hand of the LORD was heavy on the people of Ashdod, and He ^h ravaged them and struck them with ⁱ tumors, ³ both Ashdod and its ^j territory. ⁷ And when the men of Ashdod saw how it was, they said, “The ark of the ^k God of Israel must not remain with us, for His hand is harsh toward us and Dagon our god.” ⁸ Therefore they sent and gathered to themselves all the ^l lords of the Philistines, and said, “What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel?”

And they answered, “Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried away to ^m Gath.” So they carried the ark of the God of Israel away. ⁹ So it was, after they had carried it away, that ⁿ the hand of the LORD was against the city with a very great destruction; and He struck the men of the city, both small and great, ⁴ and tumors broke out on them.

¹⁰ Therefore they sent the ark of God

4:18 The loss of the ark was a catastrophic blow. In response, Eli fell off his chair and died—another sign of God’s judgment on the house of Eli (2:33–36).

4:20 Like Rachel (Gen. 35:16–20), the wife of Phinehas died in childbirth. The words you have borne a son were spoken to comfort her as she was dying.

4:21 She possibly refers to the midwife attending the birth of Eli’s grandson. The name Ichabod, meaning “No Glory,” reflected Israel’s circumstances. The loss of the ark meant the absence of God’s glory in Israel.

5:1 Ashdod, one of the five chief Philistine cities, was about three miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea and about 22 miles south of Joppa.

5:2 Dagon, the chief god of the Philistines, was thought to control the weather and the fertility of the land. This god appears to be a Philistine adaptation of the Canaanite god Baal, who is sometimes referred to in ancient literature as the “Son of Dagon.” Philistia was an important grain-producing region; the worship of Dagon was thought to ensure a good crop.

5:3, 4 Twice the idol of Dagon fell prostrate before the ark—as if worshipping the Israelite God. The second time the head and hands were broken off. This was recorded in order to demonstrate the foolishness of worshipping an impotent god.

5:5 The destruction of Dagon’s idol resulted in the foolish Philistine custom of stepping over the threshold of Dagon’s temple (see Zeph. 1:9). Apparently the threshold came to be regarded as taboo because of its contact with Dagon’s hands and head (v. 4).

5:6 The Hebrew word translated tumors literally means “swellings” and may refer to any kind of tumor, swelling, or boil.

5:8 Lords refers to the rulers of the five cities of Philistia (6:4). To free themselves from the plague associated with the presence of the Israelite ark, they sent the ark to Gath, one of these cities.

5:10 The ark was sent next to Ekrón, about six miles north of Gath. to kill us: Having heard of the plague associated with the ark, the citizens of Ekrón were less than enthusiastic about receiving the Israelite war trophy into their city.

to Ekron. So it was, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, “They have brought the ark of the God of Israel to us, to kill us and our people!” ¹¹ So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, “Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go back to its own place, so that it does not kill us and our people.” For there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there. ¹² And the men who did not die were stricken with the tumors, and the ^ocry of the city went up to heaven.

The Ark Returned to Israel

6 Now the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months. ² And the Philistines ^acalled for the priests and the diviners, saying, “What shall we do with the ark of the LORD? Tell us how we should send it to its place.”

³ So they said, “If you send away the ark of the God of Israel, do not send it ^bempty; but by all means return it to Him with ^ca trespass offering. Then you will be healed, and it will be known to you why His hand is not removed from you.”

They answered, ^d“Five golden tumors and five golden rats, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines. For the same plague was on all of ¹you and on your lords. ⁵ Therefore you shall make images of your tumors and images of your rats that ^eravage the land, and you shall ^fgive glory to the God of Israel; perhaps He will ^glighten² His hand from you, from ^hyour gods, and from your land. ⁶ Why then do you harden your hearts ⁱas the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? 6:2 Diviners claimed to be able to predict the future and determine the will of their gods by observing such omens as the flight pattern of birds or the liver of a sacrificed animal (see Num. 22). 6:3 The priests and diviners advised the Philistine leaders to present an offering to appease the God of Israel in order to end the plague. In their understanding, the God of Israel was another deity among many, who had won some sort of contest with their god Dagon. trespass offering: The gift was to be a compensation for trespassing against God by capturing the ark. 6:4 The offering of gold was fashioned to resemble the tumors and rats that plagued the people. the number of the lords of the Philistines: The offering corresponded to the number of Philistine cities and their respective lords or kings. 6:5 give glory to the God of Israel: By sending the gifts back with the ark, the Philistines acknowledged that it was God who had afflicted them with tumors. This recognition would add to His glorious reputation among the nations.

6:6 The Philistine priests and diviners recalled the experience of the Egyptians and Pharaoh, who hardened their hearts against God at the time of the Exodus. God's salvation of the Israelites was internationally known (see Deut. 4). 6:7 The use of a new cart and cows that had never been yoked was designed to show special reverence for God on the part of the Philistines. take their calves home: The natural inclination of cows would be to return home with their calves. This was a test as to whether God was behind the plagues. 6:8, 9 let it go: Where the cows went was going to be left up to God. if it goes up the road: If the two cows left their calves this would be a clear sign to the Philistines that the plague of tumors had been the judgment of Israel's God. Beth Shemesh, a Levitical city (see Josh. 21:16), was close to the border of Philistia, about eight miles east of Ekron. The name Beth Shemesh means “House of the Sun.” It is likely that this ancient Canaanite city had been known for its temple to the sun god.

this great evil. But if not, then ^owe shall know that it is not His hand that struck us—it happened to us by chance.”

¹⁰Then the men did so; they took two milk cows and hitched them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. ¹¹And they set the ark of the LORD on the cart, and the chest with the gold rats and the images of their tumors. ¹²Then the cows headed straight for the road to Beth Shemesh, and went along the ^phighway, lowing as they went, and did not turn aside to the right hand or the left. And the lords of the Philistines went after them to the border of Beth Shemesh.

¹³Now the people of Beth Shemesh were reaping their ^qwheat harvest in the valley; and they lifted their eyes and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it. ¹⁴Then the cart came into the field of Joshua of Beth Shemesh, and stood there; a large stone was there. The Ark at Kirjath Jearim

²⁰And the men of Beth Shemesh said, ^w“Who is able to stand before this holy LORD God? And to whom shall it go up from us?” ²¹So they sent messengers to the inhabitants of ^xKirjath Jearim, saying, “The Philistines have brought back the ark of the LORD; come down and take it up with you.”

⁷Then the men of ^aKirjath Jearim came and took the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of ^bAbinadab on the hill, and ^cconsecrated Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the LORD.

²So it was that the ark remained in Kirjath Jearim a long time; it was there twenty years. And all the house of Israel lamented after the LORD.

6:12 along the highway: The Hebrew literally reads “along one highway,” indicating that the cows did not deviate onto any side roads. The lowing of the cattle was their plaintive crying for their calves. These cows were drawn by a strong power in the opposite direction from where their natural inclination would lead them. This would make an undeniable impression on the Philistine farmers, who knew the strong maternal instincts of cows.

6:14 offered the cows as a burnt offering: Although Deut. 12:4–14 required that sacrifices be offered only at the central sanctuary, it seems that this law would not have been applied in view of the recent destruction of Shiloh. Since Beth Shemesh was a Levitical city (see Josh. 21:16), there would have been priests available to officiate at the sacrifice.

6:15 Mosaic law stipulated that only the Levites could handle the ark, and even they could not touch it directly (Num. 4:5, 15). offerings . . . sacrifices: These were in addition to those mentioned in v. 14.

6:16 The lords or kings of the Philistine cities had followed the ark at a distance to see what would become of it.

6:17 Although there is no indication in the text that the ark was ever in Gaza or Ashkelon, these cities apparently fell under the same plague as the other Philistine cities; therefore, they contributed to the trespass offering (v. 3).

6:18 Abel here is unrelated to the name of Adam and Eve’s son (see Gen. 4:2). This term may be a place or site name that more precisely locates the large stone.

6:19 The Lord brought judgment upon certain men of Beth Shemesh who were guilty of the presumptuous sin of gazing into the ark. They had shown a lack of reverence for the holy things of God and had directly violated Mosaic law (Num. 4:20).

6:20 Who is able to stand: Since God is holy, He requires those who minister or serve Him to be separated from all that is contrary to His holy character. The people responded in terror and frustration. They knew of the troubles that the ark had brought to the Philistines; now, they believed, they were next.

6:21 The people of Beth Shemesh were so disturbed by the tragedy that they requested the inhabitants of Kirjath Jearim to remove the ark from their city. Kirjath Jearim was about ten miles west of Jerusalem.

7:1 Eleazar, whose name means “God Is Help” or “God Is Power,” was consecrated (lit. “set apart”) to care for the ark. Eleazar was probably a member of the priestly family since there was no judgment on his ministry before the ark.

7:2 it was there twenty years: Most likely, it was 20 years before Samuel called the assembly at Mizpah (v. 5). The ark remained at Kirjath Jearim for about a hundred years. It was taken there just after the battle of Aphek around 1104 B.C. and remained there until David brought it to Jerusalem in his first year as king over all Israel, around 1003 B.C. (see 2 Sam. 5:5; 6:1–18).

7:3 If you return to the LORD: Repentance from sin and expressions of loyalty to God were prerequisites for the restoration of divine blessing (Deut. 30:1–10; 2 Chr. 7:14). The expression foreign gods is a general term for the idols of Canaan. Ashtoreths is the plural form of the name of the Canaanite goddess of fertility, with all your hearts, then ^eput away the foreign gods and the ^fAshtoreths ¹ from among you, and ^gprepare your hearts for the LORD, and ^hserve Him only; and He will deliver you from the hand of the Philistines.” ⁴So the children of Israel put away the ⁱBaals and the ²Ashtoreths, and served the LORD only.

⁵And Samuel said, ^j“Gather all Israel to Mizpah, and ^kI will pray to the LORD for you.” ⁶So they gathered together at Mizpah, ^ldrew water, and poured it out before the LORD. And they ^mfasted that day, and said there, ⁿ“We have sinned against the LORD.” And Samuel judged the children of Israel at Mizpah.

⁷Now when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel had gathered together at Mizpah, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard of it, they were afraid of the Philistines. ⁸So the children of Israel said to Samuel, ^o“Do not cease to cry out to the LORD our God for us, that He may save us from the hand of the Philistines.”

⁹And Samuel took a ^psuckling lamb and offered it as a whole burnt offering to the LORD. Then ^qSamuel cried out to the LORD for Israel, and the LORD answered him. ¹⁰Now as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel. ^rBut the LORD thundered with a loud thunder upon the Philistines that day, and so confused them that they were overcome before Israel. ¹¹And the men of Israel went out of Mizpah and pursued the Philistines, and ³drove them back as far as below Beth Car. ¹²Then Samuel ^stook a stone and set it up between Mizpah and Shen, and called its name ⁴Ebenezer, saying, “Thus far the LORD has helped us.”

¹³So the Philistines were subdued, and they ^udid not come anymore into the territory of Israel. And the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel. ¹⁴Then the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron to Gath; and Israel recovered its territory from the hands of the Philistines. Also there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

¹⁵And Samuel ^vjudged Israel all the days of his life. ¹⁶He went from year to year on a circuit to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah, and judged Israel in all those places. ¹⁷But ^whe always returned to sexuality, and war. The rites connected with her worship usually involved sacred prostitution. Sexual rituals in the Canaanite temples were designed to prompt the gods to make the earth fertile.

7:4 the Baals: In ancient sculptures, Baal was depicted with a horned helmet. In one hand he grasped a club or mace and in the other a shaft of lightning or a spear with leaves. In some sculptures, he stood on the back of a bull. The plurals Baals and Ashtoreths refer either to the many images of these gods or to the various local forms under which these gods were worshiped.

7:5 Samuel gathered the people for a prayer meeting at Mizpah, about eight miles north of Jerusalem. The city was the capital of Judah after the fall of Jerusalem (see 2 Kin. 25:22–25). I will pray: Samuel, like his mother (1:10–16; 2:1–10), repeatedly exhibited a commitment to prayer (8:6; 12:19, 23; Ps. 99:6; Jer. 15:1).

7:6 poured it out: The pouring of water was symbolic of repentance (Ps. 62:8; Lam. 2:19). Samuel judged: Samuel acted as chief magistrate, rendering decisions and settling disputes.

7:7 The Israelite gathering at Mizpah alerted the Philistines of a potential uprising. They immediately organized an attack.

7:8 Do not cease to cry out to the LORD: The Israelites did not want to engage in battle unless Samuel was praying for victory. In contrast to the debacle at Aphek (ch. 4), the Israelites were no longer depending on the ark as a magical talisman. They now wanted to depend solely on the power of God through prayer.

7:9 a suckling lamb: According to Lev. 22:27, no animal could be sacrificed until it was at least eight days old.

7:12, 13 To commemorate the victory and acknowledge the Lord’s intervention, Samuel set up a memorial stone on the battlefield and named it Ebenezer, meaning “Stone of Help.” Samuel followed Joshua’s practice of commemorating the victories of God for His people with stone markers (see Josh. 4). The victory at Ebenezer was so decisive that the Philistines made no more attacks against the Israelites during Samuel’s judgeship.

7:14 Ekron and Gath were Philistine cities near Israel (5:8, 10). The frontier settlements which the Israelites had been forced to evacuate could now be taken again. Amorites may refer to the original inhabitants of Canaan (see Gen. 15:16), or to the hill dwellers of southern Canaan (see Num. 13:29; Josh. 10:5).

7:16 In addition to his religious duties as prophet, Samuel served as a circuit judge. Bethel, the “House of God,” was where Jacob had his famous dream (Gen. 28:10–22). Gilgal was where the Israelites had first camped after crossing the Jordan River to conquer Canaan (Josh. 4:19, 20). It was about one mile from Jericho.

7:17 Ramah was about five miles north of Jerusalem.

Ramah, for his home was there. There he judged Israel, and there he ^xbuilt an altar to the LORD.

8 Now it came to pass when Samuel was ^aold that he ^bmade his ^csons judges over Israel. ²The name of his firstborn was Joel, and the name of his second, Abijah; they were judges in Beersheba. ³But his sons ^ddid not walk in his ways; they turned aside ^eafter dishonest gain, ^ftook bribes, and perverted justice.

⁴Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, ⁵and said to him, “Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now ^gmake us a king to judge us like all the nations.”

⁶But the thing ^hdispleased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel ⁱprayed to the LORD. ⁷And the LORD said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for ^jthey have not rejected you, but ^kthey have rejected Me, that I should not reign over them. ⁸According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods—so they are doing to you also. ⁹Now therefore, heed

8:1 made his sons judges: It was highly unusual for Samuel to appoint his sons to assist him in judging cases. Judges were individually appointed by God, not by their fathers.

8:2 Joel means “The Lord Is God.” Abijah means “My Father Is the Lord.” Beersheba was at the southern extremity of Israel (3:20), about 48 miles south of Jerusalem. It was here that Abraham and Isaac had dug wells and formed alliances with Abimelech, king of the Philistines (Gen. 21:22–34; 26:1–33).

8:5 make us a king: Two factors contributed to the elders’ request for a king: (1) the corruption of Samuel’s sons, and (2) their desire to follow the pattern of all the nations.

8:6 There is nothing wrong with the concept of a monarchy. God had made provisions in His law for the appointment of a king over

His people (Deut. 17:14, 15). Yet Samuel was displeased because he felt that the demand for a king indicated a rejection of his own leadership. Samuel took the matter to God in prayer.

8:7, 8 they have rejected Me: The error of the elders of Israel was their failure to recognize God as their true King (12:12). to you also: The Lord drew a parallel between the Israelites’ forgetfulness of His gracious acts and their lack of appreciation for Samuel.

8:9 forewarn them: Samuel was called to warn the Israelites that a king would not solve all of their problems. In fact, having a king would create many hardships. The word behavior refers to the “right” or “prerogative” that the king would claim. Israel’s king would rule with arbitrary and absolute power.

Who Is “Called”?

Are only certain people “called” by God to do important work for Him? Many people assume that occupations such as the pastorate or missionary work are true “callings” that have significance before God, while other jobs are just jobs.

Even though work is an important part of life, by itself it falls far short of describing the significance of an individual. There are many other aspects to being a person—personal growth and development, family, citizenship, friendships, and faith. So to define oneself by one’s occupation is inadequate. It tends to place more value on the self than on God, more on activity than on character, and more on success than on relationships. In short, it tends to equate employment with human worth.

From the Bible’s point of view, “calling” describes all of the responsibility of all believers to serve God with all of their lives:

Every believer is called to belong to God. Paul indicated to the Christians at Rome that both he and they had the same calling (Rom. 1:1, 6). Likewise, he wrote to the believers in Ephesus that just as there is one Spirit and one body (that is, the church), “you were called in one hope of your calling” (Eph. 4:4).

Every believer is called a child of God. In His love, God brings us into His family (1 John 3:1), through faith in Christ Jesus.

Every believer is called to accept the work of Christ on his or her behalf. Though we are sinners deserving of judgment, Christ’s death on the cross has “justified” us, made us able to stand before a holy God and receive His salvation and grace (Rom. 8:28–30; 2 Tim. 1:9). For this we have every reason to live lives of gratitude (1 Thess. 2:13).

Every believer is called to become like Christ. Living the life God calls us to involves change in which we take on the character of Christ. That means resisting the temptation to turn away from Him, even though others may encourage us to do so (Gal. 1:6–9). It involves fleeing evil and pursuing good, fighting to maintain our faithfulness (1 Tim. 6:11, 12). Just as Christ is holy, so we are to develop holiness in everything we do (1 Pet. 1:15; 3:9). As we pursue Christlikeness, we can do so with the certainty that the Lord is helping us, equipping us for every good work (Phil. 2:12, 13; 2 Pet. 1:3–10).

Every believer is called to serve God and other people. Christ has called us to Himself to live out our faith in a manner that is worthy of Him (Eph. 4:1–4). We have the privilege of declaring God’s work through everything we do and say (1 Pet. 2:9, 10, 21).

Every believer is called to become a citizen of the new heaven and new earth. The Christian life leads ultimately to the end of being “glorified,” raised up to stand with Christ in eternal glory, pure and holy at last (1 Pet. 5:10; 2 Pet. 3:10, 11). In that day, we will celebrate the final coming together of Christ and all His faithful ones (Rev. 19:9, 10). Our obedience to the Lord right now confirms this ultimate calling (Matt. 5:19).

If you are a believer in Christ, you have the same, significant calling as any other believer in Christ, no matter what your workday occupation may be. Calling is not just a matter of what job one has; it means living as a child of God. Is that the calling that you are pursuing?

their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and ^lshow them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”

¹⁰So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who asked him for a king. ¹¹And he said, ^m“This will be the behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take your ⁿsons and appoint them for his own ^ochariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. ¹²He will ^pappoint captains over his thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. ¹³He will take your daughters to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers. ¹⁴And ^qhe will take the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves, and give them to his servants. ¹⁵He will take a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. ¹⁶And he will take your male servants, your female servants, your finest ¹young men, and your donkeys, and put them to his work. ¹⁷He will take a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. ¹⁸And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the LORD ^rwill not hear you in that day.”

¹⁹Nevertheless the people ^srefused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, “No, but we will have a king over us, ²⁰that we also may be ^tlike all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles.”

²¹And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and he repeated them in the hearing of the LORD. ²²So the LORD said to Samuel, ^u“Heed their voice, and make them a king.”

And Samuel said to the men of Israel, “Every man go to his city.”

Saul Chosen to Be King

9 There was a man of Benjamin whose name was ^aKish the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite, a mighty man of ¹power. ²And he had a choice and handsome son whose name was Saul. There was not a more handsome person than he among the children of Israel. ^bFrom his shoulders upward he was taller than any of the people.

³Now the donkeys of Kish, Saul’s father, were lost. And Kish said to his son Saul, “Please take one of the servants with you, and arise, go and look for the donkeys.” ⁴So he passed through the mountains of Ephraim and through the land of ^cShalisha, but they did not find them. Then they passed through the land of Shaalim, and they were not there. Then he passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they did not find them.

⁵When they had come to the land of ^dZuph, Saul said to his servant who was with him, “Come, let ^eus return, lest my father cease caring about the donkeys and become worried about us.”

⁶And he said to him, “Look now, there is in this city ^fa man of God, and he is an honorable man; ^gall that he says surely comes to pass. So let us go there; perhaps he can show us the way that we should go.”

⁷Then Saul said to his servant, “But look, if we go, ^hwhat shall we bring the man? For the bread in our vessels is all gone, and there is no present to bring to the man of God. What do we have?”

⁸And the servant answered Saul again and said, “Look, I have here at hand one-fourth of a shekel of silver. I will give that

8:11-17 First, a king would draft young men to serve in the military, farm his fields, and prepare for war. Run before his chariots is a reference to the king’s state carriage. Runners would serve as messengers, announcing the king’s coming. Second, a king would draft young women to work in his palace and serve in his court. Third, a king would tax the people’s crops and flocks. He would take the best of their products. take a tenth: The proceeds of this tithe would be used to pay the salaries of the king’s officers and servants. Fourth, a king would appropriate the servants of the Israelites and their finest young men and donkeys. Citizens would be forced into the king’s service as well as slaves. Fifth, the king would take away the people’s personal freedom.

8:18 cry out . . . not hear: Since the Israelites were deliberately choosing their own path, they could not expect God to deliver them from the trouble that would inevitably result.

8:20 and fight our battles: The Israelites were looking for human leadership on the battlefield, instead of recognizing that God would lead them in battle—and win (see Ex. 15:3).

8:21 Samuel heard . . . and he repeated them: Samuel acted as mediator between the people and God.

9:1 Saul’s father, Kish, was from the tribe of Benjamin. The term a mighty man of power suggests that he was something like a feudal lord—a wealthy landowner and a leader in time of war. The same term is used of Boaz (Ruth 2:1).

9:2 Saul means “Asked For.” Choice suggests that Saul was in the prime of manhood. Both his physical stature—taller than any—and personal appearance—handsome—were striking. Saul was endowed with what seemed to be great potential for leadership and service. In these respects, Saul was a king like those of “all the nations” (8:5).

9:4 The search for his father’s donkeys took Saul north from his home at Gibeath (10:26), through the mountains of Ephraim. Ephraim was the tribal inheritance of Joseph’s son (see Gen. 41:50–52), directly north of Benjamin (see Josh. 16).

9:6 This city refers to Ramah, Samuel’s home after the destruction of Shiloh (1:1; 8:4). The term man of God refers to someone who was recognized for his prophetic ministry (see 1 Kin. 12:22; 13:1; 2 Kin. 23:17).

9:8 Saul’s servant unexpectedly produced one-fourth of a shekel of silver, which would serve as adequate compensation for the prophet’s ministry. A shekel was about 11.4 grams.

to the man of God, to tell us our way.”⁹ (Formerly in Israel, when a man ⁱwent ²to inquire of God, he spoke thus: “Come, let us go to the seer”; for he who is now called a prophet was formerly called a seer.)

¹⁰Then Saul said to his servant, ³“Well said; come, let us go.” So they went to the city where the man of God was.

¹²And they answered them and said, “Yes, there he is, just ahead of you. Hurry now; for today he came to this city, because ^lthere is a sacrifice of the people today ^mon the high place.” ¹³As soon as you come into the city, you will surely find him before he goes up to the high place to eat. For the people will not eat until he comes, because he must bless the sacrifice; afterward those who are invited will eat. Now therefore, go up, for about this time you will find him.” ¹⁴So they went up to the city. As they were coming into the city, there was Samuel, coming out toward them on his way up to the high place.

¹⁵ⁿNow the LORD had told Samuel in his ear the day before Saul came, saying, ¹⁶“Tomorrow about this time ^oI will send you a man from the land of Benjamin, ^pand you shall anoint him ⁴commander over My people Israel, that he may save My people from the hand of the Philistines; for I have ^qlooked upon My people, because their cry has come to Me.”

¹⁷So when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said to him, ^r“There he is, the man of whom I spoke to you. This one shall reign over My people.” ¹⁸Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, “Please tell me, where is the seer’s house?”

And ⁵on whom ^tis all the desire of Israel? Is it not on you and on all your father’s house?”

²¹And Saul answered and said, “Am I not a Benjamite, of the ^vsmallest of the tribes of Israel, and ^wmy family the least of all the families of the ⁶tribe of Benjamin? Why then do you speak like this to me?”

²²Now Samuel took Saul and his servant and brought them into the hall, and had them sit in the place of honor among those who were invited; there were about thirty persons. ²³And Samuel said to the cook, “Bring the portion which I gave you, of which I said to you, ‘Set it apart.’” ²⁴So the cook took up ^xthe thigh with its upper part and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, “Here it is, what was kept back. It was set apart for you. Eat; for until this time it has been kept for you, since I said I invited the people.” So Saul ate with Samuel that day.

²⁵When they had come down from the high place into the city, ⁷Samuel spoke with Saul on ^ythe top of the house. ²⁶They arose early; and it was about the dawning of the day that Samuel called to Saul on the top of the house, saying, “Get up, that I may send you on your way.” And Saul arose, and both of them went outside, he and Samuel.

Saul Anointed King

²⁷As they were going down to the outskirts of the city, Samuel said to Saul,

9:9 This verse is an explanatory note of an ancient custom to later Israelite readers. Seer refers to one who is able to see what is hidden from the eyes of ordinary people. Prophet refers to one who speaks for God (see Ex. 7:1).

9:12 A high place was an elevated site of worship located on a hill or on an artificial platform in a temple. The Canaanites were known for building their places of worship on hills (see Num. 33:52; Deut. 12:2–5). Nevertheless, pious Israelites appear to have used such facilities legitimately after the destruction of Shiloh and before the construction of Solomon’s temple (see 1 Kin. 3:2). Sadly, the misuse of such high places to worship false gods eventually undermined the worship of God and contributed to the rise of idolatry in Israel (see 1 Kin. 11:7; 12:26–33).

9:16 It seems significant that Saul is referred to here as commander (also translated as “prince,” “ruler,” or “leader”), rather than as king. The royal throne ultimately belonged to the line of Judah (see Gen. 49:9, 10).

9:18 Asking Samuel directions to the seer’s house at the entrance of the city was the final step in a remarkable sequence of events which God sovereignly superintended to bring about the anointing of Saul.

9:19 All that is in your heart does not seem to refer to the matter of the donkeys, for Samuel immediately assured Saul that the donkeys had been found. Perhaps Saul was brooding over the problem of the Philistines.

9:21 smallest of the tribes: Benjamin was the second smallest tribe at the first census following the Exodus (Num. 1:36, 37). The tribe was reduced to six hundred fighting men during the punishment of Benjamin for the atrocity at Gibeah (see Judg. 19; 20). the least of all the families: If Saul’s father was “a mighty man of power,” these words contain a certain amount of self-deprecation (v. 1).

9:22 The hall was where local dignitaries sat for sacrificial feasts at the high place.

9:24 Giving Saul the thigh was intended to honor him in the presence of the other guests (see Gen. 43:34).

9:25 A house in ancient Israel usually had a flat roof which could be used for drying flax or as a place to relax. It appears that Saul slept on the roof (v. 26).

9:27 Tell the servant to go on: The anointing of Saul was private. Later, he would be publicly installed as king before all Israel (10:17–27).

Roofs

The roof was an important part of a house in biblical times. A person could climb to the roof by a flight of stairs along the outside wall. In most cases the roof was flat, but sometimes the builders made domes over the more important rooms. Jewish law required each house to have a railing around the roof to keep anyone from falling off. Adjoining houses often shared the same roof, and low walls on the roof marked the borders of each house. The builders covered roofs with a type of cement that hardened under the sun. Some houses had tiles or flat bricks on the roof. The Israelites used their roofs as a place of retreat and meditation. They dried linen, flax, corn, figs, and other fruits on the rooftops and sometimes slept there at night. They also used their rooftops for private conferences and even worship.

10:1 the LORD has anointed you: There were two kinds of anointings in the biblical period. A ceremonial anointing involved pouring olive oil on the head or body of the person to be honored (see Ps. 133:2). An official anointing used the same process but signified a consecration or setting apart for religious service (see Ex. 29:7; 30:25; Lev. 8:12). The anointing of a ruler was actually a religious act. That is why David had such high regard for Saul, refusing to lift a hand against “the LORD’s anointed” (24:6). His inheritance: The land of Israel was God’s gift to His people, but it would return to God’s direct control should the people prove unfit to manage it (see Deut. 27–30).

10:2 Rachel’s tomb: Rachel had died giving birth to Benjamin on a journey from Bethel to Bethlehem, and she was buried along the way (Gen. 35:16–20). in the territory of Benjamin: Rachel was buried near Bethlehem, which is in Judah (Gen. 35:16–20). Perhaps her burial site was very close to the border between Benjamin and Judah.

10:3 The terebinth, sometimes translated “oak” or “elm,” refers to a strong tree, native to the land of Israel, which grows to a height of around 35 feet. Tabor is an apparent reference to Mt. Tabor, in the Valley of Jezreel, where these trees were prominent.

10:4 For strangers to offer Saul two loaves of bread would have been a remarkable sign. Their bread would have been for use in the worship of God. For them, giving the bread to Saul substituted for a sacred act.

10:5 The Hebrew word translated hill probably refers to Gibeah, Saul’s hometown (11:4). Gibeah of God was perhaps the full name of the city, due to its proximity to a significant high place (v. 13). Philistine garrison: The Philistines dominated the land and had set up a military outpost in Saul’s hometown. A group of prophets may refer to members of the “school of the prophets,” which was probably instituted by Samuel for the purpose of preparing young men for prophetic ministry.

10:6 The Spirit of the LORD refers to the same Holy Spirit who came upon Othniel, Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson (see Judg. 3:10; 6:34; 11:29; 13:25; 14:6, 19; 15:14). The expression be turned into another man may mean spiritual regeneration or a marked advance in spiritual growth.

⁹God is with you. ⁸You shall go down before me ⁹to Gilgal; and surely I will come down to you to offer burnt offerings and make sacrifices of peace offerings. ⁹Seven days you shall wait, till I come to you and show you what you should do.”

⁹So it was, when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, that God ³gave him another heart; and all those signs came to pass that day. ¹⁰When they came there to the hill, there was ^aa group of prophets to meet him; then the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them. ¹¹And it happened, when all who knew him formerly saw that he indeed prophesied among the prophets, that the people said to one another, “What is this that has come upon the son of Kish? ¹Is Saul also among the prophets?” ¹²Then a man from there answered and said, “But ^uwho is their father?” Therefore it became a proverb: “Is Saul also among the prophets?” ¹³And when he had finished prophesying, he went to the high place.

¹⁴Then Saul’s ^vuncle said to him and his servant, “Where did you go?”

So he said, “To look for the donkeys. When we saw that they were nowhere to be found, we went to Samuel.”

¹⁵And Saul’s uncle said, “Tell me, please, what Samuel said to you.”

¹⁶So Saul said to his uncle, “He told us plainly that the donkeys had been ^wfound.” But about the matter of the kingdom, he did not tell him what Samuel had said.

Saul Proclaimed King

¹⁷Then Samuel called the people together ^xto the LORD ^yat Mizpah, ¹⁸and said to the children of Israel, ^z“Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ‘I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of all kingdoms and from those who oppressed you.’ ¹⁹^aBut you have today rejected your God, who Himself saved you from all your adversities and your tribulations; and you have said to Him, ‘No, set a king over us!’ Now therefore, present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes and by your ⁴clans.”

²⁰And when Samuel had ^bcaused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was chosen. ²¹When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was chosen. And Saul the son of Kish was chosen. But when they sought him, he could not be found. ²²Therefore they ^cinquired of the LORD further, “Has the man come here yet?”

And the LORD answered, “There he is, hidden among the equipment.”

²³So they ran and brought him from there; and when he stood among the people, ^dhe was taller than any of the people from his shoulders upward. ²⁴And Samuel said to all the people, “Do you see him ^ewhom the LORD has chosen, that there is no one like him among all the people?”

So all the people shouted and said, ^f“Long ⁵live the king!”

10:9 God gave him another heart: In Hebrew this expression literally reads, “God changed him for another heart.” There is debate as to whether this refers to a work of God’s Spirit which prepared Saul for kingship or to the act of spiritual regeneration. It may seem that Saul’s subsequent attitudes and behavior do not reflect a genuine spiritual life. Yet Saul seems to have struggled with sin and desired to worship God (14:34, 35; 15:24–34).

10:10 God worked through His Spirit in Saul’s life so that he was able to exercise a prophetic gift. This was not a vocation for Saul but an opportunity.

10:11 As a result of the Spirit’s mighty working in Saul, the people asked, Is Saul also among the prophets? Some have taken this as an expression of contempt, but this implies a low view of prophets and prophecy. Rather, the question simply expresses surprise at Saul’s sudden change in character.

10:12 But who is their father: The implication of this question is that the fathers of the prophets were not important people. The prophets in any case did not obtain their gift by inheritance, but by God’s will.

10:17 Mizpah was where the Israelites had gathered for a time of spiritual revival before their victory over the Philistines (7:5).

10:19 rejected your God: Samuel reiterated his earlier admonition (8:10–18), warning the people of their attitude—which was actually a rejection of God’s kingship. Clans were a smaller family unit than tribes.

10:20, 21 The choice of Saul as Israel’s first monarch was made by casting lots, a means of determining God’s will in answer to “yes” and “no” questions. The lots were cast like dice. The principle underlying the use of lots was an active confidence in God’s control of all events.

10:22 hidden among the equipment: This may reflect Saul’s modesty, or perhaps his hesitancy and self-doubt over assuming the position of national leader.

10:24 The phrase him whom the LORD has chosen reflects the sovereignty of God in the area of His permissive will. Although the Israelites decided to have a king, it was the Lord who selected Saul.

(Heb. melek) (10:24; Deut. 17:14) Strong’s #4428

The term king may describe a petty ruler of a small city (Josh. 10:3) or a monarch of a vast empire (Esth. 1:1–5). An ancient king’s jurisdiction included the military (8:20), the economy (1 Kin. 10:26–29), international diplomacy (1 Kin. 5:1–11), and the legal system (2 Sam. 8:15). He also functioned as a spiritual leader (2 Kin. 23:1–24), although Israel’s kings were prohibited from some priestly functions (13:9–14). The Bible presents David as an example of the righteous king who set his heart on faithfully serving God (Acts 13:22). God’s promise to give David an everlasting kingdom (2 Sam. 7:16) has been fulfilled in Jesus Christ, whose human ancestry is through the royal family of David (Luke 2:4).

²⁵Then Samuel explained to the people the behavior of royalty, and wrote it in a book and laid it up before the LORD. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house. ²⁶And Saul also went home ^hto Gibeah; and valiant men went with him, whose hearts God had touched. ²⁷ⁱBut some ^jrebels said, “How can this man save us?” So they despised him, ^kand brought him no presents. But he ^lheld his peace.

³Then the elders of Jabesh said to him, “Hold off for seven days, that we may send messengers to all the territory of Israel. And then, if there is no one to ²save us, we will come out to you.”

⁴So the messengers came ^eto Gibeah of Saul and told the news in the hearing of the people. And ^fall the people lifted up their voices and wept. ⁵Now there was Saul, coming behind the herd from the field; and Saul said, “What troubles the people, that they weep?” And they told him the words of the men of Jabesh. ⁶^gThen the Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard this news, and his anger was greatly aroused. ⁷So he took a yoke of oxen and ^hcut them in pieces, and sent them throughout all the territory of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying, ⁱ“Whoever does not go out with Saul and Samuel to battle, so it shall be done to his oxen.”

And the fear of the LORD fell on the people, and they came out ³with one consent. ⁸When he numbered them in ^jBezek, the children ^kof Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand. ⁹And they said to the messengers who came, “Thus you shall say to the men of Jabesh Gilead: ‘Tomorrow, by the time the sun is hot, you shall have help.’” Then the messengers came and reported it to the men of Jabesh, and they were glad. ¹⁰Therefore the men of Jabesh said, “Tomorrow we will come out to you, and you may do with us whatever seems good to you.”

¹¹So it was, on the next day, that ^lSaul put the people ^min three companies; and they came into the midst of the camp in the morning watch, and killed Ammonites until the heat of the day. And it happened that those who survived were scattered, so that no two of them were left together.

¹²Then the people said to Samuel, ⁿ“Who is he who said, ‘Shall Saul reign over us?’ ^oBring the men, that we may put them to death.”

¹³But Saul said, ^p“Not a man shall be put to death this day, for today ^qthe LORD has accomplished salvation in Israel.”

¹⁴Then Samuel said to the people,

10:25 the behavior of royalty: Samuel taught the people what to expect from a king, possibly reviewing his instruction in 8:11–18 and God’s laws for kingship in Deut. 17:14–20.

10:26 Gibeah, located just three miles north of Jerusalem, served as the first capital of the Israelite monarchy.

10:27 Some rebels questioned Saul’s military leadership and refused to honor him with the gifts customarily given a king. But Saul held his peace in order not to provoke the situation.

11:1 Nahash, whose name means “Serpent,” was commander of the Ammonites, descendants of Lot who occupied the fringes of the desert east of the territories of Gad and Manasseh (see Gen. 19:38). Jabesh Gilead is the Israelite city of Jabesh, located in the region of Gilead east of the Jordan.

11:2 put out all your right eyes: The condition of surrender demanded by Nahash was not only cruel and humiliating but would have made the Israelite warriors unable to fight.

11:3 The elders of Jabesh Gilead asked for seven days in which to find help before conceding defeat. Nahash agreed to the proposal, since he apparently was not prepared to take the city by force and wanted to avoid a long and costly siege.

11:5 Saul, coming behind the herd: Although Saul had been appointed king, he did not assume governmental authority at once. Saul continued farming until he could answer Israel’s expectations of him as king by delivering the Israelites from their enemies (8:20).

11:6 the Spirit of God came upon Saul: The Holy Spirit empowered Saul to deliver the citizens of Jabesh.

11:7 Two oxen were customarily yoked together for work. Saul’s call to arms was accompanied by a threat. His distribution of the pieces of the oxen throughout Israel is reminiscent of the grisly story of Judg. 19:27—20:1. The fear of the LORD begins with an awesome awareness of who God is (Prov. 2:5) and ends with a proper response to good and evil (Prov. 16:6).

11:8 Bezek was 13 miles northeast of Shechem, due west of Jabesh Gilead on the other side of the Jordan. The distinction made between Israel and Judah in the numbering of the warriors (15:4; 17:52) may indicate that the book was either written or edited after the division of the monarchy in 930 B.C.

11:10 The message to Nahash may have been designed to lull the Ammonites into a false sense of security.

11:11 Saul divided his forces into three companies so that he could attack at the same time from different directions (see Judg. 7:16). the morning watch: The Israelites divided the night into three watches—9 to 12, 12 to 3, and 3 to 6 in the morning (see Ex. 14:24–27; Judg. 7:19; Lam. 2:19). Saul’s attack probably took place at dawn, before the Ammonites had armed themselves for battle.

11:12 Saul’s victory over the Ammonites gave him the support and allegiance of the people of Israel. Some went so far as to suggest that those who had previously questioned his rule should be put ... to death (10:27).

11:13 the LORD has accomplished salvation in Israel: Saul recognized that the victory over the Ammonites could be attributed to God alone and refused to heed the suggestion of his overly zealous supporters.

11:14, 15 It was to Gilgal, the first Israelite camp west of the Jordan

"Come, let us go ^r to Gilgal and renew the kingdom there." ¹⁵ So all the people went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul king ^s before the LORD in Gilgal. ^t There they made sacrifices of peace offerings before the LORD, and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced greatly.

at the time of the conquest (Josh. 5:10), that Samuel called the tribes to renew the kingdom. Although the monarchy had been inaugurated at Mizpah, there had been some question there about Saul's qualifications and abilities to lead in battle (10:17-27). As a result of Saul's victory over the Ammonites, the Israelites enthusiastically endorsed his kingship.

12:2 walking before you: Saul was leading Israel and attending to the nation's needs. Samuel referred to the two reasons cited by the elders of Israel in their demand for a king: (1) Samuel's old age and (2) his sons, who had demonstrated their unworthiness for public office (8:5).

12:3-5 Samuel began his charge to Israel by establishing his own integrity. before the LORD and before His anointed: Samuel asked whether anyone wanted to accuse him before God and His anointed king. The Israelites cleared Samuel of any impropriety or injustice in the administration of his duties as judge. Samuel's past record was established to inspire confidence in his present exhortation.

12:7 Righteous acts refers to the benefits that God had bestowed on His people. These acts testified to the righteousness of God in blessing His people by fulfilling His covenant promises.

12:8 Samuel summarized the descent of Jacob's family into Egypt

(Gen. 46), the Egyptian oppression (Ex. 1:8-22), the Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 2-15), and the conquest of Canaan (Josh. 1-12).

12:9 Samuel recounted the nation's apostasy and subsequent divine discipline. Sisera was a Canaanite general (Judg. 4:2-22). Moab: The Moabites were descendants of the incestuous relationship of Lot and his eldest daughter (Gen. 19:30-37). The Moabite oppression is recorded in Judg. 3:12-30.

12:10 After a period of oppression, the Israelites repented and cried out to the Lord for deliverance. The Baals and Ashtoreths were Canaanite fertility deities (7:3, 4).

12:11 Jerubbaal, also known as Gideon, delivered Israel from the Midianites (see Judg. 6-8). Jephthah defeated the Ammonites (see Judg. 11).

12:12 The threat of Nahash was probably felt long before the threatened attack of Jabesh Gilead (11:1-3) and was probably a factor in Israel's request for a king (8:20).

12:14 The fear of the LORD is not merely a pious attitude but a serious and obedient response to the revelation of God's holy character. 12:15 The consequences for disobeying God's covenant are outlined in Deut. 28:15-68.

12:17, 18 The season for wheat harvest in Israel is the months of will send thunder and ^lrain, that you may perceive and see that ^myour wickedness is great, which you have done in the sight of the LORD, in asking a king for yourselves.”

¹⁸ So Samuel called to the LORD, and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day; and ⁿall the people greatly feared the LORD and Samuel.

¹⁹ And all the people said to Samuel, ^o“Pray for your servants to the LORD your God, that we may not die; for we have added to all our sins the evil of asking a king for ourselves.”

²⁰ Then Samuel said to the people, “Do not fear. You have done all this wickedness; ^pyet do not turn aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart. ²¹ And ^qdo not turn aside; ^rfor then you would go after empty things which cannot profit or deliver, for they are nothing. ²² For ^sthe LORD will not forsake ^tHis people, ^ufor His great name’s sake, because ^vit has pleased the LORD to make you His people. ²³ Moreover, as for me, far be it from me that I should sin against the LORD ^win ceasing to pray for you; but ^xI will teach you the ^ygood and the right way. ²⁴ ^zOnly fear the LORD, and serve Him in truth with all your heart; for ^aconsider what ^bgreat things He has done for you. ²⁵ But if you still do wickedly, ^cyou shall be swept away, ^dboth you and your king.”

³ And Jonathan attacked ^dthe garrison of the Philistines that was in ^eGeba, and the Philistines heard of it. Then Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, “Let the Hebrews hear!” ⁴ Now all Israel heard it said that Saul had attacked a garrison of the Philistines, and that Israel had also become ²an abomination to the Philistines. And the people were called together to Saul at Gilgal.

⁵ Then the Philistines gathered together to fight with Israel, ³thirty thousand chariots and six thousand horsemen, and people ^fas the sand which is on the seashore in multitude. And they came up and encamped in Michmash, to the east of ^gBeth Aven. ⁶ When the men of Israel saw that they were in danger (for the people were distressed), then the people ^hhid in caves, in thickets, in rocks, in holes, and in pits. ⁷ And some of the Hebrews crossed over the Jordan to the ⁱland of Gad and Gilead.

As for Saul, he was still in Gilgal, and all the people followed him trembling. ⁸ Then he waited seven days, according to the time set by Samuel. But Samuel did not come to Gilgal; and the people were

May and June. send thunder and rain: The land of Israel receives its rainfall during the winter season. For rain to fall during the wheat harvest would be most unusual. The miracle was intended to convince the people of their great wickedness in demanding a king. The miracle also served to enhance Israel’s respect for both the LORD and Samuel.

12:20 Do not fear: By this Samuel meant, “Do not fear the death penalty for disobedience.”

12:21 Empty things refers to false gods and idols (see Is. 44:9–20).

12:22 His great name’s sake: In ancient times, one’s name stood for one’s character. The name of God speaks of His reputation and attributes. For God to abandon His people would be inconsistent with His reputation for faithfulness (see Ex. 34:6; Deut. 31:6; Josh. 1:5; Heb. 13:5).

12:23 Samuel assured the people that he would not forget to pray for them. For Samuel, a lack of prayer was a moral compromise, a sin. In fact, his life illustrates the importance of prayer (7:5; see 1 Thess. 5:17; James 5:16).

12:25 The words swept away anticipate God’s ultimate judgment of captivity and exile from the land (Deut. 28:41, 63, 64).

13:1 one year . . . two years: This verse provides a chronological note recording the date of this encounter with the Philistines relative to Saul’s reign as king. Since Acts 13:21 reveals that Saul ruled over Israel 40 years, the two years must refer to the period of reign up to a particular event—likely Saul’s encounter with the Philistines described in this chapter.

13:2 Although Saul had raised a citizen militia to rescue Jabesh Gilead (11:7–9), here he selected and trained a regular, standing army. Michmash was seven miles north of Jerusalem. Gibeah of Benjamin was four miles southeast of Michmash.

13:3 While Saul was in Michmash, his son Jonathan attacked the Philistine garrison at Geba, about a mile southwest of Michmash. The two sites are separated by a deep ravine. The trumpet was a ram’s horn used to signal and summon the military. Hebrews refers to the Israelites. The name may be connected with the name Eber, the ancestor of Abraham (Gen. 10:24), or it may be related to the Hebrew verb meaning “to cross over,” since Abraham “crossed over” to the land of Canaan.

13:4 Saul had attacked: Either Jonathan had been acting under Saul’s orders or Saul took credit for his son’s victory. Saul withdrew his army to Gilgal in keeping with Samuel’s instructions to him at his anointing (10:8).

13:5 Beth Aven was about a half mile west of Michmash.

13:6 the people hid in caves: The limestone of the hill country region contains many natural caves which could be used as hideouts in time of attack.

13:7 The land of Gad and Gilead refers to the region south and north of the River Jabbok, which flows into the Jordan from the east. Gilgal, located northeast of Jericho in the Jordan valley, was the appointed place of Saul’s meeting with Samuel (v. 8).

13:8, 9 Waited seven days refers to the instruction given to Saul by Samuel after his anointing (10:8). Samuel had told Saul to wait seven days at Gilgal until Samuel came to offer sacrifices. Concerned that the people were losing courage and starting to scatter, Saul assumed priestly prerogatives and offered the burnt offering himself (see Lev. 1). With this action, Saul tragically disobeyed both the law of Moses and the instructions of God’s prophet.

scattered from him. ⁹ So Saul said, “Bring a burnt offering and peace offerings here to me.” And he offered the burnt offering. ¹⁰ Now it happened, as soon as he had finished presenting the burnt offering, that Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might ⁴ greet him.

¹¹ And Samuel said, “What have you done?”

Saul said, “When I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that you did not come within the days appointed, and that the Philistines gathered together at Michmash, ¹² then I said, ‘The Philistines will now come down on me at Gilgal, and I have not made supplication to the LORD.’ Therefore I felt compelled, and offered a burnt offering.”

¹³ And Samuel said to Saul, ^k “You have done foolishly. ^l You have not kept the commandment of the LORD your God, which He commanded you. For now the LORD would have established your kingdom over Israel forever. ^{14 m} But now your kingdom shall not continue. ⁿ The LORD has sought for Himself a man ^o after His own heart, and the LORD has commanded him to be commander over His people, because you have ^p not kept what the LORD commanded you.”

¹⁹ Now ^u there was no blacksmith to be found throughout all the land of Israel, for the Philistines said, “Lest the Hebrews make swords or spears.” ²⁰ But all the Israelites would go down to the Philistines to sharpen each man’s plowshare, his mattock, his ax, and his sickle; ²¹ and the charge for a sharpening was a ⁷ pim for the plowshares, the mattocks, the forks, and the axes, and to set the points of the goads. ²² So it came about, on the day of battle, that ^v there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people who were with Saul and Jonathan. But they were found with Saul and Jonathan his son.

^{23 w} And the garrison of the Philistines went out to the pass of Michmash.

Jonathan Defeats the Philistines

¹⁴ Now it happened one day that Jonathan the son of Saul said to the young man who ¹ bore his armor, “Come, let us go over to the Philistines’ garrison that is on the other side.” But he did not tell his father. ² And Saul was sitting in the outskirts of ^a Gibeah under a pomegranate tree which is in Migron. The people who were with him were about six hundred men. ^{3 b} Ahijah the son of Ahitub, ^c Ichabod’s brother, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eli, the LORD’s priest in Shiloh, was ^d wearing an ephod. But the people did not know that Jonathan had gone.

13:10–12 as soon as he had finished: Samuel’s delay may have been intended as a test of Saul’s obedience. Saul cited four justifications for his disobedience: (1) the soldiers were scattering; (2) Samuel had not come as promised; (3) the Philistines were gathering their forces at Michmash; and (4) there was imminent danger of Philistine attack.

13:13 Saul’s principal sin was failing to keep the commandment God had given through Samuel (10:8).

13:14 your kingdom shall not continue: Although Saul would retain his throne, his descendants would not carry on his dynasty. A man after His own heart is God’s description of David, a man with many faults, but a man whose spirit was sensitive to God’s will.

13:15 Saul’s army had dwindled from three thousand (v. 2) to only six hundred men.

13:17 The Philistines sent their raiders to harass the Israelites in the hopes of weakening Israelite resolve or of forcing a decisive engagement. Ophrah was located about seven miles north of Michmash.

13:18 The twin towns of Beth Horon (Upper and Lower) were located west of Geba, about two miles apart on a ridge guarding the approach to the hill country from the coastal plain.

13:19 no blacksmith: The Canaanites and Philistines learned how to forge iron from the Hittites. Although they were not great in numerical strength, the Philistines were able to dominate Israel. By the end of David’s reign, the Israelites also had acquired iron technology (see 1 Chr. 22:3).

13:20 Sharpen may also be translated “forge.” The plowshare is the metal part of the plow that penetrates and breaks up the soil. A mattock is like a pickaxe but has blades instead of points. It is used for digging and breaking up soil that cannot be reached by a plow.

13:21 The pim was approximately two-thirds of a shekel. Based on what is known of ancient Israel’s economy, the charge was exorbitant. The points of the goads refers to the sharp ends of prods used to direct cattle. The Israelites did not have the resources to forge iron implements for agriculture, much less for warfare.

13:22 The weapons available to the Israelite soldiers would have included slings, bows and arrows, and numerous instruments made of bronze.

13:23 The pass of Michmash is the deep gorge that separated Michmash and Geba.

14:1 he did not tell his father: Saul would have thought Jonathan’s plan was reckless.

14:2 Gibeah, Saul’s home, was about three miles southwest of Geba, where Jonathan was camped at the Philistine garrison he had captured (13:3, 16). Migron was located near Gibeah.

14:3 The genealogy of Ahijah, the high priest and descendant of Eli, is given in full. His name means “My Brother Is the LORD.”

⁴Between the passes, by which Jonathan sought to go over ^eto the Philistines' garrison, there was a sharp rock on one side and a sharp rock on the other side. And the name of one was Bozez, and the name of the other Senah. ⁵The front of one faced northward opposite Michmash, and the other southward opposite Gibeah.

⁶Then Jonathan said to the young man who bore his armor, "Come, let us go over to the garrison of these ^funcircumcised; it may be that the LORD will work for us. For nothing restrains the LORD ^gfrom saving by many or by few."

⁷So his armorbearer said to him, "Do all that is in your heart. Go then; here I am with you, according to your heart."

⁸Then Jonathan said, "Very well, let us cross over to these men, and we will show ourselves to them. ⁹If they say thus to us, 'Wait until we come to you,' then we will stand still in our place and not go up to them. ¹⁰But if they say thus, 'Come up to us,' then we will go up. For the LORD has delivered them into our hand, and ^hthis will be a sign to us."

¹¹So both of them showed themselves to the garrison of the Philistines. And the Philistines said, "Look, the Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they have ⁱhidden." ¹²Then the men of the garrison called to Jonathan and his armorbearer, and said, "Come up to us, and we will ²show you something."

Jonathan said to his armorbearer, "Come up after me, for the LORD has delivered them into the hand of Israel." ¹³And Jonathan climbed up on his hands and knees with his armorbearer after him; and they ^jfell before Jonathan. And as he came after him, his armorbearer killed them. ¹⁴That first slaughter which Jonathan and his armorbearer made was about twenty men within about ³half an acre of land.

¹⁵And ^kthere was ⁴trembling in the camp, in the field, and among all the people. The garrison and ^lthe raiders also trembled; and the earth quaked, so that it was ^ma very great trembling. ¹⁶Now the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked, and there was the multitude, melting away; and they ⁿwent here and there. ¹⁷Then Saul said to the people who were with him, "Now call the roll and see who has gone from us." And when they had called the roll, surprisingly, Jonathan and his armorbearer were not there. ¹⁸And Saul said to Ahijah, "Bring the ⁵ark of God here" (for at that time the ⁵ark of God was with the children of Israel). ¹⁹Now it happened, while Saul ^otalked to the priest, that the noise which was in the camp of the Philistines continued to increase; so Saul said to the priest, "Withdraw your hand." ²⁰Then Saul and all the people who were with him assembled, and they went to the battle; and indeed ^pevery man's sword was against his neighbor, and there was very great confusion. ²¹Moreover the Hebrews who were with the Philistines before that time, who went up with them into the camp from the surrounding country, they also joined the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. ²²Likewise all the men of Israel who ^qhad hidden in the mountains of Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, they also followed hard after them in the battle. ²³So the LORD saved Israel that day, and the battle shifted ^sto Beth Aven.

Saul's Rash Oath

²⁴And the men of Israel were distressed that day, for Saul had ^tplaced the people under oath, saying, "Cursed is the man who eats any food until evening, before I have taken vengeance on my enemies." So none of the people tasted

14:6 The term uncircumcised was an Israelite designation for the Gentiles, who did not share the distinctive mark of God's people under the old covenant (see Gen. 17:10-14).

14:9-12 The assault of Jonathan and his armorbearer on Michmash was an act of faith, not a foolhardy adventure. The response of the Philistines, come up to us, was taken as a sign that God was leading and would grant them victory. The taunting words of the Philistines were turned into a challenge for the young men to display faith in God.

14:14 about half an acre: The Hebrew text reads "half a yoke of land." A yoke of land was the area a pair of oxen could plow in one day.

14:15 The defeat of the garrison at Michmash left the Philistines in a state of panic. The earth quaked may refer to an actual earthquake, which added to the panic and confusion of the Philistines, or it may be a way of saying that the Philistines were shaking from fear.

14:17 call the roll: Saul had to have the troops mustered before he realized that his own son was not present.

14:18, 19 Bring the ark of God here: According to 7:2, the ark at this time was at Kirjath Jearim. There is no mention of its being moved before it was brought to Jerusalem by David. The ancient Greek translation of 1 Samuel reads "ephod," and this may be what is meant. The Urim and Thummim were kept in the breastplate of the ephod and were used to determine the will of God (see Ex. 28:30; Num. 27:21; 1 Sam. 23:9-12). Furthermore, Ahijah was present and wearing the ephod (v. 3). Withdraw your hand: A disturbance in the Philistine camp distracted Saul from his consultation with the priest (that is, Ahijah), and he canceled the inquiry.

14:20 against his neighbor: There was such confusion in the Philistine camp that it was hard to tell friend from foe.

14:21 The Hebrews who were with the Philistines were deserters or mercenaries.

14:22 The mountains of Ephraim refers to the mountainous region occupied by the tribe of Ephraim, just north of Benjaminite territory.

14:24 Cursed is the man: Saul foolishly ordered that none of his soldiers should eat until he had taken vengeance on his enemies. Unlike Jonathan, he did not view the battle as the Lord's (v. 12).

food. ²⁵ Now all the people of the land came to a forest; and there was ^vhoney on the ground. ²⁶ And when the people had come into the woods, there was the honey, dripping; but no one put his hand to his mouth, for the people feared the oath. ²⁷ But Jonathan had not heard his father charge the people with the oath; therefore he stretched out the end of the rod that was in his hand and dipped it in a honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his ⁶countenance brightened. ²⁸ Then one of the people said, “Your father strictly charged the people with an oath, saying, ‘Cursed is the man who eats food this day.’” And the people were faint.

²⁹ But Jonathan said, “My father has troubled the land. Look now, how my countenance has brightened because I tasted a little of this honey. ³⁰ How much better if the people had eaten freely today of the spoil of their enemies which they found! For now would there not have been a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?”

³¹ Now they had ⁷driven back the Philistines that day from Michmash to Ajialon. So the people were very faint. ³² And the people rushed on the ⁸spoil, and took sheep, oxen, and calves, and slaughtered them on the ground; and the people ate them ^wwith the blood. ³³ Then they told Saul, saying, “Look, the people are sinning against the LORD by eating with the blood!”

So he said, “You have dealt treacherously; roll a large stone to me this day.” ³⁴ Then Saul said, “Disperse yourselves among the people, and say to them, ‘Bring me here every man’s ox and every man’s sheep, slaughter them here, and eat; and do not sin against the LORD by eating with the blood.’” So every one of the people brought his ox with him that night, and slaughtered it there. ³⁵ Then Saul ^xbuilt an altar to the LORD. This was the first altar that he built to the LORD.

³⁶ Now Saul said, “Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and plunder

And they said, “Do whatever seems good to you.”

Then the priest said, “Let us draw near to God here.”

³⁷ So Saul ^yasked counsel of God, “Shall I go down after the Philistines? Will You deliver them into the hand of Israel?” But ^zHe did not answer him that day. ³⁸ And Saul said, ^a “Come over here, all you chiefs of the people, and know and see what this sin was today. ³⁹ For ^bas the LORD lives, who saves Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die.” But not a man among all the people answered him. ⁴⁰ Then he said to all Israel, “You be on one side, and my son Jonathan and I will be on the other side.”

And the people said to Saul, “Do what seems good to you.”

⁴¹ Therefore Saul said to the LORD God of Israel, ^c “Give ^g a perfect lot.” ^d So Saul and Jonathan were taken, but the people escaped. ⁴² And Saul said, “Cast lots between my son Jonathan and me.” So Jonathan was taken. ⁴³ Then Saul said to Jonathan, ^e “Tell me what you have done.”

And Jonathan told him, and said, ^f “I only tasted a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand. So now I must die!”

⁴⁴ Saul answered, ^g “God do so and more also; ^h for you shall surely die, Jonathan.”

⁴⁶ Then Saul returned from pursuing the Philistines, and the Philistines went to their own place.

Saul's Continuing Wars

⁴⁷ So Saul established his sovereignty over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, against 14:25 The bees had produced so much honey that it had flowed from their combs in the trees to the ground.

14:27 Due to his absence (vv. 1–17), Jonathan had not heard his father’s oath. He did what any reasonable soldier would do and helped himself to some honey as he pursued the Philistines.

14:31 Ajialon was located at the edge of the Philistine coastal plain, about 18 miles west of Michmash.

14:32 ate them with the blood: The Israelite soldiers began to eat the captured Philistine livestock without first draining the blood, in violation of God’s law (Lev. 17:10–14).

14:33, 34 roll a large stone: Saul realized the serious nature of the offense and had a stone table set up to slaughter the animals and drain the blood properly.

14:35 Saul built an altar to thank God for his victory over the Philistines.

14:36–38 Let us draw near to God: Saul was anxious to finish off the Philistines but decided to ask for God’s counsel about it. God’s silence was taken by Saul as an evidence of sin in the camp.

14:39 he shall surely die: This was Saul’s second foolish oath (v. 24).

14:46 their own place: As a result of Israel’s victory, the Philistines left the hill country and returned to their settlements on the coastal plain.

14:47 Moab and Ammon, descendants of Lot (Gen. 19:30–38), occupied regions east of the Jordan and the Dead Sea. Edom, descendants of Esau (Gen. 36:8), occupied a region southeast of the ⁴⁹ⁿThe sons of Saul were Jonathan, ³Jishui, and Malchishua. And the name of the commander of his army was Abner the son of Ner, Saul's ^puncle. ⁵¹^qKish was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was the son of Abiel.

15 Samuel also said to Saul, ^a“The LORD sent me to anoint you king over His people, over Israel. Now therefore, heed the voice of the words of the LORD. ²Thus says the LORD of hosts: ‘I will punish Amalek for what he did to Israel, ^bhow he ambushed him on the way when he came up from Egypt. ³Now go and ^cattack ¹ Amalek, and ^dutterly destroy all that they have, and do not spare them. ⁴So Saul gathered the people together and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand foot soldiers and ten thousand men of Judah. ⁵And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and lay in wait in the valley.

⁶Then Saul said to ^ethe Kenites, ^f“Go, depart, get down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them. For ^gyou showed kindness to all the children of Israel when they came up out of Egypt.” So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites. ⁷^hAnd Saul attacked the Amalekites, from ⁱHavilah all the way to ^jShur, which is east of Egypt. ⁸^kHe also took Agag king of the Amalekites alive, and ^lutterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword. ⁹But Saul and the people ^mspared Agag and the best of the sheep, the oxen, the fatlings, the lambs, and all that was good, and were unwilling to utterly destroy them. Saul Rejected as King

¹⁰Now the word of the LORD came to Samuel, saying, ¹¹ⁿ“I greatly regret that I have set up Saul as king, for he has ^oturned back from following Me, ^pand has not performed My commandments.” And it ^qgrieved Samuel, and he cried out to the LORD all night. ¹²So when Samuel rose early in the morning to meet Saul, it was told Samuel, saying, “Saul went to ^rCarmel, and indeed, he set up a mon-

Dead Sea. Zobah was the Aramean kingdom in the Bekah Valley. The Philistines occupied the coastal plain west of the hill country.

14:48 The victory over the Amalekites, nomadic desert tribesmen who lived south of the hill country, is recorded in 15:1-9.

14:49 In 1 Sam. 31:2 and 1 Chr. 8:33, the names of Saul's four sons are given as Jonathan, Abinadab, Malchishua, and Esh-Baal (Ishbosheth in 2 Sam. 2:8). Jishui is probably a second name for Abinadab.

14:50 Ahinoam means “My Brother Is Pleasant.”

15:1 The LORD sent me: Samuel referred to his part in Saul's appointment to add weight and authority to the command that he was about to give.

utterly destroyed

(Heb. charam) (15:9; Ex. 22:20; Deut. 13:15; Josh. 6:18) Strong's #2763

In the ancient world, anything sacred or defiled was considered inappropriate for common use. This Hebrew verb refers to the “setting apart” of inappropriate things, usually because of defilement associated with idol worship. According to Deut. 13:12-15, Israel was to destroy everyone and everything that was wicked enough to be considered defiled. Violation of this command cost Achan his life (Josh. 7) and Saul his throne (15:9-11). Paul reminds us that we are all wicked, and as a result are defiled and deserve destruction. Yet God in His mercy has chosen to save those who place their trust in Jesus (Rom. 3:10-26).

15:2 The Amalekites were a nomadic people who lived in the region of the Negev, the dry land south of Judah (see Num. 13:29).

15:3 The expression utterly destroy is literally “to put under a ban,” similar to the ban placed on Jericho at the time of the conquest (Josh. 6:17, 18). The fact that no spoil was to be taken reflects God's judgment on the sins of the Amalekites (Deut. 7:2-6; 12:2, 3; 20:16-18). While such judgment is severe, it came at the command of a holy and just God. A holy God cannot let sin go unpunished.

15:4 men of Judah: Early in the period of the united monarchy, the distinctions between the northern tribes of Israel and the southern tribe of Judah began to be noted (11:8).

15:6 The Kenites, who had been loosely associated with the Israelites since Moses' marriage to the daughter of Jethro, a Kenite (see Judg. 1:16; 4:11), were a nomadic offshoot of the Midianites (Num. 10:29).

15:7 Havilah refers to a district of northeast Arabia. Shur was the western part of the Sinai peninsula bordering Egypt. The campaign against the Amalekites covered extensive territory.

15:8 took Agag king of the Amalekites alive: This was a direct violation of the Lord's command (v. 3). Saul devoted the rest of the people to the ban but saved the life of the king.

15:9 By sparing Agag and the best of the spoil, Saul was following his own desires instead of serving as an agent of God's judgment. Perhaps he wanted to gain prestige by bringing home the spoil of the Amalekites.

15:12 Carmel, located seven miles south of Hebron, would have been on Saul's route home. The monument that Saul set up was probably intended to commemorate the victory over the Amalekites. Saul then returned to Gilgal, where the Israelites had convened before their war with the Philistines (13:8-15).

ument for himself; and he has gone on around, passed by, and gone down to Gilgal.”¹³ Then Samuel went to Saul, and Saul said to him, “Blessed are you of the LORD! I have performed the commandment of the LORD.”

¹⁴ But Samuel said, “What then is this bleating of the sheep in my ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?”

¹⁵ And Saul said, “They have brought them from the Amalekites; for the people spared the best of the sheep and the oxen, to sacrifice to the LORD your God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.”

¹⁶ Then Samuel said to Saul, “Be quiet! And I will tell you what the LORD said to me last night.”

And he said to him, “Speak on.”

¹⁷ So Samuel said, “When you were little in your own eyes, were you not head of the tribes of Israel? And did not the LORD anoint you king over Israel? Now the LORD sent you on a mission, and said, ‘Go, and utterly destroy the sinners, the Amalekites, and fight against them until they are ²consumed.’ Why then did you not obey the voice of the LORD? Why did you swoop down on the ³spoil, and do evil in the sight of the LORD?”

²⁰ And Saul said to Samuel, “But I have obeyed the voice of the LORD, and gone on the mission on which the LORD sent me, and brought back Agag king of Amalek; I have utterly destroyed the Amalekites. But the people took of the plunder, sheep and oxen, the best of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice to the LORD your God in Gilgal.”

²² So Samuel said:

And to heed than the fat of rams.

²³ For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft,

And stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry.

Because you have rejected the word of the LORD,

²He also has rejected you from being king.”

^{24a} Then Saul said to Samuel, “I have sinned, for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD and your words, because I feared the people and obeyed their voice. ²⁵ Now therefore, please pardon my sin, and return with me, that I may worship the LORD.”

²⁶ But Samuel said to Saul, “I will not return with you, for you have rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD has rejected you from being king over Israel.”

²⁷ And as Samuel turned around to go away, ^dSaul seized the edge of his robe, and it tore. ²⁸ So Samuel said to him, “The LORD has torn the kingdom of Israel from you today, and has given it to a neighbor of yours, who is better than you. ²⁹ And also the Strength of Israel will not lie nor relent. For He is not a man, that He should relent.”

³⁰ Then he said, “I have sinned; yet honor me now, please, before the elders of my people and before Israel, and return with me, that I may worship the LORD your God.” ³¹ So Samuel turned back after Saul, and Saul worshiped the LORD.

15:13 Blessed are you was a form of ancient greeting (see Gen. 24:31). Note that Saul’s words I have performed the commandment of the LORD are the exact opposite of God’s evaluation (v. 11).

15:15 When confronted by Samuel, Saul excused his disobedience by blaming the people. He also sought to justify sparing the best of the sheep and the oxen by suggesting that he intended them for sacrifice.

15:20 I have obeyed the voice of the LORD: Given another chance by Samuel to get things right with God, Saul persisted in affirming his innocence.

15:22 to obey is better than sacrifice: Samuel emphasized that sincerity and obedience were the prerequisites for worship that pleased God.

15:23 Saul’s independent, rebellious actions were as much a denial of God’s authority as the recognition of Satan’s supernatural power through witchcraft. Witchcraft was condemned by the law of Moses (Lev. 19:26, 31; Deut. 18:9–14) and was punishable by death (Ex. 22:18). Saul’s stubborn disobedience was essentially an act of idolatry because it elevated his will above God’s will. He also has rejected you: Saul failed to realize that he was not a sovereign and independent ruler like other monarchs. Instead, he was an agent and representative of the divine King. Saul’s rejection of God’s word resulted in the rejection of Saul as God’s royal representative.

15:24 I have sinned: In response to Samuel’s rebuke, Saul confessed his sin and explained that because he feared the people, he obeyed their voice. Saul led the people by catering to their wishes.

15:26 How sad the words of Samuel must have been. Saul had disobeyed God one time too many; for him, there was no return.

15:28 The accidental tearing of Samuel’s robe (v. 27) served as a sign that God had torn the kingdom from Saul. For a similar incident, see 1 Kin. 11:30. The neighbor who would receive the kingdom was David (16:11–13).

15:29 the Strength of Israel: This designation of God occurs only here in the Bible. The phrase can also mean “the Glory of Israel.” will not lie nor relent: God’s decision to reject Saul was irrevocable.

15:30, 31 Saul’s requests for forgiveness and desire to worship God suggest that, despite his flaws, he was a sincere believer in God. Samuel may have discerned that Saul’s confession in v. 30 was more sincere than the one recorded earlier (v. 24).

15:32, 33 Bring Agag: Samuel determined to do what Saul had not done. He executed Agag in order to obey God’s clear command (v. 3). The verb translated hacked . . . in pieces may simply mean

And Agag said, “Surely the bitterness of death is past.”

³³ But Samuel said, ^h“As your sword has made women childless, so shall your mother be childless among women.” And Samuel hacked Agag in pieces before the LORD in Gilgal.

³⁴ Then Samuel went to ⁱRamah, and Saul went up to his house at ^jGibeah of Saul. ³⁵ And ^kSamuel went no more to see Saul until the day of his death. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, and the LORD regretted that He had made Saul king over Israel.

David Anointed King

16 Now the LORD said to Samuel, ^a“How long will you mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? ^bFill your horn with oil, and go; I am sending you to ^cJesse the Bethlehemite. For ^dI have ¹provided Myself a king among his sons.”

² And Samuel said, “How can I go? If Saul hears it, he will kill me.”

But the LORD said, “Take a heifer with you, and say, ^e‘I have come to sacrifice to the LORD.’ ³ Then invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you shall do; you shall anoint for Me the one I name to you.”

⁴ So Samuel did what the LORD said, and went to Bethlehem. And the elders of the town ^ftrembled at his coming, and said, ^g“Do you come peaceably?”

⁵ And he said, “Peaceably; I have come to sacrifice to the LORD. ^hSanctify² yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice.” Then he consecrated Jesse and his sons, and invited them to the sacrifice.

⁶ So it was, when they came, that he looked at ⁱEliab and ^jsaid, “Surely the LORD’s anointed is before Him!”

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Anointing

Anointing with oil signified the act of installing a person into a special office or setting apart an object for sacred rites. Thus, the Lord told Samuel, “Fill your horn with oil, and go” when sending him to anoint Israel’s next king, the young boy David. While priests, prophets, and kings in Israel were all anointed to their offices, the OT phrase “the anointed one” or “the LORD’s anointed” is almost exclusively a reference to Israel’s king (24:6; Ps. 2:2). Some psalmists speak of an anointed Davidic ruler who will reign forever with righteousness and perfect peace (Ps. 2:45; 132). These passages prophetically foreshadow the coming divine King—Jesus, the Messiah (Heb. 1:5, 8, 9).

⁸ So Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, “Neither has the LORD chosen this one.” ⁹ Then Jesse made Shammah pass by. And he said, “Neither has the LORD chosen this one.” ¹⁰ Thus Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel. And Samuel said to Jesse, “The LORD has not chosen

15:35 See evidently means “to give attention” or “to regard with interest.” The point is that God was through with Saul as king, and so was Samuel.

16:1–31:13 The next section records David’s rise to the throne. David was known as a man after God’s heart (13:14). His faith was so exemplary that centuries later God was pleased to be called “the God of David” (2 Kin. 20:5; Is. 38:5). David contributed to the worship of the Lord by planning the building of the temple (2 Chr. 28:11–29:2) and by writing many psalms (2 Sam. 23:1).

16:1 Fill your horn: The ram’s horn served as a vessel for the anointing olive oil (10:1). Jesse the Bethlehemite was the son (or descendant) of Obed, the son of Ruth and Boaz (Ruth 4:21, 22). I have provided Myself a king: God made it clear to Samuel that this king would be of His choosing.

16:2 Samuel’s concern for his life was not unwarranted in light of Saul’s suspicious nature and spiritual degeneracy (18:11). A heifer is a young cow. say, ‘I have come to sacrifice’: God did not instruct Samuel to lie, but instead He provided a legitimate opportunity for Samuel to visit with Jesse and his family. By performing the anointing in Bethlehem while officiating at a sacrifice, Samuel would avoid arousing the suspicions of Saul.

16:4 Because Samuel’s visit was unexpected, the elders of the town wondered if he had come to execute judgment (7:15, 16).

16:5 The Hebrew word for peaceably means “things as they ought to be.” The word sanctify means “to set oneself apart” by means of ceremonial washings and purifications (Ex. 19:10, 14, 22). he consecrated Jesse and his sons: Apparently, Samuel personally supervised the purification of the father and his sons.

16:6, 7 Eliab means “My God Is Father.” said: Samuel was probably saying these things to himself. The appearance and stature of Jesse’s oldest son, Eliab, commended him to leadership. But these were the very things that had commended Saul (9:2). Instead of looking at appearances, God searched the heart. Thus God gave Samuel a new perspective. The state of a man’s heart was far more significant than natural ability and physical appearance.

16:8, 9 Abinadab means “My Father Is Noble.” Shammah may come from the word that means “He Hears.” The parade of sons began with the oldest, in a typical patriarchal manner. The assumption was that the firstborn would receive a higher rank than his brothers. Yet often God’s way surprisingly reversed this expectation.

these.”¹¹ And Samuel said to Jesse, “Are all the young men here?” Then he said, “There remains yet the youngest, and there he is, keeping the ^osheep.”

And Samuel said to Jesse, “Send and bring him. For we will not ⁵sit down till he comes here.”¹² So he sent and brought him in. Now he was ^rruddy, ^qwith ⁶bright eyes, and good-looking.” And the LORD said, “Arise, anoint him; for this is the one!”¹³ Then Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed him in the midst of his brothers; and ^sthe Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel arose and went to Ramah.

A Distressing Spirit Troubles Saul

¹⁴But the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and ^aa distressing spirit from the LORD troubled him.¹⁵ And Saul’s servants said to him, “Surely, a distressing spirit from God is troubling you.”¹⁶ Let our master now command your servants, who are before you, to seek out a man who is a skillful player on the harp. And it shall be that he will ^vplay it with his hand when the ⁷distressing spirit from God is upon you, and you shall be well.”

¹⁷So Saul said to his servants, ⁸“Provide me now a man who can play well, and bring him to me.”

¹⁸Then one of the servants answered and said, “Look, I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite, who is skillful in playing, a mighty man of valor, a man of war, prudent in speech, and a handsome person; and ^wthe LORD is with him.”

¹⁹Therefore Saul sent messengers to Jesse, and said, “Send me your son David, who is with the sheep.”²⁰ And Jesse ^xtook a donkey loaded with bread, a skin

Harps

The musical instrument mentioned more often than any other in the Bible is the harp or lyre. Scholars believe these two instruments were similar in function and design, but the harp was probably a larger version. David played a harp to soothe the “distressing spirit” that troubled King Saul. Although David apparently plucked the strings with his fingers, the harp was usually played by stroking the strings with a pick, much as a guitar is played. The harp had from 3 to 12 strings. Considered an aristocratic instrument, harps were often made of silver or ivory. Other words used for these two instruments by various translations of the Bible are psaltery, lute, and viol. The smaller lyre was used both for sacred and secular purposes. The lute was an even smaller version of the harp or lyre, consisting of only 3 strings.

16:11 Are all the young men here: After looking at Jesse’s seven sons, Samuel wondered if someone had been left out. In fact, the youngest was out in the field, caring for his father’s flock. keeping the sheep: In ancient times, both divine and human rulers were frequently compared to shepherds (see Ezek. 34). The famous Babylonian king Hammurabi described himself as a shepherd for his people. The fact that David was tending the sheep at this particular moment is something of a divine foreshadowing of his appointment as the king of Israel.

16:12 Ruddy means “reddish,” referring to complexion and perhaps hair color. bright eyes: The Hebrew words may also be rendered beauty of eyes. good-looking: God made it clear to Samuel that He did not choose David on the basis of his good looks (v. 7). This was a bonus to David’s inner worth. the LORD said: It is not clear whether anyone but Samuel heard these words of God. anoint him: David was anointed with olive oil. This religious ritual consecrated him to the kingship.

16:13 In Hebrew, came upon means “rushed upon.” David was empowered by God’s Holy Spirit for the work of ruling God’s people, just as Saul had been (10:10). David means “Beloved.”

16:14, 15 departed from Saul: After the Spirit of God came upon David, Saul was no longer empowered by the Spirit to serve as king. It appears that the ministry of the Holy Spirit was selective and temporary in the lives of OT believers. distressing spirit from the LORD: This affliction has been understood in various ways: (1) demon possession as divine punishment; (2) demonic attack or influence; (3) an evil messenger, like the one sent to entice Ahab (1 Kin. 22:20–23); or (4) a spirit of discontent created by God in Saul’s heart (see Judg. 9:23). Whatever it was, it was immediately noticed by Saul’s servants (18:10).

16:16, 17 Whatever Saul’s problem was, it was temporarily relieved by music (v. 23). It was generally believed in ancient times that music had a beneficial influence on those with sullen or morbid natures.

16:18 a mighty man of valor, a man of war: David the shepherd boy had not yet demonstrated his military abilities. The glowing description given by the courtier may have been exaggerated but was included here by the author because it anticipated what David would become in light of his reputation (17:34, 35).

16:21 David’s appointment as Saul’s armorbearer may have taken place after his victory over Goliath (17:55–58). Perhaps it is mentioned here because it fits well with the theme of David’s early service in Saul’s court. Alternatively, it is possible that David was first in favor with Saul, then fell from favor only to be restored again.

16:22 Stand before me was an expression for entering the king’s service (see 1 Kin. 10:8).

16:23 Empowered by the Spirit of God, David was able to drive away would take a harp and play it with his hand. Then Saul would become refreshed and well, and the distressing spirit would depart from him.

David and Goliath

17 Now the Philistines gathered their armies together to battle, and were gathered at ^aSochoh, which belongs to Judah; they encamped between Sochoh and Azekah, in Ephes Dammim. ²And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and they encamped in the Valley of Elah, and drew up in battle array against the Philistines. ³The Philistines stood on a mountain on one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side, with a valley between them.

⁴And a champion went out from the camp of the Philistines, named ^bGoliath, from ^cGath, whose height was six cubits and a span. ⁵*He had* a bronze helmet on his head, and he was ¹armed with a coat of mail, and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of bronze. ⁶And he had bronze armor on his legs and a bronze javelin between his shoulders. ⁷Now the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and his iron spearhead weighed six hundred shekels; and a shield-bearer went before him. ⁸Then he stood and cried out to the armies of Israel, and said to them, "Why have you come out to line up for battle? Am I not a Philistine, and you the ^dservants of Saul? Choose a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me. ⁹If he is able to fight with me and kill me, then we will be your servants. But if I prevail against him and kill him, then you shall be our servants and serve us." ¹⁰And the Philistine said, "I ^jdefy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight together." ¹¹When Saul and all Israel heard these words of the Philistine, they were dismayed and greatly afraid.

¹²Now David was ^gthe son of that ^hEphrathite of Bethlehem Judah, whose name was Jesse, and who had ⁱeight sons. And the man was old, advanced in years, in the days of Saul. ¹³The three oldest sons of Jesse had gone to follow Saul to the battle. The ^jnames of his three sons who went to the battle were Eliab the firstborn, next to him Abinadab, and the third Shammah. ¹⁴David was the youngest. And the three oldest followed Saul. ¹⁵But David occasionally went and returned from Saul ^kto feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem.

¹⁶And the Philistine drew near and presented himself forty days, morning and evening.

¹⁷Then Jesse said to his son David, "Take now for your brothers an ephah of this dried grain and these ten loaves, and run to your brothers at the camp. ¹⁸And carry these ten cheeses to the captain of their thousand, and ^lsee how your brothers fare, and bring back news of them." ¹⁹Now Saul and they and all the men of Israel were in the Valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines.

²⁰So David rose early in the morning, the distressing spirit (v. 14) with his soothing music (18:10). The verse suggests a lengthy period of time.

17:1 The Philistine and Israelite armies were gathered in the Elah Valley, about 15 miles west of David's hometown of Bethlehem. The Philistines were camped between Azekah and Sochoh, on a hill (v. 3) south of the valley. Azekah, strategically located on a hill, was one of a string of fortresses built along the western boundary of Judah to guard the major roads penetrating the region. Sochoh was one of the cities that would later be fortified by Rehoboam (see 2 Chr. 11:7). The description, which belongs to Judah, reminds us that the Philistines were encroaching on Judean lands.

17:2, 3 The Valley of Elah is an east-west valley leading from the hill country of Judah toward the lowlands of the Philistines. The valley would have been suitable for the Philistine chariots had it not been for a steep ravine that extended up the middle of the valley. The war chariot of the Philistines had iron fittings and was the most advanced weapon of the day. Probably the ravine prevented a full-scale assault by the Philistines, causing the long delay before engaging in battle (v. 16).

17:4 champion: The Hebrew expression is literally "a man who is a go-between," meaning a warrior who will fight in single combat as a stand-in for the entire army. His opponent needed to be as strong as he was. The most likely person to serve in this role was Saul. When he was chosen as king, it was noted that Saul stood head and shoulders over his countrymen (9:2). However, Saul made no move to oppose the braggart buffoon from Philistia. The cubit was about 18 inches and a span was 9 inches. Thus Goliath stood 9 feet, 9 inches tall.

17:5, 6 bronze helmet: Ordinary troops had leather helmets. Goliath's coat of mail was made of overlapping plates of bronze sewn on leather. This armor weighed five thousand shekels or about 125 pounds. Bronze armor refers to the greaves that protected Goliath's legs. bronze javelin: This oversized weapon was designed for hurling. Between his shoulders means strapped to his back.

17:7 The spear was a weapon designed for hand-to-hand combat, like a long sword. six hundred shekels: The head of Goliath's spear weighed about 17 pounds. shield-bearer: There are two different Hebrew words for "shield." One refers to a small round shield usually worn on the left arm. The other, used here, refers to a much larger, oblong shield, often carried by the shield-bearer as the soldier moved into battle. Goliath was a veritable war machine.

17:10 Defy is an unusually harsh word, meaning "to put under reproach" (vv. 25, 26). As the account later makes clear, the defiant taunts of Goliath were as much against the God of Israel as against the fighters (vv. 26, 36).

17:11 they were dismayed and greatly afraid: The army was sick with dread. Perhaps the Israelites had forgotten the victories God had given Israel in times past. Forgetfulness of God's past deliverance diminishes one's confidence in the face of present conflict.

17:12 that Ephrathite: Ephrathah was a family name in the tribe of Judah, the area where Bethlehem was located (see Mic. 5:2).

17:17-19 In ancient times, soldiers usually lived off the land they conquered or depended on personal supplies that they or someone else brought from home. Jesse sent David with provisions—grain, loaves, and cheeses—for his sons and their officers. An ephah was a measure of grain, about five gallons.

17:20-22 rose early in the morning: These are the same words left the sheep with a keeper, and took the things and went as Jesse had commanded him. And he came to the camp as the army was going out to the fight and shouting for the battle. ²¹For Israel and the Philistines had drawn up in battle array, army against army. ²²And David left his supplies in the hand of the supply keeper, ran to the army, and came and greeted his brothers. ²³Then as he talked with them, there was the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, coming up from the armies of the Philistines; and he spoke ^maccording to the same words. So David heard them. ²⁴And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him and were dreadfully afraid. ²⁵So the men of Israel said, “Have you seen this man who has come up? Surely he has come up to defy Israel; and it shall be that the man who kills him the king will enrich with great riches, ⁿwill give him his daughter, and give his father’s house exemption from taxes in Israel.”

²⁶Then David spoke to the men who stood by him, saying, “What shall be done for the man who kills this Philistine and takes away ^othe reproach from Israel? For who is this ^puncircumcised Philistine, that he should ^qdefy the armies of ^rthe living God?”

²⁷And the people answered him in this manner, saying, ^s“So shall it be done for the man who kills him.”

²⁸Now Eliab his oldest brother heard when he spoke to the men; and Eliab’s ^tanger was aroused against David, and he said, “Why did you come down here? And with whom have you left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know your pride and the insolence of your heart, for you have come down to see the battle.”

²⁹And David said, “What have I done

now? “Is² there not a cause?” ³⁰Then he turned from him toward another and ^vsaid the same thing; and these people answered him as the first ones did.

³¹Now when the words which David spoke were heard, they reported them to Saul; and he sent for him. ³²Then David said to Saul, ^w“Let no man’s heart fail because of him; ^xyour servant will go and fight with this Philistine.”

³³And Saul said to David, ^y“You are not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him; for you are a youth, and he a man of war from his youth.”

³⁴But David said to Saul, “Your servant used to keep his father’s sheep, and when a ^zlion or a bear came and took a lamb out of the flock, ³⁵I went out after it and struck it, and delivered the lamb from its mouth; and when it arose against me, I caught it by its beard, and struck and killed it. ³⁶Your servant has killed both lion and bear; and this uncircumcised Philistine will be like one of them, seeing he has defied the armies of the living God.” ³⁷Moreover David said, ^a“The LORD, who delivered me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear, He will deliver me from the hand of this Philistine.”

And Saul said to David, ^b“Go, and the LORD be with you!”

³⁸So Saul clothed David with his ³armor, and he put a bronze helmet on his head; he also clothed him with a coat of mail. ³⁹David fastened his sword to his armor and tried to walk, for he had not tested them. And David said to Saul, “I cannot walk with these, for I have not tested them.” So David took them off.

⁴⁰Then he took his staff in his hand; and he chose for himself five smooth stones from the brook, and put them in a shepherd’s bag, in a pouch which that were used of Abraham when he set out on his fateful journey to Moriah (see Gen. 22:3). going out to the fight: The soldiers were going out to the battle line, but only to shout their taunts. the supply keeper: This wording suggests that what David did for his brothers was an ordinary service performed by families for their sons on the battlefield.

17:24 fled . . . afraid: The fear of the Israelite army was shameful. Perched on the fortified hillside, none of them was in immediate danger.

17:25 Saul promised riches, exemption from taxes and the duty of public service, and his daughter’s hand in marriage to the one who would defeat Goliath.

17:26 Uncircumcised is used as an expression of contempt for a pagan person.

17:28 David’s oldest brother, Eliab, was rather abrupt with David. pride . . . insolence: This language is similar to that used to describe the rage of Joseph’s brothers against him (Gen. 37).

17:29 Is there not a cause: David protested his innocence of the charges of pride (v. 28). There was reason to be agitated—not at David, but at the Philistine.

17:32 your servant will go: David weighed the difficulties from a divine perspective. Here was an opportunity for God to display His power.

17:34-37 David’s past victories over a lion and a bear gave him the faith to trust God for victory over Goliath. For David, the issue was more a theological crisis—the Israelites’ lack of faith—than a military one.

17:38, 39 Instead of putting on his own armor, trusting God, and going to the field of battle, Saul attempted to put the oversized armor on a young boy. Saul’s armor was designed for a large man. David could not even walk in it, much less fight in it.

17:40 his staff: Unprepared to face Goliath as an armed soldier, David prepared to face him as a shepherd. five smooth stones: David’s experience had taught him how important shape, size, and uniformity were to achieve accuracy with a sling. A sling was the typical equipment of a shepherd. It was a hollow pocket of leather attached to two cords. Putting a stone in the pouch, the slinger would whirl it around his head to build up momentum. Releasing one of the cords would hurl the stone at its target. Slingers were a regular part of armies in the ancient Middle East (see Judg. 20:16).

he had, and his sling was in his hand. And he drew near to the Philistine. ⁴¹So the Philistine came, and began drawing near to David, and the man who bore the shield went before him. ⁴²And when the Philistine looked about and saw David, he *disdained*⁴ him; for he was only a youth, ⁴³ruddy and good-looking. ⁴³So the Philistine said to David, “Am I a dog, that you come to me with sticks?” And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. ⁴⁴And the Philistine said to David, “Come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and the beasts of the field!”

⁴⁵Then David said to the Philistine, “You come to me with a sword, with a spear, and with a javelin. ⁴⁶But I come to you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. ⁴⁶This day the LORD will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you and take your head from you. And this day I will give the carcasses of the camp of the Philistines to the birds of the air and the wild beasts of the earth, ⁴⁷that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel. ⁴⁷Then all this assembly shall know that the LORD does not save with sword and spear; for the battle is the LORD’s, and He will give you into our hands.”

⁴⁸So it was, when the Philistine arose and came and drew near to meet David, that David hurried and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine. ⁴⁹Then David put his hand in his bag and took out a stone; and he slung it and struck the Philistine in his forehead, so that the stone sank into his forehead, and he fell on his face to the earth. ⁵⁰So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and a stone, and struck the Philistine and killed him. But there was no sword in the hand of David. ⁵¹Therefore David ran and stood over the Philistine, took his sword and drew it out of its sheath and killed him, and cut off his head with it.

And when the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they fled. ⁵²Now the men of Israel and Judah arose and shouted, and pursued the Philistines as far as the entrance of the valley and to the gates of Ekron. And the wounded of the Philistines fell along the road to Gath, even as far as Gath and Ekron. ⁵³Then the children of Israel returned from chasing the Philistines, and they plundered their tents. ⁵⁴And David took the head of the Philistine and brought it to Jerusalem, but he put his armor in his tent.

⁵⁵When Saul saw David going out against the Philistine, he said to Abner, the commander of the army, “Abner, whose son is this youth?”

And Abner said, “As your soul lives, O king, I do not know.”

⁵⁶So the king said, “Inquire whose son this young man is.”

⁵⁷Then, as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand. ⁵⁸And Saul said to him, “Whose son are you, young man?”

So David answered, “I am the son of your servant Jesse the Bethlehemite.”

Saul Resents David

18 Now when he had finished speaking to Saul, the ¹soul of Jonathan was knit to the soul of David, and Jon-

17:42 David lacked the signs of age and the scars that one would expect of a battle-seasoned champion. Unlike most soldiers of Israel, he had not yet grown a beard.

17:43 The appearance of a boy as his challenger offended the pride of Goliath. Further, Goliath saw the shepherd's staff (v. 40) and was angry because David appeared as if he were out to beat a dog instead of a giant. cursed David: Goliath treated David as contemptible. The word translated cursed is the same word used in Gen. 12:3. Since Goliath had cursed one of God's people, God was bound by His covenant to curse Goliath.

17:45 Hosts refers to the armies of heaven and of Israel, over whom God is Commander in Chief. The name of the LORD speaks of God's covenantal relationship with the Israelites. David was depending on the power of God as the Warrior and Defender of His people (see Ex. 15:3).

17:46, 47 David intended his victory to demonstrate to all the earth that (1) the God of Israel exists and (2) He delivers His own against overwhelming odds. David's words the battle is the LORD's put the contest into proper perspective.

17:48, 49 hurried and ran: Part of David's strategy was to rush the giant. Guided by the Lord, David skillfully hit the right spot on his forehead with a powerful blow.

17:51 cut off his head: This was an indignity to a fallen foe and the decisive sign that he was dead. It filled the Philistines with terror.

17:52 The Israelites pursued the Philistines north toward Ekron and east toward Gath. Shaaraim, meaning “Two Gates,” is mentioned in Josh. 15:36 next to Sochoh and Azekah.

17:54 At this time, a part of Jerusalem was occupied by Israelites, but the citadel of Jebus was still in the hands of the Jebusites (Josh. 15:63). Later, it was captured by David when he became king over all Israel (2 Sam. 5:6–9). David took Goliath's head to the part of the city that was under Israelite control. David kept Goliath's armor, but the giant's sword was later deposited in the sanctuary at Nob (21:9).

17:55 Abner, one of Saul's generals, was also Saul's cousin (14:50). He was another seasoned soldier who was silent and inactive in the face of Goliath's taunting words. whose son is this youth: How does this question fit with the fact that David had been serving as a musician in Saul's court (16:18–23)? Saul's unstable mental condition (16:14, 15) may have affected his memory. Saul may have recognized David as his court musician but forgotten the name of David's father. He would need to know it in order to reward David's family (v. 25). It is also possible that in his question, Saul's principal interest was not David's identity, but the possibility that David was a contender for the throne of Israel.

17:56–58 your servant Jesse: In identifying his father, David likely intended to emphasize that Jesse was no threat to the king, that he was a loyal servant of Saul.

athan loved him as his own soul. ²Saul took him that day, ^cand would not let him go home to his father's house anymore. ³Then Jonathan and David made a ^dcovenant, because he loved him as his own soul. ⁴And Jonathan took off the robe that was on him and gave it to David, with his armor, even to his sword and his bow and his belt.

⁵So David went out wherever Saul sent him, and ²behaved wisely. And Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people and also in the sight of Saul's servants. ⁶Now it had happened as they were coming home, when David was returning from the slaughter of the ³Philistine, that ^ethe women had come out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet King Saul, with tambourines, with joy, and with musical instruments. ⁷So the women ^fsang as they danced, and said:

g“Saul has slain his thousands,

⁸Then Saul was very angry, and the saying ^hdispleased him; and he said, “They have ascribed to David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed only thousands. Now what more can he have but ⁱthe kingdom?” ⁹So Saul ⁴eyed David from that day forward.

¹⁰And it happened on the next day that ^jthe distressing spirit from God came upon Saul, ^kand he prophesied inside the house. So David ^lplayed music with his hand, as at other times; ^mbut there was a spear in Saul's hand. ¹¹And Saul ⁿcast the spear, for he said, “I will pin David to the wall!” But David escaped his presence twice.

¹²Now Saul was ^oafraid of David, because ^pthe LORD was with him, but had ^qdeparted from Saul. ¹³Therefore Saul removed him from ⁵his presence, and made him his captain over a thousand; and ^rhe went out and came in before the people. ¹⁴And David behaved wisely in all his ways, and ^sthe LORD was with him. ¹⁵Therefore, when Saul saw that he behaved very wisely, he was afraid of him. ¹⁶But ^tall Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

David Marries Michal

¹⁷Then Saul said to David, “Here is my older daughter Merab; ^uI will give her to you as a wife. Only be valiant for me, and fight ^vthe LORD's battles.” For Saul thought, ^w“Let my hand not be against him, but let the hand of the Philistines be against him.”

¹⁸So David said to Saul, ^x“Who am I,

18:2 Like his son Jonathan, Saul was captivated by David. He conscripted him anew to his court (16:19–23; 17:15).

18:3 This covenant was a mutual agreement in which David and Jonathan were bound to care for the needs and attend to the interests of each other. It was a treaty as between equals, yet these two men were not exactly equals. Such a relationship had to be initiated by Jonathan because he was a member of the royal household. as his own soul: These words, repeated for emphasis (v. 1), describe the unselfish nature of Jonathan's love for David.

18:4 sword . . . bow . . . belt: These were treasured items that would not have been casually surrendered. With these gifts Jonathan ratified his covenant with David. In retrospect, Jonathan's action was symbolic of a transfer of royal power from Saul's family to David.

18:5 behaved wisely: This description is a part of an ongoing subtle contrast between David and Saul. The phrase reveals that David was acting with skill and achieving success. It should be contrasted with the description of unwise actions of Saul (13:13). set him over the men of war: David did not replace Abner (17:55); he was simply acknowledged as a national military hero.

18:6 when David was returning: An event in the immediate aftermath of the famous battle of ch. 17 is mentioned here. Women came together from across the land to celebrate the national victory and their new national champion. to meet King Saul: The suggestion is that this was the usual pattern.

18:7 The popular song which celebrated David's military achievements became widely known, even among the Philistines (21:11). thousands . . . ten thousands: The poetic use of exaggeration is evident here. David had not yet slain even a dozen people, much less thousands. The women did not intend to offend the king; they were simply praising God for His ever-increasing benefits to the nation.

18:8 the saying displeased him: Saul saw David's abilities and achievements as undercutting his own prominence among the people. the kingdom: To Saul, there appeared to be no honor left for David except for him to take the throne. Ironically, this is exactly what God had determined.

18:10 The expression he prophesied can be used of legitimate prophecy or the erratic prophetic ecstasy associated with the ravings of false prophets and pagan priests (1 Kin. 18:29; 22:12). Whatever the case here, God was judging Saul for his previous disobedience by allowing his mind to become troubled.

18:14 the LORD was with him: David's relationship with God was the key to his success.

18:16 he went out and came in before them: David's military activities elevated him to prominence before the people.

18:17 While Saul had previously promised to give his daughter to the man who killed Goliath (17:25), here he linked the marriage to future conquests, hoping that David would be killed by the Philistines.

(Heb. mecholah) (18:6; 21:11; 29:5) Strong's #4246

The verbal root of this Hebrew word means “to whirl” or “to move in a circle.” This is probably indicative of the type of dancing described here. When this word is used, there is regularly an association with joy, sometimes contrasted with mourning (Ps. 30:11; Jer. 31:4, 13; Lam. 5:15). Singing and playing instruments (especially the tambourine) are often mentioned in connection with dancing (Ex. 15:20; Judg. 11:34; Ps. 150:4). Although women usually do the dancing, men are also said to dance (Jer. 31:13). The ancient Israelites danced to celebrate the victories that God had given them (18:6; Ex. 15:20; Judg. 11:34). This was an exuberant expression of praise for their Creator and Deliverer (Ps. 149:3; 150:4; Jer. 31:4).

and what is my life or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king?" ¹⁹ But it happened at the time when Merab, Saul's daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given to ¹⁸Adriel the ²Meholathite as a wife.

²⁰ ^aNow Michal, Saul's daughter, loved David. And they told Saul, and the thing pleased him. ²¹ So Saul said, "I will give her to him, that she may ^bbe a snare to him, and that ^bthe hand of the Philistines may be against him." Therefore Saul said to David a second time, ^c"You shall be my son-in-law today."

²³ So Saul's servants spoke those words in the hearing of David. And David said, "Does it seem to you a light thing to be a king's son-in-law, seeing I am a poor and lightly esteemed man?" ²⁴ And the servants of Saul told him, saying, ⁷"In this manner David spoke."

²⁸ Thus Saul saw and knew that the LORD was with David, and that Michal, Saul's daughter, loved him; ²⁹ and Saul was still more afraid of David. So Saul became David's enemy ⁸continually. ³⁰ Then the princes of the Philistines ^jwent out to war. And so it was, whenever they went out, that David ^kbehaved more wisely than all the servants of Saul, so that his name became highly esteemed.

Saul Persecutes David

19 Now Saul spoke to Jonathan his son and to all his servants, that they should kill ^aDavid; but Jonathan, Saul's son, ^bdelighted greatly in David. ² So Jonathan told David, saying, "My father Saul seeks to kill you. Therefore please be on your guard until morning, and stay in a secret place and hide. ³ And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where you are, and I will speak with my father about you. Then what I observe, I will tell ^cyou."

⁴ Thus Jonathan ^dspoke well of David to Saul his father, and said to him, "Let not the king ^esin against his servant, against David, because he has not sinned against you, and because his works have been very good toward you. ⁵ For he took his ^flife in his hands and ^gkilled the Philistine, and ^hthe LORD brought about a great deliverance for all Israel. You saw it and rejoiced. ⁱWhy then will you ^jsin against innocent blood, to kill David without a cause?"

⁶ So Saul heeded the voice of Jonathan, and Saul swore, "As the LORD lives, he shall not be killed." ⁷ Then Jonathan called David, and Jonathan told him all these things. So Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence ^kas in times past.

⁸ And there was war again; and David went out and fought with the Philistines, ^land struck them with a mighty blow, and they fled from him.

⁹ Now ^mthe distressing spirit from the 18:21, 23 that she may be a snare to him: Saul hoped that offering Michal in marriage would lead to David's death. I am a poor . . . man: David did not have the resources to bring a wedding dowry fit for a king (v. 25).

18:25 In many cultures of the ancient Middle East, a dowry was paid by the bridegroom to the father of the bride as economic compensation for the loss of a daughter who helped around the home. one hundred foreskins: The foreskins would be proof that David had killed that many Philistines.

18:26, 27 the days had not expired: Apparently there was a time limit during which David had to fulfill the conditions of the dowry. two hundred men: David provided twice the number that Saul required.

18:30 The war with the Philistines continued, as did David's brave exploits. behaved more wisely: This significant phrase meaning "to act with skill" is again contrasted with the phrase meaning "to play the fool," used of Saul in 13:13. David's successful military engagements gained him increasing honor and recognition.

19:1 When Saul's scheming efforts failed, he brought Jonathan and all his servants into the plot. Apparently, Saul did not know about the friendship of David and Jonathan.

19:2, 3 Loyal to his covenant of friendship, Jonathan pledged to intervene on David's behalf before his father (18:3).

19:4, 5 his servant: Jonathan's strongest argument was that David's actions demonstrated loyalty to Saul. innocent blood: Jonathan reminded his father of God's law. By having David killed, Saul would incur the guilt of bloodshed (see Deut. 19:10).

19:6, 7 Saul swore: Following the normal form for making such an oath, Saul says literally, "If he would die!" He means, "I will not allow him to die."

19:8 David's actions are contrasted with Saul's. Each time there was war with the Philistines, David had more opportunities for great exploits. Saul himself no longer went to war. He stayed at home sulking about David's victories.

LORD came upon Saul as he sat in his house with his spear in his hand. And David was playing music with his hand. ¹⁰Then Saul sought to pin David to the wall with the spear, but he slipped away from Saul's presence; and he drove the spear into the wall. So David fled and escaped that night.

¹¹ⁿ Saul also sent messengers to David's house to watch him and to kill him in the morning. And Michal, David's wife, told him, saying, "If you do not save your life tonight, tomorrow you will be killed." ¹²So Michal ^olet David down through a window. And he went and fled and escaped. ¹³And Michal took ⁱan image and laid it in the bed, put a cover of goats' hair for his head, and covered it with clothes. ¹⁴So when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, "He is sick."

¹⁵Then Saul sent the messengers back to see David, saying, "Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may kill him." ¹⁶And when the messengers had come in, there was the image in the bed, with a cover of goats' hair for his head. ¹⁷Then Saul said to Michal, "Why have you deceived me like this, and sent my enemy away, so that he has escaped?"

And Michal answered Saul, "He said to me, 'Let me go! ^pWhy should I kill you?'"

¹⁸So David fled and escaped, and went to ^qSamuel at ^rRamah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and stayed in Naioth. ¹⁹Now it was told Saul, saying, "Take note, David is at Naioth in Ramah!" ²⁰Then ^sSaul sent messengers to take David. ^tAnd when they saw the group of prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as leader over them, the Spirit of God came upon the messengers of Saul, and they also "prophesied." ²¹And when Saul was told, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. Then Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also. ²²Then he also went to Ramah, and came to the great well that is at Sechu. So he asked, and said, "Where are Samuel and David?"

And someone said, "Indeed they are at Naioth in Ramah." ²³So he went there to Naioth in Ramah. Then ^vthe Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on and prophesied until he came to Naioth in Ramah. ²⁴^wAnd he also stripped off his clothes and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and lay down ^xnaked all that day and all that night. Therefore they say, ^y"Is Saul also among the prophets?"

Jonathan's Loyalty to David

20 Then David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and went and said to Jonathan, "What have I done? What is my iniquity, and what is my sin before your father, that he seeks my life?"

²So Jonathan said to him, "By no means! You shall not die! Indeed, my father will do nothing either great or small without first telling me. And why should my father hide this thing from me? It is not so!"

³Then David took an oath again, and said, "Your father certainly knows that I have found favor in your eyes, and he has said, 'Do not let Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved.' But truly, as the LORD lives and as your soul lives, there is but a step between me and death."

⁴So Jonathan said to David, "Whatever you yourself desire, I will do it for you."

⁵And David said to Jonathan, "Indeed tomorrow is the ^bNew Moon, and I

19:11 tomorrow you will be killed: Because of her great love for her husband, Michal told David about Saul's plot. The story of David's escape is alluded to in the title of Ps. 59.

19:13 The Hebrew word for image is used elsewhere in Scripture to indicate household idols (see Gen. 31:19, 30–35; Judg. 18:17–26; 2 Kin. 23:24; Ezek. 21:21; Zech. 10:2). Some have suggested that here the word means a life-sized object of a man. However, there is no evidence that ancient Israelites kept such objects in their homes. The cover of goats' hair and clothes was used to make it appear that David was still in bed.

19:14 He is sick: Michal loved her husband so much that she was willing to go against her father's wishes, to lie for David and even to die for him. The fact that she lied is a part of the drama of the story and does not endorse the practice of lying.

19:15 Saul's decaying mental and spiritual state is reflected in his words to his messengers. He feared and hated David so much that he was willing to murder a man lying sick in his bed.

19:18, 19 Facing a serious personal crisis, David went to Samuel at Ramah for help. Together David and Samuel went to Naioth ("Dwellings"), a community within the city of Ramah.

19:20, 21 The working of God's Spirit distracted Saul's messengers from their purpose and protected His servant David.

19:22 Sechu is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible. It was probably north of Jerusalem in the region of Gibeah and Ramah.

19:24 lay down naked: Ancient Israelite culture looked with disdain on nudity in public. It is probable that Saul removed his royal robe but retained his inner tunic. Here Saul's plan to kill David was totally thwarted by God's protective hand.

20:2 You shall not die: Jonathan was certain that Saul would not kill David. It is possible that Jonathan was unaware of the events of 19:8–24 and was trusting in Saul's solemn oath not to kill David (19:6).

20:3 David impressed the seriousness of the situation on Jonathan with an oath. Do not let Jonathan know this: David suggested that Saul had kept his plans from Jonathan to avoid causing his son grief.

20:4 Jonathan's words reflected his covenant of friendship with David (18:3). He had vowed to help David.

20:5, 6 The first day of the month, the New Moon, was observed as a religious festival (Num. 10:10; 28:11–15). It was customarily celebrated with a sacrificial meal and rest from work (see 2 Kin. 4:23; Is. 1:13; Amos 8:5). yearly sacrifice: Apparently Jesse's family gathered for a special time of worship during the New Moon celebration (v. 5).

should not fail to sit with the king to eat. But let me go, that I may ^ehide in the field until the third day at evening. ⁶If your father misses me at all, then say, ‘David earnestly asked permission of me that he might run over ^dto Bethlehem, his city, for there is a yearly sacrifice there for all the family.’ ⁷^cIf he says thus: ‘It is well, your servant will be safe. But if he is very angry, be sure that ^fevil is determined by him.’ ⁸Therefore you shall ^gdeal kindly with your servant, for ^hyou have brought your servant into a covenant of the LORD with you. Nevertheless, ⁱif there is iniquity in me, kill me yourself, for why should you bring me to your father?”

⁹But Jonathan said, “Far be it from you! For if I knew certainly that evil was determined by my father to come upon you, then would I not tell you?”

¹⁰Then David said to Jonathan, “Who will tell me, or what if your father answers you roughly?”

¹¹And Jonathan said to David, “Come, let us go out into the field.” So both of them went out into the field. ¹²Then Jonathan said to David: “The LORD God of Israel is witness! When I have ¹sounded out my father sometime tomorrow, or the third day, and indeed there is good toward David, and I do not send to you and tell you, ¹³may ^jthe LORD do so and much more to Jonathan. But if it pleases my father to do you evil, then I will report it to you and send you away, that you may go in safety. And ^kthe LORD be with you as He has ^lbeen with my father. ¹⁴And you shall not only show me the kindness of the LORD while I still live, that I may not die; ¹⁵but ^myou shall not ²cut off your kindness from my ³house forever, no, not when the LORD has cut off every one of the enemies of David from the face of the earth.” ¹⁶So Jonathan made a covenant with the ⁴house of David, saying, ⁿ“Let the LORD require it at the hand of David’s enemies.”

¹⁷Now Jonathan again caused David to vow, because he loved him; ^ofor he loved him as he loved his own soul. ¹⁸Then Jonathan said to David, ^p“Tomorrow is the New Moon; and you will be missed, because your seat will be empty. ¹⁹And when you have stayed three days, go down quickly and come to ^qthe place where you hid on the day of the deed; and remain by the stone Ezel. ²⁰Then I will shoot three arrows to the side, as though I shot at a target; ²¹and there I will send a lad, saying, ‘Go, find the arrows.’ If I expressly say to the lad, ‘Look, the arrows are on this side of you; get them and come’—then, ^ras the LORD lives, there is safety for you and no harm. ²²But if I say thus to the young man, ‘Look, the arrows are beyond you’—go your way, for the LORD has sent you away. ²³And as for ^sthe matter which you and I have spoken of, indeed the LORD be between you and me forever.”

²⁴Then David hid in the field. And when the New Moon had come, the king sat down to eat the feast. ²⁵Now the king sat on his seat, as at other times, on a seat by the wall. And ⁵Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Saul’s side, but David’s place was empty. ²⁶Nevertheless Saul did not say anything that day, for he thought, “Something has happened to him; he is unclean, surely he is ^tunclean.” ²⁷And it happened the next day, the second day of the month, that David’s place was empty. And Saul said to Jonathan his son, “Why has the son of Jesse not come to eat, either yesterday or today?”

²⁸So Jonathan answered Saul, “David earnestly asked permission of me to go to Bethlehem. ²⁹And he said, ‘Please let me go, for our family has a sacrifice in the city, and my brother has commanded me to be there. And now, if I have found favor in your eyes, please let me get away and see my brothers.’ Therefore he has not come to the king’s table.”

20:8 The words deal kindly may also be rendered “show covenant loyalty.” In other words, David was asking Jonathan to be faithful to his word. He had initiated a covenant of friendship (18:3). if there is iniquity: Since David had done no wrong, he was certainly not worthy of death.

20:12, 13 If the news was good toward David, Jonathan would send a messenger to inform his friend. If the news was evil, then Jonathan would inform David personally. All of this was couched in a solemn oath.

20:14, 15 the kindness of the LORD: Jonathan used the same Hebrew word meaning “covenant loyalty” that David had used earlier (v. 8). Both Jonathan and David were appealing to their covenant of friendship as a basis for acts of kindness. Whatever the outcome of the rift between Saul and David, Jonathan appealed to David to protect his own life and the lives of his descendants. Jonathan knew that David might someday take the throne—and he was well aware of the ancient custom of a new king killing the offspring of his predecessor (see 1 Kin. 15:29; 16:11; 2 Kin. 10:7).

20:16, 17 Jonathan and David reaffirmed their covenant of friendship. Jonathan made a covenant: This refers to the agreement Jonathan sought from David in vv. 14, 15. Let the LORD require it: Jonathan prayed that the Lord would hold David accountable to the obligations of the covenant. Out of love for David, Jonathan again requested that David reaffirm his vow (18:1; 19:1). David and Jonathan were holding each other accountable.

20:19 The stone Ezel was likely a familiar landmark.

20:23 Jonathan declared that the LORD would be a witness to the covenant of protection which he had arranged with David (vv. 14–16).

20:25–27 he is unclean: Noticing that David’s seat was empty, Saul assumed that ritual uncleanness must have prevented his participation in the feast (see Lev. 7:20, 21; 15:16). Since ritual uncleanness was only temporary, Saul’s suspicions were aroused when David was absent on the second night of the feast. The reference to Abner suggests that David might have been threatening Abner’s position as the general of the army.

³⁰Then Saul's anger was aroused against Jonathan, and he said to him, "You son of a perverse, rebellious woman! Do I not know that you have chosen the son of Jesse to your own shame and to the shame of your mother's nakedness?" ³¹For as long as the son of Jesse lives on the earth, you shall not be established, nor your kingdom. Now therefore, send and bring him to me, for he ⁶shall surely die."

³²And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said to him, ^v"Why should he be killed? What has he done?" ³³Then Saul ^wcast a spear at him to ⁷kill him, ^xby which Jonathan knew that it was determined by his father to kill David.

³⁴So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and ate no food the second day of the month, for he was grieved for David, because his father had treated him shamefully.

³⁵And so it was, in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field at the time appointed with David, and a little lad was with him. ³⁶Then he said to his lad, "Now run, find the arrows which I shoot." As the lad ran, he shot an arrow beyond him. ³⁷When the lad had come to the place where the arrow was which

Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried out after the lad and said, "Is not the arrow beyond you?" ³⁸And Jonathan cried out after the lad, "Make haste, hurry, do not delay!" So Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows and came back to his master. ³⁹But the lad did not know anything. Only Jonathan and David knew of the matter. ⁴⁰Then Jonathan gave his ⁸weapons to his lad, and said to him, "Go, carry them to the city."

⁴¹As soon as the lad had gone, David arose from a place toward the south, fell on his face to the ground, and bowed down three times. And they kissed one another; and they wept together, but David more so. ⁴²Then Jonathan said to David, ^y"Go in peace, since we have both sworn in the name of the LORD, saying, 'May the LORD be between you and me, and between your descendants and my descendants, forever.'" So he arose and departed, and Jonathan went into the city.

David and the Holy Bread

21 Now David came to Nob, to Ahimelech the priest. And ^aAhimelech was ^bafraid when he met David, and said to him, "Why are you alone, and no one is with you?"

20:30, 31 your mother's nakedness: Saul suggested that Jonathan and his mother with him were shameful because of Jonathan's apparently despicable behavior. Aware of David's increasing popularity, Saul knew that David would likely displace Jonathan from the throne. Here, Saul demonstrated his selfish concern for his family's welfare over God's sovereign will. Compare Eli's appropriate response to God's judgment (3:18).

20:35–40 On the third day, Jonathan went to the field to signal to David that he should flee the court of Saul. However, Jonathan's love for David would not allow him to stop at a mere signal. He got rid of his servant on a ruse and at great personal risk went to meet David one last time.

20:41, 42 Before parting, David and Jonathan wept together. Both were valiant warriors but also men of tender hearts. They were loyal friends and committed to each other even in difficult circumstances. At their parting, the two friends reiterated their covenant of friendship (18:3; 20:14–16).

21:1 Nob was a priestly community; the tabernacle was relocated there after the destruction of Shiloh. Ahimelech, the great-grandson of Eli (1:9), was serving as high priest. His name means "My

1 Sam. 13:5–23	He assumed a priestly role and offered sacrifices before battle.	The prophet Samuel announced God's choice of a new king.
14:1–52	He made a foolish oath.	The people turned against him.
15:1–9	He disobeyed God's instructions by not completely destroying Agag.	Samuel announced God's utter rejection of him as king.
18:10–16	He personally tried to kill David.	He was overcome by fear and an evil spirit.
19:1–7	He ordered the murder of David.	He became paranoid.
19:8–10	He again tried to kill David.	He was tormented by an evil spirit.
19:11–24	He continued his murderous campaign against David.	He became jealous and fearful of David.
20:1–42	He tried to get his son Jonathan to assist in killing David.	He became violent toward his own son Jonathan.
22:6–23	He ordered Doeg to kill the priests of Nob.	He slipped further into madness and depravity.
28:7–25	He visited a witch.	He became terrified of his future death.
31:4	He committed suicide.	A man with great potential died in great shame.

²So David said to Ahimelech the priest, “The king has ordered me on some business, and said to me, ‘Do not let anyone know anything about the business on which I send you, or what I have commanded you.’ And I have directed my young men to such and such a place.”
³Now therefore, what have you on hand? Give me five loaves of bread in my hand, or whatever can be found.”

⁴And the priest answered David and said, “There is no ¹common bread on hand; but there is ^eholy² bread, ^dif the young men have at least kept themselves from women.”

⁵Then David answered the priest, and said to him, “Truly, women have been kept from us about three days since I came out. And ³the ^evessels of the young men are holy, and the bread is in effect common, even though it was consecrated ^fin the vessel this day.”

⁶So the priest ^ggave him holy bread; for there was no bread there but the showbread ^hwhich had been taken from before the LORD, in order to put hot bread in its place on the day when it was taken away.

⁷Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before the LORD. And his name was ⁱDoeg, an Edomite, the chief of the herdsmen who belonged to Saul.

⁸And David said to Ahimelech, “Is there not here on hand a spear or a sword? For I have brought neither my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king’s business required haste.”

⁹So the priest said, “The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom you killed in ^jthe Valley of Elah, ^kthere it is, wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod. If you will take that, take it. For there is no other except that one here.”

And David said, “There is none like it; give it to me.”

David Flees to Gath

¹⁰Then David arose and fled that day from before Saul, and went to Achish the king of Gath. ¹¹And ^lthe servants of Achish said to him, “Is this not David the king of the land? Did they not sing of him to one another in dances, saying:

^m‘Saul has slain his thousands,
 And David his ten thousands?’”

¹²Now David ⁿtook these words ⁴to heart, and was very much afraid of Achish the king of Gath. ¹³So ^ohe changed his behavior before them, pretended ⁵madness in their hands, ⁶scratched on the doors of the gate, and let his saliva fall down on his beard. ¹⁴Then Achish said to his servants, “Look, you see the man is insane. Why have you brought him to me? ¹⁵Have I need of madmen, that you have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house?”

David's Four Hundred Men

22 David therefore departed from there and ^aescaped ^bto the cave of Brother Is King.” was afraid: His fear may have been due to rumors of a breach between Saul and David. Since David was a respected soldier and a member of the royal court, it would be unusual for him to travel alone.

21:2 The king has ordered me: David deceived Ahimelech into believing that he was on a secret mission for the king. His lie unwittingly precipitated a tragedy for the priests of Nob (22:6–19).

I have directed my young men: David apparently had arranged a rendezvous with a small band of men (21:4, 5; 22:2; see Matt. 12:3, 4).

21:3–5 no common bread: In response to David’s request for provisions, Ahimelech explained that the only bread available was holy bread, sometimes called the “showbread,” which had been displayed before the Lord in the tabernacle (see Ex. 25:23–30; Lev. 24:5–9). According to God’s law, this bread could be eaten only by priests. David explained to Ahimelech that his men had avoided ritual impurity, having had no contact with women for three days (see Ex. 19:15; Lev. 15:16–18). In effect common: David argued that the bread was no longer sacred because new bread had replaced it before the Lord.

21:6 the priest gave him holy bread: The Talmud explains this apparent breach of the law on the basis that the preservation of life takes precedence over nearly all other commandments in the Law (see Lev. 24:9). Jesus referred to this incident in Matt. 12:2–4; Mark 2:25, 26, in His discussion with the Pharisees concerning the Sabbath. The spirit of the Law was kept by Ahimelech’s compassionate act.

21:7 Doeg, an Edomite, witnessed the encounter between David and Ahimelech and passed the word along to the king. Doeg was not at the tabernacle as a spy but as a man detained before the LORD—that is, under a spiritual vow.

21:9 Having fled Gibeah without weapons, David laid claim to the sword of Goliath, whom David had killed in the Valley of Elah (17:40–51). The sword was wrapped in a cloth to prevent the blade from rusting and had been placed behind the ephod, the high priest’s ceremonial robes.

21:10 Achish ruled the city of Gath, one of the five major cities of the Philistines (6:17). Various sites have been proposed for the location of Gath. The most widely accepted is about 12 miles southeast of Ashdod.

21:11 David the king: This remark is an exaggeration of a rumored takeover of the throne by David. His military exploits certainly commended him to kingship. The popular song sung in his honor after his victory over Goliath had reached the ears of the Philistines (18:7; 29:5).

21:12, 13 These verses provide the background for Ps. 34 and perhaps Ps. 56. In Ps. 34, Achish is referred to as Abimelech, which was apparently a dynastic title used by the Philistine rulers (Gen. 20:2; 26:1). very much afraid: David’s life was in jeopardy. If the superscription of Ps. 56 relates to this incident, David was seized by the Philistines. He had come for a place of refuge from Saul but found himself in the hands of the Philistines. Madness was associated in ancient times with being controlled by a powerful spirit. David changed his demeanor and behaved as though he were insane, writing graffiti on the doors of the gates and drooling.

21:14, 15 Achish had no interest in adding an insane soldier to his army. The title of Ps. 34 indicates the conclusion of this incident. The king “drove him away, and he departed.”

22:1 After David’s escape from Gath, he gathered his family and followers at a cave near the city of Adullam, about 10 miles southeast

Adullam. So when his brothers and all his father's house heard it, they went down there to him. ^{2c} And everyone who was in distress, everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was ¹discontented gathered to him. So he became captain over them. And there were about ^dfour hundred men with him.

³ Then David went from there to Mizpah of ^eMoab; and he said to the king of Moab, "Please let my father and mother come here with you, till I know what God will do for me." ⁴ So he brought them before the king of Moab, and they dwelt with him all the time that David was in the stronghold.

⁵ Now the prophet ^fGad said to David,

"Do not stay in the stronghold; depart, and go to the land of Judah." So David departed and went into the forest of Hereth.

Saul Murders the Priests

⁶ When Saul heard that David and the men who were with him had been discovered—now Saul was staying in ^gGibeah under a tamarisk tree in Ramah, with his spear in his hand, and all his servants standing about him—⁷ then Saul said to his servants who stood about him, "Hear now, you Benjamites! Will the son of Jesse ^hgive every one of you fields and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands and captains of hundreds?

of Gath and 16 miles southwest of Jerusalem. The cave of Adullam was where David composed Ps. 142 and possibly Ps. 57.

22:2 David soon attracted a considerable following of those who were oppressed and discontented with Saul's rule. Everyone who was in debt apparently refers to those who were in danger of being sold into slavery by their creditors (2 Kin. 4:1). Captain is a general term for a political, military, or religious leader. The four hundred men soon grew to six hundred (23:13). They were a group of drifters and debtors, troublemakers and those who were troubled. David expressed his disappointment when he realized that none of the men were there to support him (Ps. 142:4).

22:3 The name Mizpah means "Watchtower"; this was probably a fortress in Moab. The region of Moab was located east of the Dead Sea. David's family connection with the Moabites is related in the story of Ruth (Ruth 1:4–18; 4:21, 22).

22:5, 6 Following the advice of the prophet Gad (2 Sam. 24:11), David left the stronghold and hid in the forest of Hereth, the location of which is unknown. The tamarisk tree is well-suited for hot, dry places, growing well on sandy, desert soils (Gen. 21:33).

22:7 the son of Jesse: Saul perhaps was unwilling to refer to David by name (20:30, 31). Saul suggested that the Benjamites could not expect blessings under the rule of David, who was from the tribe of Judah.

David the Fugitive

⁸All of you have conspired against me, and there is no one who reveals to me that ⁱmy son has made a covenant with the son of Jesse; and there is not one of you who is sorry for me or reveals to me that my son has stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as it is this day.”

⁹Then answered ^jDoeg the Edomite, who was set over the servants of Saul, and said, “I saw the son of Jesse going to Nob, to ^kAhimelech the son of ^lAhitub. ^{10m}And he inquired of the LORD for him, ⁿgave him provisions, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.”

¹¹So the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father’s house, the priests who were in Nob. And they all came to the king.

¹²And Saul said, “Hear now, son of Ahitub!”

He answered, “Here I am, my lord.”

¹³Then Saul said to him, “Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of Jesse, in that you have given him bread and a sword, and have inquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as it is this day?”

¹⁴So Ahimelech answered the king and said, “And who among all your servants is as ^ofaithful as David, who is the king’s son-in-law, who goes at your bidding, and is honorable in your house? ¹⁵Did I then begin to inquire of God for him? Far be it from me! Let not the king impute anything to his servant, or to any in the house of my father. For your servant knew nothing of all this, little or much.”

¹⁶And the king said, “You shall surely die, Ahimelech, you and all ^pyour father’s house!” ¹⁷Then the king said to the guards who stood about him, “Turn and kill the priests of the LORD, because

^{20t}Now one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, ^uescaped and fled after David. ²¹And Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the LORD’s priests. ²²So David said to Abiathar, “I knew that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul. I have caused the death of all the persons of your father’s ³house. ²³Stay with me; do not fear. ^vFor he who seeks my life seeks your life, but with me you shall be safe.”

David Saves the City of Keilah

23 Then they told David, saying, “Look, the Philistines are fighting against ^aKeilah, and they are robbing the threshing floors.”

²Therefore David ^binquired of the LORD, saying, “Shall I go and ¹attack these Philistines?”

And the LORD said to David, “Go and attack the Philistines, and save Keilah.”

³But David’s men said to him, “Look, we are afraid here in Judah. How much more then if we go to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?” ⁴Then David inquired of the LORD once again.

22:9, 10 Doeg sought to ingratiate himself with Saul by betraying Ahimelech, the high priest who gave David provisions and a weapon (21:1–9). he inquired of the LORD for him: This is not mentioned in 21:1–9, although Ahimelech seems to admit it in v. 15. 22:14, 15 as faithful as David: In answering the charges against himself, Ahimelech inadvertently defended David. To hear the loyalty and faithfulness of David defended must have annoyed Saul considerably. knew nothing: Ahimelech made a case for his innocence by declaring his ignorance of the breach that had occurred between Saul and David.

22:17, 18 would not lift their hands to strike the priests: The soldiers attending Saul knew better than to raise their weapons against the priests of the living God. They must have viewed the sentence as unjust or an act of sacrilege. Seeing a further opportunity to win Saul’s favor, Doeg, a Gentile, carried out the slaughter of the 85 priests (21:7).

22:20 Abiathar had not been among the 85 priests killed by Doeg at Gibeah. He escaped from Nob before the massacre. According to 23:6, he met up with David at Keilah.

22:22 I have caused the death of all the persons: David recognized that his deception led to the massacre of the priests and their families (21:1–9). In the sovereignty of God, the destruction of the priests of Nob was a partial fulfillment of the prophesied judgment on Eli’s house (2:27–36). But the sovereignty of God never nullifies personal responsibility for one’s actions (Acts 2:23).

22:23 he who seeks my life seeks your life: David and Abiathar were both regarded as enemies by Saul. safe: David offered Abiathar protection. The priest remained with David and provided a valuable service (23:9). He brought the ephod with him and inquired of the LORD for David (23:2, 6).

23:1 Instead of turning to Saul, their king, the people of Keilah appealed to David for deliverance from the Philistines. Located in a region of low hills about 15 miles southwest of Jerusalem, Keilah belonged to the tribe of Judah (Josh. 15:44). Threshing floors were hard, flat surfaces where grain was trampled or crushed to separate it from the straw. Sometimes threshing floors served as storage areas. The Philistines raided the threshing floors after the Israelites had harvested and processed the grain.

23:2, 3 David inquired of the LORD: David sought the will of God concerning whether the LORD had called him to deliver Keilah. David recognized that need does not necessarily constitute a call to a particular ministry. here in Judah: The men had taken risks in associating themselves with David in Israelite territory, but they sensed that there would be increased risks if they left the hill country of Judah.

And the LORD answered him and said, “Arise, go down to Keilah. For I will deliver the Philistines into your hand.”

⁵ And David and his men went to Keilah and ^cfought with the Philistines, struck them with a mighty blow, and took away their livestock. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

⁶ Now it happened, when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech ^dfled to David at Keilah, that he went down with an ephod in his hand.

⁷ And Saul was told that David had gone to Keilah. So Saul said, “God has delivered him into my hand, for he has shut himself in by entering a town that has gates and bars.” ⁸ Then Saul called all the people together for war, to go down to Keilah to besiege David and his men.

⁹ When David knew that Saul plotted evil against him, ^ehe said to Abiathar the priest, “Bring the ephod here.” ¹⁰ Then David said, “O LORD God of Israel, Your servant has certainly heard that Saul seeks to come to Keilah ^fto destroy the city for my sake. ¹¹ Will the men of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down, as Your servant has heard? O LORD God of Israel, I pray, tell Your servant.”

And the LORD said, “He will come down.”

¹² Then David said, “Will the men of Keilah ²deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul?”

And the LORD said, “They will deliver you.”

¹³ So David and his men, ^gabout six hundred, arose and departed from Keilah and went wherever they could go. Then it was told Saul that David had escaped from Keilah; so he halted the expedition.

David in Wilderness Strongholds

¹⁴ And David stayed in strongholds in the wilderness, and remained in ^hthe mountains in the Wilderness of ⁱZiph. Saul ^jsought him every day, but God did not deliver him into his hand. ¹⁵ So David saw that Saul had come out to seek his life. And David was in the Wilderness of Ziph ³ in a forest. ¹⁶ Then Jonathan, Saul's son, arose and went to David in the woods and ⁴strengthened his hand in God. ¹⁷ And he said to him, ^k“Do not fear, for the hand of Saul my father shall not find you. You shall be king over Israel, and I shall be next to you. ^lEven my father Saul knows that.” ¹⁸ So the two of them ^mmade a covenant before the LORD. And David stayed in the woods, and Jonathan went to his own house.

¹⁹ Then the Ziphites ⁿcame up to Saul at Gibeah, saying, “Is David not hiding with us in strongholds in the woods, in the hill of Hachilah, which is on the south of Jeshimon? ²⁰ Now therefore, O king, come down according to all the desire of your soul to come down; and ^oour part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand.”

²¹ And Saul said, “Blessed are you of the LORD, for you have compassion on me. ²² Please go and find out for sure, and see the place where his hideout is, and who has seen him there. For I am told he is very crafty. ²³ See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hides; and come back to me with certainty, and I will go with you. And it shall be, if he is in the land, that I will search for him throughout all the ⁵clans of Judah.”

²⁴ So they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But David and his men were

23:6 Abiathar did not join up with David until he was at Keilah. The account of this meeting was apparently included earlier to complete the narrative of what happened to the priests of Nob (22:20–23). The ephod was the outer vest of the priest. Its value was probably due to the Urim and Thummim attached to the breastplate. By means of the Urim and Thummim, God could be consulted and His will determined (see Ex. 28:30; Num. 27:21).

23:7, 8 a town that has gates and bars: Saul assumed that it would be easier to capture David in a fortified city than to chase him all over the wilderness. Saul had not fought against the Philistines, the enemies of his people, for some time. But in an attempt to capture David, he was willing to destroy an entire Jewish town.

23:9–12 Bring the ephod here: David sought the will of God through the Urim and Thummim, which were attached to or inside the breastplate of the ephod (v. 6). David used the ephod to find out whether he was safe staying in Keilah. He asked two questions of the Lord: (1) Would Saul come to Keilah in pursuit of him? (2) Would the people of Keilah betray him to Saul? David received a “yes” answer to both questions.

23:13, 14 The number of David's followers had increased 50 percent, from four hundred (22:2) to six hundred. Strongholds refers to the various hideouts where David and his followers found refuge. The Wilderness of Ziph is the barren region about four miles southeast of Hebron. This region had many ravines and caves in which David's men could hide.

23:16–18 Jonathan . . . went to David: This was the custom between the two; Jonathan initiated their friendship. To visit David, his father's archenemy, would have been risky for Jonathan. his hand in God: Both men had a fervent love for God, and Jonathan encouraged David to continue his obedient walk with the Lord. Jonathan recognized that David was destined to be Israel's next king and was content to take second place beside him because it was God's will. Finally, David and Jonathan renewed the covenant of friendship and protection which they had established earlier (18:3; 20:14–17).

23:19–29 While fleeing in the wilderness, David narrowly escaped being captured by Saul. This incident provides the historical background for Ps. 54.

23:19 Jeshimon may not be a proper name but a term meaning “waste” or “desert.” The term is used here of the barren wilderness of Judah, which is in the vicinity of Ziph.

23:22, 23 crafty: David's boyhood work as a shepherd gave him plenty of opportunity to learn the geography of the region and to become familiar with the hiding places of the wilderness.

23:24 By the time the Ziphites returned to Ziph, David and his men had moved to the Wilderness of Maon, a desert region to the in the Wilderness ^p of Maon, in the plain on the south of Jeshimon. ²⁵ When Saul and his men went to seek him, they told David. Therefore he went down ⁶ to the rock, and stayed in the Wilderness of Maon. And when Saul heard that, he pursued David in the Wilderness of Maon. ²⁶ Then Saul went on one side of the mountain, and David and his men on the other side of the mountain. ^q So David made haste to get away from Saul, for Saul and his men ^r were encircling David and his men to take them.

^{27s} But a messenger came to Saul, saying, “Hurry and come, for the Philistines have invaded the land!” ²⁸ Therefore Saul returned from pursuing David, and went against the Philistines; so they called that place ⁷ the Rock of Escape. ²⁹ Then David went up from there and dwelt in strongholds at ^t En Gedi.

David Sparing Saul

24 Now it happened, ^a when Saul had returned from following the Philistines, that it was told him, saying, “Take note! David is in the Wilderness of En Gedi.” ² Then Saul took three thousand chosen men from all Israel, and ^b went to seek David and his men on the Rocks of the Wild Goats. ³ So he came to the sheepfolds by the road, where there was a cave; and ^c Saul went in to ^d attend to his needs. (^e David and his men were staying in the recesses of the cave.) ^{4f} Then the men of David said to him, “This is the day of which the LORD said to you, ‘Behold, I will deliver your enemy into your hand, that you may do to him as it seems good to you.” And David arose and secretly cut off a corner of Saul’s robe. ⁵ Now it happened afterward that ^g David’s heart troubled him because he had cut Saul’s robe. ⁶ And he said to his men, ^h “The LORD forbid that I should do this thing to my master, the LORD’s anointed, to stretch out my hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD.” ⁷ So David ⁱ restrained his servants with these words, and did not allow them to rise against Saul. And Saul got up from the cave and went on his way.

⁸ David also arose afterward, went out of the cave, and called out to Saul, saying, “My lord the king!” And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed down. ⁹ And David said to Saul: ^j “Why do you listen to the words of men who say, ‘Indeed David seeks your harm’? ¹⁰ Look, this day your eyes have seen that the LORD delivered you today into my hand in the cave, and someone urged me to kill you. But my eye spared you, and I said, ‘I will not stretch out my hand against my lord, for he is the LORD’s anointed.’ ¹¹ Moreover, my father, see! Yes, see the corner of your robe in my hand! For in that I cut off the corner of your robe, and did not kill you, know and see that there is ^k neither evil nor rebellion in my hand, and I have not sinned against you. Yet you ^l hunt my life to take it. ¹² ^m Let the LORD judge between you and me, and let the LORD avenge me on you. But my hand shall not be against you. ¹³ As the proverb of the ancients says, ⁿ “Wicked-south. Maon, a city of the Judean hill country (see Josh. 15:55), was located about five miles south of Ziph.

23:25–28 Although Saul and his men managed to surround David’s hideout, a report of a raid by the Philistines forced Saul to withdraw, allowing David to escape.

23:28 The place of David’s near capture was named the Rock of Escape to commemorate his deliverance.

23:29 En Gedi, meaning “Spring of the Kid,” was an oasis east of Hebron, very near the shore of the Dead Sea. The site was noted in biblical times for the fresh water spring and lush vineyards (see Song 1:14).

24:2 The Rocks of the Wild Goats is another name for the area of En Gedi.

24:3 sheepfolds: At night, shepherds in this wild area would gather their sheep into a protective rock enclosure. A low stone wall would keep the sheep from wandering. The shepherd would position himself at the entrance of the sheepfold to guard against animals of prey and thieves. Often a cave with a wall built across its mouth served as a sheepfold in the wilderness.

24:4 the LORD said to you: These words are not recorded elsewhere in Scripture. Perhaps they are given as the interpretation of the immediate events by David’s men. corner of Saul’s robe: Saul may have laid his robe aside, enabling David to cut off a piece unobserved. The piece of cloak would serve as proof that Saul had been completely at David’s mercy.

24:5 David’s heart troubled him: David was conscience-stricken.

He knew it was wrong to assault the Lord’s anointed king (vv. 6, 10). Even though David had not really done anything to hurt the king physically, the fact that he had reached out with his knife troubled him.

24:6 The LORD forbid: David had a high regard for the LORD’s anointed king. To cut off a portion of Saul’s robe constituted for David an act of disrespect for God’s representative, even though that man was seeking to take David’s life.

24:8, 9 My lord the king: These words of respect from the voice that Saul knew well must have been quite stunning to him. and bowed down: This was not religious worship but an act of respect for Saul’s position as king. David seeks your harm: Some people in Saul’s court were falsely accusing David of trying to overthrow Saul.

24:10 the LORD delivered you today into my hand: David recognized God’s sovereignty in bringing about the circumstances that gave him an opportunity to kill Saul.

24:11 My father is a warm term of affection and respect (see 2 Kin. 5:13; 6:21). It also reminded Saul that David was in fact his son-in-law.

your robe: There could be no clearer evidence that David was not out to harm the king.

24:12 David dedicated to the LORD the matter of his relationship with Saul. God alone could settle the matter and bring about perfect justice (see Deut. 32:35; Rom. 12:17–21).

24:13 Wickedness proceeds from the wicked: The meaning of the proverb is that only a wicked man would seek to do evil against another. Since David did not take advantage of the opportunity to kill Saul, he was most certainly a good man.

ness proceeds from the wicked.' But my hand shall not be against you. ¹⁴After whom has the king of Israel come out? Whom do you pursue? ¹⁵A dead dog? ¹⁶A flea? ¹⁷Therefore let the LORD be judge, and judge between you and me, and ¹⁸see and ¹⁹plead my case, and deliver me out of your hand."

¹⁶So it was, when David had finished speaking these words to Saul, that Saul said, ¹⁷"Is this your voice, my son David?" And Saul lifted up his voice and wept. ¹⁸Then he said to David: "You are ¹⁹more righteous than I; for ²⁰you have rewarded me with good, whereas I have rewarded you with evil. ²¹And you have shown this day how you have dealt well with me; for when ²²the LORD delivered me into your hand, you did not kill me. ²³For if a man finds his enemy, will he let him get away safely? Therefore may the LORD reward you with good for what you have done to me this day. ²⁴And now ²⁵I know indeed that you shall surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in your hand. ²⁶Therefore swear now to me by the LORD ²⁷that you will not cut off my descendants after me, and that you will not destroy my name from my father's house."

²⁸So David swore to Saul. And Saul went home, but David and his men went up to ²⁹the stronghold.

home in Ramah. And David arose and went down ¹to the Wilderness of ²Paran.

David and the Wife of Nabal

²Now there was a man ³in Maon whose business was in ⁴Carmel, and the man was very rich. He had three thousand sheep and a thousand goats. And he was shearing his sheep in Carmel. ⁵The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigail. And she was a woman of good understanding and beautiful appearance; but the man was harsh and evil in his doings. He was of the house of ⁶Caleb.

⁴When David heard in the wilderness that Nabal was ⁵shearing his sheep, ⁶David sent ten young men; and David said to the young men, "Go up to Carmel, go to Nabal, and greet him in my name. ⁷And thus you shall say to him who lives in prosperity: ⁸Peace be to you, peace to your house, and peace to all that you have! ⁹Now I have heard that you have shearers. Your shepherds were with us, and we did not hurt them, ¹⁰nor was there anything missing from them all the while they were in Carmel. ¹¹Ask your young men, and they will tell you. Therefore ¹²let my young men find favor in your eyes, for we come on ¹³a feast day. Please give whatever comes to your hand to your servants and to your son David."

⁹So when David's young men came, they spoke to Nabal according to all these words in the name of David, and waited.

¹⁰Then Nabal answered David's servants, and said, ¹¹"Who is David, and 24:14 David likened himself to a dead dog and a flea in contrast with the king of Israel. How could something as worthless as a dead dog or as insignificant as a flea be of any danger to Saul?

24:16, 17 The words my son serve here as an expression of endearment. Saul lifted up his voice and wept: Saul's tears reflect his remorse at seeking to do David harm. However, it was a short-lived remorse (26:2).

24:19 may the LORD reward you with good: Saul prayed for God's blessing on David.

24:21 swear now to me by the LORD: Saul asked David to commit himself by oath to (1) preserve Saul's family and (2) preserve Saul's name.

24:22 David swore to Saul: David agreed to Saul's requests and kept his promise (see 2 Sam. 9:1-13; 21:6-8). While Saul returned home to Gibeah (10:26), David remained in hiding. He apparently had no great confidence in the lasting value of Saul's expression of remorse.

25:1 Then Samuel died: Samuel's death may have taken place while David was in the Wilderness of En Gedi (24:1). His death (or at least the recording of it) came at a propitious time. David had just been acknowledged as the successor of Saul by the king himself, and there was a short-lived truce between the two parties. Samuel's popularity was evidenced by the fact that the nation of Israel assembled at Ramah to honor him at his burial. After Samuel's death, David journeyed south to the Wilderness of Paran, a desert area in the northeast region of the Sinai peninsula.

25:2 Maon was located in the Judean hill country (see Josh. 15:55), about eight miles south of Hebron. Carmel was located on the edge of the Judean wilderness, about a mile north of Maon. Like the times of harvest, the shearing of the sheep was a festive occasion.

25:3 The personal conduct of Nabal suggests that his name, meaning "Fool," was appropriate (v. 25). It is not known whether he used this name himself or whether it was something other people called him. Nabal was a descendant of the house of Caleb, which had occupied the area at the time of the conquest (see Judg. 1:20). Abigail, a woman of wisdom and beauty, stood in stark contrast to the foolish nature of her husband. Her name may mean "My Father Is Rejoicing."

25:4-9 Nabal lived in a wilderness area and owned thousands of sheep and goats, and so was a prime target for thieves. David and his men had generously protected Nabal's flocks and possessions (vv. 15, 16, 21). Since it was the time of sheep shearing, Nabal would have had plenty of cash from the sale of wool to reward David and his men for their services.

25:7 nor was there anything missing: David and his men had provided protection and had not taken advantage of their position or authority.

25:8 David sent his men on a feast day, when most people display an extra measure of generosity. Please give whatever comes to your hand: Apparently, no price had been set for the services rendered.

25:10 Who is David: Nabal pretended not to know David. He added insult to injury by suggesting that David might be just another runaway servant.

who is the son of Jesse? There are many servants nowadays who break away each one from his master. ¹¹Shall I then take my bread and my water and my ³meat that I have killed for my shearers, and give it to men when I do not know where they are from?”

¹²So David’s young men turned on their heels and went back; and they came and told him all these words. ¹³Then David said to his men, “Every man gird on his sword.” So every man girded on his sword, and David also girded on his sword. And about four hundred men went with David, and two hundred ^mstayed with the supplies.

¹⁴Now one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal’s wife, saying, “Look, David sent messengers from the wilderness to greet our master; and he ⁴reviled them. ¹⁵But the men were very good to us, and ⁿwe were not hurt, nor did we miss anything as long as we accompanied them, when we were in the fields. ¹⁶They were ^oa wall to us both by night and day, all the time we were with them keeping the sheep. ¹⁷Now therefore, know and consider what you will do, for ^pharm is determined against our master and against all his household. For he is such a ^qscoundrel⁵ that one cannot speak to him.”

²⁰So it was, as she rode on the donkey, that she went down under cover of the hill; and there were David and his men, coming down toward her, and she met them. ²¹Now David had said, “Surely in vain I have protected all that this fellow has in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that belongs to him. ²³Now when Abigail saw David, she ^xdismounted quickly from the donkey, fell on her face before David, and bowed down to the ground. ²⁴So she fell at his feet and said: “On me, my lord, on me let this iniquity be! 25:11 Nabal lived in a region where water was scarce (see Josh. 15:19).

25:15, 16 Nabal’s own men testified to the care and protection they received from David and his men.

25:17 For he is such a scoundrel: The servants were so angry at their master that they spoke this way of him to his wife! The Hebrew phrase translated scoundrel is literally “son of Belial” or “son of worthlessness.”

25:18 Taking matters into her own hands, Abigail gathered an abundance of goods to compensate David and his men. skins of wine: In ancient times, wine was carried in flexible containers made from animal skins. The Hebrew seah was a measure equivalent to one-third of an ephah or about one-fifth of a bushel.

25:19 Go on before me: Abigail wisely sent the provisions ahead to forestall any hostility caused by her husband’s insulting behavior. 25:22 May God do so, and more also: David made an oath calling down God’s judgment on his enemies should he fail to kill everyone who worked for Nabal.

25:23, 24 Abigail’s acts of humility were in strong contrast to the boorish behavior of her husband (vv. 10, 11). She did everything she could to show respect to David when he was angry and to obtain his forgiveness for the wrong Nabal had committed against him.

25:25 For as his name is, so is he: The name Nabal was quite fitting for a foolish man. Abigail’s humor at her husband’s expense was designed to save his life (vv. 21, 22).

25:26 as the LORD lives: Abigail showed herself to David to be a woman of truthfulness, piety, and faith.

25:27 This present means the provisions mentioned in v. 18. These gracious gifts expressed Abigail’s desire to make things right.

25:28 an enduring house: Abigail’s words indicate that she expected David to succeed Saul and enjoy a lengthy line of successors (v. 30).

(Heb. nasa') (25:28; Gen. 4:13; Ps. 32:1, 5) Strong’s #5375

This Hebrew word means basically “to lift up,” “to bear,” or “to take away.” The word can apply to a person lifting up various objects including one’s hand in an oath (Ezek. 20:5, 6), one’s face to show favor (Num. 6:24–26), and one’s voice in sorrow or joy (Gen. 27:38; Is. 24:14). The sense of “bearing” is often used in reference to sin or its punishment. Thus this Hebrew word was used to describe how the scapegoat “bore” the sins of Israel (Lev. 16:22) and how the Suffering Servant would “bear” the sins of the world (Is. 53:12). The idea of “taking away” is also frequently associated with sin. This activity is usually identified as a characteristic of God (Num. 14:18; Mic. 7:18). The NT describes God’s forgiveness by stating that Jesus both bore our sins and took them away (1 Pet. 2:24; 1 John 3:5).

my lord an enduring house, because my lord ^e fights the battles of the LORD, ^f and evil is not found in you throughout your days. ²⁹ Yet a man has risen to pursue you and seek your life, but the life of my lord shall be ^g bound in the bundle of the living with the LORD your God; and the lives of your enemies He shall ^h sling out, as from the pocket of a sling. ³⁰ And it shall come to pass, when the LORD has done for my lord according to all the good that He has spoken concerning you, and has appointed you ⁱ ruler over Israel, ³¹ that this will be no grief to you, nor offense of heart to my lord, either that you have shed blood without cause, or that my lord has avenged himself. But when the LORD has dealt well with my lord, then remember your maidservant.”

³² Then David said to Abigail: “Blessed is the LORD God of Israel, who sent you this day to meet me! ³³ And blessed is your advice and blessed are you, because you have ^k kept me this day from coming to bloodshed and from avenging myself with my own hand. ³⁴ For indeed, as the LORD God of Israel lives, who has ^l kept me back from hurting you, unless you had hurried and come to meet me, surely ^m by morning light no males would have been left to Nabal!” ³⁵ So David received from her hand what she had brought him, and said to her, ⁿ “Go up in peace to your house. See, I have heeded your voice and ^o respected your person.”

³⁶ Now Abigail went to Nabal, and there he was, ^p holding a feast in his house, like the feast of a king. And Nabal’s heart was merry within him, for he was very drunk; therefore she told him nothing, little or much, until morning light. ³⁷ So it was, in the morning, when the wine had gone from Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and he became like a stone. ³⁸ Then it happened, after about ten days, that the LORD ^a struck Nabal, and he died.

³⁹ So when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, ^r “Blessed be the LORD, who has ^s pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal, and has ^t kept His servant from evil! For the LORD has “returned the wickedness of Nabal on his own head.”

And David sent and proposed to Abigail, to take her as his wife. ⁴⁰ When the servants of David had come to Abigail at Carmel, they spoke to her saying, “David sent us to you, to ask you to become his wife.”

⁴⁴ But Saul had given ^y Michal his daughter, David’s wife, to ^z Palti the son of Laish, who was from ² Gallim.

David Spares Saul a Second Time

26 Now the Ziphites came to Saul at Gibeah, saying, ^a “Is David not hiding in the hill of Hachilah, opposite Jeshimon?” ² Then Saul arose and went down to the Wilderness of Ziph, having ^b three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the Wilderness of Ziph. ³ And Saul encamped in the hill of Hachilah, which is opposite Jeshimon, by the road. But David stayed in the wilderness, and he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness. ⁴ David therefore sent out spies, and understood that Saul had indeed come.

⁵ So David arose and came to the place

25:29, 31 bound in the bundle of the living: This metaphor reflects the custom of binding valuables in a bundle to protect them from injury. The point here is that God cares for His own as a man cares for his valuable treasure. sling out: This metaphor signifies God’s complete rejection of David’s enemies. no grief to you: Abigail sought to show David that the present slight was nothing compared to his future glory.

25:35 respected your person: A literal translation of this phrase would be “I lift up your face.” This is the opposite of Abigail’s bowing down before David when she first met him (vv. 23, 24).

25:37, 38 his heart died within him . . . like a stone: Nabal apparently suffered a stroke and became paralyzed. the Lord struck Nabal: Nabal’s death was the result of God’s judgment.

25:39 David gave praise to the Lord for it was God who had exacted justice and not David himself. This story is a splendid example of the biblical motif “Vengeance is Mine, I will repay,” says the Lord” (Rom. 12:19; cf. Deut. 32:35).

25:41 to wash the feet of the servants: Washing the feet of others was a servant’s task. Abigail expressed her willingness to do the most menial jobs. This was a genuine expression of her gratitude to David. 25:43 Ahinoam became the mother of David’s oldest son, Amnon (2 Sam. 3:2). Jezreel is not the city in the north, but a town in the hill country of Judah (Josh. 15:56).

25:44 David was without Michal, his first wife (18:27). Saul had given her to another man during David’s absence.

26:1 The Ziphites were from Ziph, four miles southeast of Hebron. They traveled about 25 miles north to report to Saul at Gibeah. The hill of Hachilah has been identified with a ridge about 6 miles southeast of Ziph (23:19). Jeshimon is probably not a proper name but a term meaning “waste” or “desert.” The term is most likely used here of the barren wilderness of Judah, which is in the vicinity of Ziph and extends east toward the Dead Sea.

26:2 Apparently forgetful of the events of 24:16–22, Saul led his men into the wilderness in pursuit of David. The similarities between the events of ch. 24 and the events here are striking. The Wilderness of Ziph refers to the desert region around Ziph and eastward.

26:5 Abner the son of Ner had served as a very successful commander of Saul’s army.

where Saul had encamped. And David saw the place where Saul lay, and ^eAbner the son of Ner, the commander of his army. Now Saul lay within the camp, with the people encamped all around him. ⁶Then David answered, and said to Ahimelech the Hittite and to Abishai ^dthe son of Zeruiah, brother of ^eJoab, saying, “Who will ^fgo down with me to Saul in the camp?”

And ^gAbishai said, “I will go down with you.”

⁷So David and Abishai came to the people by night; and there Saul lay sleeping within the camp, with his spear stuck in the ground by his head. And Abner and the people lay all around him. ⁸Then Abishai said to David, ^h“God has delivered your enemy into your hand this day. Now therefore, please, let me strike him ⁱat once with the spear, right to the earth; and I will not have to strike him a second time!”

⁹But David said to Abishai, “Do not destroy him; ⁱfor who can stretch out his hand against the LORD’s anointed, and be guiltless?” ¹⁰David said furthermore, “As the LORD lives, ^jthe LORD shall strike him, or ^khis day shall come to die, or he shall ^lgo out to battle and perish. ¹¹^mThe LORD forbid that I should stretch out my hand against the LORD’s anointed. But please, take now the spear and the jug of water that are by his head, and let us go.” ¹²So David took the spear and the jug of water by Saul’s head, and they got away; and no man saw or knew it or awoke. For they were all asleep, because ⁿa deep sleep from the LORD had fallen on them.

¹³Now David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of a hill afar off, a great distance being between them.

¹⁴ And David called out to the people and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, “Do you not answer, Abner?”

Then Abner answered and said, “Who are you, calling out to the king?”

¹⁵ So David said to Abner, “Are you not a man? And who is like you in Israel? Why then have you not guarded your lord the king? For one of the people came in to destroy your lord the king. ¹⁶ This thing that you have done is not good. As the LORD lives, you deserve to die, because you have not guarded your master, the LORD’s anointed. And now see where the king’s spear is, and the jug of water that was by his head.”

¹⁷ Then Saul knew David’s voice, and said, ^o “Is that your voice, my son David?”

David said, “It is my voice, my lord, O king.” ¹⁸ And he said, ^p “Why does my lord thus pursue his servant? For what have I done, or what evil is in my hand? ¹⁹ Now therefore, please, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant: If the LORD has ^q stirred you up against me, let Him accept an offering. ²¹ Then Saul said, ^u “I have sinned. Return, my son David. For I will harm you no more, because my life was precious in your eyes this day. Indeed I have played the fool and erred exceedingly.”

²² And David answered and said, “Here is the king’s spear. Let one of the young men come over and get it. ²³^v May the 26:6 Ahimelech the Hittite was a non-Israelite who had joined David’s force, probably as a mercenary soldier. The Hittites were a powerful, military people who ruled central Asia Minor during the second millennium B.C. Abishai, David’s nephew (see 1 Chr. 2:15, 16), volunteered to go with David into Saul’s camp. Abishai became a leader among David’s men (2 Sam. 23:18).

26:7 Saul’s spear was a symbol of his authority (18:10; 19:9).

26:8 Abishai seems to have had a bloodthirsty nature (see 2 Sam. 16:9; 19:21). He promised not to strike Saul a second time—meaning that his first blow would be fatal.

26:9, 10 David once again refused to stretch out his hand against the LORD’s anointed (ch. 24). He would not assassinate Israel’s divinely appointed king (10:1). the LORD shall strike him: David knew that God would remove Saul from office according to His own perfect timing.

26:11, 12 take now the spear and the jug of water: These items would prove that David had been close enough to Saul to kill him but had refrained from doing so. David’s visit to Saul’s camp went undetected because the Lord had caused a deep sleep to fall upon the soldiers.

26:14 calling out to the king: David did not shout directly to Saul; instead, he taunted Abner, Saul’s general.

26:16 The spear and the jug of water served as evidence of Abner’s negligence and proof of David’s goodwill.

26:17 Is that your voice, my son David: Saul recognized the familiar voice, as he had near the cave at En Gedi (24:16).

26:19 If the LORD has stirred you up against me: David contemplated the possibility that God was using Saul as an agent of divine discipline. If this was the case, David expressed his willingness to offer an atoning sacrifice—an offering. On the other hand, he called for God’s judgment on any evil men who had stirred up Saul against David. Go, serve other gods: This phrase reflects David’s view that his exile was virtually equivalent to being forced to abandon the worship of God, since there were no sanctuaries to God outside Israelite territory.

26:20, 21 David likened Saul’s actions to pursuing a flea (24:14), hardly fitting for a royal figure. The partridge was known to flee for safety by running rather than flight. When fatigued, it could be captured with sticks or a net. Saul once again confessed his sin (24:17). He asked David to return home, promising not to make another attempt on his life.

26:23 Righteousness and faithfulness are characteristics of God Himself, which believers may share.

LORD ^w repay every man for his righteousness and his faithfulness; for the LORD delivered you into my hand today, but I would not stretch out my hand against the LORD's anointed. ²⁴And indeed, as your life was valued much this day in my eyes, so let my life be valued much in the eyes of the LORD, and let Him deliver me out of all tribulation."

²⁵Then Saul said to David, "May you be blessed, my son David! You shall both do great things and also still ^xprevail."

So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

David Allied with the Philistines

27 And David said in his heart, "Now I shall perish someday by the hand of Saul. There is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape to the land of the Philistines; and Saul will ¹despair of me, to seek me anymore in any part of Israel. So I shall escape out of his hand." ²Then David arose and went over with the six hundred men who were with him ^bto Achish the son of Maach, king of Gath. ³So David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his men, each man with his household, and David 26:24, 25 David requested that his life be valued as much as he valued Saul's life. As the two parted, Saul recognized that David would eventually prevail (24:20). This was the last meeting between Saul and David.

27:1 Now I shall perish someday by the hand of Saul: The evidence pointed to the contrary (13:14; 23:17; 24:20). Perhaps David was depressed. As he had done earlier in fleeing from Saul, David journeyed west toward the coastal plain and entered the land of the Philistines.

27:2 Various sites have been suggested for the location of Gath. The most widely accepted is about 12 miles east of Ashdod, or about 24 miles west of Jerusalem. Achish seems to have welcomed David. Perhaps he had heard of the split between David and Saul and was anxious to strengthen his own army with David's six hundred fighting men.

27:3, 4 David dwelt with Achish at Gath: David's move to Philistine territory delivered him from the immediate danger of Saul and provided him an opportunity to further develop his leadership and military skills (vv. 8–12). His time in Philistia also gave David knowledge of the geography of the region, which would serve him well during his later Philistine wars. As David had probably expected, his sojourn in Philistia put an end to Saul's pursuit of him.

⁵Then David said to Achish, "If I have now found favor in your eyes, let them give me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there. For why should your servant dwell in the royal city with you?" ⁶So Achish gave him Ziklag that day. Therefore ^dZiklag has belonged to the kings of Judah to this day. ⁷Now ²the time that David ^edwelt in the country of the Philistines was one full year and four months.

⁸And David and his men went up and raided ^fthe Geshurites, ^gthe ³Girzites, and the ^hAmalekites. And David would say, "Against the southern area of Judah, or against the southern area of ^jthe Jerahmeelites, or against the southern area of ^kthe Kenites." ¹¹David would save neither man nor woman alive, to bring news to Gath, saying, "Lest they should inform on us, saying, 'Thus David did.'" And thus was his behavior all the time he dwelt in the country of the Philistines. ¹²So Achish believed David, saying, "He has made his people Israel utterly abhor him; therefore he will be my servant forever."

28 Now ^ait happened in those days that the Philistines gathered their armies together for war, to fight with Israel. And Achish said to David, "You assuredly know that you will go out with me to battle, you and your men."

²So David said to Achish, "Surely you know what your servant can do."

And Achish said to David, "Therefore I will make you one of my chief guardians forever."

Saul Consults a Medium

³Now ^bSamuel had died, and all Israel had lamented for him and buried him in Ramah, in his own city. And Saul had put ^dthe mediums and the spiritists out of the land.

⁴Then the Philistines gathered together, and came and encamped at ^eShunem. So Saul gathered all Israel together, and they encamped at ^fGilboa. ⁵When Saul saw the army of the Philistines, he was 27:5 why should your servant dwell in the royal city: David suggested to Achish that it was too great an honor for him to continue to dwell in Gath, the city of the king. Perhaps David wanted to be free from constant surveillance by the Philistine authorities and from continued exposure to Philistine religious practices.

27:6 Achish established David as his vassal over Ziklag, one of the cities of the Israelite Negev. The city was originally assigned to Judah (see Josh. 15:31) and was located about 13 miles north of Beersheba. Therefore Ziklag has belonged to the kings of Judah to this day: This editorial note must have been added to the historical narrative after the division of the monarchy (930 B.C.). Before that time, there were "kings of Israel," but not of Judah.

27:7 Ziklag remained David's headquarters until Saul's death, when David moved to Hebron (2 Sam. 1:1–4).

27:8 During his sojourn in Philistia, David convinced Achish that he was serving the Philistines. Yet he used Ziklag as a base for raids on desert tribes in the northern Sinai. These peoples were enemies of the Israelites. The Geshurites lived to the southwest of Israel (see Josh. 13:2), between Philistia and Egypt. The Girzites are mentioned only here. The Amalekites were a nomadic people who lived in the dry land south of the hill country (see Num. 13:29). Shur was the border region separating Egypt from northern Sinai. The Israelites had wandered in this region after crossing the Red Sea (see Ex. 15:22).

27:10 Where have you made a raid today: Although David pretended to serve the interests of Achish, he was actually attacking the enemies of Israel. The southern area of the Jerahmeelites was the part of the Negev occupied by the family of Jerahmeel, one of the clans of Judah (1 Chr. 2:9). The Kenites, who were loosely associated with the Israelites since Moses' marriage into the family of Jethro, a Kenite (see Judg. 4:11), were a nomadic offshoot of the Midianites (Num. 10:29). In fact, David was on friendly terms with both the Jerahmeelites and Kenites (30:29).

27:11 The complete destruction of human life seems to be the only way David was able to avoid discovery. David might also have reasoned that he was working to complete the destruction of the people of the land that had not been done fully during the time of the conquest (see Josh. 23:4, 5).

27:12 he will be my servant forever: David's deception was so effective that Achish concluded that his switch in allegiance was permanent.

28:1 in those days: The events of ch. 28 occurred during the time David was living at Ziklag as a vassal of the Philistine king. gathered their armies: All the time Saul was king, the Philistines were at war with Israel (14:52). you will go out with me: Since David was a vassal of Achish, the Philistines expected him to join them in their campaign against Saul. David faced a terrible dilemma.

28:2 Surely you know what your servant can do: The words of David were deliberately ambiguous. His life would have been at risk had he refused to join Achish so he was forced to wait for God's deliverance. one of my chief guardians: David found himself not only in the Philistine army but assigned as one of the king's chief bodyguards.

28:3 Samuel had died: He could no longer be counted on to bring forth a word from the Lord. The term mediums refers to necromancers, those who presume to communicate with the dead. Spiritists is a general term for those who have contact with spirits. In keeping with God's law, persons associated with necromancy and spiritism had been expelled from the land of Israel (Ex. 22:18; Lev. 19:31; Deut. 18:9–14). The medium at En Dor was one of the few such persons still known to live in the land (v. 7).

28:4 The village of Shunem was situated in the Valley of Jezreel, on the south slope of the Hill of Moreh. The Israelite forces were camped about five miles south of the Philistines on the mountain range of Gilboa.

28:5 Saul was so afraid of the forthcoming battle that his heart trembled greatly. Saul's persistent disobedience had left him completely without confidence in God's presence and protection.

^gafraid, and his heart trembled greatly.
^hAnd when Saul inquired of the LORD,
^hthe LORD did not answer him, either by

⁷Then Saul said to his servants, “Find me a woman who is a medium, ^kthat I may go to her and inquire of her.”

And his servants said to him, “In fact, there is a woman who is a medium at En Dor.”

⁸So Saul disguised himself and put on other clothes, and he went, and two men with him; and they came to the woman by night. And ^lhe said, “Please conduct a séance for me, and bring up for me the one I shall name to you.”

⁹Then the woman said to him, “Look, you know what Saul has done, how he has ^mcut off the mediums and the spiritists from the land. Why then do you lay a snare for my life, to cause me to die?”

¹⁰And Saul swore to her by the LORD, saying, “As the LORD lives, no punishment shall come upon you for this thing.”

¹¹Then the woman said, “Whom shall I bring up for you?”

And he said, “Bring up Samuel for me.”

¹²When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice. And the woman spoke to Saul, saying, “Why have you deceived me? For you are Saul!”

¹³And the king said to her, “Do not be afraid. What did you see?”

And the woman said to Saul, “I saw ^a ¹ spirit ascending out of the earth.”

¹⁴So he said to her, “What is his form?”

And she said, “An old man is coming up, and he is covered with ^o a mantle.” And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground and bowed down.

¹⁵Now Samuel said to Saul, “Why have you ^p disturbed me by bringing me up?”

And Saul answered, “I am deeply distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and ^q God has departed from me and ^r does not answer me anymore, neither by prophets nor by dreams. Therefore I have called you, that you may reveal to me what I should do.”

¹⁶Then Samuel said: “So why do you ask me, seeing the LORD has departed from you and has become your enemy?”

¹⁷And the LORD has done for ² Himself ^s as He spoke by me. For the LORD has torn the kingdom out of your hand and given it to your neighbor, David. ¹⁸ ^t Because you did not obey the voice of the LORD nor execute His fierce wrath upon

28:6 God did not answer Saul by dreams as He had Joseph (Gen. 37:5–10); nor by the Urim and Thummim as He had the high priest (Ex. 28:30; Num. 27:21); nor by prophetic revelation as He had Samuel (3:10–21).

28:7 Find me a woman who is a medium: Rather than repent of his sin and continue to seek God’s forgiveness, Saul turned to a forbidden source of counsel (Ex. 22:18; Lev. 19:31; Deut. 18:9–14). This tragic decision resulted in his death (1 Chr. 10:13). The law of the Lord called for the death penalty on mediums (Lev. 20:27). En Dor was located in the Jezreel Valley, about a mile northeast of the Hill of Moreh.

28:8 Saul disguised himself: In light of his purge of mediums and spiritists from the land, Saul could not expect much help should his identity be known. Conduct a séance for me literally means “bring up for me.”

28:9 Why then do you lay a snare for my life: The woman was aware of what Saul had done to those of her profession. She recognized the risk of being punished with death for practicing necromancy (see Ex. 22:18) and sought to make sure that her visitor was not laying a trap.

28:10 Saul swore to her by the Lord: While engaging in a practice that was practically a denial of God’s sovereign control of everything, Saul swore in God’s name that he would protect the woman.

28:11 Saul sought the help of Samuel because he had anointed him as king and had spoken God’s word to Saul before (10:1).

28:12 When the woman saw Samuel: When her séance really worked, the seer finally saw that her client was Saul. The appearance of Samuel has been interpreted in various ways. It has been suggested that the appearance took place in Saul’s mind, as part of his psychological breakdown. The church fathers believed that a demon impersonated Samuel and appeared to Saul. Others have thought that the medium was a fraud who tricked Saul into thinking that he saw Samuel. It seems best to follow the early view that this was a genuine appearance of Samuel which God Himself brought about. Several points favor this interpretation: (1) The medium was surprised (v. 12); (2) Saul identified the figure as Samuel (v. 14); (3) the message Samuel spoke was clearly from God (vv. 16–19); (4) the text says that the figure was Samuel (vv. 12, 15, 16). There is no inherent difficulty with God bringing back the spirit of Samuel from heaven and allowing him to appear to Saul—in spite of the woman’s evil profession.

28:14 The mantle was a prophet’s robe, such as the one Samuel had worn when he was alive. It was this robe that Saul once had torn (15:27).

28:15 The words bringing me up may be understood as meaning simply “up from the grave.” This phrase indicates that the Israelites believed in life after death.

28:16 the Lord has departed from you: These startling words are merely a restatement of what Saul himself acknowledged in v. 15. Samuel was not so much making an affirmation as he was pointing out the contradiction between Saul’s words and actions. Even though Saul had said that God had departed from him, he was still seeking a word from the prophet of God.

28:18 Samuel traced Saul’s disobedience and judgment back to his failure to destroy the Amalekites, particularly Agag (15:2–9).

(Heb. sa'al) (17:56; 28:6; Judg. 18:5; Job 8:8) Strong’s #7592

The basic sense of this word is “to ask something of someone.” One can ask for an object (1:20; Ps. 137:3) or for information (Gen. 43:7; Job 38:3). The Hebrew phrase translated “inquired of the LORD” occurs eleven times in the OT, all in Judges and 1 and 2 Samuel (Judg. 20:23; 2 Sam. 2:1). The Hebrew verb itself occurs a total of 172 times in the OT. On three occasions the context indicates the meaning “to lend” (1:28 [twice]; 2:20), and in another three passages it means “to borrow” (Ex. 22:14; 2 Kin. 4:3; 6:5). Thus when the children of Israel left Egypt they probably asked, not borrowed, the goods they took with them (Ex. 3:22; 11:2; 12:35). This Hebrew word is broad enough to encompass the idea of prayer, as in the famous verse: “Pray [ask] for the peace of Jerusalem” (Ps. 122:6).

The Medium of En Dor: An Accomplice to Disobedience

Saul's desperate attempt to learn the future on the eve of battle introduces the medium of En Dor into Scripture. The medium, a mere prop on history's stage, set the scene for Saul's final disobedience to God, which ended in judgment (1 Chr. 10:13, 14). There was a tragic submissiveness in her repeated compliance to Saul's evil request.

The medium lived in eleventh-century B.C. En Dor, a Canaanite city three miles southwest of Mount Tabor and within the territory of Manasseh's tribe. She practiced divination. During Saul's time, the term "medium" meant one who consulted the dead on behalf of the living. Witchcraft had flourished in the nations Israel had been commanded to expel during the conquest of the Promised Land. Manasseh, however, had not driven the Canaanites from En Dor (Josh. 17:12, 13).

Though the medium likely was pagan, she knew her craft was forbidden. All forms of witchcraft had been condemned by God (Ex. 22:18; Lev. 19:31; 20:6, 27; Deut. 18:10–12, 14); Saul himself had exercised civil authority and driven mediums from the land (1 Sam. 28:3). Yet this medium was still in Israel, and her presence was known (1 Sam. 28:7).

The woman was cautious and suspicious of a trap when asked to bring up Samuel (1 Sam. 28:9), but she quickly complied to Saul's request after being assured of personal safety. Her fearful shock at the sight of Samuel implied that she had never experienced the appearance of such a figure. With sudden clairvoyance, she recognized Saul and boldly challenged the king with his own deception (28:12). Again Saul assured her safety, and she responded to his request.

When Saul fell to the ground in despair, the woman showed natural sympathy as she prepared food to try to revive his strength (28:22). As she coaxed Saul to respond, she twice referred to herself with the submissive phrase "your maid-servant" (28:21, 22). Then she put forth her best hospitality in preparing a royal meal.

The medium of En Dor stands, however, as an example of one who, while doing good in practicing human kindness, did evil in disobeying God. She will be remembered as one who chose to be an accomplice to King Saul in his personal disobedience to God.

"Amalek, therefore the LORD has done this thing to you this day. ¹⁹Moreover the LORD will also deliver Israel with you into the hand of the Philistines. And tomorrow you and your sons will be with ^v me. The LORD will also deliver the army of Israel into the hand of the Philistines."

²⁰Immediately Saul fell full length on the ground, and was dreadfully afraid because of the words of Samuel. And there was no strength in him, for he had eaten no food all day or all night.

²¹And the woman came to Saul and saw that he was severely troubled, and said to him, "Look, your maidservant has obeyed your voice, and I have ^w put my life in my hands and heeded the words which you spoke to me. ²²Now therefore, please, heed also the voice of your maidservant, and let me set a piece of bread before you; and eat, that you may have strength when you go on your way."

²³But he refused and said, "I will not eat."

So his servants, together with the woman, urged him; and he heeded their voice. Then he arose from the ground and

And Achish said to the princes of the Philistines, "Is this not David, the servant of Saul king of Israel, who has been with me ^ethese days, or these years? And to this day I have ^ffound no fault in him since he defected to me."

⁴But the princes of the Philistines were angry with him; so the princes of 28:19, 20 Saul and his sons would die in the battle with the Philistines the very next day. The words with me simply refer to the grave. This text is not intended to provide a final answer concerning Saul's spiritual status. At the very least, it assumes the reality of life after death. no strength: Saul's sinful actions in seeking out a medium resulted in his complete collapse. He was terrified, sick, and totally weakened.

28:24 Unleavened bread was baked without yeast and could be prepared without waiting for it to rise.

29:1, 2 Aphek was about 13 miles northeast of Joppa. a fountain which is in Jezreel: The Israelites gathered at a prominent but unidentified spring in the Valley of Jezreel. passed in review: Apparently, the Philistine troops convened at an agreed-upon rendezvous to be reviewed and arranged in companies.

29:3 David was in a predicament, for he would not fight against his own people. He could do nothing but wait for the Lord to provide him with a means of escape from this dangerous situation. Achish came quickly to David's defense when the other princes questioned David's loyalty. Achish had found no fault with David since his "defection" from Saul.

29:4 Make this fellow return: Achish was unsuccessful in persuading his fellow princes and soldiers to accept David and his men the Philistines said to him, ^a“Make this fellow return, that he may go back to the place which you have appointed for him, and do not let him go down with us to ^bbattle, lest ⁱin the battle he become our adversary. For with what could he reconcile himself to his master, if not with the heads of these ^jmen? ⁵Is this not David, ^kof whom they sang to one another in dances, saying:

^l“Saul has slain his thousands,
And David his ten thousands?”

⁶Then Achish called David and said to him, “Surely, as the LORD lives, you have been upright, and ^myour going out and your coming in with me in the army is good in my sight. For to this day ⁿI have not found evil in you since the day of your coming to me. Nevertheless the lords do not favor you. ⁷Therefore return now, and go in peace, that you may not displease the lords of the Philistines.”

⁸So David said to Achish, “But what have I done? And to this day what have you found in your servant as long as I have been with you, that I may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king?”

⁹Then Achish answered and said to David, “I know that you are as good in my sight ^aas an angel of God; nevertheless ^pthe princes of the Philistines have said, ‘He shall not go up with us to the battle.’ ¹⁰Now therefore, rise early in the morning with your master’s servants ^qwho have come with ²you. ¹¹ So David and his men rose early to depart in the morning, to return to the land of the Philistines. ^r And the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

David's Conflict with the Amalekites

30 Now it happened, when David and his men came to ^aZiklag, on the third day, that the ^bAmalekites had invaded the South and Ziklag, attacked Ziklag and burned it with fire, ²and had taken captive the ^cwomen and those who were there, from small to great; they did not kill anyone, but carried them away and went their way. ³So David and his men came to the city, and there it was, burned with fire; and their wives, their sons, and their daughters had been taken captive. ⁴Then David and the people who were with him lifted up their voices and wept, until they had no more power to weep. ⁵And David's two ^dwives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the widow of Nabal the Carmelite, had been taken captive. ⁶Now David was greatly distressed, for ^ethe people spoke of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was ^fgrieved, every man for his sons and his daughters. ⁷But David strengthened himself in the LORD his God.

⁷ Then David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, “Please bring the ephod here to me.” And ^hAbiathar brought the ephod to David. ⁸ So David inquired of the LORD, saying, “Shall I pursue this troop? Shall I overtake them?”

And He answered him, “Pursue, for you shall surely overtake them and without fail recover all.”

⁹ So David went, he and the six hundred as part of the Philistine forces. They feared that David and his men might switch their allegiance back to Saul. See 14:21 for an example of what they feared.

29:5 Saul has slain his thousands: The popular Israelite taunt song (18:7) continued to echo in the ears of the Philistines (21:11).

29:6 Achish was thoroughly deceived by David's display of loyalty, as the LORD lives: Achish swore by the name of the God of Israel to impress David with the sincerity of his confidence in him. Achish had been close enough to David to know the language that David would understand best. The lords here are the Philistine rulers.

29:7, 8 go in peace: This farewell was much more than a courtesy. Achish was releasing David from any further obligation that he had incurred when Achish had made David a vassal king in Ziklag (27:6). But what have I done: David, who seems to have been a pretty fair actor, feigned surprise that Achish would dismiss him from the engagement.

29:9 Achish had been deceived by David. Good here means “blameless.” The comparison with an angel of God appears again in 2 Sam. 14:17.

29:10 your master's servants: Achish was referring to Saul as David's master.

29:11 After the departure of David and his men, the Philistines marched north from Aphek (v. 1) to the Valley of Jezreel.

30:1 The attack on Ziklag took place on the third day after David and his men left the Philistine army at Aphek. The Amalekites were a nomadic people who roamed the Negev, the dry land south of the hill country (see Num. 13:29). For their attack on the Israelites after the Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 17:8–13), they were placed under divine judgment (Deut. 25:19).

30:2–4 carried them away: Rather than kill the citizens of Ziklag, the Amalekites probably intended to make them slaves. Among those who were taken captive were David's two wives (v. 5), along with the wives and children of his men.

30:6 David faced a serious crisis in his leadership. He was distressed not only because of his personal grief but by the difficult situation pressing on him. the people spoke of stoning him: It is often the nature of unhappy people to vent their frustration through acts of hostility against their leaders (see Ex. 17:4). strengthened himself in the LORD his God: Unlike Saul, David knew where to turn in a time of crisis (see Phil. 4:13). He had learned to wait on God, confident of God's eventual deliverance (see Ps. 40:1–3).

30:7 Abiathar, whose name means “The Great One Is Father,” was the son of Ahimelech, the high priest from whom David had received provisions at Nob (21:1–9). The Urim and Thummim were attached to the breastplate of the ephod that David requested be brought to him (see Ex. 28:30). By means of the Urim and Thummim, God could be consulted and His will determined.

30:9 The Brook Besor emptied into the Mediterranean Sea just south of the Philistine city of Gaza (6:17).

men who were with him, and came to the Brook Besor, where those stayed who were left behind. ¹⁰But David pursued, he and four hundred men; ⁱfor two hundred stayed behind, who were so weary that they could not cross the Brook Besor.

¹¹Then they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David; and they gave him bread and he ate, and they let him drink water. ¹²And they gave him a piece of ^ka cake of figs and two clusters of raisins. So ^lwhen he had eaten, his strength came back to him; for he had eaten no bread nor drunk water for three days and three nights. ¹³Then David said to him, “To whom do you belong, and where are you from?”

And he said, “I am a young man from Egypt, servant of an Amalekite; and my master left me behind, because three days ago I fell sick. ¹⁴We made an invasion of the southern area of ^mthe Cherethites, in the territory which belongs to Judah, and of the southern area ⁿof Caleb; and we burned Ziklag with fire.”

¹⁵And David said to him, “Can you take me down to this troop?”

So he said, “Swear to me by God that you will neither kill me nor deliver me into the hands of my ^omaster, and I will take you down to this troop.”

¹⁶And when he had brought him down, there they were, spread out over all the land, ^peating and drinking and dancing, because of all the great spoil which they had taken from the land of the Philistines and from the land of Judah. ¹⁷Then David attacked them from twilight until the evening of the next day.

Not a man of them escaped, except four hundred young men who rode on camels and fled. ¹⁸So David recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away, and David rescued his two wives. ¹⁹And nothing of theirs was lacking, either small or great, sons or daughters, spoil or anything which they had taken from them; ^qDavid recovered all. ²⁰Then David took all the flocks and herds they had driven before those other livestock, and said, “This is David’s spoil.”

²¹Now David came to the ^rtwo hundred men who had been so weary that they could not follow David, whom they also had made to stay at the Brook Besor. So they went out to meet David and to meet the people who were with him. And when David came near the people, he ²greeted them. ²²Then all the wicked and ^sworthless³ men of those who went with David answered and said, “Because they did not go with us, we will not give them any of the spoil that we have recovered, except for every man’s wife and children, that they may lead them away and depart.”

²³But David said, “My brethren, you shall not do so with what the LORD has given us, who has preserved us and delivered into our hand the troop that came against us. ²⁴For who will heed you in this matter? But ^tas his part is who goes down to the battle, so shall his part be who stays by the supplies; they shall share alike.” ²⁵So it was, from that day forward; he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel to this day.

30:10 weary: The weariness of David’s men was due to the fact that they had traveled about 80 miles from Aphek to Ziklag (29:1; 30:1), only to set off immediately in pursuit of the Amalekites.

30:11, 12 found an Egyptian: A sick slave had been left by the Amalekites to die in the wilderness (v. 13). Life had been so devalued by the Amalekites that it was considered more economical to replace a slave than provide medical treatment for him when he was sick. cake of figs and two clusters of raisins: These foods were a regular part of the diet of David’s men (25:18).

30:14 The Cherethites (see 2 Sam. 8:18; 15:18; 20:7, 23) were a clan closely related to, if not actually a part of, the Philistines (see Ezek. 25:16; Zeph. 2:5). The southern area of Caleb refers to the part of Judah which was inherited by Caleb (Judg. 1:20).

30:15 In exchange for protection, the Egyptian agreed to lead David and his men to the Amalekites.

30:16 eating and drinking and dancing: The Amalekites were enjoying the booty they had taken from Philistia and Judah, including Ziklag.

30:17–20 Twilight here probably means just before first light in the morning. It is likely that David attacked the Amalekites in the early morning and that the battle continued through the next day. God was faithful to His earlier promise (v. 8); David’s men were able to recover their wives and possessions. Not only did the men of David recover their own possessions, but they were able to capture the flocks and herds of the Amalekites. These animals were driven before the other livestock as they returned triumphantly to Ziklag.

30:22, 23 wicked and worthless men: These men insisted that the spoil captured from the Amalekites should not be divided with the men who stayed at the Brook Besor with the supplies. with what the LORD has given us: David pointed out that the booty captured from the Amalekites was actually a gift from God, who had given them the victory.

30:24 For who will heed you in this matter: David questioned whether the men who waited at the Brook Besor would accept the proposal of the warriors who wanted to exclude them from any part in the spoil. they shall share alike: David’s band of warriors were one, although they had different strengths and abilities. They would share equally in the fruits of victory.

30:26–31 David also shared the booty taken from the Amalekites with the elders of Judah. This goodwill gesture helped David re-

(Heb. beliya'al) (30:22; Job 34:18; Prov. 6:12) Strong’s #1100

This word has the basic sense of “unworthy” and “wicked.” It occurs in the OT most frequently in phrases like “worthless men” (30:22; Prov. 6:12) and “worthless rogues” (2 Chr. 13:7). Worthless people are said to dig up evil (Prov. 16:27) and to plot wickedness (Nah. 1:11). This word became a proper name for Satan during the intertestamental period; thus Paul asked, “What accord has Christ with Belial?” (2 Cor. 6:15).

Bow and Arrow

Bows were the most characteristic weapons of warfare in the OT period, serving often as the decisive element in a battle. Simple bows, composed of a piece of wood and string, did not have much power or range, so the composite bow was developed early in the history of the Middle East. The composite bow was a combination of wood and animal horn. This combination of materials provided the bow with the flexibility and strength needed for effective combat. The bow was usually the first weapon fired in an open-field battle because the archers of the hostile armies could send arrows long distances. When attacking a city, the archers of the attacking army would try to pick city defenders off the walls. Archers of the defending city would use their bows to try to keep the army from getting close enough to break down the city's defenses.

establish his relationships among the leaders of Judah after his stay in Philistine territory.

30:27 Bethel is not the well-known city of Benjamin, but probably the Bethel of Josh. 19:4. Ramoth of the South may be the same city as Ramah of the South (Josh. 19:8), whose location is uncertain. Jattir, a Levitical city (see Josh. 21:14) allotted to Judah (see Josh. 15:48), was about 13 miles southwest of Hebron.

30:28 Aroer was a village about 12 miles southeast of Beersheba. The village of Siphmoth has not been identified. Eshtemoa was a Levitical city (see Josh. 21:14) in the hill country of Judah.

30:29 Rachal is of uncertain location. The Jerahmeelites were one of the clans of Judah (1 Chr. 2:9).

30:30 Hormah was where the Israelites were first defeated by the Canaanites (Num. 14:45). The location of the city, allotted to Judah (see Josh. 15:30) and to Simeon (see Josh. 19:4), is uncertain. Chorashan and Athach are also of uncertain location.

30:31 Hebron, also known as Kirjath Arba (Gen. 23:2), was soon to become David's capital (see 2 Sam. 5:3). Hebron was captured by Joshua and given to Caleb (Josh. 14:13). It was a Levitical city (Josh. 21:11) and a city of refuge (Josh. 20:7).

31:1 Mount Gilboa was a small mountain range in the eastern part of the Jezreel valley.

31:2 Saul's fourth son, Ishbosheth, was apparently not present at this battle, since Abner promoted him to king after Saul's death (2 Sam. 2:8-10).

31:4 Saul took a sword and fell on it: This account of Saul's death is different from that given by the Amalekite in 2 Sam. 1:6-10. His story was probably a fabrication intended to win David's approval.

31:5 In a demonstration of loyalty, Saul's armorbearer joined his master in death.

also fell on his sword, and died with him. ⁶So Saul, his three sons, his armorbearer, and all his men died together that same day.

⁷And when the men of Israel who were on the other side of the valley, and those who were on the other side of the Jordan, saw that the men of Israel had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them. ⁸So it happened the next day, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. ⁹And they cut off his head and stripped off his armor, and sent word

¹¹ⁿNow when the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹²^oall the valiant men arose and traveled all night, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth Shan; and they came to Jabesh and ^pburned them there. ¹³Then they took their bones and ^qburied them under the tamarisk tree at Jabesh, ^rand fasted seven days.

31:6 all his men: This does not refer to the whole army (v. 7), but rather to men who were particularly associated with Saul, perhaps his royal bodyguards.

31:7 The other side of the valley refers to the Valley of Jezreel. they forsook the cities and fled: As a result of Israel's defeat, many of the cities of northern Israel were abandoned. The people fled to remote regions to escape the Philistine menace.

31:8, 9 the Philistines came to strip the slain: Battlefield looting was the rule in ancient times. The victors gathered clothes, weapons, and armor from the slain. to proclaim it in the temple of their idols: The victory of the Philistines was announced to assembled worshipers as a public testimony of the greatness of their gods in overcoming the Israelites.

31:10 The armor of Saul was placed in the temple dedicated to the worship of Ashtoreth, or Ishtar, the Canaanite goddess of fertility and war. Beth Shan was at the junction of the Jezreel and Jordan valleys, about four miles west of the Jordan. Although Saul's body was fastened to the wall of the city, 1 Chr. 10:10 records that his head was displayed in the temple of Dagon.

31:11 The inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead had been delivered from the threats of Nahash the Ammonite by Saul in his first military campaign as king of Israel (11:1–11).

31:12 the valiant men arose: Out of gratitude to Saul for delivering their city, the men of Jabesh Gilead risked their lives to recover the bodies of Saul and his sons and to give them a proper burial. burned them: Cremation was not the normal practice for disposing of the dead among the ancient Hebrews. The reason they burned the bodies of Saul and his sons may be that the corpses had been mutilated by the Philistines (v. 9).

31:13 Although the bodies of Saul and his sons were burned, the bones were recovered and buried. Later, David exhumed the bodies of Saul and Jonathan and had them reburied in Benjamin (2 Sam. 21:11–14). fasted seven days: In ancient Israel, fasting was a way of expressing sorrow in mourning. With their fasting, the men of Jabesh showed their respect for Israel's first king.

THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL

SECOND SAMUEL recounts the triumphs and defeats of King David. From his rise to the throne to his famous last words, this biography describes a remarkable, divinely-inspired leader. As king, David took a divided and defeated Israel from his predecessor King Saul and built a prominent nation. Like most political biographies, 2 Samuel highlights the character traits that enabled David to succeed—his reliance on God for guidance (2:1), his sincerity (5:1–5), and his courage (5:6, 7). But the book also describes the tragic consequences of David's lust (12:1–23) and pride (24:1–17). By presenting both the strengths and the weaknesses of David, the book gives a complete picture of a very real person—a person from whom we can learn.

Title Second Samuel is named after the prophet Samuel, even though he does not appear in the narratives of the book. This is because 1 and 2 Samuel were originally one volume. When the Hebrew Scriptures were translated into the Greek language (around 150 B.C.), the books of Samuel and Kings were united as a complete history of the Hebrew monarchy. This collection was divided into four sections: First, Second, Third, and Fourth Kingdoms. Samuel and Kings were later separated again, but the divisions of the Greek translation persisted. The result was a 1 and 2 Samuel and a 1 and 2 Kings, corresponding to the four sections of Kingdoms in the Septuagint.

Author and Date Jewish tradition holds that the prophet Samuel wrote 1 Samuel 1–24, and that the prophets Nathan and Gad composed the rest of 1 Samuel and all of 2 Samuel. It is quite evident that some sections of 1 Samuel and all of 2 Samuel were written after the death of Samuel (1 Sam. 25:1; 28:3). Indeed, some notes may have been added even after the division of the monarchy in 930 B.C. (1 Sam. 27:6). In the absence of any reference to the fall of Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom, it is reasonable to assume that the books were complete by 722 B.C. The majority of the composition of the Books of Samuel may have been done during David and Solomon's reigns (c. 1010–930 B.C.), with only a small number of notations coming from later periods.

Historical Setting Second Samuel covers the period from the death of Saul (c. 1010 B.C.) to the end of David's career (c. 970 B.C.). During the 40 years of his reign, David welded the loose-knit tribes together into a strong monarchy and transformed the youthful nation into a military power able to dominate surrounding nations.

After capturing the Jebusite fortress Jerusalem, David made it his capital. This new site became the powerful geographical base for the establishment of David's empire. Then David began to free the Israelite territory from Philistine and Canaanite domination. In doing so, David extended his kingdom by military conquests to the north, south, east, and west (see ch. 8).

In addition to military conquest, David was the first of Israel's kings to use marriage alliances as an important dimension of the nation's foreign policy. Marriage alliances between royal houses as a means of concluding treaties and cementing relationships between states were common occurrences in the ancient Middle East. The first such marriage alliance is alluded to in 3:3, where Absalom, David's third son, is called "the son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur."

The Gihon spring (see 2 Sam. 5:8) provided a natural water source for ancient Jerusalem.

Todd Bolen/www.BiblePlaces.com

David's conquests and alliances gave him control of territory from the border of Egypt to the Euphrates. This was largely due to David's strong military presence in comparison with the general weakness that characterized Egypt and Mesopotamia at this time. For a brief period, Israel was as strong as any nation of the ancient world.

Theme The unifying theme of 2 Samuel is the establishment of the kingdom of Israel, progressing from a diverse group of divided and warring tribes to a solidified kingdom under David. However the purpose for recording these events was not merely to have an "official" record of David's reign. Throughout the narrative, there is a continuing interest in the rule of God over His people. The book emphasizes that it was God who rejected Saul for his disobedience, chose David for the throne, and disciplined David for his pride. God was still the true King of Israel.

The key to David's successful reign was his relationship with the Lord. God had described him as a man after His own heart (1 Sam. 13:14). In his youth, David had demonstrated his strong faith in God by challenging a giant with only a few stones and his faith in God's strength (1 Sam. 17:45–51). In his adulthood, he continued to rely on God for guidance and strength (2:1; 5:19). Early in his reign, he demonstrated the importance of his religious convictions to all Israel by bringing the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem in the midst of a lavish celebration before the Lord (6:1–23). Following that, his eagerness to build a temple for the glory of the Lord was known to all (7:1–3). With such actions and the numerous songs he wrote in praise of God, David led the Israelites back to the true worship of God. Even when he sinned, he demonstrated to the people his repentant heart before the living God (12:13–23; 24:17–25). In the final analysis, David's religious leadership was the most significant part of his reign.

Through all the triumphs and tragedies of David's reign, God was acting in the national and personal events of His people in order to accomplish His will. The Lord gave David a glimpse of His ultimate will in the promises He gave him, commonly called the Davidic covenant (7:12–16). In this unconditional covenant, God promised David an eternal dynasty, an eternal throne, and an eternal kingdom. Ultimately, a righteous King greater than David was coming. He would be David's son and would rule from David's throne forever (Is. 9:7). This promised King is Jesus (see Luke 1:31–33; John 1:49).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

In spite of his sins of adultery, murder, and deceit (chs. 11–24), David remains a man after God's own heart. This is seen in his response and faithful attitude toward God. Like Jesus, David characterizes his reign with justice, wisdom, integrity, courage, and compassion. His throne is none other than the one that belonged to Melchizedek (see Gen. 14:18). Although David barely compares to the King, Jesus Christ, he comes closer than anyone else in Scripture. In 2 Samuel, God makes a covenant with David (7:4–17). Without understanding the magnitude of it, the shepherd-turned-king receives God’s three-fold promise of an eternal kingdom, throne, and seed. Amazingly, these are the same three promises given to Jesus (Luke 1:32, 33).

And on a curious note, David ruled for a time in Hebron before the 33 years he reigned in Jerusalem. Jesus’ life on earth as king of the Jews was also for 33 years, but this was only a continuation of His majestic rule in heaven that preceded His incarnation.

The Report of Saul's Death

Now it came to pass after the ^adeath of Saul, when David had returned from ^bthe slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had stayed two days in Ziklag, ²on the third day, behold, it happened that ^ca man came from Saul's camp ^dwith his clothes ¹torn and dust on his head. So it was, when he came to David, that he ^efell to the ground and prostrated himself.

³And David said to him, "Where have you come from?"

So he said to him, "I have escaped from the camp of Israel."

⁴Then David said to him, ^f"How did the matter go? Please tell me."

And he answered, "The people have fled from the battle, many of the people are fallen and dead, and Saul and ^gJonathan his son are dead also."

⁵So David said to the young man who told him, "How do you know that Saul and Jonathan his son are dead?"

⁶Then the young man who told him said, "As I happened by chance to be on ^hMount Gilboa, there was ⁱSaul, leaning on his spear; and indeed the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him. ⁷Now when he looked behind him, he saw me and called to me. And I answered, 'Here I am.' ⁸And he said to me, 'Who are you?' So I answered him, 'I am an Amalekite.' ⁹He said to me again, 'Please stand over me and kill me, for ²anguish has come upon me, but my life still remains in me."

The Song of the Bow

¹⁷Then David lamented with this lamentation over Saul and over Jonathan his son, ¹⁸*and* he told them to teach the children of Judah the Song of the Bow; indeed it is written ^vin the Book ³of Jasher:

1:1 The death of Saul is recorded in 1 Sam. 31:3–5. The Amalekites were a nomadic, marauding people who roamed the southern part of Canaan. They were fierce enemies of Israel until they were brought under Israelite control in the time of David. Ziklag was one of the Israelite cities of the southern desert or Negev, originally assigned to Judah (Josh. 15:31). David was granted authority over the city when he served as vassal to Achish, king of Gath (1 Sam. 27:6).

1:2 clothes torn and dust on his head: The man was in mourning (1 Sam. 4:12). He fell to the ground to show his support for David as Saul's successor to the throne of Israel. In these actions of mourning and humility, the man attempted to demonstrate respect for both the dead king and the one who was to become king.

1:3 escaped from the camp of Israel: The army of Israel had fallen in defeat to the Philistines, but the man had escaped from the battlefield.

1:6–10 The Amalekite's report of Saul's death is different from the account in 1 Sam. 31:4, which states that Saul died by falling on his sword. It appears that the Amalekite's story was a fabrication. Perhaps he sought recognition or reward from David by claiming to have slain Saul.

1:6 Mount Gilboa is a small mountain range located in the eastern part of the Jezreel valley.

1:9 In this context, anguish refers to the agony of death.

1:10 I was sure that he could not live: According to the Amalekite's story, since Saul had no hope of recovery, there was justification in putting him to death. The crown was a mark of royalty. The bracelet was an ornament worn on the upper part of the arm. Apparently, it was the custom for kings to go into battle in royal regalia (see 1 Kin. 22:30). The Amalekite brought these items to David in order to substantiate his story.

1:11 tore them: Tearing one's clothes was a traditional expression of mourning in ancient times (3:31; see Gen. 37:34).

1:12 the people of the Lord: David and his associates mourned not only for the fallen king and prince, but also for those who had died from the ranks of Saul's army. This is surprising, for it was the same army that had been attempting to capture and kill David. He did not see them as enemies, but as members of God's family.

1:13 Where are you from: David's question might have been designed to determine whether the Amalekite resided in Israel or in Amalekite territory to the south. He might have been wondering how the man could be so ignorant of David's respect for Saul's life.

1:14 David's use of the phrase the LORD's anointed indicates that even though Saul was his enemy, David respected Saul's divine right to be king. With Saul's anointing, God had declared a sacred relationship between Himself and Saul (see 1 Sam. 10:1); Saul as king served as God's representative and ruler over His people. David repeatedly refused to harm him because of this (1 Sam. 24:6; 26:9).

1:15 execute him: David apparently believed the Amalekite's story and had him put to death on the basis of his own testimony. David's execution of the Amalekite was a strong statement to those under his command that he had no part in Saul's death and did not reward it in any way. Thus he exemplified respect for authority and distanced himself from the charge of being a usurper.

1:16 Your blood is on your own head: The Amalekite, not the executioner, was morally accountable for the shedding of his own blood.

1:18 The Hebrew phrase the children of Judah means not young people but the descendants or tribe of Judah. The Song of the Bow: The words for "the Song of" do not appear in the Hebrew, leading some to suggest that the men of Judah were to be instructed in warfare and the use of the bow (Ps. 18:34; 144:1; 149:6). David Anointed King of Judah

2 It happened after this that David ^ainquired of the LORD, saying, “Shall
 I go up to any of the cities of Judah?”
 And the LORD said to him, “Go up.”
 David said, “Where shall I go up?”
 And He said, “To ^bHebron.”
²So David went up there, and his ^ctwo wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the widow of Nabal the Carmelite. ³And David brought up ^dthe men who were with him, every man with his household. So they dwelt in the cities of Hebron.
⁴^eThen the men of Judah came, and there they ^fanointed David king over the house of Judah. And they told David, saying, ^g“The men of Jabesh Gilead were the ones who buried Saul.” ⁵So David sent suggest that the poem was known as The Song of the Bow, based on the reference in v. 22. It is also possible the title refers to the tune for the song. The Book of Jasher was perhaps a collection of hymns about Israel's wars, in which important events and national figures were commemorated in poetry (Num. 21:14–18; Josh. 10:13).

1:19 The beauty of Israel refers to Saul and Jonathan. High places alludes to Mt. Gilboa (v. 6), where the warriors died.

1:20 Gath and Ashkelon are mentioned as representatives of the Philistine cities (see 1 Sam. 6:17) that would rejoice over the deaths of Israel's royal family. These two cities joined with Ekron, Gaza, and Ashdod to form the Philistine pentapolis, or five-city league.

1:21 no dew nor rain: A curse was pronounced on the mountains of Gilboa, the scene of the military disaster (1:6; 1 Sam. 31:8). not anointed with oil: Shields were normally wiped with oil to cleanse, polish, and protect them. Saul's shield was declared useless because it had not protected him from death.

1:23, 24 Eagles and lions were poetic symbols of speed and strength. weep over Saul: David invited the women of Israel to lead in public lamentation for Saul, whose military exploits elevated the standard of royalty and enriched the nation (1 Sam. 14:47). David did not want the women of Philistia to sing (v. 20), but he invited the women of Israel to lament.

1:25 How the mighty have fallen: The poetic repetition of these words from v. 19 prepares the reader for the shift in focus of the poem to Jonathan.

1:26 The Hebrew word for distressed means a tightness or constriction, as though life itself were closing in. Your love: David compared Jonathan's love with that of women in its depth and loyalty. David was not afraid to speak of his deep and genuine love for his friend.

1:27 How the mighty have fallen: The third repetition of this phrase (compare vv. 19, 25) brings the psalm to its painful conclusion. The phrase weapons of war is a figurative reference to the fallen warriors.

2:1 David inquired of the LORD: Before taking an important step, it was David's custom to seek the will of the Lord (1 Sam. 23:2; 30:8). This was sometimes done by means of the Urim and Thummim which were attached to the breastplate of the priest's ephod (see Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8; Num. 27:21; Deut. 33:8; 1 Sam. 23:6–9; Ezra 2:63; Neh. 7:65). The Lord directed David to Hebron (1 Sam. 30:31). Its central location—about 20 miles south of Jerusalem—and defensible position made it a suitable capital for David.

2:2 his two wives: David's marriages to Abigail and Ahinoam are recorded in 1 Sam. 25:2–43.

2:3 The ancient name for Hebron was Kirjath Arba (see Gen. 23:2), meaning “Town of Four.” Apparently, the town had four suburbs, one of which must have been Mamre (Gen. 35:27); hence, one may speak of the cities of Hebron (Josh. 21:11).

2:4 anointed David: This is actually the second anointing of David. The first had been performed by the prophet Samuel while Saul was still king (1 Sam. 16:13). The first anointing was a mark of God's intention; this second anointing was the recognition by the people of Judah that David was truly the Lord's anointed (5:3). Jabesh Gilead was on the north bank of the Jabbok River, about seven miles east of the Jordan. The men of Jabesh Gilead had risked their lives to provide Saul and Jonathan a proper burial (1 Sam. 31:11–13).

2:5–7 sent messengers: David's sincere action of appreciation for the kindness of the men also announced to them that he was ready to act on their behalf, because he was now the anointed king of the tribe of Judah. let your hands be strengthened: David made an messengers to the men of Jabesh Gilead, and said to them, ^h“You are blessed of the LORD, for you have shown this kindness to your lord, to Saul, and have buried him. ⁶And now may ⁱthe LORD show kindness and truth to you. I also will repay you this kindness, because you have done this thing. ⁷Now therefore, let your hands be strengthened, and be valiant; for your master Saul is dead, and also the house of Judah has anointed me king over them.”

Ishbosheth Made King of Israel

⁸But ^jAbner the son of Ner, commander of Saul’s army, took ¹Ishbosheth the son of Saul and brought him over to ^kMahanaim; ⁹and he made him king over ^lGilead, over the ^mAshurites, over ⁿJezreel, over Ephraim, over Benjamin, and over all Israel. ¹⁰Ishbosheth, Saul’s son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years. Only the house of Judah followed David. ¹¹And ^othe ²time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

Israel and Judah at War

¹²Now Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ishbosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to ^pGibeon. ¹³And ^qJoab the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out and met them by ^rthe pool of Gibeon. So they sat down, one on one side of the pool and the other on the other side of the pool. ¹⁴Then Abner said to Joab, “Let the young men now arise and compete before us.”

And Joab said, “Let them arise.”

¹⁵So they arose and went over by number, twelve from Benjamin, followers of Ishbosheth the son of Saul, and twelve from the servants of David. ¹⁶And each one grasped his opponent by the head and thrust his sword in his opponent’s side; so they fell down together. Therefore that place was called ³the Field of Sharp Swords, which is in Gibeon. ¹⁷So there was a very fierce battle that day, and Abner and the men of Israel were beaten before the servants of David.

¹⁸Now the ³three sons of Zeruiah were there: Joab and Abishai and Asahel. And Asahel was ^tas fleet of foot ^uas a wild gazelle. ¹⁹So Asahel pursued Abner, and in going he did not turn to the right hand or to the left from following Abner.

²⁰Then Abner looked behind him and said, “Are you Asahel?”

He answered, “I am.”

²¹And Abner said to him, “Turn aside to your right hand or to your left, and lay hold on one of the young men and take his armor for yourself.” But Asahel would not turn aside from following him. ²²So Abner said again to Asahel, “Turn aside from following me. Why should I strike you to the ground? How then could I face your brother Joab?” ²³However, he refused to turn aside. Therefore Abner struck him ^vin the stomach with appeal to the men of Gilead for their strong support of his kingship. However, their loyalty to Saul’s dynasty prevailed, and Jabesh Gilead became the headquarters of Ishbosheth, David’s rival.

2:8 Ishbosheth means “Man of Shame.” His original name Esh-Baal, meaning “Man of the Master” or “Man of the Lord,” was changed because “Baal” suggested Baal worship (1 Chr. 8:33; 9:39). Mahanaim, the capital of Gilead, was north of the Jabbok (1 Kin. 4:14). It was named by Jacob when he saw the encampment of the angels of God around his own camp (Gen. 32:2). The name means “Double Camp.”

2:9 Gilead usually refers to the central part of the Israelite territory east of the Jordan; here the term probably refers more generally to all of that territory. Ashurites is apparently a variant of the term Asherites (Judg. 1:32), referring to the tribe of Asher. The territory of Asher extended north from Mt. Carmel along the Mediterranean coast and east into the foothills of the mountains of Galilee. Jezreel refers to the broad valley between the mountains of Galilee and the mountain range to the south. Ephraim and Manasseh occupied the central district north of Benjamin, the small plateau just north of Jerusalem.

2:10, 11 While David was king in Hebron for seven and a half years, Ishbosheth reigned for only two years. The difference may mean that Ishbosheth took about five years to recover the northern territory from the Philistines after Saul’s defeat. His reign of two years would be his reign over “all Israel” (v. 9).

2:12, 13 Gibeon was about six miles northwest of Jerusalem. pool of Gibeon: Excavations at El-Jib—the site of Gibeon—uncovered a rock-cut pool 37 feet in diameter and 82 feet deep. A spiral staircase of 79 steps cut in the rock leads to the bottom. The pool was meant either to store rainwater or to provide access to the water table.

Joab: David’s nephew became a competent military commander of David’s forces (10:7–14; 12:26–28).

2:14–17 Abner proposed a contest between champions to determine the outcome of the conflict between Ishbosheth and David (1 Sam. 17:38–54). This was not a friendly game that he proposed; it was a fight to the death in order to determine a victor. Yet the outcome of the contest would presumably save many lives. The two groups of twelve faced each other. Two champions contended at a time, each killing the other, until all 24 had died. Had one group of champions clearly triumphed over the other, the contest would have determined the future ruler of Israel. fierce battle: Since the contest between the champions was a draw, warfare between the two armies ensued, with David’s men claiming victory.

2:18 Joab, Abishai, and Asahel were brothers, all sons of David’s sister Zeruiah (1 Chr. 2:13–16). The wild gazelle was renowned in Israel for its beauty and swiftness.

2:19 Asahel knew that if Abner was dead, Ishbosheth’s power base would dissolve, and the tribes could be united under King David.

2:21 Abner, confident that he could defeat Asahel, wanted to avoid the blood feud that would likely develop if he were to kill Joab’s brother. It also appears that Asahel, renowned for his speed (v. 18), did not have on the body armor that would have made a fight with Abner a fair contest. Abner pleaded with Asahel to turn aside or at least to put on armor.

2:23 Unable to deter Asahel from pursuing him, Abner stabbed him with the blunt end of his spear, which was the end opposite the spear head. It was probably pointed so that it could be stuck in the ground (1 Sam. 26:7).

the blunt end of the spear, so that the spear came out of his back; and he fell down there and died on the spot. So it was that as many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died, stood ¹⁰still.

²⁴Joab and Abishai also pursued Abner. And the sun was going down when they came to the hill of Ammah, which is before Giah by the road to the Wilderness of Gibeon. ²⁵Now the children of Benjamin gathered together behind Abner and became ⁴a unit, and took their stand on top of a hill. ²⁶Then Abner called to Joab and said, “Shall the sword devour forever? Do you not know that it will be bitter in the latter end? How long will it be then until you tell the people to return from pursuing their brethren?”

²⁷And Joab said, “As God lives, ⁵unless ^xyou had spoken, surely then by morning all the people would have given up pursuing their brethren.” ²⁸So Joab blew a trumpet; and all the people stood still and did not pursue Israel anymore, nor did they fight anymore. ²⁹Then Abner and his men went on all that night through the plain, crossed over the Jordan, and went through all Bithron; and they came to Mahanaim.

³⁰So Joab returned from pursuing Abner. And when he had gathered all the people together, there were missing of David’s servants nineteen men and Asahel. ³¹But the servants of David had struck down, of Benjamin and Abner’s men, three hundred and sixty men who died. ³²Then they took up Asahel and buried him in his father’s tomb, which was in ^yBethlehem. And Joab and his men went all night, and they came to Hebron at daybreak.

3 Now there was a long ^awar between the house of Saul and the house of David. But David grew stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul grew weaker and weaker.

Sons of David

²Sons were born ^bto David in Hebron: His firstborn was Amnon ^cby Ahinoam the Jezreelitess; ³his second, ¹Chileab, by Abigail the widow of Nabal the Carmelite; the third, ^dAbsalom the son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king ^eof Geshur; ⁴the fourth, ^fAdonijah the son of Haggith; the fifth, Shephatiah the son of Abital; ⁵and the sixth, Ithream, by David’s wife Eglah. These were born to David in Hebron.

Abner Joins Forces with David

⁶Now it was so, while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, that Abner was strengthening his hold on the house of Saul.

⁷And Saul had a concubine, whose name was ^gRizpah, the daughter of Aiah. So Ishbosheth said to Abner, “Why have you ^hgone in to my father’s concubine?”

⁸Then Abner became very angry at the words of Ishbosheth, and said, “Am I ⁱa dog’s head that belongs to Judah? Today I show loyalty to the house of Saul your father, to his brothers, and to his friends, and have not delivered you into the hand of David; and you charge me today with a

2:25 the children of Benjamin: The men of Saul’s tribe were among the strongest supporters of Abner and Ishbosheth.

2:26–28 devour forever: Recognizing that continued fighting would only result in further loss of life and deepened hostility, Abner and Joab agreed to call off the conflict. The use of silver trumpets to signal the army was established at the time of Moses (Num. 10:1–10). Here, the trumpet, a ram’s horn or shofar, was used to mark a truce between the warring sides.

2:29 Abner’s army retreated across the Jordan and returned to Mahanaim, Ishbosheth’s headquarters (vv. 8, 12).

2:32 After burying Asahel at Bethlehem, 6 miles south of Jerusalem, Joab and his men marched another 14 miles to Hebron, David’s capital (v. 1).

3:1 a long war: The conflict between the followers of Saul and the followers of David was not limited to the battle recorded in ch. 2. Hostilities continued between the two royal houses, with David gradually gaining ascendancy.

3:2 David began his reign in Judah with two wives, Ahinoam and Abigail. In Hebron, he married four more wives, each of whom bore him a son. This was despite the warning against polygamy in Deut. 17:17. Amnon, notorious for having violated his sister Tamar, was later murdered by Absalom (ch. 13). Amnon’s mother, Ahinoam, is not the same as Saul’s wife Ahinoam (1 Sam. 14:50).

3:3 Chileab is called Daniel in 1 Chr. 3:1. The story of his mother, Abigail, is found in 1 Sam. 25. She is not the same as Abigail the mother of Amasa (17:25). Absalom died at the hands of Joab

(18:14). Absalom’s mother, Maacah, is identified as the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur. Geshur was the Aramean kingdom on the east side of the Jordan, northeast of the Sea of Galilee. David used marriage alliances to conclude treaties and cement relations between Israel and foreign nations. However, such alliances were forbidden by God’s law (see Deut. 7:3).

3:4 Adonijah attempted to take his father’s throne just before David proclaimed Solomon king (1 Kin. 1). Shephatiah and his mother, Abital, are mentioned only here and in 1 Chr. 3:3.

3:5 Ithream and his mother, Eglah, are mentioned only here and in 1 Chr. 3:3. in Hebron: These six sons, each from a different mother, constituted the royal family during David’s reign over the house of Judah. The dynastic lists in Chronicles include four sons of David by Bathsheba (1 Chr. 3:5) and nine other sons whose mothers are not named (1 Chr. 3:6–8).

3:6, 7 The phrase strengthening his hold implies that Abner was usurping Ishbosheth’s authority, becoming the power behind the throne. father’s concubine: Ishbosheth’s charge, that Abner was having sexual relations with one of Saul’s concubines, was serious. The royal harem was the property of the king’s successor. Taking a king’s concubine was tantamount to claiming the throne (16:20–22).

3:8 Am I a dog’s head: In the ancient Middle East, dogs were scavengers, living off dead animals and garbage, and were viewed with contempt (9:8; Deut. 23:18; 1 Sam. 17:43; 1 Kin. 22:38; 2 Kin. 9:36). that belongs to Judah: Since Judah was the enemy of Israel, this phrase intensifies the metaphor.

fault concerning this woman? ^{9j} May God do so to Abner, and more also, if I do not do for David ^k as the LORD has sworn to him— ¹⁰ to transfer the kingdom from the ² house of Saul, and set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, ^l from Dan to Beersheba.” ¹¹ And he could not answer Abner another word, because he feared him.

¹² Then Abner sent messengers on his behalf to David, saying, “Whose is the land?” saying also, “Make your covenant with me, and indeed my hand shall be with you to bring all Israel to you.”

¹³ And David said, “Good, I will make a covenant with you. But one thing I require of you: ^m you shall not see my face unless you first bring ⁿ Michal, Saul’s daughter, when you come to see my face.” ¹⁴ So David sent messengers to ^o Ishbosheth, Saul’s son, saying, “Give me my wife Michal, whom I betrothed to myself ^p for a hundred foreskins of the Philistines.” ¹⁵ And Ishbosheth sent and took her from her husband, from ³ Paltiel the son of Laish. ¹⁶ Then her husband went along with her to ^q Bahurim, ⁴ weeping behind her. So Abner said to him, “Go, return!” And he returned.

¹⁷ Now Abner had communicated with the elders of Israel, saying, “In time past you were seeking for David to be king over you. ¹⁸ Now then, do it!” ¹⁹ For the LORD has spoken of David, saying, ‘By the hand of My servant David, ⁵ I will save ²⁰ So Abner and twenty men with him came to David at Hebron. And David made a feast for Abner and the men who were with him. ²¹ Then Abner said to David, “I will arise and go, and ^l gather all Israel to my lord the king, that they may make a covenant with you, and that you may ^u reign over all that your heart desires.” So David sent Abner away, and he went in peace.

Joab Murders Abner

²² At that moment the servants of David and Joab came from a raid and brought much ⁶ spoil with them. But Abner was not with David in Hebron, for he had sent him away, and he had gone in peace. ²³ When Joab and all the troops that were with him had come, they told Joab, saying, “Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he sent him away, and he has gone in peace.” ²⁴ Then Joab came to the king and said, “What have you done? Look, Abner came to you; why is it that you sent him away, and he has already gone? ²⁵ Surely you realize that Abner the son of Ner came to deceive you, to

3:9, 10 The phrase may God do so to Abner is a prayer for divine judgment should Abner fail to keep his oath. The words as the LORD has sworn indicate that Abner knew that David had been divinely chosen to succeed Saul (vv. 17, 18). The expression from Dan to Beersheba is used to refer to the whole territory of Israel from its northern to its southern border, a distance of about 150 miles (Judg. 20:1; 1 Sam 3:20).

3:12 Whose is the land: The implication here is that the land could be David’s if he entered into a binding agreement with Abner, because it was Abner who actually held all the power.

3:13 David’s first wife Michal (1 Sam. 18:17–27) was left in Gibeah when David fled from Saul’s court (1 Sam. 19:11–17). She was later given by Saul, perhaps out of spite, to a man named Palti (1 Sam. 25:44).

3:14 David’s request for Michal was formally addressed to Ishbosheth. This might have been a difficult demand for Ishbosheth since Michal was his sister. However, he was powerless to thwart Abner’s plan. a hundred foreskins: David mentioned the number which Saul had originally asked for; David actually paid him double (1 Sam. 18:25–27).

3:16 Michal’s second husband appears brokenhearted at her forced removal from his home. Nothing is said of Michal’s feelings; however she grew to despise David (6:16). Bahurim was near Jerusalem, east of Olivet (16:5).

3:17, 18 For the LORD has spoken: The Bible does not record elsewhere the divine promise quoted by Abner and referred to in vv. 9, 10. It is possible that this was a revelation that God gave to him alone.

3:19 David faced the most opposition from Saul’s tribe, Benjamin. Abner personally campaigned for David’s kingship in this tribe. After winning support for David in Israel, Abner proceeded to Hebron (2:1) to announce the people’s decision to acknowledge David as king.

3:22, 23 The words gone in peace are repeated (v. 21), to emphasize that the hostilities between David and Abner had been resolved.

3:24, 25 What have you done: Learning of Abner’s visit, Joab challenged the king for allowing the commander of a hostile army and a cousin of Saul to come and go from Hebron without being apprehended and put to death. He insisted that Abner was trying to trick David with a display of good faith and sincerity, and that his real purpose was to gather intelligence.

(Heb. berith) (3:12; 23:5; Gen. 6:18; 15:18; Ex. 2:24; Jer. 31:31) Strong’s #1285

Generally, the word covenant refers to an agreement between two or more parties. The term often refers to God’s self-imposed obligation to reconcile fallen humanity to Himself. God’s redemptive plans throughout history promise salvation and blessing to those who obediently serve Him. God made several covenants with His people in the OT. He made a covenant with Noah after the Flood (Gen. 9:9–17), a covenant with Abraham (Gen. 17:15, 16), and a covenant with David (see 23:5). These covenants prefigure the supreme covenant made through Christ’s sacrifice on the Cross. Jesus initiated the New Covenant which Jeremiah foresaw (Jer. 31:31–34).

know ^v your going out and your coming in, and to know all that you are doing.”

²⁶ And when Joab had gone from David's presence, he sent messengers after Abner, who brought him back from the well of Sirah. But David did not know it. ²⁷ Now when Abner had returned to Hebron, Joab ^w took him aside in the gate to speak with him privately, and there ⁷ stabbed him ^x in the stomach, so that he died for the blood of ^y Asahel his brother.

²⁸ Afterward, when David heard it, he said, “My kingdom and I ^{are} ⁸ guiltless before the LORD forever of the blood of Abner the son of Ner. ²⁹ ^z Let it rest on the head of Joab and on all his father's house; and let there never fail to be in the ⁹ house of Joab one ^a who has a discharge or is a leper, who leans on a staff or falls by the sword, or who lacks bread.”

³⁰ So Joab and Abishai his brother killed Abner, because he had killed their brother ^b Asahel at Gibeon in the battle.

David's Mourning for Abner

³¹ Then David said to Joab and to all the people who were with him, ^c “Tear your clothes, ^d gird yourselves with sackcloth, and mourn for Abner.” And King David followed the coffin. ³² So they buried Abner in Hebron; and the king lifted up his voice and wept at the grave of Abner, and all the people wept. ³³ And the king sang a lament over Abner and said:

“Should Abner die as a ^e fool dies?”

Then all the people wept over him again.

³⁵ And when all the people came ^f to persuade David to eat food while it was still day, David took an oath, saying, ^g “God do so to me, and more also, if I taste bread or anything else ^h till the sun goes down!” ³⁶ Now all the people took note of it, and it pleased them, since whatever the king did pleased all the people. ³⁷ For all the people and all Israel understood that day that it had not been the king's intent to kill Abner the son of Ner. ³⁸ Then the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel? ³⁹ And I am weak today, though anointed king; and these men, the sons of Zeruiah, ⁱ are too harsh for me. ^j The LORD shall repay the evildoer according to his wickedness.”

Ishbosheth Is Murdered

4 When Saul's ¹ son heard that Abner had died in Hebron, ^a he ² lost heart, and all Israel was ^b troubled. ² Now Saul's son had two men who were captains of troops. The name of one was Baanah and the name of the other Rechab, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, of the children of Benjamin. (For ^c Beeroth also was ³ part of Benjamin, ³ because the Beerothites fled to ^d Gittaim and have been sojourners there until this day.)

⁴ Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son who was lame in his feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan came ^f from Jezreel; and his nurse took him up and fled. And it happened, as she made haste to flee, that he fell and became lame. His name was ^g Mephibosheth. ⁴

3:27 stabbed him: This was an act of treachery, especially in Hebron, a city of refuge (Josh. 20:7). In a city of refuge, a blood avenger could not slay a murderer without a trial (Num. 35:22–25). Joab wanted to avenge the death of Asahel his brother, who was killed in the course of a battle (2:18–23).

3:28, 29 My kingdom and I: David issued a public proclamation denying any involvement in the murder of Abner. The death of Abner was not only an act of treachery, but also a great blow to David's hopes for a peaceable unification of the nation under his control. Let it rest on the head of Joab: This verse forms a strong curse on the household of Joab. Both a discharge (see Lev. 15:2–33) and leprosy (see Lev. 13) made the afflicted person ritually unclean, an outcast from the community. The phrase leans on a staff describes one who is crippled, lame, or blind.

3:30 Abishai was Joab's other brother (2:18). His involvement in the murder of Abner is mentioned only here.

3:31 Tear your clothes: These actions were associated in ancient times with mourning the dead (1:11; Gen. 37:34). Sackcloth was coarse material, in contrast to more comfortable clothing. followed the coffin: David led the funeral procession.

3:33, 34 as a fool dies: Certainly a warrior like Abner deserved a more noble death. How much better for Abner to have died fighting than to have been stabbed to death while under a promise of safe passage. Your hands were not bound: Abner was not guilty of any crime that required him to be bound with chains and fetters.

3:35 The murder of Abner had the potential of breaking the fragile union of the twelve tribes. David refused to participate in the meal that was customarily served to mourners after the burial as evidence of his genuine remorse. In his oath God do so to me, and more also, David prayed that God would do the worst thing imaginable should he eat food before sunset (compare a similar oath by Abner in 3:9).

3:36, 37 All Israel refers to the people of the northern tribes and the Benjamites, who would be inclined to suspect David of plotting the murder of Ishbosheth's military commander. All the people became confident of David's innocence.

3:38 His servants refers to David's confidential servants or advisors. The words a prince and a great man reflect how highly David regarded Abner.

4:1 Saul's son Ishbosheth lost the heart to act as king, since Abner, his primary supporter, was gone. Israel was troubled at the possibility of an attack by David's men.

4:2, 3 The fact that Baanah and Rechab were from the tribe of Benjamin, the tribe of Saul, makes their actions all the more reprehensible. Beeroth was one of the four cities of the Gibeonites (Josh. 9:17), with whom Joshua had made a covenant. For some reason, the Beerothites fled to Gittaim and their city was reoccupied by Benjamites (Neh. 11:33).

4:4 Merib-Baal, which means “The Master Is Advocate,” was the original name of Jonathan's son (1 Chr. 8:34; 9:40). The author of Samuel changed it to Mephibosheth, meaning “He Scatters Shame,” apparently to avoid the idolatrous implications of the word Baal.

⁹But David answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, and said to them, “As the LORD lives, ^kwho has redeemed my life from all adversity, ¹⁰when ^lsomeone told me, saying, ‘Look, Saul is dead,’ thinking to have brought good news, I arrested him and had him executed in Ziklag—the one who thought I would give him a reward for his news. ¹¹How much more, when wicked men have killed a righteous person in his own house on his bed? David Reigns over All Israel

5 Then all the tribes of Israel ^acame to David at Hebron and spoke, saying, “Indeed ^b*we are* your bone and your flesh. ²Also, in time past, when Saul was king over us, ^cyou were the one who led Israel out and brought them in; and the LORD said to you, ^d‘You shall shepherd My people Israel, and be ruler over Israel.’” ^{3e}Therefore all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, ^fand King David made a covenant with them at Hebron ^gbefore the LORD. And they anointed David king over Israel. ⁴David was ^hthirty years old when he began to reign, and ⁱhe reigned forty years. ⁵In Hebron he reigned over Judah ^jseven years and six months, and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years over all Israel and Judah.

The Conquest of Jerusalem

^{6k} And the king and his men went to Jerusalem against ^lthe Jebusites, the inhab-

4:5 The house of Ishbosheth was at Mahanaim (2:8, 12). Ishbosheth was taking his midday rest, as perhaps were the members of the palace guard.

4:7 The murderers fled by way of the plain, meaning by way of the Jordan valley.

4:8–10 Rechab and Baanah brought the head of Ishbosheth to David, perhaps in hopes of receiving a reward. They used the spiritual language the LORD has avenged to describe their despicable actions. Yet their lofty words did not fool David. The oath as the LORD lives implies that David was under God’s protection. There was no need to kill Ishbosheth to defend David’s life. Someone was the Amalekite who claimed to have killed Saul (1:2–16).

4:11 Ishbosheth was viewed as a righteous person since he was innocent of any wicked deed or crime. He had simply assumed royal power after the death of his father Saul.

4:12 The execution of the assassins was justified on the basis of Gen. 9:5. Their corpses were hanged, or impaled, by the pool in Hebron, which was frequented daily by the people of the city. Their bodies warned the people of the consequences of such foolish and evil actions. David demonstrated his respect for the slain son of Saul by having the head of Ishbosheth buried in Abner’s grave at Hebron.

5:1 All the tribes refers to tribal leaders, such as elders and heads of clans (v. 3). We are your bone and your flesh means “we are your relatives” (Gen. 29:14; Judg. 9:2). The representatives of the tribes of Israel acknowledged their solidarity as a people.

5:2 The words led Israel out speak of David’s service as a military leader during Saul’s reign. The word shepherd is a vivid metaphor of the relationship between a king and his people. The Scriptures apply this metaphor both to God and to human rulers (Ps. 23:1; Ezek. 34:1–10).

5:3 before the LORD: Making a covenant was not merely a civil arrangement but a sacred occasion. they anointed: This was David’s third anointing (2:4; 1 Sam. 16:13). His first anointing was in anticipation of his rule; his second was acknowledgment of his rule over Judah; his third was acknowledgment of his rule over the entire nation.

5:6–9 David’s first move as king was to conquer Jebus, which came to be known as Jerusalem. The name Jerusalem may mean “Foundation of Peace.” The city was strategically located in the hill country near the border of Judah and Benjamin, making it a foreign wedge between the northern and southern tribes. Although the city was attacked by men from both Benjamin and Judah, the Jebusites were not driven out of Jerusalem at the time of the conquest (Josh. 15:63; Judg. 1:21). An earlier name of Jerusalem was Salem, known

Jerusalem

(Heb. yerushalaim) (5:5; Is. 40:2; Zech. 2:12) Strong’s #3389

The name Jerusalem is related to the word for “peace” (see the psalmist’s prayer for “the peace of Jerusalem,” Ps. 122:6). During the reign of King David, Jerusalem was made the political and religious capital of Israel and became central to the unfolding of God’s redemptive plan. Jerusalem is described variously in the OT as: the city of God (Ps. 87:1–3); the place where God has put His name (2 Kin. 21:4); a place of salvation (Is. 46:13); the throne of God (Jer. 3:17); and a holy city (Is. 52:1). The prophets foresaw an approaching time when Jerusalem would be judged because of its iniquity (Mic. 4:10–12), but in pronouncing judgment they could also see its glorious restoration (Is. 40:2; 44:25–28; Dan. 9:2; Zeph. 3:16–20). This vision of a restored Jerusalem included the hope of a New Jerusalem in which God would gather all His people (Is. 65:17–19; Rev. 21:1, 2).

itants of the land, who spoke to David, saying, “You shall not come in here; but the blind and the lame will repel you,” thinking, “David cannot come in here.”⁷ Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion^m (that is, the City of David).

⁸ Now David said on that day, “Whoever climbs up by way of the water shaft and defeats the Jebusites (the lame and the blind, who are hated by David’s soul), he shall be chief and captain.” Therefore they say, “The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.”

because of its righteous king Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18–20). Mt. Moriah—where Abraham had prepared to offer Isaac—was also located at Jerusalem (Gen. 22:2).

5:6 The Jebusites were one of the Canaanite tribes living in the Promised Land (Gen. 10:16–18). Jerusalem was on a hill just south of Mt. Moriah, with steep cliffs on all sides except the north, making it a natural fortress. The defenders felt able to boast that the blind and the lame would be enough to defeat David.

5:7 Jerusalem is referred to as the stronghold of Zion. The word Zion originally applied to the Jebusite stronghold, which became the City of David after its capture. As the city expanded to the north, encompassing Mt. Moriah, the temple mount came to be called Zion (Ps. 78:68, 69). Eventually the term was used as a synonym for Jerusalem (Is. 40:9).

5:8 The water shaft extended about 230 feet up from the Gihon spring to the top of the hill where the Jebusite fortress was situated (2 Chr. 32:30). The tunnel gave the city a secure water supply in the event of a siege. The phrase the lame and the blind became something of a taunt, which David turned first into a challenge, and then into a victory song.

5:9 The term City of David is used in Luke 2:11 to refer to Bethlehem, the city of David’s birth. Here the term refers to Zion, the city from which he ruled Israel.

5:10 God of hosts may also be translated “God of Armies” (6:2). The hosts are the armies of angels that are at the Lord’s command (v. 24).

5:11, 12 Tyre, located on the Mediterranean coast north of Israel, was a Phoenician city noted for its commerce, craftsmen, and wealth. Hiram’s kindness toward David was probably prompted by Substantial historical evidence, both biblical and extra-biblical, places the temple of Solomon on the holy spot where King David built an altar to the Lord. David had purchased the land from Araunah the Jebusite, who was using the exposed bedrock as a threshing floor (2 Sam. 24:18–25). Tradition claims a much older sanctity for the site, associating it with the altar of Abraham on Mount Moriah (Gen. 22:1–19; 2 Chr. 3:1). The writer of Genesis equates Moriah with “the Mount of the LORD” (Gen. 22:14).

c. 1000 B.C.

Less than 11 acres in size, Jebus, a Canaanite city, could well defend itself against attack, with walls atop steep canyons and shafts reaching an underground water source. David captured the stronghold c. 1000 B.C. and made it his capital.

Cedar

The most valuable and majestic trees described in the Bible are the “cedars of Lebanon.” These trees grow to a height of 70–80 feet, with long, spreading branches. The trunks of some cedars are 30–40 feet in circumference. These huge trees continue to grow for hundreds of years. They were symbols of strength and durability and noted for their toughness. The cedar produces five-inch cones that take three years to mature and from which fragrant sap exudes. The wood is red and free of knots, and because of its bitterness, repels insects and resists rot. Cedar wood was used for building David’s and Solomon’s houses, making idols, and constructing ships. Cedars grow on Mt. Lebanon today; but less than a dozen of these trees stand in the actual groves mentioned by the Bible, near the Lebanon coast of the Mediterranean.

And the LORD said to David, “Go up, for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into your hand.”

²⁰ So David went to ^c Baal Perazim, and David defeated them there; and he said, “The LORD has broken through my enemies before me, like a breakthrough of water.” Therefore he called the name of that place ^d Baal Perazim. ²¹ And they left their ⁵ images there, and David and his men ^d carried them away.

5:13 These marriages reflect David’s involvement in international treaties and alliances which were sealed with the marriage of a king’s daughter to the other participant in the treaty. Concubines, wives who did not have the legal rights of a true wife, were part of a royal harem. The status of kings in ancient times was often measured in part by the size of their harems. Yet for Israel’s kings, there had been a warning from God against acquiring many wives (Deut. 17:17).

5:14 Shammua is known as Shimea in 1 Chr. 3:5. Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon were David’s sons by Bathsheba (1 Chr. 3:5), the wife of Uriah. David planned Uriah’s death so that he could marry Bathsheba (ch. 11). The child born of David and Bathsheba’s affair died in infancy (12:15–23).

5:15, 16 The lists in 1 Chr. 3:5–9 and 14:4, 5 record two additional sons, Nogah and another Eliphelet (Elpelet in 1 Chr. 14:4).

5:17 The Hebrew word translated stronghold means “mountain fortress,” suggesting a fortress other than Jerusalem. Therefore, it is possible that these attacks took place between the time when David was anointed over all Israel (v. 4) and when he captured Jerusalem (vv. 6–10).

5:18 The Valley of Rephaim, or “Valley of the Giants” (21:15–22), extends southwest from Jerusalem toward the coastal plain. The significance of the valley as a strategic approach to Jerusalem is evidenced by the fact that the Philistines made a second attempt to capture the city from this route (v. 22).

5:19 As was his custom, David inquired of the LORD before engaging the Philistines in battle (see 2:1; 1 Sam. 23:2; 30:8). In matters of warfare, David was not presumptuous. He wished to know the will of God in choosing his battles and their timing.

5:21 The idol images which the Philistines had taken into battle to assure them of victory were captured and carried away by David’s men. This looting would have been regarded by the Philistines as a defeat of their gods by the God of Israel. According to 1 Chr. 14:12, David and his men burned the idols.

5:25 The Geba mentioned here is not the Geba of 1 Sam. 13:3, which was 6 miles north of Jerusalem. This Geba was most likely located south, in the Valley of Rephaim. Gezer was about 20 miles northwest of Jerusalem.

6:1 The thirty thousand men were not all the men of Israel capable of bearing arms, but the best of them.

6:2 Baale Judah, meaning “Masters of Judah,” was also called Baalah and Kirjath Jearim (Josh. 15:9; 1 Chr. 13:6). It was a city on the border of Judah and Benjamin, about 10 miles northwest of Jerusalem. the Name, the LORD of Hosts: The personal name of ⁶And when they came to ^fNachon's threshing floor, Uzzah put out his ^ghand to the ark of God and ⁴took hold of it, for the oxen stumbled. ⁷Then the anger of the LORD was aroused against Uzzah, and God struck him there for his ⁵error; and he died there by the ark of God. ⁸And David became angry because of the LORD's outbreak against Uzzah; and he called the name of the place ⁶Perez Uzzah to this day.

⁹^hDavid was afraid of the LORD that day; and he said, "How can the ark of the LORD come to me?" ¹⁰So David would not move the ark of the LORD with him into the ⁱCity of David; but David took it aside into the house of Obed-Edom the ^jGittite. ¹¹^kThe ark of the LORD remained in the house of Obed-Edom the Gittite three months. BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Among the Israelites, dancing generally occurred among women, either singly or in groups. It was a way of celebrating joyous occasions. Indeed, dancing became a symbol of joy, the opposite of mourning. Dancing by the Israelites was usually accompanied by the rhythmic beating of timbrels—or tambourines. On great national occasions, Israel also praised the Lord with stringed instruments, flutes, and cymbals. Men and women never danced together. Even on those occasions where both sexes participated in the sacred professional dances, they always danced separately (Ps. 68:25; Jer. 31:13). Dancing for sensual entertainment was unheard of in Israel. Salome's infamous dance, which won her John the Baptist's head on a platter, was in the tradition of Greek dancing, a sensual art form rather than an act of worship (Matt. 14:6).

¹² Now it was told King David, saying, "The LORD has blessed the house of Obed-Edom and all that belongs to him, because of the ark of God." ^m So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-Edom to the City of David with gladness. ¹³ And so it was, when ⁿ those bearing the ark of the LORD had gone six paces, that he sacrificed ^o oxen and fatted sheep. ¹⁴ Then David ^p danced ⁷ before the LORD with all his might; and David was wearing ^q a linen ephod. ¹⁵ ^r So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with shouting and with the sound of the trumpet.

God is revealed in Ex. 3:13-15, where the context reveals that the Lord is the mighty God of the patriarchs who intervenes on behalf of His people. At times the Name of God is accompanied by the designation "of Hosts" (5:10), referring to the angelic armies of the universe (see 1 Kin. 22:19; Luke 2:13) as well as the armies of Israel (1 Sam. 17:45). Cherubim are angelic beings generally regarded as guardians of God's holiness (see Gen. 3:24; Ex. 25:22; Ps. 80:1; 99:1). God revealed Himself to Moses from between the two cherubim mounted at opposite ends of the mercy seat over the ark of the covenant (Ex. 25:22; Num. 7:89).

6:3 they set the ark of God on a new cart: The law was specific that the ark was to be carried by the sons of Kohath, not by a cart or any other vehicle (see Ex. 25:14, 15; Num. 3:30, 31). David was doing what the Philistines had done (1 Sam. 6:7, 8). The ark had been taken to the house of Abinadab after its recovery from the Philistines (see 1 Sam. 7:1, 2). The sons of Abinadab should probably be understood in a broader sense as "the descendants of Abinadab."

6:5 Played literally means they "made merry" with dancing and music (v. 21). The worshipers had a variety of string, wind, and percussion instruments. Sistrums refers to Egyptian instruments consisting of rings hanging loosely on metal rods that make a rattling sound when shaken.

6:6 A threshing floor was a place for processing grain, separating kernels from the chaff (Ruth 3:2). In order to steady the ark when it seemed as though it would fall, Uzzah put out his hand.

6:7 Although Uzzah's violation was unintentional, his error cost him his life. God had warned His people that not even the Levites could touch the holy objects of the tabernacle; the death penalty had been specified for violators (Num. 4:15).

6:8 David became angry—not at himself for the carelessness that resulted in this calamity, but at God. He named the place of the tragedy Perez Uzzah, recalling what had happened.

6:9 David was afraid of the Lord: The tragedy of Uzzah rekindled a necessary "fear of God" in the heart of David. Properly understood (see Eccl. 12:13, 14), the fear of the Lord is essential to the pursuit of obedience and holiness.

6:10 Obed-Edom was a Levite of the family of Korah, and later one of the doorkeepers for the ark (see 1 Chr. 15:18, 24; 26:4-8). He was called the Gittite because he was from the Levitical city of Gath Rimmon (see Josh. 21:24).

6:13 This time the ark was carried (see Ex. 25:14, 15), rather than transported by cart. Some interpreters think that the procession was halted and sacrifices were offered every six paces. It is also possible that the sacrifices were offered only once after the ark bearers had advanced the first six paces, thus consecrating the solemn procession.

6:14 The Hebrew word translated danced literally means "whirled." The linen ephod was a short, sleeveless garment worn by priests (see 1 Sam. 2:18). David wore it to honor the Lord in view of his priestly activities that day (v. 13).

6:15 Shouting was an expression of celebration and triumph (see Is. 44:23). The trumpet refers to the ram's horn or the shofar (2:28).

¹⁶Now as the ark of the LORD came into the City of David, ^sMichal, Saul's daughter, looked through a window and saw King David leaping and whirling before the LORD; and she despised him in her heart. ¹⁷So ^tthey brought the ark of the LORD, and set it in ^uits place in the midst of the tabernacle that David had erected for it. Then David ^voffered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. ¹⁸And when David had finished offering burnt offerings and peace offerings, ^whe blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts. ^{19x}Then he distributed among all the people, among the whole multitude of Israel, both the women and the men, to everyone a loaf of bread, a piece of meat, and a cake of raisins. So all the people departed, everyone to his house.

^{20y}Then David returned to bless his household. And Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said, "How glorious was the king of Israel today, ^zuncovering himself today in the eyes of the maids of his servants, as one of the ^abase fellows ⁸shamelessly uncovers himself!"

²¹So David said to Michal, "It was before the LORD, ^bwho chose me instead of your father and all his house, to appoint me ruler over the ^cpeople of the LORD, over Israel. Therefore I will play music before the LORD. ²²And I will be even

God's Covenant with David

7 Now it came to pass ^awhen the king was dwelling in his house, and the LORD had given him rest from all his enemies all around, ²that the king said to Nathan the prophet, "See now, I dwell in ^ba house of cedar, ^cbut the ark of God dwells inside tent ^dcurtains."

³Then Nathan said to the king, "Go, do all that is in your ^eheart, for the LORD is with you."

⁴But it happened that night that the word of the LORD came to Nathan, saying, ⁵"Go and tell My servant David, 'Thus says the LORD: ^f"Would you build a house for Me to dwell in? ⁶For I have not dwelt in a house ^gsince the time that I brought the children of Israel up from Egypt, even to this day, but have moved about in ^ha tent and in a tabernacle. ⁷Wherever I have ⁱmoved about with all the children of Israel, have I ever spoken a word to anyone from the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded ^jto shepherd My people Israel, saying, 'Why have you not built Me a house of cedar?''" ⁸Now therefore, thus

6:17 David erected a tent, no doubt patterned after the tabernacle of Moses, to serve as a temporary shelter for the ark until a more permanent building could be constructed. burnt offerings: See Lev. 1. peace offerings: See Lev. 3.

6:18 he blessed the people: David acted as a priest for the congregation; in this respect, he is a type of the Savior Jesus who is the great King and Priest.

6:19 A distinctive feature of the peace offering (v. 17) was that a portion would be eaten by the worshiper as a fellowship meal before the Lord. David shared this meal with those who participated in the celebration. A cake of raisins was a sweet treat (Song 2:5) sometimes used for religious offerings in Canaanite rites (Hos. 3:1) as well as in the worship of God.

6:20 to bless his household: At the moment of his greatest spiritual experience, David took pleasure in the prospect of bringing God's blessing to his home, only to be met by the curses of his wife. The scornful remark about David's uncovering himself no doubt refers to the priestly attire worn by the king instead of his royal robes (v. 14). Dancing about in this short garment, David had exposed more of himself than Michal thought appropriate. The term base fellows refers to empty persons, those of no value or worth.

6:21 David rebuked Michal by reminding her that God had chosen him in place of her father Saul, an evidence of divine blessing on his religious commitment and enthusiasm.

6:22 David declared that he would gladly be even more undignified and humble in his own sight to worship the Lord and to be held in honor by those who shared his spiritual values.

6:23 Michal's childlessness was the result of either estrangement from David, or perhaps divine punishment because of her refusal to join in the celebration of God's name. Thus there was no successor to the throne from the house of Saul. His sons were all dead, and his daughter remained childless. It is evident from this verse that Michal had not had children with Palti during her years as his wife.

7:1 The house refers to the palace that the Phoenicians had built for David (5:11). Rest from all his enemies probably refers to the peace that prevailed after David's defeat of the Philistines (5:17-25).

7:2 Nathan was a personal advisor to David. As a prophet (Ex. 7:1, 2), he spoke for God, advising David on religious matters. Nathan later confronted David regarding his sins of adultery and murder (12:1-15). He helped Bathsheba secure the throne for Solomon (see 1 Kin. 1:10-45), aided in the establishment of music in the temple worship (see 2 Chr. 29:25), and chronicled the reigns of David and Solomon (see 1 Chr. 29:29; 2 Chr. 9:29). Although there was nothing immoral about dwelling in a house of cedar, David realized he had to give his attention to spiritual priorities.

7:3 Nathan encouraged the king to follow the leading of his heart and build a temple for the ark. However, he spoke on the basis of his own understanding and not as a word from the Lord. His words the LORD is with you indicate in this context a general blessing and not a specific utterance of God.

7:5 Although Nathan had at first encouraged David to build a temple for the ark (v. 3), the Lord revealed that this was not His intention at all. The question Would you build a house for Me to dwell in implied a negative answer.

7:6 A tent was a traveler's dwelling. The tabernacle was the portable structure or the "dwelling place" of God in the midst of His people (see Ex. 25:9, 22).

7:7 Throughout the history of God's dealings with the Israelites, never once did He reprove them for failing to build Him a permanent sanctuary. The word shepherd is a metaphor of leadership and was used throughout the ancient Middle East to refer to national leaders (see Ezek. 34:2). The Great Shepherd is, of course, God (see Ps. 23).

7:8 The formal and profound nature of the text is emphasized by the use of the name LORD of hosts. God reminded David of His gracious shall you say to My servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: ^k“I took you from the sheepfold, from following the sheep, to be ruler over My people, over Israel. ⁹And ^lI have been with you wherever you have gone, ^mand have ¹cut off all your enemies from before you, and have made you a great name, like the name of the great men who are on the earth. ¹⁰Moreover I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will ⁿplant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own and move no more; ^onor shall the sons of wickedness oppress them anymore, as previously, ¹¹since the time that I commanded judges to be over My people Israel, and have caused you to rest from all your enemies. Also the LORD ²tells you ^qthat He will make you a ³house.

¹²“When your days are fulfilled and you ^srest with your fathers, ^tI will set up your seed after you, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. ¹³^uHe shall build a house for My name, and I will ^vestablish the throne of his kingdom forever. ¹⁴^wI will be his Father, and he shall be ^xMy son. If he commits iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men and with the ⁴blows of the sons of men. ¹⁵But My mercy shall not depart from him, ^yas I took it from Saul, whom I removed from before you. ¹⁶And ^zyour house and your kingdom shall be established forever before ⁵you. Your throne shall be established forever.””

¹⁷According to all these words and according to all this vision, so Nathan spoke to David.

David's Thanksgiving to God

¹⁸Then King David went in and sat before the LORD; and he said: ^a“Who am I, O Lord God? And what is my house, that You have brought me this far? ¹⁹And yet this was a small thing in Your sight, O Lord God; and You have also spoken of Your servant's house for a great while to come. ^b*Is* this the manner of man, O Lord God? ²⁰Now what more can David say to You? For You, Lord God, ^cknow Your servant. ²¹For Your word's sake, and according to Your own heart, You have done all these great things, to make Your servant know them. ²²Therefore ^dYou are great, ⁶O Lord God. For ^e*there is none* like You, nor is there any God besides You, according to all that we have heard with our ^fears. ²³And who is like Your people, like Israel, ^gthe one nation on the earth whom God went to redeem for Himself as a people, to make for Himself a name—and to do for Yourself great and awesome deeds for Your land—before ^hYour people whom You redeemed for Yourself from Egypt, the nations, and their gods? ²⁴For ⁱYou have made Your people Israel Your very own people forever; ^jand You, LORD, have become their God.

²⁵“Now, O LORD God, the word which You have spoken concerning Your servant and concerning his house, establish it forever and do as You have said. ²⁶So let Your name be magnified forever, saying, ‘The LORD of hosts is the God over Israel.’ And let the house of Your servant David be established before You. ²⁷For You, O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, have dealings in taking him from the humble role of a shepherd to serve as king over His people.

7:9 A great name or reputation was highly valued by the Hebrews. As God promised to make the name Abram great (see Gen. 12:2), so He promised David that his name would be renowned.

7:10 God promised to provide Israel a secure dwelling place in the land of Israel. No longer would the Israelites be exposed to repeated attacks from their enemies, as had happened during the time of the judges.

7:11 house: David wanted to build God a house—that is, a temple (vv. 2-7). Instead, God intended to build David a house—that is, a dynasty of long duration.

7:12 The first provision of the Davidic covenant was that David would have a son for whom God would establish a kingdom.

7:13 House here refers to the temple (see 1 Kin. 6). God also promised to establish the throne of Solomon's kingdom forever (see 1 Chr. 22:6-10). This is not to say that Solomon would rule forever. Rather, the right to rule, represented by the image of the throne, would always belong to his descendants. Further, there would always be a male heir who would be able to rule.

7:14 iniquity: The sins of David's sons would require divine chastening (1 Kin. 11:1-13). The rod of men and blows of the sons of men would serve as instruments of chastening (1 Kin. 11:14, 23).

7:15 Although Solomon's sins would justify chastening, God promised that His mercy would not be removed, as was necessary in the case of Saul (1 Sam. 13:13, 14; 15:22, 23).

7:18 The words sat before the LORD indicate that David was in the tent which served to house the ark. Who am I, O Lord God: David's rhetorical question reflected his sense of unworthiness to have been extended such a gracious promise (vv. 12-16).

7:19 David acknowledged that what God had done for him so far was far greater than anything he deserved. As if this were only a small thing, God now extended the promise concerning David's dynasty far into the future. All of human history leads inevitably to the rule of Christ on earth. This is its destiny, its prophetic fulfillment, the final meaning of all history.

7:22 All that we have heard with our ears refers to the shared tradition regarding God's work in history (Deut. 4:32-40).

7:24 Your people Israel: At the heart of God's promise to David was the continuation of His promise to the nation of Israel (see Gen. 12:1-3).

7:25 Having praised God for His gracious works, David prayed for the fulfillment of the promise. As David undoubtedly knew, God's will would be accomplished whether he prayed for it or not. But like David, when we pray in God's will for God's will, we become a part of His will. We also become an expectant people, ready to respond to God with great praise when He has accomplished His will (see Ps. 142).

7:26 The name of God refers here to His reputation. David wanted God's reputation to be magnified through the fulfillment of His promise.

Chariots

The chariot rivaled the composite bow in its effectiveness as a weapon, but only wealthier nations could establish and maintain a chariot force. Chariots were introduced in Mesopotamia about 2800 B.C. The advantage of the chariot is that it can bring great firepower quickly to the key point of the battle. Chariots came in many different forms. They could be two-wheeled or four-wheeled, drawn by two to four horses. Some chariots would carry as many as four warriors. In combat a chariot usually carried two soldiers—a driver who controlled the reins and a warrior who needed both arms free to fire his bow. In some cases, depending on the nation and the period of history, a third person might serve as a shield bearer to protect both the warrior and the driver. The warrior was usually equipped with a bow, as well as a medium-range weapon, such as the javelin or spear.

revealed this to Your servant, saying, ‘I will build you a house.’ Therefore Your servant has found it in his heart to pray this prayer to You.

²⁸“And now, O Lord God, You are God, and ^bYour words are true, and You have promised this goodness to Your servant. ²⁹Now therefore, let it please You to bless the house of Your servant, that it may continue before You forever; for You, O Lord God, have spoken it, and with Your blessing let the house of Your servant be blessed ¹forever.”

David's Further Conquests

8 After this it came to pass that David ¹attacked the Philistines and subdued them. And David took ²Metheg Ammah from the hand of the Philistines.

²Then ^ahe defeated Moab. Forcing them down to the ground, he measured them off with a line. With two lines he measured off those to be put to death, and with one full line those to be kept alive. So the Moabites became David's ^bservants, and ^cbrought tribute.

³David also defeated Hadadezer the son of Rehob, king of ^dZobah, as he went to recover ^ehis territory at the River Euphrates. ⁴David took from him one thousand chariots, ³seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. Also David ^fhamstrung all the chariot horses, except that he spared enough of them for one hundred chariots.

⁵When the Syrians of Damascus came to help Hadadezer king of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand of the Syrians. ⁶Then David put garrisons in Syria of Damascus; and the Syrians became David's servants, and brought tribute. So ^hthe LORD preserved David wherever he went. ⁷And David took ⁱthe shields of gold that had belonged to the servants

7:28 You are God, and Your words are true: David acknowledged that God could be trusted to fulfill His promise.

8:1 The Philistines seem to have migrated from the Aegean Islands and Asia Minor to the eastern Mediterranean region around 1200 B.C. They settled on the coastal plain of Israel and developed a relatively advanced culture and a powerful army. The Philistines were a major threat to Israel during the reigns of Saul and David (see 5:17; 1 Sam. 13:5; 17:1; 23:1; 28:1).

8:2 The Moabites were descendants of the incestuous relationship between Lot and his older daughter (see Gen. 19:36, 37). These people occupied the land opposite Judah, east of the Jordan River and the Dead Sea. This verse may indicate that David spared the young Moabites (whose height was a line) and executed the adults (whose height was two lines). In any event, the survivors became vassals, or servants of David. Centuries later, the Moabites won their freedom from being vassals to Israel (see 2 Kin. 1:1).

8:3 David's campaign to the north resulted in the defeat of Hadadezer, who ruled the Aramean kingdom of Zobah, which extended north of Damascus.

8:4 hamstrung: David disabled the horses by cutting the back sinews of the hind legs to prevent them from being used for military activity (see Josh. 11:6, 9).

8:5 Damascus, located at an oasis near the foot of the Anti-Lebanon mountains, was one of the most strategically located cities of the ancient world. Damascus lay at the crossroads of the two main international highways—the Via Maris, leading south and west to Egypt, and the King's Highway, leading from the east side of the Jordan south to Arabia.

8:6 The garrisons of Israelite soldiers were intended to keep the Syrians of Damascus under David's control.

of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.⁸ Also from ⁴Betah and from ^jBerthai,⁵ cities of Hadadezer, King David took a large amount of bronze.

⁹When ⁶Toi king of ^kHamath heard that David had defeated all the army of Hadadezer, ¹⁰then Toi sent ⁷Joram his son to King David, to ⁸greet him and bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him (for Hadadezer had been at war with Toi); and Joram brought with him articles of silver, articles of gold, and articles of bronze.¹¹ King David also ¹dedicated these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold that he had dedicated from all the nations which he had subdued—¹²from ⁹Syria, from Moab, from the people of Ammon, from the ^mPhilistines, from Amalek, and from the spoil of Hadadezer the son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

¹³And David made himself a ⁿname when he returned from killing ^oeighteen thousand ¹Syrians in ^pthe Valley of Salt.¹⁴ He also put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom he put garrisons; and ^qall the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD preserved David wherever he went.

David's Administration

¹⁵So David reigned over all Israel; and David administered judgment and justice to all his people.¹⁶ ^rJoab the son of Zeruiah was over the army; ^sJehoshaphat the son of Ahilub was recorder; ¹⁷^tZadok the son of Ahitub and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar were the priests; ²Seraiah was the ³scribe; ¹⁸^uBenaiah the son of Jehoiada was over both the ^vCherethites and the

David's Kindness to Mephibosheth

⁹Now David said, "Is there still anyone who is left of the house of Saul, that I may ^ashow him ¹kindness for Jonathan's sake?"

²And there was a servant of the house of Saul whose name was ^bZiba. So when they had called him to David, the king said to him, "Are you Ziba?"

He said, "At your service!"

³Then the king said, "Is there not still someone of the house of Saul, to whom I may show ^cthe kindness of God?"

And Ziba said to the king, "There is still a son of Jonathan who is ^dlame in his feet."

⁴So the king said to him, "Where is he?"

And Ziba said to the king, "Indeed he is in the house of ^eMachir the son of Ammiel, in Lo Debar."

⁵Then King David sent and brought him out of the house of Machir the son of Ammiel, from Lo Debar.

⁶Now when ^fMephibosheth² the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, had come to David, he fell on his face and prostrated himself. Then David said, "Mephibosheth?"

And he answered, "Here is your servant!"

⁷So David said to him, "Do not fear, for I will surely show you kindness for Jonathan your father's sake, and will restore to you all the land of Saul your grandfather; and you shall eat bread at my table continually."

8:8 Betah, an Aramean city, was also known as Tibhath (see 1 Chr. 18:8). Berthai, also known as Berothah (see Ezek. 47:16), was about 30 miles northwest of Damascus.

8:9 Hamath was about 100 miles northeast of Damascus.

8:10 The rich gifts of Toi, king of Hamath, reflect his desire to establish friendly relations with his powerful new neighbor. The gifts may also indicate that Toi voluntarily submitted to David and became his vassal.

8:11 The silver and gold that David received from the nations he conquered were turned over to the priests to be used in building the temple (see 1 Kin. 7:51).

8:13 Name refers to the reputation David gained as a result of his military exploits.

8:15 David reigned over all Israel: As a result of David's conquests, the sovereignty of Israel extended from the Gulf of Aqaba and the River of Egypt to the Euphrates River—the very region God had promised Abraham in Gen. 15:18. The words translated judgment and justice together mean "genuine justice." David was careful to see that the decisions he made and the laws he enforced were "fair and right" for all.

8:16 Joab, the commander-in-chief of David's army, had led the successful attack on the city of Jebus, which became David's capital, Jerusalem (see 1 Chr. 11:6, 7). Joab was David's nephew; Zeruiah, his mother, was David's sister (see 1 Chr. 2:13-16). Jehoshaphat the recorder kept track of state business, brought appropriate concerns to the king's attention, and advised him on official matters. His career extended into the reign of Solomon (see 1 Kin. 4:3).

8:17 Zadok and Ahimelech are mentioned as the principal priests during David's reign (see 15:24; 1 Sam. 22:20-23; 1 Kin. 1:7, 8). The scribe served as secretary of state, drafting official documents, handling correspondence, and maintaining court records.

8:18 Chief ministers were confidential advisors.

9:1 for Jonathan's sake: David and Jonathan had entered into a covenant of friendship and protection that was to extend to their offspring (see 1 Sam. 18:3, 4; 20:14, 15, 42).

9:2 Ziba was a servant of King Saul (16:1-4; 19:29).

9:3 The kindness of God recalls the words of the oath that Jonathan had David swear (see 1 Sam. 20:14).

9:4 Machir the son of Ammiel was a man, apparently of wealth and position, who extended hospitality to David during Absalom's revolt (17:27-29). Lo Debar was about ten miles south of the Sea of Galilee just east of the Jordan.

9:5 Once he was made aware of Jonathan's son, David did not hesitate to fulfill his covenant commitment to his friend. He immediately sent for Mephibosheth to be brought to Jerusalem.

9:7 Do not fear: Mephibosheth had good reason to be afraid. It was usual in the ancient Middle East for founders of new dynasties to kill the children of former rulers to keep them from trying to regain the throne in the name of their families. The land of Saul refers to the house and property at Gibeah which was claimed by David when

⁸Then he bowed himself, and said, “What is your servant, that you should look upon such ^aa dead dog as I?”

⁹And the king called to Ziba, Saul’s servant, and said to him, ^h“I have given to your master’s son all that belonged to Saul and to all his house. ¹⁰You therefore, and your sons and your servants, shall work the land for him, and you shall bring in the harvest, that your master’s son may have food to eat. But Mephibosheth your master’s son ⁱshall eat bread at my table always.” Now Ziba had ^jfifteen sons and twenty servants.

¹¹Then Ziba said to the king, “According to all that my lord the king has commanded his servant, so will your servant do.”

“As for Mephibosheth,” said the king, “he shall eat at ³my table like one of the king’s sons.” ¹²Mephibosheth had a young son ^kwhose name was Micha. And all who dwell in the house of Ziba were servants of Mephibosheth. ¹³So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem, ^lfor he ate continually at the king’s table. And he ^mwas lame in both his feet.

The Ammonites and Syrians Defeated

10 It happened after this that the ^aking of the people of Ammon died, and Hanun his son reigned in his place. ²Then David said, “I will show ^bkindness to Hanun the son of ^cNahash, hash, as his father showed kindness to me.”

So David sent by the hand of his servants to comfort him concerning his father. And David’s servants came into the land of the people of Ammon. ³And the princes of the people of Ammon said to Hanun their lord, “Do you think that David really honors your father because he has sent comforters to you? Has David not rather sent his servants to you to search the city, to spy it out, and to overthrow it?”

⁴Therefore Hanun took David’s servants, shaved off half of their beards, cut off their garments in the middle, ^dat their buttocks, and sent them away. ⁵When they told David, he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ⁱashamed. And the king said, “Wait at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return.”

⁶When the people of Ammon saw that they ^ehad made themselves repulsive to David, the people of Ammon sent and hired ^fthe Syrians of ^gBeth Rehob and the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thousand foot soldiers; and from the king of ^hMaacah one thousand men, and from ⁱIsh-Tob twelve thousand men. ⁷Now when David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army ^jof the mighty men. ⁸Then the people of Ammon came out and put themselves in

he took the throne (12:8). To eat bread at the king’s table was not a temporary honor; it meant that he would have a pension from the king. continually: These privileges and provisions would continue throughout Mephibosheth’s life.

9:8 such a dead dog as I: Dogs in Israel were regarded as unclean scavengers, and were generally viewed with contempt (see 2 Kin. 9:34–37; Prov. 26:11). Mephibosheth used the expression as a figure of speech. The remark reflects his low self-image and his astonishment at the grace being shown him.

9:10 your sons and your servants, shall work the land for him: The size of Saul’s estate is reflected in the fact that Ziba had 15 sons and 20 servants. that your master’s son may have food to eat: Although Mephibosheth would always have a place at David’s table as a member of the royal court, the income from Saul’s estate would provide for his house and family in Jerusalem.

9:11 In his dealings with Mephibosheth, David exemplified God’s grace. Mephibosheth was wonderfully blessed, not because of anything he did, but because of David’s faithfulness to a covenant promise. Likewise, believers are blessed, not because of any good work (see Eph. 2:8, 9), but because of God’s faithfulness to the new covenant (see Jer. 31:31–34) and the promises of the gospel. As Mephibosheth was regarded as an adopted son—like one of the king’s sons—with attendant privileges and blessings, so believers have been adopted as sons and daughters into the family of God (see John 1:12; Rom. 8:15; Eph. 1:5).

9:12 The family of Saul continued through Micha for several centuries (1 Chr. 8:34–40).

9:13 Mephibosheth had become lame as a result of a fall that had occurred when his nurse was fleeing from Gibeah after the report of the deaths of Saul and Jonathan (4:4). For more on the story of Mephibosheth, see 16:1–4; 19:24–30; 21:7.

10:1 The king of Ammon was Nahash (v. 2), probably the same Nahash who was defeated by Saul at Jabesh Gilead (see 1 Sam. 11:1–11).

10:2 as his father showed kindness to me: The occasion of Nahash’s kindness is not recorded. One possibility is that Nahash, an enemy of Saul, had given aid to David during his war with Ishbosheth (2:8–4:12). to comfort him concerning his father: David wanted to console Hanun over his father’s death and to congratulate him on his new position as king.

10:3 David’s gesture of kindness was met with suspicion by the king’s advisors, the princes. They suspected that David had sent the men as spies for the purpose of planning an attack on the city of Rabbah (11:1).

10:4 David’s servants were abused and humiliated. The beard was regarded in Semitic culture as a significant aspect of a man’s appearance. Cutting off half the beard was a very serious insult. Hanun doubled the insult when he cut off their garments, leaving the soldiers indecently exposed.

10:5 To prevent their further humiliation, David ordered the messengers to remain in Jericho until their beards grew back. Jericho was just west of the Jordan and 15 miles northeast of Jerusalem.

10:6 Made themselves repulsive could be literally translated, “made themselves stinking.” To protect themselves against Israelite revenge, the Ammonites hired 33,000 mercenary soldiers from several Aramean states to the north. Beth Rehob and Zoba were Aramean city-states located north of Israel. Maacah was a small Aramean kingdom east of the Jordan whose territory was assigned to the half-tribe of Manasseh (see Josh. 12:5; 13:11). Ish-Tob was a town at Et-Taiyibeh, 45 miles northeast of modern Amman, Jordan.

10:7 Although mighty men is used elsewhere to mean a select group of David’s warriors (16:6; 20:7), the context here suggests that the whole army of Israel is intended.

10:8 The gate was an important part of a city’s defensive fortification. The gates of fortified cities usually had towers which gave the defenders an advantage over enemies seeking to break through. The Ammonites fought near the gate so they could retreat into the battle array at the entrance of the gate. And ^kthe Syrians of Zoba, Beth Rehob, Ish-Tob, and Maacah were by themselves in the field.

⁹When Joab saw that the battle line was against him before and behind, he chose some of Israel's best and put them in battle array against the Syrians. ¹⁰And the rest of the people he put under the command of ^lAbishai his brother, that he might set them in battle array against the people of Ammon. ¹¹Then he said, "If the Syrians are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the people of Ammon are too strong for you, then I will come and help you. ¹²*m* Be of good courage, and let us *n*be strong for our people and for the cities of our God. And may *o*the LORD do what is good in His sight."

¹³So Joab and the people who were with him drew near for the battle against the Syrians, and they fled before him. ¹⁴When the people of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fleeing, they also fled before Abishai, and entered the city. So Joab returned from the people of Ammon and went to *n*Jerusalem.

¹⁵When the Syrians saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they gathered together. ¹⁶Then ²Hadadezer sent and brought out the Syrians who were beyond ³the River, and they came to Helam. And ⁴Shobach the commander of Hadadezer's army went before them. ¹⁷When it was told David, he gathered all Israel, crossed over the Jordan, and came to Helam. And the Syrians set themselves in battle array against David and fought with him. ¹⁸Then the Syrians fled before Israel; and David killed seven hundred charioteers and forty thousand ^qhorsemen of the Syrians, and struck Shobach the commander of their army, who died there. ¹⁹And when all the kings who were servants to ⁵Hadadezer saw that they were defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel and *r*served them. So the Syrians were afraid to help the people of Ammon anymore.

David, Bathsheba, and Uriah

11 It happened in the spring of the year, at the ^atime when kings go out to battle, that ^bDavid sent Joab and his servants with him, and all Israel; and they destroyed the people of Ammon and besieged ^cRabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem.

²Then it happened one evening that David arose from his bed ^dand walked on the roof of the king's house. And from the roof he ^esaw a woman bathing, and the woman was very beautiful to behold. ³So David sent and inquired about the woman. And someone said, "Is this not ¹Bathsheba, the daughter of ²Eliam, the wife ^fof Uriah the ^gHittite?" ⁴Then David sent messengers, and took her; and she came to him, and ^hhe lay with her, for she was ⁱcleansed from her impurity; and she returned to her house. ⁵And the woman conceived; so she sent and told David, and said, "I am with child."

⁶Then David sent to Joab, saying, "Send me Uriah the Hittite." And Joab walled city if the battle turned against them. The mercenary soldiers were in more exposed positions in the field.

10:9 before and behind: Joab had allowed himself to become trapped between two enemy forces—the Syrians and the Ammonites. If he attacked either enemy separately, his rear troops would be exposed to the other. Joab decided to risk attacking both forces at the same time.

10:10 Abishai, Joab's brother, was placed in command of the rest of the militia in order to attack the people of Ammon. Abishai was one of David's mighty men (23:18). He was a brave warrior (see 1 Sam. 26:6–9) and a successful commander (see 1 Chr. 18:12, 13), but was impetuous and perhaps even bloodthirsty (16:9; 19:21). He had played a part in the murder of Abner (3:30).

10:12 Joab's exhortation, be of good courage, and let us be strong, is reminiscent of God's charge to Joshua at the beginning of the conquest (see Josh. 1:6, 7). may the LORD do what is good in His sight: Having done his best to prepare for the battle, Joab took confidence in the sovereignty of God.

10:14 As the battle turned against the Syrians, the people of Ammon fled for shelter behind their city walls. The city refers to Rabbah (11:1), the capital of the Ammonites.

10:16 Hadadezer ruled the Aramean kingdom of Zobah, which extended north of Damascus (8:3). The River refers to the Euphrates, designated by God as the northeast boundary of the Promised Land (see Gen. 15:18).

10:18 seven hundred charioteers: According to 1 Chr. 19:18, "seven thousand" charioteers were killed. One of these texts must be the result of a copyist's error. Probably seven hundred is correct.

10:19 All the kings who had been vassal rulers under Hadadezer transferred their allegiance to David. The word served indicates that they submitted to Israel's authority and brought them tribute (8:2).

11:1 Kings in the ancient Middle East went to battle in the spring of the year, when they could be assured of good weather and an abundance of food along the way. David sent Joab and his army to besiege the Ammonite capital of Rabbah. But instead of going off to war with his army, David remained at Jerusalem.

11:2 from the roof he saw a woman bathing: In ancient times, Israelite houses had an enclosed courtyard. Bathsheba was actually in her own house. very beautiful: Scripture rarely describes the physical appearance of people, but both Bathsheba and David (1 Sam. 16:12) are described as being of exceptionally fine appearance.

11:3 Bathsheba means "Daughter of Sheba." In 1 Chr. 3:5, her name is given as Bathshua.

11:4 she came to him: David was using his power as king to take advantage of Uriah's wife. It is difficult to know what Bathsheba's part was in all of this. cleansed from her impurity: Lev. 15:19–24 called for seven days of purification following a woman's monthly period.

11:5 told David: In Lev. 20:10 the command is clear that both parties in an adulterous relationship were to be put to death. But in practice, a woman who became pregnant might be forced to bear the shame and guilt alone. Bathsheba's situation was precarious because it would have been known that her husband was off at war.

sent Uriah to David. ⁷When Uriah had come to him, David asked how Joab was doing, and how the people were doing, and how the war prospered. ⁸And David said to Uriah, “Go down to your house and ^jwash your feet.” So Uriah departed from the king’s house, and a gift of food from the king followed him. ⁹But Uriah slept at the ^kdoor of the king’s house with all the servants of his lord, and did not go down to his house. ¹⁰So when they told David, saying, “Uriah did not go down to his house,” David said to Uriah, “Did you not come from a journey? Why did you not go down to your house?”

¹¹And Uriah said to David, ^l“The ark and Israel and Judah are dwelling in tents, and ^mmy lord Joab and the servants of my lord are encamped in the open fields. Shall I then go to my house to eat and drink, and to lie with my wife? As you live, and as your soul lives, I will not do this thing.”

¹²Then David said to Uriah, “Wait here today also, and tomorrow I will let you depart.” So Uriah remained in Jerusalem that day and the next. ¹³Now when David called him, he ate and drank before him; and he made him ⁿdrunk. And at evening he went out to lie on his bed ^owith the servants of his lord, but he did not go down to his house.

¹⁴In the morning it happened that David ^pwrote a letter to Joab and sent it by the hand of Uriah. ¹⁵And he wrote in the letter, saying, “Set Uriah in the forefront of the ³hottest battle, and retreat from him, that he may ^qbe struck down and die.” ¹⁶So it was, while Joab besieged the city, that he assigned Uriah to a place where he knew there were valiant men. ¹⁷Then the men of the city came out and fought with Joab. And some of the people of the servants of David fell; and Uriah the Hittite died also.

¹⁸Then Joab sent and told David all the things concerning the war, ¹⁹and charged the messenger, saying, “When you have finished telling the matters of the war to the king, ²⁰if it happens that the king’s wrath rises, and he says to you: ‘Why did you approach so near to the city when you fought? Did you not know that they would shoot from the wall?’ ²¹Who struck ^rAbimelech the son of ⁴Jerubbesheth? Was it not a woman who cast a piece of 11:8 Go down to your house and wash your feet: David encouraged Uriah to visit his wife. It is likely that David’s words, “wash your feet,” meant that Uriah should sleep with his wife that night. The gift of food was given by David for Uriah and Bathsheba to enjoy together, to encourage them to be intimate.

11:11 The ark accompanied the army on their military campaign (see 15:24; 1 Sam. 4:3).

11:14, 15 How sad that David would use the dangers of war to achieve his own ends, that he would send to his death an innocent man, and that he would have no thought of God, while Uriah was consumed with righteousness.

11:16 Valiant means outstanding in battle. David sent Uriah to where he thought the fighting would be fiercest.

11:19 charged the messenger: Joab anticipated David’s anger over the loss of life and the questions he would ask about why this was allowed to happen.

11:21 Abimelech the son of Jerubbesheth refers to the son of Gideon. Jerubbesheth is also called Jerubbaal or Gideon (see Judg.

An Innocent Victim

Uriah the Hittite was one of David’s mighty men (23:39). The name Uriah means “Flame of the Lord” or “The Lord Is Light.” The fact that he is called a Hittite suggests that he may have been a foreign mercenary who had become a worshiper of Israel’s God. Immediately, a contrast is set before the reader. On the one hand there was David, the Lord’s anointed, the regent of God on earth. On the other hand there was Uriah, a convert—a man who was not born in the faith of Israel, but who willingly chose it for his own.

David used his authority as king to take advantage of Uriah’s wife Bathsheba while Uriah was fighting a war for Israel. As a result of David’s sin, Bathsheba became pregnant. David attempted to cover things up by calling Uriah home from battle. If Uriah had relations with his wife while on leave, he might believe the child was his.

However, Uriah, the ever-dedicated soldier, refused to enjoy the comforts of home while his comrades were on the battlefield. In this, he showed himself to be more righteous than David. Uriah’s words in 11:11 must have stung David’s conscience. He had neglected his duty. Moreover, he had stolen the wife of one of his best soldiers while his warriors risked their lives for him. Yet David persisted in covering up his sin; he attempted to break Uriah’s resolve by giving him too much to drink. But even the effects of alcohol did not soften Uriah’s determination. Once again, he refused to enjoy the comforts offered him.

Failing to cover up sin, David plotted the loyal soldier’s death. Perhaps David could not face the shame of seeing Uriah after the warrior had learned that David had slept with his wife. David’s orders—which were carried back to the battle lines by Uriah himself—were for Joab, the commander of the army, to put Uriah in the heat of battle, and then to withdraw the other soldiers so that Uriah would be left alone and killed. So Uriah died in battle.

After Uriah’s death, David took Bathsheba as his wife as soon as possible, to make it appear that the child was legitimate. However, “the thing that David had done displeased the LORD” (11:27). Although David had managed to conceal his sin from the people, God knew about it all. David’s sin would not go unpunished (ch. 12). Even the king of Israel had to submit to God’s discipline.

a millstone on him from the wall, so that he died in Thebez? Why did you go near the wall?"—then you shall say, 'Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.'

²²So the messenger went, and came and told David all that Joab had sent by him. ²³And the messenger said to David, "Surely the men prevailed against us and came out to us in the field; then we drove them back as far as the entrance of the gate. ²⁴The archers shot from the wall at your servants; and some of the king's servants are dead, and your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also."

²⁵Then David said to the messenger, "Thus you shall say to Joab: 'Do not let this thing ⁵displease you, for the sword devours one as well as another. Strengthen your attack against the city, and overthrow it.' So encourage him."

²⁶When the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she mourned for her husband. ²⁷And when her mourning was over, David sent and brought her to his house, and she ³became his wife and bore him a son. But the thing that David had done ⁷displeased ⁶the LORD.

Nathan's Parable and David's Confession

12 Then the LORD sent Nathan to David. And ^ahe came to him, and ^bsaid to him: "There were two men in one city, one rich and the other poor. ²The rich man had exceedingly many flocks and herds. ³But the poor man had nothing, except one little ewe lamb which he had bought and nourished; and it grew up together with him and with his children. It ate of his own food and drank from his own cup and lay in his bosom; and it was like a daughter to him. ⁴And a traveler came to the rich man, who refused to take from his own flock and from his own herd to prepare one for the wayfaring man who had come to him; but he took the poor man's lamb and prepared it for the man who had come to him."

⁵So David's anger was greatly aroused against the man, and he said to Nathan, "As the LORD lives, the man who has done this ¹shall surely die! ⁶And he shall restore ^cfourfold for the lamb, because he did this thing and because he had no pity."

⁷Then Nathan said to David, "You are the man! Thus says the LORD God of Israel: 'I ^danointed you king over Israel, and I delivered you from the hand of Saul. ⁸I gave you your master's house and your master's wives into your keeping, and gave you the house of Israel and Judah. And if that had been too little, I also would have given you much more! ⁹^eWhy have you ^fdespised the commandment of the LORD, to do evil in His sight? ⁹You have killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword; you have taken his wife to be your wife, and have killed him with the sword of the people of Ammon. ¹⁰Now therefore, ^hthe sword shall never depart

6:32). Abimelech's death during the siege of Thebez is recorded in Judg. 9:50–55. Was it not a woman: For a soldier to die at the hand of a woman was regarded as practically a fate worse than death (see Judg. 9:54).

11:23, 24 The report revealed that Joab did not follow David's orders exactly. David had told Joab to have Uriah killed by withdrawing soldiers from around him, leaving him to face the enemy alone. Perhaps Joab thought that this would be an obvious betrayal and would be difficult to explain to the other officers in the army. Instead, he devised a plan to have the soldiers fight near the wall. This maneuver endangered more soldiers and resulted in greater loss of life.

11:27 when her mourning was over: Ordinarily, Israelites mourned a death for seven days (see 1 Sam. 31:13).

12:1 There were two men: As king, David was the highest judge and the court of final appeal. The words one rich and the other poor present the story as a morality tale that would gain David's attention without raising his suspicions.

12:3 The poor man's ewe lamb was more a dearly loved pet than a farm animal. The details about sharing food and drink emphasize how precious the lamb was to the poor man.

12:4 he took the poor man's lamb: These words are reminiscent of 11:4, "David sent messengers, and took her."

12:5 David's anger was greatly aroused at the loathsome injustice that had been done. the man who has done this shall surely die: No capital crime had been committed; ordinarily, the rich man would not have been executed. Ironically, it was David who deserved to die for the crimes of adultery and murder (see Lev. 20:10; 24:17).

12:6 he shall restore fourfold: David demanded that restitution be made to the poor man according to the Law of Moses (see Ex. 22:1).

12:7 You are the man: It took courage and a strong commitment to the Lord for Nathan to speak these words to the king. David in his wrath could have retaliated against the prophet and had him executed. Nathan continued to present the words of God. It was the Lord who had made David king (see 2:4; 5:3; 1 Sam. 16:13), and it was He who had delivered David from Saul (see 1 Sam. 19:8–24).

12:8 your master's wives: Saul had had one wife, Ahinoam (see 1 Sam. 14:50), and one concubine, Rizpah (3:7). There is no indication that David married either of them after Saul's death. Since Ahinoam was the mother of David's wife Michal (see 1 Sam. 14:49, 50), the law prohibited her from becoming David's wife (see Lev. 18:17). The word translated wives may also be translated "women," including the female servants and courtesans that became David's when he became king. I also would have given you much more: The grace of God to David was not something that was about to be exhausted; all David had to do was ask, and God would have granted him favor upon favor.

12:9 you despised the commandment of the LORD: David had broken the tenth, the seventh, and the sixth commandments (Ex. 20:1–17; Deut. 5:6–21), the ones about coveting, adultery, and murder. The word translated despised means "to think light of." This is the same term used of Esau, who despised his birthright (Gen. 25:34). killed him with the sword of the people of Ammon: Although David's own sword was clean, there was still blood on his hands.

12:10, 11 The judgment pronounced on David and his family was threefold: (1) Bloodshed would persist all the days of David's life; from your house, because you have despised Me, and have taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your wife.’¹¹ Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will raise up adversity against you from your own house; and I will ⁱtake your wives before your eyes and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives in the sight of this sun. ¹²For you did it secretly, ^jbut I will do this thing before all Israel, before the sun.’”

¹³^kSo David said to Nathan, ^l“I have sinned against the LORD.”

And Nathan said to David, “The LORD also has ^mput away your sin; you shall not die. ¹⁴However, because by this deed you have given great occasion to the enemies of the LORD ⁿto blaspheme, the child also who is born to you shall surely die.”¹⁵ Then Nathan departed to his house.

The Death of David's Son

And the ^oLORD struck the child that Uriah's wife bore to David, and it became ill. ¹⁶David therefore pleaded with God for the child, and David fasted and went in and ^play all night on the ground. ¹⁷So the elders of his house arose and went to him, to raise him up from the ground. But he would not, nor did he eat food with them. ¹⁸Then on the seventh day it came to pass that the child died. And the servants of David were afraid to tell him that the child was dead. For they said, “Indeed, while the child was alive, we spoke to him, and he would not heed our voice. How can we tell him that the child is dead? He may do some harm!”

¹⁹ When David saw that his servants were whispering, David perceived that the child was dead. Therefore David said to his servants, “Is the child dead?”

And they said, “He is dead.”

²⁰ So David arose from the ground, washed and ^qanointed himself, and changed his clothes; and he went into the house of the LORD and ^rworshiped. Then he went to his own house; and when he requested, they set food before him, and he ate. ²¹ Then his servants said to him, “What is this that you have done? You fasted and wept for the child while he was alive, but when the child died, you arose and ate food.”

²² And he said, “While the child was alive, I fasted and wept; ^sfor I said, ‘Who can tell whether ²the LORD will be gracious to me, that the child may live?’ ²³But now he is dead; why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go ^tto him, but ^uhe shall not return to me.”

Solomon Is Born

²⁴ Then David comforted Bathsheba his wife, and went in to her and lay with her. So ^vshe bore a son, and ^whe³ called his name Solomon. Now the LORD loved him, ²⁵and He sent word by the hand of Nathan the prophet: So ⁴he called his name ⁵Jedidiah, because of the LORD.

(2) David's own family would bring adversity against him; (3) David's wives would be taken by another. These predictions of judgment were fulfilled in the violation of Tamar (13:11–14), the violent deaths of Amnon and Absalom (13:28, 29; 18:15), and Absalom's public appropriation of David's concubines (16:22).

12:12 David's sin was private, but God's discipline and correction were public.

12:13 I have sinned against the LORD: David did not attempt to rationalize his sin or to make an excuse for himself. A fuller expression of David's confession is found in Ps. 51. The LORD also has put away your sin: God accepted David's confession and extended divine forgiveness. you shall not die: This is an evidence of divine grace. David was deserving of the death penalty for adultery and murder (see Lev. 20:10; Num. 35:31–33). God's grace is able to circumvent His own plan for punishment.

12:14 Although David's sin was forgiven, the child born of his adulterous relationship with Bathsheba would die. David's actions had given an opportunity for the enemies of the LORD to blaspheme. The LORD could not ignore David's sins and give unbelievers an opportunity to say, “The God of Israel must not be very holy. Look how He tolerates sin in the life of the king!” While God forgives sin, He does not necessarily remove its consequences (Gal. 6:7).

12:15 the child: The baby seems not to have lived long enough to be named. Normally a child would be named at the time of circumcision, the eighth day (Luke 1:59).

12:16 pleaded: In this verse, we sense the heart of David in anguish before the LORD. fasted: Fasting is an expression of the intensity of a petitioner's concern.

12:17 The elders of his house were the senior officials and advisors of David's royal court.

12:18 the servants of David were afraid: Those who had observed the intensity of David's grief before the death of his child expected that his rage would be uncontrollable when he learned that the baby had died.

12:20 So David arose from the ground: Usually, we think of the process of grieving as following the death of a loved one. In David's case, his grieving began when the child became ill. Once the child was dead, there was nothing he could do but worship the LORD. he went into the house of the LORD: David left his palace and ascended Mt. Moriah to worship at the tabernacle.

12:22 Who can tell: These words give us a remarkable insight into the meaning of prayer. As long as there is any possibility of God intervening in a new way, prayer should continue unabated. If one's hope is in God, then there is never the sense that it is too late until it is too late. God may intervene at the very last moment. Should He intervene and find us not still at prayer?

12:23 I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me: The child could not return to life, but David would someday join his son in death.

12:24 The name Solomon is related to the Hebrew word for peace, and means “Peaceable” or “Peaceful.” the LORD loved him: God was not going to strike this child as He had the first one (v. 15). This child was God's choice.

12:25 Nathan the prophet was sent by the LORD to give Solomon the name Jedidiah, meaning “Beloved of the LORD” (v. 24). The Hebrew name is related to David's name, meaning “Beloved.” The divinely sanctioned name, spoken by the prophet of the LORD, was the final symbol of God's forgiveness in the lives of David and Bathsheba.

David's Conquests

Once he had become king over all Israel (2 Sam. 5:1–5), David

- (1) conquered the Jebusite fortress of Zion/Jerusalem and made it his royal city (5:6–10);
- (2) received the recognition of and assurance of friendship from Hiram of Tyre, king of the Phoenicians (5:11, 12);
- (3) decisively defeated the Philistines so that their hold on Israelite territory was broken and their threat to Israel eliminated (5:17–25; 8:1);
- (4) defeated the Moabites and imposed his authority over them (8:2);
- (5) crushed the Syrian kingdoms of Hadadezer (king of Zobah), Damascus, and Maacah and put them under tribute (8:3–8; 10:6–19). Talmi, the Syrian king of Geshur, apparently had made peace with David while he was still reigning in Hebron and sealed the alliance by giving his daughter Maacah in marriage to David (3:3; cf. 1 Chr. 2:23);
- (6) subdued Edom and incorporated it into his empire (8:13, 14);
- (7) defeated the Ammonites and brought them into subjection (12:26–31);
- (8) subjugated the remaining Canaanite cities that had previously maintained their independence from Israel, such as Beth Shean, Megiddo, Taanach, and Dor.

Since David had earlier crushed the Amalekites (1 Sam. 30:17, 18), his wars thus completed the conquest begun by Joshua and secured all the borders of Israel. His empire (united Israel plus the subjugated kingdoms) reached from Ezion Geber on the eastern arm of the Red Sea to the Euphrates River.

Rabbah Is Captured

²⁶Now ^aJoab fought against ^bRabbah of the people of Ammon, and took the royal city. ²⁷And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, “I have fought against Rabbah, and I have taken the city’s water supply.” ²⁸Now therefore, gather the rest of the people together and encamp against the city and take it, lest I take the city and it be called after my name.” ²⁹So David gathered all the people together and went to Rabbah, fought against it, and took it. ³⁰^zThen he took their king’s crown from his head. Its weight was a talent of gold, with precious stones. And it was set on David’s head. Also he brought out the ⁶spoils of the city in great abundance. ³¹And he brought out the people who were in it, and put them to work with saws and iron picks and iron axes, and made them cross over to the brick works. So he did to all the cities of the people of Ammon. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

Amnon and Tamar

13 After this ^aAbsalom the son of David had a lovely sister, whose name was ^bTamar; and ^cAmnon the son of David loved her. ²Amnon was so distressed over his sister Tamar that he became sick; for she was a virgin. And it was improper for Amnon to do anything to her. ³But Amnon had a friend whose name was Jonadab ^dthe son of Shimeah, David’s brother. Now Jonadab was a very crafty man. ⁴And he said to him, “Why are you, the king’s son, becoming thinner day after day? Will you not tell me?”

Amnon said to him, “I love Tamar, my brother Absalom’s sister.”

⁵So Jonadab said to him, “Lie down on your bed and pretend to be ill. And when your father comes to see you, say to him, ‘Please let my sister Tamar come and give me food, and prepare the food in my sight, that I may see it and eat it from her hand.’” ⁶Then Amnon lay down and pretended to be ill; and when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, “Please let Tamar my sister come and ^emake a couple of cakes for me in my sight, that I may eat from her hand.”

⁷And David sent home to Tamar, saying, “Now go to your brother Amnon’s house, and prepare food for him.” ⁸So Tamar went to her brother Amnon’s house; and he was lying down. Then she took flour and kneaded it, made cakes in his sight, and baked the cakes. ⁹And she took the pan and placed them out before him, but he refused to eat. Then Amnon said, ^f“Have everyone go out from me.” And they all went out from him. ¹⁰Then Amnon said to Tamar, “Bring the food into the bedroom, that I may eat from your hand.” And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them to Amnon her brother in the bedroom. ¹¹Now when she had brought them to him to eat, ^ghe took hold of her and said to her, “Come, lie with me, my sister.”

¹²But she answered him, “No, my brother, do not ⁱforce me, for ^hno such thing should be done in Israel. Do not do this ⁱdisgraceful thing!” ¹³And I, where could I take my shame? And as for you, you would be like one of the fools in Israel. Now therefore, please speak to the king; ^jfor he will not withhold me from 12:27 taken the city’s water supply: Joab assured that once he had done this the city could not hold out against a siege.

12:28, 29 lest I take the city: Joab wanted David to have the credit for defeating Rabbah and conquering the people of Ammon. So it was that David arrived with his elite corps and won the victory that was years in the making.

12:30 a talent of gold: The crown weighed about 75 pounds. It was an example of the opulence of the spoils from the city, which came in great abundance. It is possible that the crown was a symbol of the Ammonite god Milcom (see 1 Kin. 11:5).

12:31 saws and iron picks and iron axes: The foreign policy of ancient Israel was announced in Deut. 20. The Israelites were to exterminate the Canaanites and subjugate the other nations as God’s judgment on the sins of those peoples. David punished the Ammonites in forced work parties with various tools and implements.

13:1 Absalom and Tamar were children of David and Maacah, daughter of Talmi, king of Geshur (3:3). Amnon, David’s firstborn son, was the child of Ahinoam, the woman from Jezreel (3:2). loved her: Amnon’s love for his half-sister was polluted by the passion of lust.

13:2 it was improper for Amnon to do anything to her: Marriage to a sister or half sister was forbidden by the Law of Moses (see Lev. 18:11).

13:3 Jonadab was a cousin to both Amnon and Tamar. The Hebrew word translated crafty is the same one used elsewhere for those who are “wise,” “technically skilled,” or “experienced.”

13:4, 5 becoming thinner: Amnon’s lust for his sister had made him obsessive; his was a self-destructive course of life. Sadly, he would destroy others as well. pretend to be ill: Jonadab, Amnon’s shrewd cousin, devised a plan to lure unsuspecting Tamar into Amnon’s bedroom. Feigning illness would be a means of gaining sympathy and avoiding the usual proprieties.

13:7, 8 your brother Amnon’s house: Apparently the royal princes had separate residences. This allowed Amnon to put his evil plan into action without the knowledge of the other members of the family. made cakes in his sight: Amnon was able to look from his bedroom into the courtyard where the baking was being done.

13:12 While Canaanites and foreigners might have condoned such practices, incest was forbidden among Israelites (see Lev. 18:9, 11; 20:17). The words disgraceful thing translate a word used elsewhere to refer to a grave sin or sexual offense (see Gen. 34:7; Judg. 20:6).

13:13 The word translated fools is related to the word translated disgraceful thing in v. 12. he will not withhold me from you: While the law forbade incestuous marriage (see Lev. 18:11), this regulation may not always have been strictly observed. It is also possible that Tamar made this suggestion as a way of escaping her immediate danger, with no real thought to the possibility of marriage.

you.” ¹⁴However, he would not heed her voice; and being stronger than she, he ^kforced her and lay with her.

¹⁵Then Amnon hated her ²exceedingly, so that the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, “Arise, be gone!”

¹⁶So she said to him, “No, indeed! This evil of sending me away is worse than the other that you did to me.”

But he would not listen to her. ¹⁷Then he called his servant who attended him, and said, “Here! Put this woman out, away from me, and bolt the door behind her.” ¹⁸Now she had on ^la robe of many colors, for the king’s virgin daughters wore such apparel. And his servant put her out and bolted the door behind her.

¹⁹Then Tamar put ^mashes on her head, and tore her robe of many colors that was on her, and ⁿlaid her hand on her head and went away crying bitterly. ²⁰And Absalom her brother said to her, “Has Amnon your brother been with you? But now hold your peace, my sister. He is your brother; do not take this thing to heart.” So Tamar remained desolate in her brother Absalom’s house.

²¹But when King David heard of all these things, he was very angry. ²²And Absalom spoke to his brother Amnon ^oneither good nor bad. For Absalom ^phated Amnon, because he had forced his sister Tamar.

years, that Absalom ^qhad sheepshearers in Baal Hazor, which is near Ephraim; so Absalom invited all the king’s sons. ²⁴Then Absalom came to the king and said, “Kindly note, your servant has sheepshearers; please, let the king and his servants go with your servant.”

²⁵But the king said to Absalom, “No, my son, let us not all go now, lest we be a burden to you.” Then he urged him, but he would not go; and he blessed him.

²⁶Then Absalom said, “If not, please let my brother Amnon go with us.”

And the king said to him, “Why should he go with you?” ²⁷But Absalom urged him; so he let Amnon and all the king’s sons go with him.

²⁸Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, “Watch now, when Amnon’s ^rheart is merry with wine, and when I say to you, ‘Strike Amnon!’ then kill him. Do not be afraid. Have I not commanded you? Be courageous and ³valiant.” ²⁹So the servants of Absalom ^sdid to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king’s sons arose, and each one got on ^this mule and fled.

³⁰And it came to pass, while they were on the way, that news came to David, saying, “Absalom has killed all the king’s sons, and not one of them is left!” ³¹So the king arose and ^utore his garments and ^vlay on the ground, and all his servants stood by with their clothes torn. ³²Then ^wJonadab the son of Shimeah, David’s brother, answered and said, “Let not my lord suppose they have killed all

13:14 he forced her: The word can also mean, “he humiliated her.”
13:15 Amnon hated her exceedingly: Amnon’s lustful passion, once gratified, turned to hatred. Probably there was a measure of self-hatred as well.

13:16 The words at the end of the verse, but he would not listen to her, repeat the phrasing of v. 14.

13:17 It is difficult to translate the contempt which Amnon had for Tamar. Referring to Tamar, Amnon commanded his servant in a tone one might use to speak of dumping trash.

13:18 she had on a robe of many colors: The exact meaning of this phrase is debated; recent study suggests that it refers to a long garment with sleeves.

13:19 Tamar put ashes on her head, and tore her robe: These were traditional signs of grief and mourning among peoples of the ancient Middle East (see Job 1:20; 2:12). laid her hand on her head: This is another expression of mourning (see Jer. 2:37). Tamar had much to mourn. She had lost her virginity. Shamed by her own brother, she was as good as dead—the prospect of marriage and family was ruined.

13:20 hold your peace . . . do not take this thing to heart: Absalom’s words seem cold and heartless. Apparently, he wanted to avoid a public scandal. Absalom planned to take revenge, but wished to conceal his plan at that time. Desolate, the term used to describe Tamar as she lived in the home of her brother Absalom, is used of ravaged cities and ruined lands (see Is. 6:11).

13:21 David was very angry over Amnon’s violation of Tamar, but did nothing to punish his son. This may have been because Amnon was David’s firstborn (3:2) and was expected to succeed him on the throne. Amnon deserved the death penalty (see Lev. 20:17).

13:23 Absalom delayed his revenge two full years, evidently to catch Amnon off guard. Absalom planned to murder his brother to avenge his sister’s rape and perhaps to enhance his own chances of making a bid for the throne. Having carefully planned the murder of his brother, Absalom invited the king’s sons to a sheep shearing festival at Baal Hazor, a mountain about 15 miles north of Jerusalem. Ephraim here is not the tribe but a city about two miles south of Baal Hazor (see 2 Chr. 13:19; John 11:54).

13:25 David declined the invitation, offering the excuse that he did not want to be a burden on Absalom. he blessed him: David wished Absalom well. Given the outcome of the story, David’s memory of his blessing on Absalom must have been a grief to him (v. 36).

13:26, 27 Why should he go with you: Absalom’s request seems to have aroused David’s suspicions. After all, David knew about the blood feud between the two brothers (v. 22). Nevertheless, Absalom persuaded his father to allow Amnon and the rest of the king’s sons to attend the celebration.

13:28 Absalom’s servants planned to attack Amnon when his heart was merry with wine—that is, after the wine had dulled his senses and put him off guard. Have I not commanded you: These words indicate that Absalom would take full responsibility for the slaying.

13:30 Absalom has killed all the king’s sons: The report that reached David was greatly exaggerated. This news must have been utterly shattering to David.

13:31 tore his garments: Tearing one’s clothes was a sign of grief and mourning (1:11; 13:19).

13:32 Jonadab, a cousin both of Amnon and Tamar, had helped Amnon plan his encounter with Tamar (v. 3). Shimeah was David’s

Donkeys and Mules

As obedient servants, donkeys stand about four feet high and are usually gray, reddish-brown, or white. The long-suffering donkey often won the affection of the household and was decorated with beads and bright ribbons, but his true role was to serve as a work animal. He trampled seed, turned the millstone to grind grain, and pulled the plow. These animals could carry great weight in spite of their small size. Since they required only a fraction as much fodder as a horse, they were also more economical to own. The donkey was a safe and comfortable animal to ride. The offspring of a male donkey (jack) and female horse (mare) was a mule. The mule had the sure-footedness and endurance of the donkey, coupled with the greater size and strength of the horse. Crossbreeding like this was outlawed among the Jewish people (Lev. 19:19), but from David's time mules were imported and increasingly used by the Israelites.

older brother, the third son of Jesse (called Shammah in 1 Sam. 16:9; 17:13; Shimea in 1 Chr. 2:13). Jonadab knew that Absalom's treachery had been brewing ever since the violation of his sister by Amnon.

13:34 The statement Absalom fled is repeated three times (vv. 37, 38) to contrast Absalom's flight with the return of the rest of David's sons. The young man who was keeping watch refers to the watchman on the city walls whose job was to alert the citizens of approaching danger (see Ezek. 3:17).

13:37 Talmai was Absalom's grandfather, the father of David's wife Maacah (3:3). He ruled as king of the territory of Geshur, northeast of the Sea of Galilee. And David mourned for his son: This mourning must refer to Amnon, who had been killed. But it is somewhat ambiguous, placed in the context of Absalom's exile. It is possible that David's grief over the exile of Absalom was also an intense pain to him (v. 39).

13:39 As David's grief over Amnon's death gradually diminished, he longed to go to Absalom: Apparently, David wanted to see Absalom, but thought it inappropriate in view of the circumstances, or impossible due to the distance and royal commitments.

14:1 the king's heart: Joab's long association with David enabled him to know the king's thoughts. He was well aware that the king longed to be reconciled with his son, but that apart from some external prompting, he was not about to make the first move.

14:2 Tekoa, the hometown of the prophet Amos, was on the edge of the hill country, about six miles south of Bethlehem. do not anoint yourself with oil: Olive oil was used in ancient times as a soothing lotion that made the skin and hair shine. Its use is associated with celebration and joy (see Ps. 104:15; 133:2).

14:3–5 Joab gave the woman the story to tell to the king. As a wise woman (v. 2), she would know how to reply to David's responses and questions. fell on her face: The woman bowed before the king as a preliminary sign of her request for help. The same word is used for bowing before God when one comes into His presence for holy worship. my husband is dead: Although she had already described herself as a widow, these words may have been added for emotional effect.

14:6 The mention of two sons must have struck a chord in David; certainly he could not have been impassive when she described the one killing the other.

maidservant had two sons; and the two fought with each other in the field, and there was no one to part them, but the one struck the other and killed him.⁷ And now the whole family has risen up against your maidservant, and they said, ‘Deliver him who struck his brother, that we may execute him^h for the life of his brother whom he killed; and we will destroy the heir also.’ So they would extinguish my ember that is left, and leave to my husband neither name nor remnant on the earth.”

⁸Then the king said to the woman, “Go to your house, and I will give orders concerning you.”

⁹And the woman of Tekoa said to the king, “My lord, O king, letⁱ the² iniquity be on me and on my father’s house,^j and the king and his throne be guiltless.”

¹⁰So the king said, “Whoever says anything to you, bring him to me, and he shall not touch you anymore.”

¹¹Then she said, “Please let the king remember the LORD your God, and do not permit^k the avenger of blood to destroy anymore, lest they destroy my son.”

And he said, ¹⁴“As the LORD lives, not one hair of your son shall fall to the ground.”

¹²Therefore the woman said, “Please, let your maidservant speak another word to my lord the king.”

And he said, “Say on.”

¹³So the woman said: “Why then have you schemed such a thing against^m the people of God? For the king speaks this thing as one who is guilty, in that the king does not bringⁿ his banished one home again. ¹⁴For we^o will surely die and become like water spilled on the ground,

And your maidservant said, ‘I will now speak to the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his maidservant. ¹⁶For the king will hear and deliver his maidservant from the hand of the man who would destroy me and my son together from the ‘inheritance of God.’ ¹⁷Your maidservant said, ‘The word of my lord the king will now be comforting; for^s as the angel of God, so is my lord the king in ‘discerning good and evil. And may the LORD your God be with you.’”

¹⁸Then the king answered and said to the woman, “Please do not hide from me anything that I ask you.”

And the woman said, “Please, let my lord the king speak.”

¹⁹So the king said, “Is the hand of Joab with you in all this?” And the woman answered and said, “As you live, my lord the king, no one can turn to the right hand or to the left from anything that my lord the king has spoken. For your servant Joab commanded me, and^u he put all these words in the mouth of your maidservant. ²⁰To bring about this change of affairs your servant Joab has done this thing; but my lord is wise, ^vaccording to the wisdom of the angel of God, to know everything that is in the earth.”

²¹And the king said to Joab, “All right, I have granted this thing. Go therefore, bring back the young man Absalom.”

14:7 that we may execute him: The punishment for murder was death. The issue seemed clear, but the consequences for the woman were intolerable. So they would extinguish my ember: The woman used a graphic picture of the extinction of her family. The demise of a family name and the end of a surviving remnant or family line were crucial matters to the Hebrew people.

14:8 David apparently wanted to put the woman off with a promise of future action. Perhaps he was seeking to avoid having to defend the guilty son who was worthy of death. Perhaps he wanted to meet with his counselors or pray to the Lord for direction.

14:9, 10 let the iniquity be on me and on my father’s house: The persistent woman expressed her willingness to bear any guilt if David would let the blood of her son go unavenged. David gave the persistent woman assurances of his protection, but was unwilling at this point to offer protection to her son.

14:11 The Hebrew phrase avenger of blood joins the term sometimes translated kinsman redeemer to the word for blood. The kinsman redeemer is the protector of family rights. Here, the protector of the family would be expected to bring vengeance on one who had taken the life of a family member. Cities of refuge had been established under Moses for protection from the blood avenger in cases where the killing was accidental (see Num. 35:9–34). In this case, the woman pressed David to the limit with respect to her son. David promised that not one hair of her son’s head would fall to the ground.

14:13 you schemed such a thing against the people of God: She accused David of doing to the nation what her enemy was trying to do to her (v. 7)—taking away the heir to the throne. his banished one: Although not formally banished, Absalom was in his extended exile from Israel.

14:14 For we will surely die: The woman may be referring to Amnon (13:28–33). Amnon was dead, and no amount of punishment against Absalom would bring him back to life. God does not take away a life: God’s will is to forgive sinners. The divine example is set in significant contrast with David, who had refused to forgive his son Absalom.

14:15 After speaking of David’s treatment of Absalom, the woman returned to her story about her own family. the people have made me afraid: The woman said she was afraid that she would lose her own son to the avenger of blood (v. 7).

14:16 the man who would destroy me: Although the woman’s life was not in jeopardy, the death of the son would mean the extinction of her family, depriving her of a future share in the workings of God among His people.

14:17 as the angel of God: The woman suggested that the king had superhuman ability in the exercise of judgment. She used flattery and an appeal to piety to get David to act.

14:19, 20 David recognized the hand of Joab in the woman’s charade. The woman explained that Joab was simply trying to be an agent for change in the relationship between David and Absalom.

²²Then Joab fell to the ground on his face and bowed himself, and ⁴thanked the king. And Joab said, “Today your servant knows that I have found favor in your sight, my lord, O king, in that the king has fulfilled the request of his servant.” ²³So Joab arose ¹⁰and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. ²⁴And the king said, “Let him return to his own house, but ^xdo not let him see my face.” So Absalom returned to his own house, but did not see the king’s face.

David Forgives Absalom

²⁵Now in all Israel there was no one who was praised as much as Absalom for his good looks. ²⁶From the sole of his foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. ²⁶And when he cut the hair of his head—at the end of every year he cut it because it was heavy on him—when he cut it, he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels according to the king’s standard. ²⁷^zTo Absalom were born three sons, and one daughter whose name was Tamar. She was a woman of beautiful appearance.

²⁸And Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, ^abut did not see the king’s face. ²⁹Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to send him to the king, but he would not come to him. And when he sent again the second time, he would not come. ³⁰So he said to his servants, “See, Joab’s field is near mine, and he has barley there; go and set it on fire.” And Absalom’s servants set the field on fire.

³²And Absalom answered Joab, “Look, I sent to you, saying, ‘Come here, so that I may send you to the king, to say, “Why have I come from Geshur? It would be better for me to be there still.”’ Now therefore, let me see the king’s face; but ^bif there is iniquity in me, let him execute me.”

³³So Joab went to the king and told him. And when he had called for Absalom, he came to the king and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king. Then the king ^ckissed Absalom.

Absalom’s Treason

15 After this ^ait happened that Absalom ^bprovided himself with chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him. ²Now Absalom would rise early and stand beside the way to the gate. So it was, whenever anyone who had a ^clawsuit¹ came to the king for a decision, that Absalom would call to him and say, “What city are you from?” And he would say, “Your servant is from such and such a tribe of Israel.” ³Then Absalom would say to him, “Look, your ²case is good and right; but there is no ³deputy of the king to hear you.” ⁴Moreover Absalom would say, ^d“Oh, that I were made judge in the land, and everyone who has any suit or cause would come to me; then I would give him justice.” ⁵And so it was, whenever anyone came near to 14:22 the king has filled the request of his servant: Apparently, Joab had made other attempts to bring about the reconciliation of David and Absalom.

14:23 David’s unwillingness to go himself may reflect some reluctance to forgive his son. Geshur was northeast of the Sea of Galilee. Talmi, Absalom’s grandfather and the father of David’s wife Maacah, ruled the region (3:3; 13:37).

14:24–26 do not let him see my face: David refused to grant an immediate audience to his son because he had not forgotten Absalom’s heinous crime. his good looks: Absalom must have had the look of royalty. Many people must have viewed him as Israel’s next king. By his charm and personal appeal, he later was able to lead the nation in a rebellion against his father (15:1–12). The reference to Absalom’s long hair provides the background for the account of his death (18:9). Two hundred shekels was a considerable weight, about five pounds.

14:27 In addition to three sons, Absalom had a daughter whom he named Tamar, perhaps after his sister (13:1). Apparently, Absalom’s sons died in infancy. When he set up a pillar in Jerusalem to memorialize his name, he mentioned having no sons (18:18).

14:29 Joab’s failure to heed Absalom’s summons seems inconsistent with his earlier effort to bring about Absalom’s return (v. 22). Joab’s refusal to go to Absalom no doubt contributed to Absalom’s simmering resentment of the royal house.

14:32 Come here, so that I may send you to the king: Perhaps Joab resented being treated like Absalom’s servant. if there is iniquity in me, let him execute me: Absalom pleaded that his offense either be punished or completely forgiven.

14:33 the king kissed Absalom: The kiss was the symbol of their reconciliation. Although David and Absalom were reconciled, the seeds of bitterness that had been sown would soon bear the fruit of conspiracy and rebellion. David’s protracted delay in coming to terms with his son ultimately led to disaster. For the moment, though, there was peace.

15:1–3 chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him: This royal treatment was intended to attract attention to Absalom and to remind the people of his relationship to David as heir to the throne (1 Kin. 1:5). The runners would announce the coming of his chariot. Absalom would stand along the way leading to the royal palace, welcoming and showing interest in visitors who had come to Jerusalem to present their cases before the king. good and right: Absalom ingratiated himself to the people. Only those who really had a complaint would make the arduous trip to Jerusalem in the hope that they might find favor with the king. When they were told that they were right, but that the present administration would not help, their frustration was only increased. no deputy of the king to hear you: The implication of Absalom’s remark was that David was too busy to hear the case, yet too jealous of his own authority to delegate someone to deal with the concern.

15:4 Administration of justice, the proper relationship between people in society according to God’s standard of righteousness, was a major concern of OT rulers and prophets (8:15; 1 Kin. 3:28; 10:9; Is. 1:17; Amos 5:24). Absalom was playing on the people’s emotions when he presented himself as the answer to their need for justice, but had none to give them.

15:5, 6 When anyone approached Absalom with a show of rever-bow down to him, that he would put out his hand and take him and ^ekiss him. ⁶In this manner Absalom acted toward all Israel who came to the king for judgment. ^fSo Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

⁷Now it came to pass ^gafter ⁴forty years that Absalom said to the king, “Please, let me go to ^hHebron and pay the vow which I made to the LORD. ⁸ⁱFor your servant ^jtook a vow ^kwhile I dwelt at Geshur in Syria, saying, ‘If the LORD indeed brings me back to Jerusalem, then I will serve the LORD.’”

⁹And the king said to him, “Go in peace.” So he arose and went to Hebron.

¹⁰Then Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, “As soon as you hear the sound of the trumpet, then you shall say, ‘Absalom ^lreigns in Hebron!’” ¹¹And with Absalom went two hundred men ^minvited from Jerusalem, and they ⁿwent along innocently and did not know anything. ¹²Then Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, ^oDavid’s counselor, from his city—from ^pGiloh—while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy grew strong, for the people with Absalom ^qcontinually increased in number.

saying, ^r“The hearts of the men of Israel are ^swith Absalom.”

¹⁴So David said to all his servants who were with him at Jerusalem, “Arise, and let us ^sflee, or we shall not escape from Absalom. Make haste to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly and bring disaster upon us, and strike the city with the edge of the sword.”

¹⁵And the king’s servants said to the king, “We are your servants, ready to do whatever my lord the king commands.”

¹⁶Then ^tthe king went out with all his household after him. But the king left ^uten women, concubines, to keep the house. ¹⁷And the king went out with all the people after him, and stopped at the outskirts. ¹⁸Then all his servants passed ^obefore him; ^vand all the Cherethites, all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites, ^wsix hundred men who had followed him from Gath, passed before the king.

¹⁹Then the king said to ^xIttai the Gittite, “Why are you also going with us? Return and remain with the king. For you are a foreigner and also an exile from your own place. ²⁰In fact, you came only yesterday. Should I make you wander up and down with us today, since I go ^yI know not where? Return, and take your brethren back. Mercy and truth be with you.”

²¹But Ittai answered the king and said, ence or respect, the prince would extend his hand, as one would with an equal. In ancient times, a kiss could serve as a greeting—a sign of friendship, affection, and loyalty (19:39). Absalom stole the hearts: Through personal charm and promises, Absalom managed to win the affection and loyalty of the Israelites.

15:7, 8 Absalom sought David’s permission to move to Hebron, about 20 miles south of Jerusalem, where he would have more freedom to start a rebellion. Since Absalom was born in Hebron (3:2, 3), it would probably not seem unusual to David that he would want to fulfill his vow there. Geshur in Syria was the region northeast of the Sea of Galilee.

15:10 sent spies: Away from the attention of David and those loyal to him, Absalom began to enlist conspirators and sympathizers to join him in the forthcoming revolt. The slogan Absalom reigns in Hebron purposely alluded to David’s kingship. David had been anointed king in Hebron (2:1-7; 5:1-5).

15:11 Absalom invited two hundred unsuspecting men to join him in Hebron for the supposed fulfillment of his vow (vv. 7, 8). No doubt he hoped they would give their support to him when they realized what was happening.

15:12 Ahithophel was from Giloh, a city in the mountains of Judah (Josh. 15:51).

15:13 The hearts of the men of Israel: By his deceptive practices, Absalom had gained the sympathy and support of the Israelites. One of the reasons he may have been able to do this was David’s troubling rise to power. When David’s power in Judah was confined to Hebron (ch. 2), he was resented by the supporters of Saul in the rest of the country. Old suspicions and resentments could be stroked again by a person who knew how to use people to his own advantage—a disreputable ability in which Absalom excelled.

15:14 Arise, and let us flee: David seems to have been taken completely by surprise. He was unprepared to thwart Absalom’s rebellion. He fled from Jerusalem to avoid unnecessary risk of life and the tragedy of a military assault on the capital city.

15:15 The loyalty of David’s servants must have been a real encouragement in a time of such disloyalty from David’s own family.

15:17 After leaving Jerusalem, David and the royal family stopped at the east edge of town before crossing the Kidron (v. 23), to allow his royal bodyguard to pass in review before him (v. 18). The need to flee the palace was immediate. But before those with him dashed off in headlong flight, David gathered them together to take stock of matters and to plan their next move.

15:18 The Cherethites and Pelethites were elite units of David’s army. These trusted troops of David were not Israelites, but mercenaries from a variety of nations, possibly Crete and Philistia. They had been with David for years, owed him their loyalty, and would defend him and his family to the death. Gittites were either Philistine mercenary soldiers whom David had recruited during his stay in Gath (see 1 Sam. 21:10-15) or David’s original followers from Gath (1 Sam. 23:13).

15:19 remain with the king: David gave his foreign mercenaries the chance to leave him. As foreigners, they were not obligated to fight in the coming civil war.

15:20 you came only yesterday: This is an obvious exaggeration, but reflects the fact that Ittai’s association with David had been brief. He did not have the long-term relationship with David that the troops mentioned in v. 18 had. Mercy and truth be with you: David used the covenantal language of the biblical faith in his blessing on Ittai.

15:21 As the LORD lives: With these words, the foreign military officer declared his abiding faith in and commitment to the God of Israel. These are words of the strongest oath, and they distinguish the true believer in various periods of Israel’s history (see 1 Kin. 17:1, 12; 18:10). whether in death or life: Ittai’s words are similar to those of another foreigner who came to faith in God—Ruth of Moab (Ruth 1:16, 17). Ittai’s later appointment as commander of a third of the army (18:2) was David’s way of showing his gratitude for such loyalty.

²²“As the LORD lives, and as my lord the king lives, surely in whatever place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also your servant will be.”

²³So David said to Ittai, “Go, and cross over.” Then Ittai the Gittite and all his men and all the little ones who were with him crossed over. ²⁴And all the country wept with a loud voice, and all the people crossed over. The king himself also crossed over the Brook Kidron, and all the people crossed over toward the way of the wilderness.

²⁵There was Zadok also, and all the Levites with him, bearing the ark of the covenant of God. And they set down the ark of God, and Abiathar went up until all the people had finished crossing over from the city. ²⁶Then the king said to Zadok, “Carry the ark of God back into the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the LORD, He will bring me back and show me both it and His dwelling place. ²⁷But if He says thus: ‘I have no delight in you,’ here I am, let Him do to me as seems good to Him.” ²⁸The king also said to Zadok the priest, “Are you not a seer?” Return to the city in peace, and your two sons with you, Ahimaaz your son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar. ²⁹See, I will wait in the plains of the ³⁰So David went up by the Ascent of the Mount of Olives, and wept as he went up; and he had his head covered and went barefoot. And all the people who were with him covered their heads and went up, weeping as they went up. ³¹Then someone told David, saying, “Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom.” And David said, “O LORD, I pray, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness!”

³²Now it happened when David had come to the top of the mountain, where he worshiped God—there was Hushai the Archite coming to meet him with his robe torn and dust on his head. ³³David said to him, “If you go on with me, then you will become a burden to me. ³⁴But if you return to the city, and say to Absalom, ‘I will be your servant, O king; as I was your father’s servant previously, so I will now also be your servant,’ then you may defeat the counsel of Ahithophel for me. ³⁵And do you not have Zadok and Abiathar the priests with you there? Therefore it will be that whatever you hear from the king’s house, you shall tell to Zadok and Abiathar the priests. ³⁶In-

15:23 The Brook Kidron is a small stream that flows through the valley separating Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives during the rainy season (October through March). The way of the wilderness refers to the road leading through the wilderness of Judah to Jericho and down to the fords of the Jordan River.
15:24–26 Zadok and Abiathar were the main priests functioning during David’s reign. They were loyal to David. They wanted to bring the ark, which David had brought to Jerusalem with a great celebration (ch. 6), back into the city. It was David who was going into exile, not the Lord; the symbol of God’s presence with His people would remain in the place of worship for the entire community. He will bring me back: David committed the entire situation to the sovereign care and will of God. Contrast David’s submission to the Lord’s will to Absalom’s deceitful words (v. 8). His dwelling place refers to the tabernacle that had been set up for the ark (7:6).

15:27 Are you not a seer: A prophet could come from any tribe, even from among the sons of Aaron. Thus a priest could also be a prophet of the Lord (see Zech. 1:1). David wanted the priests to remain in Jerusalem to minister in the tabernacle and intercede before God for him. Perhaps God would grant them a message that they could relay to him.
15:28 The plains of the wilderness refers to the Jordan valley near Jericho. until word comes from you to inform me: As vv. 35, 36 further explain, Zadok and Abiathar were to remain in Jerusalem to gather information for David. They could return a message from the Lord as well as news from the enemy camp.
15:30 head covered . . . barefoot: These were outward signs of mourning (see Jer. 14:3; Ezek. 24:17). The Mount of Olives was located east of Jerusalem.
15:31 Ahithophel was Bathsheba’s grandfather (11:3). A wise counselor (16:23), he had been in David’s service (v. 12) but had switched his allegiance to Absalom. David prayed for his enemy to be confused. The name Ahithophel may mean “Brother of Folly.” If so, it may have been a name given to him later on account of his defection from David.
15:32–34 where he worshiped God: Prior to the building of the Jerusalem temple, there was apparently a place of worship located on the Mount of Olives. Hushai proved to be a loyal friend of David (15:37; 16:16). Archite was the name of a family living on the southern boundary of Ephraim, between Bethel and Ataroth (see Josh. 16:2). Hushai’s torn robe and the dust on his head were signs of grief (1:11; 13:19). Rather than joining David’s followers, Hushai was directed to return to Jerusalem to thwart the counsel that Ahithophel would be giving to Absalom.
15:35, 36 Hushai was given a key role in relaying information about the enemy to David through Zadok and Abiathar and their sons, Ahimaaz and Jonathan.

This Hebrew word can be translated chest (2 Kin. 12:9) or sarcophagus (Gen. 50:26), but usually appears in the phrase ’aron haberith, which means “ark of the covenant.” The ark was a wooden chest overlaid with gold (Ex. 25:10–22), housing the Ten Commandments (Ex. 40:20), Aaron’s staff, and a pot of manna (Heb. 9:4). It sat in the Most Holy Place as a reminder of Israel’s covenant with God and His presence among them. When the Israelites became careless with the ark (1 Sam. 4:1–11), God allowed it to be captured in order to demonstrate that His covenant relationship with them transcended symbols and superstitions. What He required was continual obedience to His covenant and a contrite heart surrendered to Him (Ps. 51:17; Is. 57:15).

Mephibosheth's Servant

16 When^a David was a little past the top of the mountain, there was ^bZiba the servant of Mephibosheth, who met him with a couple of saddled donkeys, and on them two hundred loaves of bread, one hundred clusters of raisins, one hundred summer fruits, and a skin of wine. ²And the king said to Ziba, "What do you mean to do with these?"

So Ziba said, "The donkeys are for the king's household to ride on, the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat, and the wine for ^cthose who are faint in the wilderness to drink."

³Then the king said, "And where is your ^dmaster's son?"

^eAnd Ziba said to the king, "Indeed he is staying in Jerusalem, for he said, 'Today the house of Israel will restore the kingdom of my father to me.'"

⁴So the king said to Ziba, "Here, all that belongs to Mephibosheth is yours."

And Ziba said, "I humbly bow before you, that I may find favor in your sight, my lord, O king!"

the house of Saul, whose name was ^gShimei the son of Gera, coming from there. He came out, cursing continuously as he came. ⁶And he threw stones at David and at all the servants of King David. And all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left. ⁷Also Shimei said thus when he cursed: "Come out! Come out! 15:37 The word friend can mean a counselor or an advisor (see 1 Kin. 4:5).

16:1 Ziba, a long-time servant of both Saul and Mephibosheth, assisted David and his party with provisions for their initial flight. Summer fruits probably refers to fresh figs (see Mic. 7:1) or fig cakes (see 1 Sam. 25:18). skin of wine: In ancient times, wine was carried in animal-skin containers. The skin expanded with the liquid when it fermented (see Matt. 9:17).

16:3 Your master's son is a reference to Mephibosheth. Ziba had been in the service of Jonathan, father of Mephibosheth (9:2, 9). Today the house of Israel will restore the kingdom of my father to me: According to Ziba, Mephibosheth was staying in Jerusalem in hopes that Absalom's rebellion would result in his elevation to the throne. Even though David had shown special concern for Mephibosheth (ch. 9), the latter may have had some thoughts that this might be the time to advance the cause of the dynasty of Saul. 16:5 Bahurim was near Jerusalem, east of the Mount of Olives (3:16). Shimei the son of Gera was a distant relative of Saul (see 19:16-23; 1 Kin. 2:8, 9, 36-46). cursing continuously: These were not simple insults or merely the words of someone with a foul mouth. Shimei was asking God to destroy David (see Num. 22:6).

16:6 threw stones: Throwing stones is a gesture of contempt, as if the fleeing king were merely a stray dog. Stones can also be dangerous weapons, as is shown by the fact that stoning was a normal means of capital punishment among the Hebrews (see also 1 Kin. 21:13). All the mighty men refers to David's royal troops and bodyguards (17:8).

16:7, 8 Come out might be rephrased, "Go out" (into banishment and exile) or "Begone!" You bloodthirsty man: David was a man of war, and he was guilty of killing Uriah (11:14-27). But Shimei blamed the demise of Saul's family on David (v. 5)—an unjust charge (ch. 1). You rogue, literally "man of Belial," is an expletive against David that means worthless or useless. The blood of the house of Saul may refer to the murders of Ishbosheth and Abner, although David was completely innocent of their deaths (3:22-4:12).

16:9 Abishai was a nephew of David, the son of David's sister Zeruiah (1 Chr. 2:16). He was consistently devoted to David (19:21, 22; 1 Sam. 26:8). In the ancient Middle East, a dead dog was something utterly contemptible (3:8).

16:10 What have I to do with you: This idiom means that David did not share the feelings and views of Abishai. sons of Zeruiah: Apparently David considered that Joab, also a son of Zeruiah (1 Chr. 2:16), would share Abishai's willingness to kill Shimei. the LORD has said to him, 'Curse David': David might have remembered God's promise "to raise up adversity" for his sin with Bathsheba (12:11) and took Shimei's cursing as part of this discipline.

16:11 David argued that if his own son showed him no loyalty, there was no reason to expect respect from the Benjamite, that is, a person from the tribe of Saul.

16:12 the LORD will repay me with good: David hoped that the Lord would look upon his repentant heart and render a blessing to compensate for Shimei's curse.

The Advice of Ahithophel

¹⁵Meanwhile ¹Absalom and all the people, the men of Israel, came to Jerusalem; and Ahithophel was with him. ¹⁶And so it was, when Hushai the Archite, ¹⁷“David’s friend, came to Absalom, that ¹⁸Hushai said to Absalom, “Long live the king! Long live the king!”

¹⁹So Absalom said to Hushai, “Is this your loyalty to your friend?” ²⁰Why did you not go with your friend?”

²¹And Hushai said to Absalom, “No, but whom the Lord and this people and all the men of Israel choose, his I will be, and with him I will remain. ²²Furthermore, ²³whom should I serve? Should I not serve in the presence of his son? As I have served in your father’s presence, so will I be in your presence.”

²²And Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Go in to your father’s ²³concubines, whom he has left to keep the house; and all Israel will hear that you ²⁴are abhorred by your father. Then ²⁵the hands of all who are with you will be strong.” ²⁶So they pitched a tent for Absalom on the top of the house, and Absalom went in to his father’s concubines ²⁷in the sight of all Israel.

²⁸Now the advice of Ahithophel, which he gave in those days, was as if one had inquired at the oracle of God. So was all the advice of Ahithophel ²⁹both with David and with Absalom.

17Moreover Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Now let me choose twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue David tonight. ²I will come upon him while he is ³weary and weak, and make him ⁴afraid. And all the peo-

16:15 Ahithophel, David’s former counselor (15:12), had switched his allegiance to Absalom (15:31). In this context, the men of Israel refers to Absalom’s followers.

16:16–18 Long live the king: Hushai deceptively professed loyalty to Absalom. In fact, these words could easily have applied to David for he was still the divinely sanctioned king. By using his words carefully, Hushai was able to lead his hearers to think he was praising Absalom, when in fact he was shouting for David. your friend: Absalom apparently was referring to Hushai’s title, “David’s friend” (15:37). whom the Lord: With these well-planned words, Hushai professed allegiance to whomever the Lord would choose as king. his I will be: Hushai’s real allegiance was with David, who he knew was God’s chosen one.

16:19 in the presence of his son: Hushai wished to imply that his allegiance to Absalom was the natural outgrowth of his loyalty to David. It was appropriate for a son to succeed his father, and for supporters of the dynasty to give their allegiance to the new king.

16:22 Concubines were unofficial wives. In ancient times, taking over a king’s harem was a recognized means of claiming the throne.

When Ahithophel advised Absalom to have sexual relations with David’s concubines, he knew that this would finalize the breach between Absalom and David. It was an irrevocable action. The tent that Absalom pitched in the sight of all Israel was probably a bridal tent. Absalom made the people of Israel fully aware that he was engaging in sexual relations with his father’s concubines. Putting the tent on the roof of the palace was an insolent act that was guaranteed to stir the populace one way or another.

16:23 at the oracle of God: Ahithophel had acquired such a reputation that his counsel was taken to be equivalent to a word from the Lord. He was not a prophet, but his words were received as if they were prophetic.

17:1, 2 Ahithophel realized that the fleeing king was in a vulnerable situation. He counseled Absalom to pursue and kill David and his followers in order to eliminate any chance that David would regain the throne. The twelve thousand men that he asked for would likely have had an easy time defeating the weary troops of David.

I will strike only the king: Despite his celebrated wisdom, Ahithophel underestimated the loyalty of David’s crack troops. Ahithophel

The Advice of Hushai

⁵Then Absalom said, “Now call Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear what he ^dsays too.” ⁶And when Hushai came to Absalom, Absalom spoke to him, saying, “Ahithophel has spoken in this manner. Shall we do as he says? If not, speak up.”

⁷So Hushai said to Absalom: “The advice that Ahithophel has given is not good at this time. ⁸For,” said Hushai, “you know your father and his men, that they are mighty men, and they are enraged in their minds, like ^ea bear robbed of her cubs in the field; and your father is a man of war, and will not camp with the people. ⁹Surely by now he is hidden in some pit, or in some other place. And it will be, when some of them are overthrown at the first, that whoever hears it will say, ‘There is a slaughter among the people who follow Absalom.’ ¹⁰And even he who is valiant, whose heart is like the heart of a lion, will ^fmelt completely. valiant men. ¹¹Therefore I advise that all Israel be fully gathered to you, ^ofrom Dan to Beersheba, ^hlike the sand that is by the sea for multitude, and that you go to battle in person. ¹²So we will come upon him in some place where he may be found, and we will fall on him as the dew falls on the ground. And of him and all the men who are with him there shall not be left so much as one. ¹³Moreover, if he has withdrawn into a city, then all Israel shall bring ropes to that city; and we will ⁱpull it into the river, until there is not one small stone found there.”

¹⁴So Absalom and all the men of Israel said, “The advice of Hushai the Archite is better than the advice of Ahithophel.” For ^jthe LORD had purposed to defeat the good advice of Ahithophel, to the intent that the LORD might bring disaster on Absalom.

Hushai Warns David to Escape

¹⁵^kThen Hushai said to Zadok and Abiathar the priests, “Thus and so Ahithophel advised Absalom and the elders of Israel, and thus and so I have advised. ¹⁶Now therefore, send quickly and tell David, saying, ‘Do not spend this night ^lin the plains of the wilderness, but speedily cross over, lest the king and all the people who are with him be swallowed up.’” ¹⁷^mNow Jonathan and might have been able to defeat David in a surprise raid, but David’s loyal warriors would not have scattered.

17:3 I will bring back all the people: Ahithophel tried to persuade Absalom that if he killed only David, the people would align themselves with Absalom, and peace would be restored in the land.

17:5 Although Absalom was pleased with Ahithophel’s counsel (v. 4), he did not accept it immediately. He summoned Hushai (16:16) to get a second opinion on the matter.

17:7 Hushai, David’s confidant, set about to frustrate Ahithophel’s wise counsel. He realized that the plan proposed by Ahithophel would prove fatal for David. The words at this time leave room for an appreciation of Ahithophel’s past counsel and might have been intended to deter suspicion over his critical evaluation.

17:8 Mighty men are heroic fighting men. Like a bear robbed of her cubs: Hushai used a strong simile to depict the ferocity of David and his men. There is no more dangerous foe in the woods than a mother bear who believes her cubs to be in danger. will not camp with the people: Hushai suggested that David, as an experienced warrior, would not camp with the civilian refugees. He would know that doing so would leave him vulnerable to attack and capture.

17:9 hidden in some pit: The countryside of Judah was riddled with caves, ravines, and hiding places. a slaughter: Hushai suggested that David could not be taken without some loss of life, and this would give rise to the rumor that Absalom was suffering a severe defeat.

17:10 Valiant means well-trained and able to fight. will melt completely: Hushai suggested that even the bravest of Absalom’s soldiers would yield to panic when facing David and his veterans.

17:11, 12 all Israel: Hushai advised that Absalom was going to need a larger army than he presently had, and that Absalom himself should lead the force into battle. Dan to Beersheba means the whole country, from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south, a distance of about 150 miles. like the sand: Hushai used this figure of speech to describe the army that would be needed to destroy David’s forces. Hushai knew it would take time to gather so many men, and that time was what David needed the most. in some place: The implication of this remark is that Absalom did not know where David was hiding.

17:13 The river means any river, not necessarily the Jordan.

17:15 Zadok and Abiathar the priests had stayed in Jerusalem at David’s request (15:24–29). David had arranged for them to gather information about Absalom’s activities and forward it to him through their sons (15:35, 36).

17:16 The plains of the wilderness means the Jordan valley in the vicinity of Jericho (15:28). Hushai told David to cross the Jordan since he could not be sure that Absalom would act on his counsel.

17:17, 18 Jonathan and Ahimaaz were the sons of Abiathar and advice

(Heb. ’etsah) (17:7; Job 38:2; Ps. 1:1; Prov. 8:14) Strong’s #6098

This Hebrew term has two primary meanings: “counsel” and “plan.” Both senses are used of God (Jer. 32:19; Is. 5:19) and man (2 Kin. 18:20; Prov. 20:5). While the counsel of the Lord stands forever, He brings the counsel of the nations to nothing (Ps. 33:10, 11; Prov. 21:30). One of the psalmists prayed to be guided by God’s counsel, a prayer not made by the rebellious people of Isaiah’s day (Ps. 73:24; Is. 30:1). The Hebrew kings typically sought counsel from advisors who were old, experienced, and wise; however, Rehoboam tragically sought out the counsel of his peers (1 Kin. 12:8, 13; Ezek. 7:26). Solomon describes those who heed counsel as being wise (Prov. 12:15; 19:20), and the psalmists proclaimed their reliance on God’s counsel (Ps. 16:7; 73:24).

Ahimaaz ^astayed at ^eEn Rogel, for they dared not be seen coming into the city; so a female servant would come and tell them, and they would go and tell King David. ¹⁸Nevertheless a lad saw them, and told Absalom. But both of them went away quickly and came to a man's house ^pin Bahurim, who had a well in his court; and they went down into it. ^{19q}Then the woman took and spread a covering over the well's mouth, and spread ground grain on it; and the thing was not known. ²⁰And when Absalom's servants came to the woman at the house, they said, "Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?"

So ^rthe woman said to them, "They have gone over the water brook."

And when they had searched and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem. ²¹Now it came to pass, after they had departed, that they came up out of the well and went and told King David, and said to David, ^s"Arise and cross over the water quickly. For thus has Ahithophel advised against you." ²²So David and all the people who were with him arose and crossed over the Jordan. By morning light not one of them was left who had not gone over the Jordan.

²³Now when Ahithophel saw that his advice was not followed, he saddled a donkey, and arose and went home to ^this house, to his city. Then he ²put his ^uhousehold in order, and ^vhanged himself, and died; and he was buried in his father's tomb.

²⁴Then David went to ^wMahanaim.

And Absalom crossed over the Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him. ²⁵And Absalom made ^xAmasa captain of the army instead of Joab. This Amasa was the son of a man whose name was ³Jithra, an ⁴Israelite, who had gone in to ^yAbigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, Joab's mother. ²⁶So Israel and Absalom encamped in the land of Gilead.

²⁷Now it happened, when David had come to Mahanaim, that ^zShobi the son of Nahash from Rabbah of the people of Ammon, ^aMachir the son of Ammiel from Lo Debar, and ^bBarzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim, ²⁸brought beds and basins, earthen vessels and wheat, barley and flour, parched grain and beans, lentils and parched seeds, ²⁹honey and curds, sheep and cheese of the herd, for David and the people who were with him to eat. And the king said to the people, "I also will surely go out with you myself."

Zadok. En Rogel was a spring or well south of Jerusalem at the junction of the Hinnom and Kidron valleys (Josh. 15:7; 18:16). a female servant: The young men would arouse suspicion by coming into the city, so a woman servant served as an intermediary. a lad saw them: The efforts of Jonathan and Ahimaaz to avoid detection were unsuccessful. Bahurim was on the east side of the Mount of Olives (16:5). The word translated well may also refer to a pit or cistern. Apparently, there was no water in it at this time.

17:22 Although the Jordan was not a large river, crossing it could be dangerous, even at the fords. David was safer once he got his family and followers across that barrier. There is a certain sadness in what David had to do. While the tribal allotments of ancient Israel included land on both sides of the Jordan, there was always an emotional understanding that the "real" land of Israel was west of the Jordan. David was truly in exile. Later, his enemies would charge him with having "fled from the land" (19:9).

17:23 Ahithophel committed suicide when he learned that his advice was not being followed. He apparently realized that Absalom's cause was doomed, and that when David returned he would be put to death as a disloyal subject.

17:24 Mahanaim was formerly Ishbosheth's capital (2:8). It was east of the Jordan and north of the Jabbok.

17:25 Absalom put his army under the command of Amasa, since Joab had remained loyal to David. who had gone in to Abigail: This is not the usual phrase for marriage, perhaps indicating that Abigail did not leave her father's authority completely.

17:26 Gilead refers to the mountainous region east of the Jordan and between the Yarmuk valley to the north and the Jabbok valley to the south. Gilead was famous in biblical times for its forests (Jer. 22:6), pasture lands (Num. 32:1-4), and the medicinal balms made from its plants (Jer. 8:22; 46:11).

17:27 When David arrived in the fortified city of Mahanaim, he found a gracious reception. Shobi was a vassal king under David who ruled Rabbah, the capital of Ammon. Lo Debar was about ten miles south of the Sea of Galilee, east of the Jordan River in the Jordan valley (9:4). Barzillai was an old man of great wealth (19:31-39; 1 Kin. 2:7).

17:29 The rulers showed compassion to David and his weary followers. Jesus taught that kindness done to others in need would not be forgotten (Matt. 25:34-36).

18:1 To prepare for battle, David counted and reviewed his fighting forces. captains of thousands: Although only a small contingent of troops left Jerusalem with David, other loyal followers soon rallied to his cause.

18:2 David divided his men into three companies—a frequent military tactic in ancient times (see Judg. 7:16; 1 Sam. 11:11). Abishai, the oldest son of David's sister Zeruiah (1 Chr. 2:16), was noted for his brave but impetuous spirit (3:30; 16:9; 1 Sam. 26:6-9). Joab, the younger brother of Abishai, had become commander of David's army as a result of his heroic leadership in the capture of Jerusalem (1 Chr. 11:4-6). Little is known of Ittai except that he was strongly committed to serving David and the Lord (15:19-22).

18:3 You shall not go out: Although David wanted to accompany his men into battle (v. 2), he was persuaded not to go, both for his own protection and for the safety of Mahanaim (17:27).

not go out! For if we flee away, they will not care about us; nor if half of us die, will they care about us. But you are worth ten thousand of us now. For you are now more help to us in the city.”

⁴Then the king said to them, “Whatever seems best to you I will do.” So the king stood beside the gate, and all the people went out by hundreds and by thousands. ⁵Now the king had commanded Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, saying, “Deal gently for my sake with the young man Absalom.” ⁶And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains orders concerning Absalom.

⁶So the people went out into the field of battle against Israel. And the battle was in the ^fwoods of Ephraim. ⁷The people of Israel were overthrown there before the servants of David, and a great slaughter of twenty thousand took place there that day. ⁸For the battle there was scattered over the face of the whole countryside, and the woods devoured more people that day than the sword devoured.

¹¹So Joab said to the man who told him, “You just saw him! And why did you not strike him there to the ground? I would have given you ten shekels of silver and a belt.”

¹²But the man said to Joab, “Though I were to receive a thousand shekels of silver in my hand, I would not raise my hand against the king’s son. ^hFor in our hearing the king commanded you and Abishai and Ittai, saying, ²‘Beware lest anyone touch the young man Absalom!’ ¹³Otherwise I would have dealt falsely against my own life. For there is nothing hidden from the king, and you yourself would have set yourself against me.”

¹⁴Then Joab said, “I cannot linger with you.” And he took three spears in his hand and thrust them through Absalom’s heart, while he was still alive in the midst of the terebinth tree. ¹⁵And ten young men who bore Joab’s armor surrounded Absalom, and struck and killed him.

¹⁶So Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing Israel. For Joab held back the people. ¹⁷And they took Absalom and cast him into a large pit in the woods, and ⁱlaid a very large heap of stones over him. Then all Israel ^jfled, everyone to his tent.

¹⁸Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and set up a ³pillar for himself, which is in ^kthe King’s Valley. For he said, ^l“I have no son to keep my name in remembrance.” He called the pillar after his own name. And to this day it is called Absalom’s Monument.

David Hears of Absalom’s Death

¹⁹Then ^mAhimaaz the son of Zadok said, “Let me run now and take the news to the king, how the LORD has ⁴avenged him of his enemies.”

²⁰And Joab said to him, “You shall not take the news this day, for you shall take the news another day. But today you shall take no news, because the king’s son is dead.” ²¹Then Joab said to the Cushite, “Go, tell the king what you have seen.” So the Cushite bowed himself to Joab and ran.

²²And Ahimaaz the son of Zadok said again to Joab, “But ⁵whatever happens, please let me also run after the Cushite.”

18:6 the woods of Ephraim: The battle took place in a dense forest north of the Jabbok River, east of the Jordan.

18:7, 8 Absalom’s newly organized army, the people of Israel, were no match for the experienced soldiers of David. the woods devoured: Because of the rugged nature of the terrain and dense growth in the forest, more deaths resulted from the pursuit than from actual combat.

18:9 the terebinth, sometimes translated oak or elm, was a strong tree, native to the land of Israel. It grows to a height of around 35 feet.

18:11 ten shekels: The shekel was the basic unit of weight, equal to 11.3 grams or about a half ounce. The belt was part of a soldier’s equipment (1 Sam. 18:4; 1 Kin. 2:5).

18:12–14 against the king’s son: The soldier had not forgotten David’s command not to harm Absalom (v. 5). Since the spears did not kill Absalom immediately (v. 15), the word translated heart may refer to Absalom’s trunk.

18:16 Joab blew the trumpet to signal the army to stop its pursuit. The death of Absalom meant the end of the rebellion. The trumpet was a ram’s horn or shofar (2:28; 6:15).

18:17 Rather than returning Absalom’s body to Jerusalem for honorable burial, Joab had it buried in a large pit in the forest. The heap of stones that covered the grave may have been symbolic of a stoning, the legal penalty due a rebel son (Deut. 21:20, 21).

18:18 The King’s Valley was near Jerusalem (Gen. 14:17). to this day: The great monument that Absalom had erected for himself was still in existence when the narrator wrote this section of 2 Samuel.

18:19 Ahimaaz with Jonathan had carried the message from Zadok and Abiathar, urging David to flee across the Jordan (17:20, 21). The word avenged is used here in the sense of “delivered.”

18:21–23 Cushite means someone of the land from Cush, the remote region of what is today southern Egypt and Sudan. let me also run: Ahimaaz could not be restrained from also running to David with the good news of victory. The plain was the floor of the Jordan valley. Ahimaaz took a longer route, but avoided the hilly terrain on the road taken by the Cushite.

So Joab said, “Why will you run, my son, since you have no news ready?”

²³ “But whatever happens,” he said, “let me run.”

So he said to him, “Run.” Then Ahimaaz ran by way of the plain, and outran the Cushite.

²⁴ Now David was sitting between the ^atwo gates. And the watchman went up to the roof over the gate, to the wall, lifted his eyes and looked, and there was a man, running alone. ²⁵ Then the watchman cried out and told the king. And the king said, “If he is alone, there is news in his mouth.” And he came rapidly and drew near.

²⁶ Then the watchman saw another man running, and the watchman called to the gatekeeper and said, “There is another man, running alone!”

And the king said, “He also brings news.”

²⁷ So the watchman said, ⁶ “I think the running of the first is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok.”

And the king said, “He is a good man, and comes with ^agood news.”

²⁸ So Ahimaaz called out and said to the king, ⁷ “All is well!” Then he bowed down with his face to the earth before the king, and said, ⁸ “Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delivered up the men who raised their hand against my lord the king!”

²⁹ The king said, “Is the young man Absalom safe?”

Ahimaaz answered, “When Joab sent the king’s servant and me your servant, I saw a great tumult, but I did not know what it was about.”

³⁰ And the king said, “Turn aside and stand here.” So he turned aside and stood still.

³¹ Just then the Cushite came, and the Cushite said, “There is good news, my lord the king! For the LORD has avenged you this day of all those who rose against you.”

³² And the king said to the Cushite, “Is the young man Absalom safe?”

So the Cushite answered, “May the enemies of my lord the king, and all who rise against you to do harm, be like that young man!”

David’s Mourning for Absalom

³³ Then the king was deeply moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept. And as he went, he said thus: ^a “O my son Absalom—my son, my son Absalom—if only I had died in your place! O Absalom my son, ^r my son!”

19 And Joab was told, “Behold, the king is weeping and ^amourning for Absalom.” ² So the victory that day was turned into ^bmourning for all the people. For the people heard it said that day, “The king is grieved for his son.”

³ And the people ¹stole back ^cinto the city that day, as people who are ashamed steal away when they flee in battle. ⁴ But the king ^dcovered his face, and the king cried out with a loud voice, “O my son Absalom! O Absalom, my son, my son!”

⁵ Then ^fJoab came into the house to the king, and said, “Today you have disgraced all your servants who today have saved your life, the lives of your sons and daughters, the lives of your wives and the lives of your concubines, ⁶ in that you love your enemies and hate your friends. For you have declared today that you ²regard neither princes nor servants; for today I perceive that if Absalom had lived and all of us had died today, then it would have pleased you well. ⁷ Now therefore,

18:24 two gates: The city of Mahanaim evidently had a double gate. Between the outer and inner gates there were probably stone benches. The roof over the gate refers to the gatehouse or fortress located on the wall over the city gate. The watchman at the gate was responsible to warn the city of an approaching army and to announce the arrival of important visitors. Lifted his eyes is a common Hebrew idiom that means “looked” (Gen. 22:4).

18:25, 26 If he is alone: The fact that only one runner was approaching led David to assume that the news was good. Perhaps he assumed that a group of men running toward the gate would have indicated a rout. Yet the approach of another man complicated the picture.

18:28 All is well: The messenger’s greeting was shalom, the word usually translated peace. your God: Ahimaaz recognized God’s strong association with David.

18:29 Is the young man Absalom safe: David expressed his first concern, his interest in the welfare of his son. Ahimaaz did not give a straight answer to David, though he knew that Absalom was dead (v. 20).

18:31, 32 the LORD has avenged: Like Ahimaaz (v. 28), the Cushite gave God credit for delivering David. Furthermore he gave an honest answer to David’s question about Absalom, although his words were carefully worded so as to soften the blow.

18:33 Was deeply moved can mean “quaked” or “quivered.” David was overcome with sorrow.

19:2, 3 the victory that day was turned into mourning: David’s unrestrained expression of grief over the death of his son turned the well-deserved victory celebration into a day of mourning, not so much for Absalom himself, but for the grief brought upon David by his death (18:33). the people stole back into the city: What a description for the return of victorious warriors! Like cowards who had fled from battle, David’s soldiers crept back into the city of Mahanaim (17:27), hoping to escape notice.

19:4 David covered his face as an expression of mourning (15:30). my son: His words, which were so touching when first announced (18:33), take on a grating sound when repeated many times.

19:5, 6 you have disgraced all your servants: Joab argued that by honoring his rebel son and neglecting his loyal soldiers, David had shamed and embarrassed those who had served him well. Your enemies: literally “those who hate you.” Your friends: literally “those who love you.” Princes refers to the captains of the army.

19:7 Speak comfort may be rephrased “speak to the heart.” David arise, go out and speak ³comfort to your servants. For I swear by the LORD, if you do not go out, not one will stay with you this night. And that will be worse for you than all the evil that has befallen you from your youth until now.” ⁸Then the king arose and sat in the ⁹gate. And they told all the people, saying, “There is the king, sitting in the gate.” So all the people came before the king.

For everyone of Israel had ^hfled to his tent.

David Returns to Jerusalem

⁹Now all the people were in a dispute throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, “The king saved us from the hand of our ⁱenemies, he delivered us from the hand of the ^jPhilistines, and now he has ^kfled from the land because of Absalom. ¹⁰But Absalom, whom we anointed over us, has died in battle. Now therefore, why do you say nothing about bringing back the king?”

¹¹So King David sent to ^lZadok and Abiathar the priests, saying, “Speak to the elders of Judah, saying, ‘Why are you the last to bring the king back to his house, since the words of all Israel have come to the king, to his ^{very} house? ¹²You are my brethren, you are ^mmy bone and my flesh. Why then are you the last to bring back the king?’ ¹³” And say to Amasa, ‘Are you not my bone and my flesh? ^oGod do so to me, and more also, if you are not commander of the army before me ⁴continually in place of Joab.’”

¹⁴So he swayed the hearts of all the men of Judah, ⁿjust as the heart of one man, so that they sent this word to the king: “Return, you and all your servants!”

¹⁵Then the king returned and came to the Jordan. And Judah came to ^qGilgal, to go to meet the king, to escort the king ^racross the Jordan. ¹⁶And ^sShimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite, who was from Bahurim, hurried and came down with the men of Judah to meet King David. ¹⁷*There were* a thousand men of ^tBenjamin with him, and ^uZiba the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and his twenty servants with him; and they went over the Jordan before the king. ¹⁸Then a ferryboat went across to carry over the king’s household, and to do what he thought good.

David’s Mercy to Shimei

Now Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king when he had crossed the Jordan. ¹⁹Then he said to the king, ^v“Do not let my lord ⁵impute iniquity to me, or remember what ^wwrong your servant did on the day that my lord the king left Jerusalem, that the king should ^xtake it to heart. ²⁰For I, your servant, know that I have sinned. Therefore here I am, the first to come today of all ^ythe house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king.”

would have to speak words of encouragement if he expected his troops to continue their support of his kingship.

19:8 The gate was the primary meeting place in ancient cities. So all the people came before the king: Although not directly stated, the context implies that David followed Joab’s counsel by expressing appreciation to his loyal troops and faithful followers. For everyone of Israel had fled to his tent: This parenthetical note indicates that the rebellion ended and Absalom’s followers returned home.

19:9, 10 The movement to restore David to power was not unanimous. Some Israelites thought that because he had fled from the land, David lost his right to rule. There may also have been some fear that David would avenge himself on those who had supported Absalom.

19:11 Zadok and Abiathar were priests who had remained in Jerusalem at David’s request during the rebellion (15:24–29). The elders of Judah were reluctant to call David back to Jerusalem, perhaps because of their part in Absalom’s insurrection (15:10, 11). David asked his friends, the priests, to begin the movement to invite David back to his throne. Apparently, he did not want to come into Jerusalem without public support for his rule.

19:12 My brethren refers to the elders of Judah (v. 11). David knew that he needed the support of his own tribe and its leaders to resume his leadership over the nation. Without their full support there was no hope for the renewal of his kingship.

19:13 Amasa, David’s nephew, had commanded the army of Absalom (17:25). David offered him Joab’s position as commander-in-chief of David’s army. This offer was intended to secure the allegiance of Amasa and the rebel army, as well as to discipline Joab for killing Absalom against his orders (18:14, 15).

19:14 David’s acts of diplomacy were effective; he was invited to return as king. The fact that David was the anointed of the Lord meant that God would ensure that David would be restored. But David could not simply wait in exile in a foreign land. He had to act on the belief that God would continue to work His will.

19:15 Gilgal, the first place the Israelites camped after they crossed the Jordan (Josh. 4:19, 20), was about a mile from Jericho.

19:16 Shimei, who had cursed David when he was forced to leave Jerusalem, no doubt feared that David would punish him for this outrageous behavior (16:5–8). He hurried to meet the king so he could make amends.

19:17 a thousand men of Benjamin: This large contingent was a very good sign to David that his old hostilities with the family of Saul were over at last. they went over the Jordan: Ziba and his sons forded the Jordan to assist David and his family in crossing.

19:19 what wrong your servant did: Shimei’s confession showed genuine repentance and godly sorrow. He added no excuse, self-justification, or explanation (compare Saul’s behavior in 1 Sam. 13:11, 12; 15:20, 21).

19:20 The designation house of Joseph was sometimes applied to the northern tribes (Ps. 78:67; Ezek. 37:16) since Ephraim, the tribe of Joseph’s son (see Gen. 48:5, 13–20), was the largest and most powerful tribe in the north.

19:21–23 Abishai once again (16:9, 10) called for the death of Shimei for cursing God’s anointed (23:1). What have I to do with you: David often had to quell the fiery spirit of his nephew (16:10).

²² And David said, ^b“What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah, that you should be adversaries to me today? ‘Shall any man be put to death today in Israel? For do I not know that today I am king over Israel?’” ²³ Therefore ^d the king said to Shimei, “You shall not die.” And the king swore to him.

David and Mephibosheth Meet

²⁴ Now ^e Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king. And he had not cared for his feet, nor trimmed his mustache, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed until the day he returned in peace. ²⁵ So it was, when he had come to Jerusalem to meet the king, that the king said to him, ^f“Why did you not go with me, Mephibosheth?”

²⁶ And he answered, “My lord, O king, my servant deceived me. For your servant said, ‘I will saddle a donkey for myself, that I may ride on it and go to the king,’ because your servant is lame. ²⁷ And ^g he has slandered your servant to my lord the king, ^h but my lord the king is like the angel of God. Therefore do what is good in your eyes. ²⁸ For all my father’s house were but dead men before my lord the king. ⁱ Yet you set your servant among those who eat at your own table. Therefore what right have I still to ⁶ cry out anymore to the king?”

²⁹ So the king said to him, “Why do you speak anymore of your matters? I have said, ‘You and Ziba divide the land.’” down from Rogelim and went across the Jordan with the king, to escort him across the Jordan. ³² Now Barzillai was a very aged man, eighty years old. And ^k he had provided the king with supplies while he stayed at Mahanaim, for he was a very rich man. ³³ And the king said to Barzillai, “Come across with me, and I will provide for you while you are with me in Jerusalem.”

³⁴ But Barzillai said to the king, “How long have I to live, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem? ³⁵ I am today ^l eighty years old. Can I discern between the good and bad? Can your servant taste what I eat or what I drink? Can I hear any longer the voice of singing men and singing women? Why then should your servant be a further burden to my lord the king? ³⁶ Your servant will go a little way across the Jordan with the king. And why should the king repay me with such a reward? ³⁷ Please let your servant turn back again, that I may die in my own city, near the grave of my father and mother. But here is your servant ^m Chimham; let him cross over with my lord the king, and do for him what seems good to you.”

³⁸ And the king answered, “Chimham shall cross over with me, and I will do for him what seems good to you. Now whatever you request of me, I will do for you.” ³⁹ Then all the people went over the Jordan. And when the king had crossed over, the king ⁿ kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and he returned to his own place.

The Quarrel About the King

⁴⁰ Now the king went on to Gilgal, and ⁷ Chimham went on with him. And all the people of Judah escorted the king, David had spared Shimei’s life once before because of the timing of his attack on him; here he spared his life again because of the timing of Shimei’s repentance. You shall not die: The amnesty granted Shimei was apparently conditioned on his continued loyalty. When David was near death, he ordered that Shimei be put to death by Solomon (1 Kin. 2:8, 9, 36–46). David could not put Shimei to death himself because of his oath; however, his son could do it if there were just cause.

19:24 Mephibosheth was actually the son of Jonathan and the grandson of Saul (4:4; 9:1–13). Ziba claimed that Mephibosheth, in the turmoil of Absalom’s revolt, sought to advance the cause of the house of Saul (16:1–4). cared for his feet: The personal neglect of Mephibosheth must have been striking. He intended his personal appearance to be a sign of mourning David’s absence.

19:26–30 Mephibosheth claimed that Ziba had taken advantage of him, since he was not able to saddle or mount his donkey without help. he has slandered your servant: At this point, David faced a dilemma. Who was telling the truth—Mephibosheth or Ziba?

Why do you speak anymore: David found the whole issue too complex to sort out. divide the land: In this way, both Ziba and Mephibosheth would be provided for in a generous manner (see 16:14). let him take it all: Mephibosheth’s final words indicated his submission to David’s decision.

19:32–34 very aged: The 80-year-old Barzillai had proven himself to be an extraordinary help to David during David’s exile. This was an opportunity for David to repay his kindness. very rich: Barzillai did not need money; David’s offer of a royal pension was based on his loyal friendship.

19:35, 36 Can I discern between the good and bad: There was no effective contrast between the opportunity David offered and Barzillai’s present living situation at Mahanaim. What real difference would the change make in his life, since he was too old to enjoy the pleasures of the court? In going a little way across the Jordan with David, Barzillai fulfilled his duty as a gracious host.

19:37, 38 Chimham was later identified by the historian Josephus as Barzillai’s son (see 1 Kin. 2:7). I will do for him: Because of his love for Barzillai, David promised to give a royal patronage to Chimham. This was similar to the provision David had made for Mephibosheth because of his love for Jonathan (ch. 9).

19:40 The term all is figurative. It means that as a whole Judah supported David. Half means that the people of Israel were less enthusiastic.

and also half the people of Israel. ⁴¹Just then all the men of Israel came to the king, and said to the king, “Why have our brethren, the men of Judah, stolen you away and ^obrought the king, his household, and all David’s men with him across the Jordan?”

⁴²So all the men of Judah answered the men of Israel, “Because the king is ^pa close relative of ours. Why then are you angry over this matter? Have we ever eaten at the king’s expense? Or has he given us any gift?”

⁴³And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, and said, “We have ^qten shares in the king; therefore we also have more right to David than you. Why then do you despise us—were we not the first to advise bringing back our king?”

Yet ^rthe words of the men of Judah were ^sfiercer than the words of the men of Israel.

The Rebellion of Sheba

20 And there happened to be there a ¹rebel, whose name was Sheba the son of Bichri, a Benjaminite. And he blew a trumpet, and said:

“We have no share in David,
Nor do we have inheritance in the son of Jesse;
^bEvery man to his tents, O Israel!”

²So every man of Israel deserted David, and followed Sheba the son of Bichri. But the ^cmen of Judah, from the Jordan as far as Jerusalem, remained loyal to their king.

³Now David came to his house at Jerusalem. And the king took the ten women, ⁴And the king said to Amasa, ^e“Assemble the men of Judah for me within three days, and be present here yourself.” ⁵So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah. But he delayed longer than the set time which David had appointed him. ⁶And David said to ^fAbishai, “Now Sheba the son of Bichri will do us more harm than Absalom. Take ^gyour lord’s servants and pursue him, lest he find for himself fortified cities, and escape us.” ⁷So Joab’s men, with the ^hCherethites, the Pelethites, and ⁱall the mighty men, went out after him. And they went out of Jerusalem to pursue Sheba the son of Bichri. ⁸When they were at the large stone which is in Gibeon, Amasa came before them. Now Joab was dressed in battle armor; on it was a belt with a sword fastened in its sheath at his hips; and as he was going forward, it fell out. ⁹Then Joab said to Amasa, “Are you in health, my brother?” ^jAnd Joab took Amasa by the beard with his right hand to kiss him. ¹⁰But Amasa did not notice the sword that was in Joab’s hand. And ^khe struck him with it ^lin the stomach, and his entrails poured out on the ground; and he did not strike him again. Thus he died.

Then Joab and Abishai his brother pursued Sheba the son of Bichri. ¹¹Meanwhile one of Joab’s men stood near Amasa, and said, “Whoever favors Joab and whoever is for David—follow Joab!” ¹²But Amasa wallowed in his blood in the middle of the highway. And when 19:41, 42 stolen you away: The people of Israel were annoyed by the fact that David’s supporters in Judah had the greater part in bringing the king back from exile east of the Jordan. The men of Judah pointed out that even though they had a tribal relationship with David, they had never taken advantage of their privileged position.

19:43 The people of Israel were claiming a greater share in David’s kingship since Israel’s northern territory was formed by ten tribes. fiercer: This bitterness between the tribes of Israel and the tribe of Judah would lead finally to the division of the nation at the time of the death of Solomon, David’s son (1 Kin. 12). In the present situation, it threatened to erupt into civil war—which would take place under the leadership of Sheba (ch. 20).

20:1 Sheba was from Benjamin, the same tribe as Saul. The term rebel, which also means “worthless person,” suggests that Sheba was a scoundrel. trumpet: As was usual for military signals (2:28; 15:10; 18:16; 20:22), Sheba sounded a shofar or ram’s horn. We have no share in David: These three lines of poetry form a campaign slogan or song of rebellion. Every man to his tents may be paraphrased, “Let’s go back home, and from there we can resist the king.”

20:2 every man of Israel: There was a general rebellion among the northern tribes. From the Jordan as far as Jerusalem: The people along David’s route to Jerusalem expressed their loyalty to the king.

20:4 Amasa, who had commanded Absalom’s army (17:25), had been offered Joab’s position as commander-in-chief of David’s army (19:13). Apparently, he accepted the offer and was commissioned to put down Sheba’s rebellion.

20:5, 6 But he delayed: Amasa’s delay in carrying out David’s order to gather forces against Sheba’s rebellion could have resulted in a disaster like that of Absalom’s revolt. Abishai, Joab’s older brother (1 Chr. 2:16), was enlisted to take command of the soldiers of Judah and put down Sheba’s revolt. David knew that Sheba’s revolt was potentially more dangerous than Absalom’s, since Sheba’s rebellion was based on long-standing tribal animosity between Israel and Judah.

20:7 Joab’s men are distinguished from the rest of David’s army. Apparently, Joab maintained his own group of elite soldiers.

20:8, 9 Gibeon was about six miles northwest of Jerusalem. Joab apparently adjusted his sword so that it fell from the sheath as he stepped forward to greet Amasa (v. 4). Assuming a mere accident, Amasa did not pay attention to the weapon in Joab’s left hand (v. 10). Are you in health, my brother: The term translated health is the Hebrew word shalom, meaning “peace.” Brother is not just a formality here; Joab and Amasa were cousins, sons of two of David’s sisters (1 Chr. 2:16, 17). Joab took Amasa by the beard: This friendly greeting, a preliminary to a kiss, was now a preparation for killing him.

20:12 wallowed in his blood: The bloody spectacle of Amasa lying on the road caused the soldiers to stop and think about what it the man saw that all the people stood still, he moved Amasa from the highway to the field and threw a garment over him, when he saw that everyone who came upon him halted. ¹³When he was removed from the highway, all the people went on after Joab to pursue Sheba the son of Bichri.

¹⁴And he went through all the tribes of Israel to ^mAbel and Beth Maachah and all the Berites. So they were gathered together and also went after ²Sheba. ¹⁵Then they came and besieged him in Abel of Beth Maachah; and they ⁿcast up a siege mound against the city, and it stood by the rampart. And all the people who were with Joab battered the wall to throw it down.

¹⁶Then a wise woman cried out from the city, "Hear, hear! Please say to Joab, 'Come nearby, that I may speak with you.'" ¹⁷When he had come near to her, the woman said, "Are you Joab?"

He answered, "I am."

Then she said to him, "Hear the words of your maidservant."

And he answered, "I am listening."

¹⁸So she spoke, saying, "They used to talk in former times, saying, 'They shall surely seek guidance at Abel,' and so they would end disputes. ¹⁹I am among the peaceable and faithful in Israel. You seek to destroy a city and a mother in Israel. Why would you swallow up ^othe inheritance of the LORD?"

²⁰And Joab answered and said, "Far be it, far be it from me, that I should swallow up or destroy! ²¹That is not so. But a man from the mountains of Ephraim, Sheba the son of Bichri by name, has raised his hand against the king, against

So the woman said to Joab, "Watch, his head will be thrown to you over the wall." ²²Then the woman ^pin her wisdom went to all the people. And they cut off the head of Sheba the son of Bichri, and threw it out to Joab. Then he blew a trumpet, and they withdrew from the city, every man to his tent. So Joab returned to the king at Jerusalem.

David Avenges the Gibeonites

21 Now there was a famine in the days of David for three years, year after year; and David ^ainquired of the LORD. And the LORD answered, "It is because of Saul and his ¹bloodthirsty house, because he killed the Gibeonites." ²So the king called the Gibeonites and spoke to them. Now the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, but ^bof the remnant of the Amorites; the children of Israel had sworn protection to them, but Saul had sought to kill them ^cin his zeal for the children of Israel and Judah.

³Therefore David said to the Gibeonites, "What shall I do for you? And with what shall I make atonement, that you may bless ^dthe inheritance of the LORD?"

might mean to follow Joab. One of the soldiers finally covered the corpse so that the shocking scene would not impede the movement of the soldiers any further.

20:14 He probably refers to Sheba, who traveled the land attempting to raise popular support for his rebellion. Abel and Beth Maachah were cities in northern Galilee so closely connected that they became identified. They were four miles west of Dan (1 Kin. 15:20; 2 Kin. 15:29).

20:15 A siege mound was used in ancient warfare to allow soldiers to reach the top of a city wall. The mound consisted of dirt and debris placed against the wall.

20:18, 19 The wise woman explained to Joab that Abel was famous for the wisdom and counsel offered by its citizens. In addition to being peaceable and faithful, Abel was noted as a mother city, or a recognized leader in the region. The citizens had done nothing to deserve the city's destruction.

20:21, 22 his head will be thrown to you: Convinced that the death of Sheba would end the siege, the people of Abel cut off his head and threw it over the wall to Joab.

20:23 Joab was the overall commander of David's army, while Benaiah was in charge of the Cherethites and the Pelethites, foreign mercenaries who fought for David.

20:24, 25 Revenue may refer to forced labor (see 1 Kin. 12:18). The recorder, meaning "one who causes to remember," was responsible for keeping official records. The scribe was the king's official secretary. 20:26 Ira replaced David's sons (8:18) as chief minister, a word customarily translated priest.

21:1 Famine was a means of divine chastening intended to lead God's people to repentance (Deut. 28:47, 48). he killed the Gibeonites: About 400 years earlier, the Gibeonites had deceived Joshua and the Israelites into making a treaty that guaranteed their protection and security (Josh. 9:3-27). Saul had broken that agreement by putting some Gibeonites to death (v. 9). This incident was not recorded elsewhere.

21:2 The Gibeonites were Canaanites living near the site of present-day El-Jib, about six miles northwest of Jerusalem. Amorites is used here as a general designation for the original population of Canaan (Gen. 15:16). Saul's zeal for the children of Israel and Judah led him to attempt to exterminate the foreign element from the land of Israel. Righteous zeal can be an act of heroic faith (Num. 25). But when zeal is misdirected, it can have serious consequences (see Rom. 10:2; Phil. 3:6).

21:3 The word translated make atonement means to remove sin or defilement by offering a substitute or paying a ransom. David offered to make a settlement with the Gibeonites for the wrong Saul had done. that you may bless the inheritance of the LORD: David wanted the Gibeonites once again to look with favor upon the people of Israel.

⁴And the Gibeonites said to him, “We will have no silver or gold from Saul or from his house, nor shall you kill any man in Israel for us.”

So he said, “Whatever you say, I will do for you.”

⁵Then they answered the king, “As for the man who consumed us and plotted against us, that we should be destroyed from remaining in any of the territories of Israel, ⁶let seven men of his descendants be delivered ^eto us, and we will hang them before the LORD ^fin Gibeah of Saul, ^gwhom the LORD chose.”

And the king said, “I will give them.”

⁷But the king spared ^hMephibosheth the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, because of ⁱthe LORD’s oath that was between them, between David and Jonathan the son of Saul. ⁸So the king took Armoni and Mephibosheth, the two sons of ^jRizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bore to Saul, and the five sons of ^kMichal the daughter of Saul, whom she ³brought up for Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholahite; ⁹and he delivered them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them on the hill ^kbefore the LORD. So they fell, all seven together, and were put to death in the days of harvest, in the first days, in the beginning of barley harvest.

¹⁰Now ^lRizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth and spread it for herself on the rock, ^mfrom the beginning of harvest until the late rains poured on them from heaven. And she did not allow the birds of the air to rest on them by day nor the beasts of the field by night.

¹¹And David was told what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done. ¹²Then David went and took the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan his son, from the men of ^jJabesh Gilead who had stolen them from the street of ^kBeth Shan, where the ^oPhilistines had hung them up, after the Philistines had struck down Saul in Gilboa. ¹³So he brought up the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son from there; and they gathered the bones of those who had been hanged. ¹⁴They buried the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son in the country of Benjamin in ^pZelah, in the tomb of Kish his father. So they performed all that the king commanded. And after that ^qGod heeded the prayer for the land.

Philistine Giants Destroyed

¹⁵When the Philistines were at war again with Israel, David and his servants with him went down and fought against the Philistines; and David grew faint. ¹⁶Then Ishbi-Benob, who was one of the sons of ^sthe ^rgiant, the weight of whose bronze spear was three hundred shekels, who was bearing a new sword, thought he could kill David. ¹⁷But ^tAbishai the son of Zeruiah came to his aid, and struck the Philistine and killed him. Then the men of David swore to him, saying, ^u“You shall go out no more with us to battle, lest you quench the “lamp of Israel.”

¹⁸^vNow it happened afterward that there was again a battle with the Philistines

21:4–6 No amount of monetary compensation, silver or gold, would satisfy the Gibeonites for the wrong that was done. Nor shall you kill any man in Israel for us may also be translated, “It is not for us to put a man to death in Israel.” The implication would then be that they had no authority, as a subject people, for taking blood vengeance. The Gibeonites sought justice in keeping with the principle of Num. 35:31, that a life demands a life. They asked David for royal authority to execute seven of Saul’s descendants. The term hang suggests some form of solemn execution, followed by the public exposure of the dead body, which was impaled on a post (Num. 25:4). The words before the LORD indicate that the judgment was intended to satisfy divine justice (v. 1). Gibeah, about three miles north of Jerusalem, had been Saul’s capital (1 Sam. 10:26).

21:7 because of the LORD’s oath: Because of David’s covenant of friendship with Jonathan, his son Mephibosheth was spared (1 Sam. 18:3; 20:8, 16). For the story of Mephibosheth, see 4:4; 9:1–13; 16:1–4; 19:24–30.

21:8 Mephibosheth, the son of Rizpah, is not the same as Jonathan’s son of the same name (v. 7). Rizpah was Saul’s concubine (3:7). The Barzillai mentioned here is not the same as David’s loyal friend of 17:27.

21:9 they hanged them: God’s law explicitly prohibited the punishment of a son for the sins of his father (Deut. 24:16; 2 Kin. 14:6, Ezek. 18:1–4, 14–17). Since there is no condemnation of David in the text and since God apparently honored the action and ended the famine (v. 14), it is possible that those who were executed had been implicated in the killing of the Gibeonites.

21:10 Rizpah remained near the bodies, protecting them from scavengers, from the barley harvest to the early rains (late April to October).

21:12, 13 Beth Shan was at the junction of the Jezreel and Jordan valleys, about four miles west of the Jordan. from the street: Apparently the bodies of Saul and Jonathan had been suspended on a wall along a main street of the Philistine city (1 Sam. 31:10). Gilboa is a small mountain range in the eastern part of the Jezreel valley (1 Sam. 31:1). Those who had been hanged refers to the seven sons in vv. 8–10.

21:14 Zelah was a town allotted to Benjamin (Josh. 18:28). God heeded the prayer for the land: Divine justice had been satisfied. God responded to the prayers of His people, bringing an end to the famine.

21:15–22 This section records the exploits of David and his men against the Philistines. The word translated giant throughout this section (vv. 16, 18, 20, 22) means one of the Rephaim, a people living in Canaan who were noted for their large size (Gen. 15:19–21; Num. 13:33; Deut. 2:11).

21:16 the spear of Ishbi-Benob weighed three hundred shekels, or approximately seven and a half pounds.

21:17 Abishai was Joab’s brother (3:30; 16:9–11; 20:6; 1 Sam. 26:6–9). You shall go out no more with us: David’s men did not want him to risk his life in battle. The lamp of Israel refers to David, whose life and leadership provided righteous guidance for the people of Israel.

21:18 Sibbechai the Hushathite is listed in 1 Chr. 11:29 with David’s mighty men.

at Gob. Then ^wSibbechai the Hushathite killed ⁶Saph, who was one of the sons of ⁷the giant. ¹⁹Again there was war at Gob with the Philistines, where ^xElhanan the son of ⁸Jaare-Oregim the Bethlehemite killed ^y*the brother of Goliath* the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

²⁰Yet again ^zthere was war at Gath, where there was a man of great stature, who had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number; and he also was born to ⁹the giant. ²¹So when he ^adefied Israel, Jonathan the son of ¹Shimea, David's brother, killed him.

^{22b}These four were born to ²the giant in Gath, and fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

Praise for God's Deliverance

22 Then David ^aspoke to the LORD the words of this song, on the day when the LORD had ^bdelivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. ²And he ^csaid:

21:21 Jonathan was David's nephew, the son of Shimea.

22:1 While this psalm later became part of the congregational worship of Israel (Ps. 18), it began as David's personal and earnest expression of praise to the LORD. This song was composed when God delivered David from the hand of Saul during David's wilderness exploits. Perhaps an incident such as the one recorded in 1 Sam. 23:24–28 provided the impetus for David to write this "song of testimony."

22:3 the horn of my salvation: The horn of an animal was used for protection and defense. Hence, the horn stands for might and power.

22:4 To be praised means "to be boasted about joyfully." God is not only worthy of our contemplative worship, but also to be celebrated for what He does for us.

22:6 Sheol is used in Hebrew poetry as a synonym for death. Many believe the word is derived from the Hebrew word meaning "to ask" or "to enquire." In the OT, Sheol is described as a place of "dust," referring to death (Job 17:16), as a place of "corruption" (Ps. 16:10), and as a "Pit" (Isa. 14:15).

22:7–15 These verses describe God's active intervention in terms reminiscent of His appearance to Moses at Mt. Sinai, with earthquakes, thunder, darkness, and lightning (Ex. 19:16–20; Ps. 68).

- And He ⁴was seen ^supon the wings of the wind.
- 12 He made ^tdarkness canopies around Him,

22:16 The imagery used here recalls the miraculous parting of the Red Sea (see Ex. 14).

22:21 according to my righteousness: David believed that God would deal with people according to their conduct, punishing the wicked and blessing the righteous (Deut. 30:15–20). These words may appear self-righteous, but they must be compared with David’s own confessions of sinfulness (compare 12:13; Ps. 38:1–10). His righteousness was based on God’s unfailing kindness to him (v. 51; Ps. 38:15).

22:22 I have kept the ways of the Lord: One thinks of David’s rash action of adultery with Bathsheba and his sending Uriah to die. How then could he say these words? Perhaps this psalm was written before those events had taken place. Yet, there were doubtless many other sins in David’s life even before the sins of great notoriety. In any event, David was forgiven those sins when he acknowledged them to the Lord. As is the case with believers today, David could stand in a position of righteousness even as he strove, by the power of God’s Spirit, to live in righteousness.

22:24 David did not claim sinless perfection. The word blameless is used of a person who is sound, wholesome, and has integrity (Gen. 17:1).

22:30 run against a troop: David refers to a successful military pursuit (see 1 Sam. 30:8).

22:32 who is God: The rhetorical question emphasizes the reality of God in contrast with false gods and idols (see Is. 40:25).

22:34 Deer are noted for their swiftness, agility, and surefootedness. They are also a picture of graceful beauty.

22:35 It would take unusual strength to bend a bow of bronze (see Job 20:24).

Your gentleness has made me great.
 37 You ^wenlarged my path under me;
 So my feet did not slip.

38 “I have pursued my enemies and

 4 ^f Ps. 89:36; Is. 60:1

Let God be exalted,
 The ⁱRock of my salvation!
 48 It is God who avenges me,
 And ^jsubdues the peoples under me;
 49 He delivers me from my enemies.
 You also lift me up above those who rise against me;
 You have delivered me from the ^kviolent man.

50 Therefore I will give thanks to You,
 O LORD, among ^lthe Gentiles,
 And sing praises to Your ^mname.

51 “Heⁿ is the tower of salvation to His
king,
And shows mercy to His ^oanointed,
To David and ^phis descendants forevermore.”

David's Last Words

23 Now these are the last words of David.

Thus says David the son of Jesse;
Thus says ^athe man raised up on high,
^bThe anointed of the God of Jacob,
 And the sweet psalmist of Israel:

2 “The ^cSpirit of the LORD spoke by me,
 And His word was on my tongue.

3 The God of Israel said,
^dThe Rock of Israel spoke to me:
 ‘He who rules over men must be just,
 Ruling ^ein the fear of God.

4 And ^f*he shall be* like the light of the morning when the sun rises,
 A morning without clouds,
 Like the tender grass springing out of the earth,
 By clear shining after rain.’

5 “Although my house is not so with God,

22:41 the necks of my enemies: This metaphor is taken from the custom of a victorious king putting his foot on the neck of a defeated foe as a sign of complete overthrow (see Ps. 110:1).

22:44 as the head of the nations: Through his military exploits and international agreements, David was able to exercise control over many surrounding nations.

22:47 The LORD lives: This shout of faith became a motto in biblical times, particularly when shouted in contrast to the false gods of other nations, who had no life. Like a Rock, God is strong, steadfast, and a place of refuge (see Ps. 91:1-3). Perhaps this metaphor recalled to David the many times he had taken refuge in rocks to elude his pursuers (1 Sam 23:25).

22:50 Because God delivered His own (vv. 48, 49), David vowed to praise Him. The word translated give thanks means “to confess publicly” or “to give public acknowledgment.” It is the primary Hebrew word for praise in the Book of Psalms.

22:51 His anointed: David referred to himself as God’s royal representative on earth. But the word anointed also points to David’s descendant, King Jesus. He is the ultimate Anointed One, the meaning of the name Messiah. The name derived from the Greek word for anointed is Christ. It is not just the “last name” of Jesus, but His great title: He is the Anointed One who is anticipated by the promises of the OT.

23:1 The Hebrew word for thus says is a stylized term that is often used in prophetic speech. It adds significance to what is said and may be translated “the solemn utterance” or “a revelation.” This is a very impressive term in Hebrew poetry; here it is used twice in one verse. raised up on high: David recalled his humble origins as a son of Jesse, whom God sovereignly exalted to the throne of Israel. the sweet psalmist of Israel: Of 150 psalms in the Book of Psalms, 73 are attributed to David by the text. No person in the Scriptures is more closely associated with music in the worship of the Lord than King David.

23:2 The spirit of the LORD spoke: David claimed to speak the words of God through his inspired poetry (see Ps. 139:4). This is a claim to the divine inspiration of the Scriptures, just as much as are the NT passages 2 Tim. 3:16; Heb. 1:1, 2; 2 Pet. 1:19-21.

23:3, 4 He who rules over men: David voiced God’s expectations for rulers. Bringing blessing like the light dawn after the rain, like a clear morning, like tender grass—each of these similes speaks of new life, purity, and refreshment. The function of the king was not to impoverish the nation. Instead, the king was to ennoble the people as he presented to them the refreshing will of God.

23:5 The establishment of the everlasting covenant that God made with David is recorded in 7:12-16. Here and in Ps. 89 are

- ⁶ Yet He has made with me an everlasting covenant,
Ordered in all things and secure.
For this is all my salvation and all my desire;
Will He not make it increase?
- ⁶ But the sons of rebellion shall all be as thorns thrust away,
Because they cannot be taken with hands.
- ⁷ But the man who touches them
Must be ¹ armed with iron and the shaft of a spear,
And they shall be utterly burned with fire in their place.”

David's Mighty Men

⁸ These are the names of the mighty men whom David had: ² Josheb-Bashebeth the Tachmonite, chief among ³ the captains. He was called Adino the Eznite, because he had killed eight hundred men at one time. ⁹ And after him was ^h Eleazar the son of ⁴ Dodo, the Ahohite, one of the three mighty men with David when they defied the Philistines who were gathered there for battle, and the men of Israel had retreated. ¹⁰ He arose and attacked the Philistines until his hand was ⁱ weary, and his hand stuck to the sword. The LORD brought about a great victory that day; and the people returned after him only to ^j plunder. ¹¹ And after him was ^k Shammah the son of Agee the Hararite. ¹ The Philistines had gathered together into a troop where there was a piece of ground full of lentils. So the people fled from the Philistines. ¹² But he stationed himself in the middle of the field, defended it, and killed the ¹³ Then ^m three of the thirty chief men went down at harvest time and came to David at ⁿ the cave of Adullam. And the troop of Philistines encamped in ^o the Valley of Rephaim. ¹⁴ David was then in ^p the stronghold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Bethlehem. ¹⁵ And David said with longing, “Oh, that someone would give me a drink of the water from the well of Bethlehem, which is by the gate!” ¹⁶ So the three mighty men broke through the camp of the Philistines, drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and took it and brought it to David. Nevertheless he would not drink it, but poured it out to the LORD. ¹⁷ And he said, “Far be it from me, O LORD, that I should do this! Is this not ^q the blood of the men who went in jeopardy of their lives?” Therefore he would not drink it.

These things were done by the three mighty men.

¹⁸ Now ^r Abishai the brother of Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was chief of ⁵ another three. He lifted his spear against three hundred men, killed them, and won a name among these three. ¹⁹ Was he not the most honored of three? Therefore he became their captain. However, he did not attain to the first three.

²⁰ Benaiah was the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man from ^s Kabzeel, ⁶ who had done many deeds. ⁴ He had killed two lion-like heroes of Moab. He also had gone down and killed a lion in the midst of a pit on a snowy day. ²¹ And he killed an Egyptian, ⁷ a spectacular man. The Egyptian had a spear in his hand; so he went down to him with a staff, wrested David's celebrations of the covenant in song. Will He not make it increase: This rhetorical question expresses David's faith that God would carry out His promise. The covenant was based on God's sovereign, unchangeable will.

23:6, 7 sons of rebellion: The Hebrew word used here is one of contempt and scorn. It is the word that wicked Shimei hurled at David when the latter was fleeing from the rebellion of his son Absalom (16:7). The word was also used to describe Sheba, the scoundrel from the tribe of Benjamin (20:1). David anticipated God's judgment upon the ungodly, who are likened to thorns fit only to be burned.

23:8 The term mighty men suggests that these were the elite of David's troops, possibly his personal bodyguards. These men were heroes in the full sense of the word. Their listing must have inspired others to attain to such accomplishments. eight hundred: Although 1 Chr. 11:11 records three hundred, this figure is probably accurate (v. 18).

23:13, 14 The Valley of Rephaim was a route to Jerusalem (5:18). Bethlehem, David's hometown (1 Sam. 16:1–13), was about six miles south of Jerusalem.

23:16 poured it out to the Lord: The water had been provided at such great risk that David regarded it as too precious to drink, and offered it as a sacrifice. Ordinarily, wine was used for a drink offering (Lev. 23:13, 18, 37); here, water more costly than the finest wine was poured in celebration before the Lord.

23:17 David calls the water blood because it was brought to him at the risk of life.

23:18 The exploits of Abishai, the brother of Joab, are detailed in the record of the life of David (2:18; 10:10; 1 Sam. 26:6–9).

23:20–23 Benaiah served as commander over the Cherethites and the Pelethites (8:18). He was in charge of David's personal bodyguards. The term his guard means “his obedience”—that is, those who were bound to obey and protect David. snowy day: A light snowfall is not unusual in the Judean hill country during the winter.

mighty men

(Heb. gibbor) (23:8; Joel 3:9) Strong's #1368

This word emphasizes excellence. In the OT, it is used for the excellence of a lion (Prov. 30:30), of good or bad men (Gen. 10:9; 1 Chr. 19:8), of giants (Gen. 6:4), of angels (Ps. 103:20), or even God (Deut. 10:17; Neh. 9:32). The phrase “mighty God” is used three times in the OT, including Isaiah's messianic prophecy of the birth of Jesus (Is. 9:6; 10:21; Jer. 32:18). The Scriptures state that the mighty man is not victorious because of his strength (Ps. 33:16) but because of his understanding and knowledge of the Lord (Jer. 9:23, 24).

David's Census of Israel and Judah

³And Joab said to the king, “Now may the LORD your God ^eadd to the people a hundred times more than there are, and may the eyes of my lord the king see it. But why does my lord the king desire this thing?” ⁴Nevertheless the king's word ²prevailed against Joab and against the captains of the army. Therefore Joab and the captains of the army went out from the presence of the king to count the people of Israel.

⁵And they crossed over the Jordan and camped in ^fAroer, on the right side of the town which is in the midst of the ravine of Gad, and toward ^gJazer. ⁶Then they came to Gilead and to the land of Tahtim Hodshi; they came to ^hDan Jaan and around to ⁱSidon; ⁷and they came to the stronghold of ^jTyre and to all the cities of the ^kHivites and the Canaanites. Then they went out to South Judah as far as Beersheba. ⁸So when they had gone through all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. ⁹Then Joab gave the sum of the number of the people to the king. ¹And there were in Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men who drew the sword, and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

The Judgment on David's Sin

¹⁰And ^mDavid's heart condemned him after he had numbered the people. So ⁿDavid said to the LORD, ^o“I have sinned greatly in what I have done; but now, I pray, O LORD, take away the iniquity of Your servant, for I have ^pdone very foolishly.”

¹¹Now when David arose in the morn-

23:24–39 thirty: The list actually contains 31 names. Apparently, the number of active soldiers in this unit was kept close to 30. With minor variations, this list is also recorded in 1 Chr. 11:26–41.

23:39 thirty-seven: This figure includes the three (vv. 8–17); Abishai and Benaiah (vv. 18–23); the 31 (vv. 24–39); and David's commander, Joab (v. 37).

24:3 why does my lord the king desire this thing: Joab, for all his faults, saw the error in David's plan (1 Chr. 21:3) and raised his protest in the form of a question. Why was this census considered sinful when God had commanded a numbering in the time of Moses (Num. 1:1–3)? David may have been trusting in military strength rather than God's protective care (Deut. 17:16). Verse 9 suggests that this census was the first step in preparing for a military draft. God's plan seems to have been for Israel to have a citizen army rather than a large standing army, so that Israel would trust in His protection.

24:5 The numbering began in the territory east of the Jordan. Aroer was about 14 miles east of the Dead Sea on the north bank of the Arnon River. Jazer was east of the Jordan, about six and a half miles west of present-day Amman.

24:6 Gilead was east of the Jordan between the Jabbok and Yarmuk Rivers. Dan Jaan is thought to refer to the city of Dan, about 23 miles north of the Sea of Galilee. Sidon was on the Mediterranean coast north of Tyre.

24:7 Tyre was on the Mediterranean coast about 35 miles northwest of the Sea of Galilee. The Hivites were Canaanites who occupied the region of Lebanon (Judg. 3:3), Shechem (Gen. 34:2), and Gibeon (Josh. 9:3). Canaanites is a general term for the non-Israelite inhabitants of the land. Beersheba was in the desert parts of Judah about 28 miles southwest of Hebron.

24:9 men who drew the sword: The numbers given refer only to men of military age. It is impressive that the division of Israel and Judah was so well established. This division would in the end result in a divided kingdom. The numbers—800,000 in Israel and 500,000 in Judah—are clearly rounded figures.

24:10 David's heart condemned him: David fell into sin on several occasions, but his heart was always sensitive to God's righteous will. He quickly confessed his wrong and sought restoration with the Lord. The text still does not state precisely what the sin was. However, we may surmise that David's intent in numbering the people had some sinister aspect to it—perhaps pride in the size of his empire.

ing, the word of the LORD came to the prophet ^aGad, David's ^rseer, saying, ¹²“Go and tell David, ‘Thus says the LORD: “I offer you three things; choose one of them for yourself, that I may do it to you.”’” ¹³So Gad came to David and told him; and he said to him, “Shall ^sseven³ years of famine come to you in your land? Or shall you flee three months before your enemies, while they pursue you? Or shall there be three days’ plague in your land? Now consider and see what answer I should take back to Him who sent me.”

¹⁴And David said to Gad, “I am in great distress. Please let us fall into the hand of the LORD, ^tfor His mercies are great; but “do not let me fall into the hand of man.”

¹⁵So ^vthe LORD sent a plague upon Israel from the morning till the appointed time. From Dan to Beersheba seventy thousand men of the people died. ¹⁶^wAnd when the ⁴angel stretched out His hand over Jerusalem to destroy it, ^xthe LORD relented from the destruction, and said to the ⁴angel who was destroying the people, “It is enough; now restrain your hand.” And the ⁴angel of the LORD was by the threshing floor of ⁵Araunah the Jebusite.

¹⁷Then David spoke to the LORD when he saw the angel who was striking the people, and said, “Surely ^yI have sinned, and I have done wickedly; but these sheep, what have they done? Let Your hand, I pray, be against me and against my father’s house.”

The Altar on the Threshing Floor

¹⁸And Gad came that day to David and said to him, ^z“Go up, erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.” ¹⁹So David, according to the word of Gad, went up as the LORD commanded. ²⁰Now Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming toward him. So Araunah went out and bowed before the king with his face to the ground.

²¹Then Araunah said, “Why has my lord the king come to his servant?”

^aAnd David said, “To buy the threshing floor from you, to build an altar to the LORD, that ^bthe plague may be withdrawn from the people.”

²²Now Araunah said to David, “Let my lord the king take and offer up whatever seems good to him. ^cLook, here are oxen for burnt sacrifice, and threshing implements and the yokes of the oxen for wood. ²³All these, O king, Araunah has given to the king.”

And Araunah said to the king, “May the LORD your God ^daccept you.”

²⁴Then the king said to Araunah, “No, but I will surely buy it from you for a price; nor will I offer burnt offerings to the LORD my God with that which costs me nothing.” So ^eDavid bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver. ²⁵And David built there an altar to the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. ^fSo the LORD heeded the prayers for the land, and ^gthe plague was withdrawn from Israel.

24:11 Gad, David’s prophet or seer, is first mentioned in 1 Sam. 22:5. He may have been one of the writers or contributing editors of 2 Samuel.

24:13 David was given a choice of three punishments for his sin: (1) seven years of famine, (2) three months of flight, or (3) three days of plague. Moses warned of all of these punishments for those who broke God’s covenant (Deut. 28:15–68).

24:14 let us fall into the hand of the LORD: David calculated that God would be more merciful than a person. He apparently took the third option, a plague. Mercies speaks of a mother’s tender compassion for her child. Even in the exercise of His wrath, God has mercy on those He disciplines (Hab. 3:2).

24:15 The nature of the plague is not specified, only that its origin was from the LORD. The number of those who died was very high, over three times the number of soldiers of Absalom’s army who perished in his abortive rebellion (18:7).

24:16 The judgment was carried out by the angel of the LORD (Judg. 6:11–22). In a demonstration of divine grace, God withheld the plague from destroying the people of Jerusalem. A threshing floor is a hard, flat surface where wheat is crushed to separate the kernels from the straw. Araunah, called Ornan in 2 Chr. 3:1, was a Jebusite, one of the original inhabitants of Jerusalem.

24:17 David interceded on behalf of the people—these sheep—regarding the plague. He once again confessed his sin (v. 10) and asked God to hold him, rather than the people, accountable.

24:22 Threshing implements refers to the heavy, wooden sleds which were dragged over wheat during the threshing process to break it up.

24:23, 24 Araunah wanted to give David the threshing floor and the oxen for sacrifice. David was unwilling to offer to the LORD that which cost him nothing. This is a powerful principle for all worship and service before the LORD. If there is no cost, there is no real sacrifice. David understood and practiced the principle of sacrificial giving to the LORD (see 2 Cor. 8:1–4). the threshing floor: The threshing floor was located on Mt. Moriah, where Abraham had bound Isaac (Gen. 22:2). Later, Solomon would build the temple at this site (1 Kin. 6; 1 Chr. 21:27–22:1; 2 Chr. 3:1). Fifty shekels of silver paid only for the threshing floor, the oxen, and the implements. The land that surrounded the threshing floor would cost considerably more—600 shekels or 15 pounds of gold (1 Chr. 21:25).

24:25 The burnt offering was the principal atoning sacrifice for unintentional sins (Lev. 1:1–17; 6:8–13). It was completely consumed upon the altar, except for the hide, which was given to the officiating priest. The peace offering was an optional sacrifice, which did not form any part of the regular offerings required in the tabernacle or temple (Lev. 3:1–17; 7:11–34). It was a voluntary expression of thanksgiving or worship. The preservation of Jerusalem and the purchase of the temple site prepared the way for the coming of David’s successor, King Solomon. He would build the temple for the true worship of Israel’s God.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS

FIRST KINGS records the lives of a number of famous people, both good and evil. King David, King Solomon, and the Queen of Sheba are famous examples of righteous people searching after God's wisdom. On the other hand, Ahab and Jezebel are two notorious examples of wicked people discarding God's law and rebelling against Him. To confront a man as wicked as Ahab, God sent someone more than equal to the task, the prophet Elijah. Often described as Israel's greatest and most dramatic prophet, Elijah displayed at Mount Carmel in an unforgettable way the power of God over the false god Baal and his four hundred prophets.

In the final analysis, 1 Kings is the story of one people headed down two different paths. It is a story of good kings and bad kings, true prophets and false prophets, and of disobedience and loyalty to God. Most importantly, it is a story of Israel's spiritual odyssey and God's faithfulness to His people.

Author and Composition First and Second Kings were originally one book in the Hebrew canon, as were the books of Samuel. The translators of the Septuagint, the Greek Old Testament of about 150 B.C., joined Samuel and Kings together and divided the resulting book into four parts. When Samuel and Kings were separated later, these four parts became 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 and 2 Kings.

Traditionally, Jeremiah was identified as the author of 1 and 2 Kings. However, contemporary critical scholarship has suggested that the books were the result of a compilation process that began with its initial composition in the late seventh century B.C. and concluded in the middle of the sixth century B.C. The proponents of this view have identified a Deuteronomistic school of writers as the source of 1 and 2 Kings because of the emphasis in these books on religious orthodoxy (the Law and the temple), the ministry of the prophets, and the central place of the Davidic dynasty.

Evangelical biblical scholars have largely rejected the idea of a Deuteronomistic school of writers. Many continue to endorse the traditional view that Jeremiah wrote the books of the Kings. They cite as evidence for his authorship his priestly origin, his prophetic activity, his access to governmental authorities at the highest level, and his great personal involvement in the complex religious, social, and political activities that occurred during the collapse and fall of Judah in the early sixth century B.C. Certainly no other single person would have been in a better position to know the spiritual situation of the day and to have access to the state records, historical information, and source material necessary for writing 1 and 2 Kings.

Nevertheless, differences in writing style between the books of Jeremiah and Kings, as well as distinctions in the use of the names of Judah's kings make any final determination of the authorship of the books of the Kings uncertain. If due weight is given to the long section dealing with Judah (2 Kin. 18:1—25:26), it may reasonably be said that both books of Kings, except the final appended historical notice (2 Kin. 25:27–30), are the work of an author who lived through the last days of Judah and the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. Perhaps the spiritual reform that followed the recovery of the Book of the Law during Josiah's reign (c. 622 B.C.) provided the necessary impetus for the author to gather up his sources and write an account of Israel's faithfulness to the covenant from the days of David until his own time.

To compose a work covering nearly four hundred years, the author of the Book of Kings would need excellent source material. Three sources are specifically named: (1) The Book of the Acts of Solomon (11:41), which detailed the events of the Solomonic era; (2) The Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel (cited 17 times in 14:19—15:31), which were the court records of the northern kingdom; and (3) The Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah (mentioned 15 times in 1 Kin. 14:29—2 Kin. 24:5), which were court records of the southern kingdom. Furthermore, the author might have had biographical accounts of David (1:1—2:11), Elijah, and Elisha (1 Kin. 16:29—2 Kin. 9:37), and access to the Book of Isaiah (compare Is. 36—39 to 2 Kin. 18:13—20:19). Such material was preserved in priestly and prophetic centers in both the northern and southern kingdoms.

Historical Content The author of 1 and 2 Kings was heir to a long history of God's dealing with His people. In the Books of Kings, the narrator presents a selected rehearsal of the events of the nation covering the period from the death of King David in the early tenth century B.C. to the fall of Jerusalem around 586 B.C. The author's focus is on the spiritual successes and failures in Israel's history.

First Kings begins this narrative with a detailed account of the great Solomonic era (971–930 B.C.; chs. 1–11). The narrative highlights Solomon's godly wisdom (1 Kin. 3; 4), his building projects, the temple and palace complex (1 Kin. 5–8), and then Solomon's spiritual failures toward the end of his reign. After Solomon's demise, the book addresses the division of the kingdom into a northern kingdom (Israel), made up of ten tribes under Jeroboam I, and a southern kingdom, centered in Judah under Solomon's son Rehoboam as king (12:1–24). Thereafter, the different fortunes of the two kingdoms are traced in terms of the blessings and punishments that come as a result of the people's obedience or disobedience to God's law. The sorry picture of Israel's growing apostasy is sketched up to the accession of Ahaziah in the northern kingdom (853–852 B.C.) and the reign of Jehoshaphat in the south (872–847 B.C.). During this period, the two kingdoms had to face the rising imperialism of Assyria, particularly during the reigns of the Assyrian kings, Ashurnasirpal II (883–859 B.C.) and Shalmaneser III (859–824 B.C.).

Thus the narrative of 1 Kings stretches from the high prosperity of the Solomonic kingdom in the tenth century B.C. to the insecurity of the mid-ninth century B.C. During this period, the internal spiritual weakness of the two Israelite kingdoms that would one day spell their defeat was beginning to take shape. The book covers an era of dramatic change.

Purpose The author's purpose in writing 1 and 2 Kings was not primarily to provide historical information. Instead, the author wanted to evaluate Israel's spiritual odyssey that resulted in God's chastisement (2 Kin. 17:7–23; 24:18–20). As a result, the author devotes considerable attention to evaluating the kings according to the way they responded to the responsibilities detailed in the Mosaic and Davidic covenants. The author notes specifically those who handled such responsibilities well, such as Hezekiah and Josiah. Moreover, the ministry of the prophets as God's authoritative messengers is highlighted. Particular attention is given to the ministries of Elijah (1 Kin. 17–19; 21; 2 Kin. 2:1–11) and Elisha (2 Kin. 2:12–8:15).

In the entire account, the author repeatedly underscores the necessity for a genuinely godly walk—one in obedience to God's law. Particularly in the accounts relating to Elijah, the author contrasts the true worship of the living God with the false religion of the Canaanites (1 Kin. 17; 18). The main difference between the true God and the false gods is that the living God faithfully fulfills His promises (1 Kin. 8:20, 23–26). Hence, the author pays special attention to God's promises in the Davidic covenant. In that covenant, God had promised to bless Israel (1 Kin. 2:4, 5, 45; 3:6, 14; 6:12, 13; 2 Kin. 8:19). Yet this blessing was tied to obedience: Israel's only hope for God's blessing and true success lay in obedience to God's word (1 Kin. 2:2–4). The failures of the Israelites to walk in God's ways and their subsequent chastisement can serve as a warning to us. At the same time, the prophets, who stood up for God's truth in a period of decline, can motivate us to stand for truth and righteousness in our time.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Although he was not all that intelligent morally, Solomon's mind-boggling wisdom points ahead to the One the apostle Paul would call the "wisdom from God" (1 Cor. 1:30). Yet in spite of Solomon's wisdom, splendor, and influence, when Jesus comes onto the scene and announces His arrival, it is only fitting that He say, "indeed a greater than Solomon is here" (Matt. 12:42).

But Solomon is not the only Messianic prototype in 1 Kings. Later in the book we are introduced to Elijah (18:1). It is true that he actually resembles John the Baptist more than Jesus, but his prophetic ministry—punctuated with miracles of feeding people with small amounts of food and raising a child from the dead—hints at the Messiah to come. And on the Mount of Transfiguration, it is Moses and Elijah who appear with Jesus (Matt. 17:3).

Adonijah Presumes to Be King

Now King David was ^aold, ¹advanced in years; and they put covers on him, but he could not get warm. ²Therefore his servants said to him, “Let a young woman, a virgin, be sought for our lord the king, and let her ²stand before the king, and let her care for him; and let her lie in your bosom, that our lord the king may be warm.” ³So they sought for a lovely young woman throughout all the territory of Israel, and found ^bAbishag the ^cShunammite, and brought her to the king. ⁴The young woman was very lovely; and she cared for the king, and served him; but the king did not know her.

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Chronology of Kings

The chronology of 1 and 2 Kings is an ongoing problem for scholars. The dating may be affected by several factors:

- 1. Coregencies. In many cases, father and son may have ruled jointly for some years, making it almost impossible to date their reigns without overlapping.
- 2. Accession and non-accession-year dating. In accession-year dating, the reckoning of the new king’s reign does not begin officially until the new year. In non-accession-year dating, the last months of the preceding king’s reign are reckoned as one year, while the remaining months are also reckoned as a full year for the new ruler. To further complicate matters, Israel used non-accession-year dating until about 900 B.C., then changed to accession-year dating. Judah used accession-year dating until about 850 B.C., then adopted the other method.
- 3. Religious and civil new years. Years were reckoned both from Tishri to Tishri (the seventh month) and from Nisan to Nisan (the first month).

the prophet, Benaiah, the mighty men, or ^pSolomon his brother.

¹¹So Nathan spoke to Bathsheba the mother of Solomon, saying, “Have you not heard that Adonijah the son of ^qHaggith has become king, and David our lord does not know it?” ¹²Come, please, let me now give you advice, that you may save your own life and the life of your son Solomon. ¹³Go immediately to King David

1:1–2:11 This section places Solomon’s reign in the context of the provisions of the Davidic covenant (2 Sam. 7). The narrator emphasizes that Solomon’s accession to the throne was the Lord’s sovereign will.

1:1–3 David was about 70 years old at the time of his death (2 Sam. 5:4; 1 Chr. 29:26–28), and the long years of warfare had doubtlessly taken their physical toll. warm: Using a healthy person’s body warmth to care for a sick person is a medical procedure noted by the second-century Greek physician Galen and the Jewish historian Josephus.

1:5 The name of David’s fourth son, Adonijah, means “The Lord Is My Lord” (2 Sam. 3:2–4). Amnon and Absalom, David’s first and third sons, both experienced violent deaths (2 Sam. 13:28, 29; 18:14). Chileab, his second son, apparently died at an early age. I will be king: Adonijah, the oldest surviving son, might have assumed that he would inherit the crown even though Solomon had been designated as successor (1:13, 17, 30; 2:15; 1 Chr. 22:9, 10). Adonijah evidently knew of the intended royal succession, because he deliberately avoided inviting those who would support the king’s choice (vv. 8, 10). Adonijah thus exalted himself against God’s will.

1:6 rebuked: While David had been a most capable leader and a man of deep spiritual sensitivity, he had not exercised proper parental discipline of his children (2 Sam. 13:21–39; 14:18–24).

1:7 In gaining important allies to support his quest for the crown, Adonijah sought the assistance of Joab, David’s general, and Abiathar, the high priest.

1:8 Zadok was descended from the priestly line of Eleazar (2 Sam. 8:17). Benaiah served as the commander of the king’s bodyguard and was considered one of David’s mighty men (2 Sam. 23:20–23). The prophet Nathan had long been David’s confidant, spiritual advisor, and conscience (2 Sam. 12:1–25). Shimei is probably the man who later became Solomon’s district governor (4:18); he should not be confused with David’s foolish enemy, Shimei the son of Gera (see 2:8; 2 Sam. 19:18–23).

1:9 Zohaleth means “Serpent.” Perhaps this was the shape of an outcropping of rock that was a well-known rendezvous point. Adonijah’s ceremonial meal was held at En Rogel near the intersection of the Hinnom and Kidron valleys, a place well situated for Adonijah’s purposes. En Rogel had positive associations with David (2 Sam. 17:17).

1:11 It is a mark of David’s integrity that Nathan, who had confronted him with his terrible sin, was still welcome in the royal household (2 Sam. 12:1–15). Nathan went to Bathsheba because she would not want to see Adonijah displace her son Solomon as heir to the throne. As David’s wife, Bathsheba had immediate access to him, and she also had considerable influence in civil and social matters (15:10–13; 19:1–3; 21:5–15, 25). If Adonijah became king she and Solomon could probably expect to die in a royal purge of all potential claimants to the throne (compare 15:29; 16:11; 2 Kin. 9:30–37; 10:1–17; 11:1).

1:12–27 Nathan and Bathsheba planned together (v. 14) how Nathan could confirm Bathsheba’s report to the king. Nathan knew of David’s solemn oath to Bathsheba (vv. 13, 30; see Lev. 19:12), but and say to him, ‘Did you not, my lord, O king, swear to your maidservant, saying, ^r“Assuredly your son Solomon shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne”? Why then has Adonijah become king?’ ¹⁴Then, while you are still talking there with the king, I also will come in after you and confirm your words.”

¹⁵So Bathsheba went into the chamber to the king. (Now the king was very old, and Abishag the Shunammite was serving the king.) ¹⁶And Bathsheba bowed and did homage to the king. Then the king said, “What is your wish?”

¹⁷Then she said to him, “My lord, ^syou swore by the LORD your God to your maidservant, saying, ‘Assuredly Solomon your son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne.’ ¹⁸So now, look! Adonijah has become king; and now, my lord the king, you do not know about it. ¹⁹He has sacrificed oxen and fattened cattle and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the sons of the king, Abiathar the priest, and Joab the commander of the army; but Solomon your servant he has not invited. ²⁰And as for you, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are on you, that you should tell them who will sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. ²¹Otherwise it will happen, when my lord the king ^urests with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon will be counted as offenders.”

²²And just then, while she was still talking with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in. ²³So they told the king, saying, “Here is Nathan the prophet.” And when he came in before the king, he bowed down before the king with his face to the ground. ²⁴And Nathan said, “My lord, O king, have you said, ‘Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne’? ²⁵For he has gone down today, and has sacrificed oxen and fattened cattle and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the king’s sons, and

David Proclaims Solomon King

²⁸Then King David answered and said, “Call Bathsheba to me.” So she came into the king’s presence and stood before the king. ²⁹And the king took an oath and said, ^x“As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my life from every distress, ³⁰^yjust as I swore to you by the LORD God of Israel, saying, ‘Assuredly Solomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne in my place,’ so I certainly will do this day.”

³¹Then Bathsheba bowed with her face to the earth, and paid homage to the king, and said, ^z“Let my lord King David live forever!”

³²And King David said, “Call to me Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada.” So they came before the king. ³³The king also said to them, ^a“Take with you the servants of your lord, and have Solomon my son ride on my own ^bmule, and take him down to ^cGihon.” ³⁴There let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet ^danoint him king over Israel; and ^eblow the horn, and say, ^f“Long live King Solomon!” ³⁵Then you shall come up after him, and he shall come and sit on my throne, and he shall be king in my place. For I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and Judah.”

³⁶Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king and said, ^f“Amen! May the LORD God of my lord the king say so was concerned that David might fail to act quickly against Adonijah’s attempted usurpation of the crown. Bathsheba’s report of the crisis was couched in terms that would provoke in David a proper sense of alarm.

1:25, 26 Giving the names of Abiathar, who was with Adonijah, and of Zadok, Benaiah, and Solomon, who were not, helped David see the situation that was developing.

1:27 Has this thing been done: Nathan’s question was both respectful and tactical. David had to act, even though he was reluctant to oppose his rebellious son (see the story of the rebellion of Absalom, 2 Sam. 15–18).

1:29 An oath in the name of the LORD was the strongest oath a faithful Israelite would take (see 17:1). During the OT period, Israelites would use very strong language in oaths (see Ruth’s words to Naomi, Ruth 1:17). Jesus told His followers to avoid oaths completely (see Matt. 5:33–37). who has redeemed my life: In these words of praise, David celebrated the innumerable times that the Lord had acted on his behalf, to deliver him from his enemies and from his own sins. Some of David’s psalms were written in connection with those times of God’s deliverance (Ps. 40; 142).

1:31 King David live forever: Bathsheba put her seal on the occasion by bowing before him and expressing the hope that his kingdom would never end.

1:32, 33 David summoned the recognized leaders in Israel who had not been party to the conspiracy (vv. 8, 10, 26) to lend their support to the coronation of Solomon. Solomon’s prestige would be enhanced by riding upon the royal mule (2 Sam. 13:29; 18:9; Zech. 9:9; Matt. 21:5). Gihon was a spring, the principal water supply for Jerusalem. It was in the Kidron valley east of the city.

1:34–37 The plans for public proclamation, with David’s sanction and with a priestly blessing, were designed to let the people of the city know that Solomon was to be the next king of Israel.

too. ^{37g}As the LORD has been with my lord the king, even so may He be with Solomon, and ^hmake his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.”

³⁸So Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, ⁱBenaiah the son of Jehoiada, the ^jCherethites, and the Pelethites went down and had Solomon ride on King David’s mule, and took him to Gihon. ³⁹Then Zadok the priest took a horn of ^koil from the tabernacle and ^lanointed Solomon. And they blew the horn, ^mand all the people said, ²“Long live King Solomon!” ⁴⁰And all the people went up after him; and the people played the flutes and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth seemed to split with their sound.

⁴¹Now Adonijah and all the guests who were with him heard it as they finished eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the horn, he said, “Why is the city in such a noisy uproar?” ⁴²While he was still speaking, there came ⁿJonathan, the son of Abiathar the priest. And Adonijah said to him, “Come in, for ^oyou are a prominent man, and bring good news.”

⁴³Then Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, “No! Our lord King David has made Solomon king. ⁴⁴The king has sent with him Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, the Cherethites, and the Pelethites; and they have made him ride on the king’s mule. ⁴⁵So Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king at Gihon; and they have gone up from there rejoicing, so that the city is in an uproar. This is the noise that you have heard. ⁴⁶Also Solomon ^psits on the throne of the kingdom. ⁴⁷And moreover the king’s servants have gone to bless our lord King David, saying, ^q“May God make the name ⁴⁹So all the guests who were with Adonijah were afraid, and arose, and each one went his way.

⁵⁰Now Adonijah was afraid of Solomon; so he arose, and went and ^ttook hold of the horns of the altar. ⁵¹And it was told Solomon, saying, “Indeed Adonijah is afraid of King Solomon; for look, he has taken hold of the horns of the altar, saying, ‘Let King Solomon swear to me today that he will not put his servant to death with the sword.’”

⁵²Then Solomon said, “If he proves himself a worthy man, ^vnot one hair of him shall fall to the earth; but if wickedness is found in him, he shall die.” ⁵³So King Solomon sent them to bring him down from the altar. And he came and fell down before King Solomon; and Solomon said to him, “Go to your house.”

David’s Instructions to Solomon

2 Now ^athe days of David drew near that he should die, and he ¹charged Solomon his son, saying: ^{2b}“I go the way of all the earth; ^cbe strong, therefore, and prove yourself a man. ³And keep the charge of the LORD your God: to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, His commandments, His judgments, and His testimonies, as it is written in the Law of Moses, that you may ^dprosper in all that you do and wherever you turn; ⁴that the LORD may ^efulfill His word which He spoke concerning me, saying, ^f“If your

1:38 The Cherethites and Pelethites were David’s bodyguard (2 Sam. 8:18; 15:18; 20:7). Their association with David stretched back to his days among the Philistines, with whom both groups are usually identified (1 Sam. 30:13, 14; Ezek. 25:16; Zeph. 2:5).

1:39, 40 Solomon’s anointing by the priest Zadok was normal procedure for an uninterrupted succession to the throne. When there was an interruption in the dynastic line, the anointing was performed by a prophet (see 19:15–18; 2 Kin. 9:1–10). Every priestly anointing would recall the words of Ps. 2, in accordance with the words of the Davidic covenant of 2 Sam. 7. The anointing announced that the anointed one was now the adopted son of the living God. Every anointing in the OT points forward to the ultimate Anointed One, the Messiah Jesus. The blowing of the horn celebrated and announced the anointing of a new king. The joy of the people seemed boundless, as the earth seemed to split with their sound.

1:41–49 The noise first, and then the news of the anointing of Solomon at Gihon, quickly reached Adonijah and his party at En Rogel just a few hundred feet further south (v. 9). This led to the complete demoralization of the coconspirators of Adonijah.

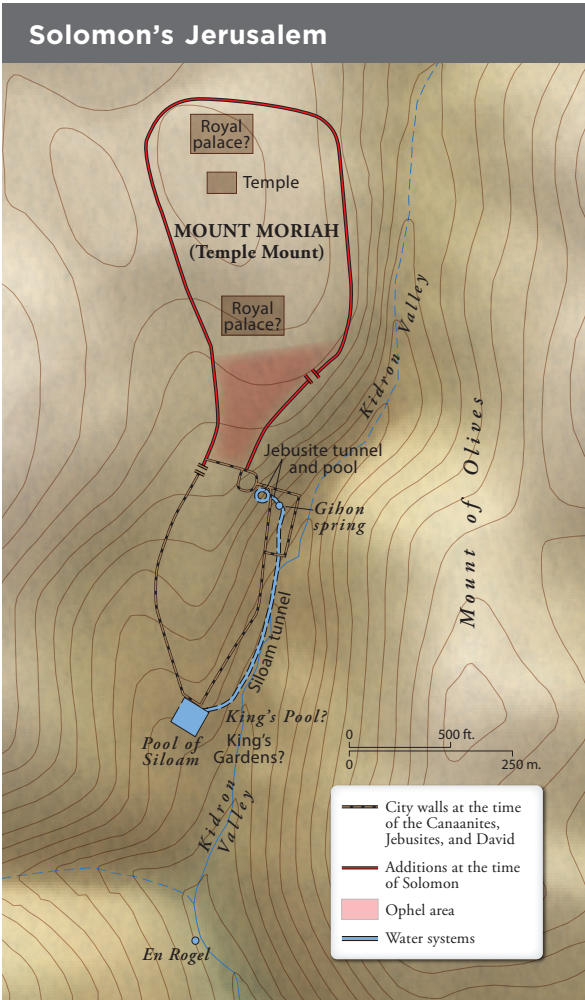

1:50–53 Adonijah’s quest for mercy at the bloodstained (Lev. 4:7, 18, 25, 30) horns of the altar (v. 50) was in keeping with the traditional function of the altar as a haven of refuge for those who had committed unintentional crimes (Ex. 21:12–14). Later Joab also would try to find safety there (2:28).

1:53 Even though David was still alive (see 2:1–12) and the coronation had not yet taken place, the public celebration at his prophetic anointing at Gihon (1:38–40) was basically the same as declaring Solomon Israel’s king. The name Solomon is related to the Hebrew word for “peace,” and the verb meaning “to be complete.” Go to your house: Solomon gave temporary clemency to his half brother, likely out of respect for his father.

2:1–3 he charged Solomon: David was following spiritual precedent as well as the custom of the ancient Middle East by passing on instruction to his son (see 1 Chr. 28; 29). David’s charge to Solomon was reminiscent of Moses’ words to the Israelites (Deut. 31:6) and the Lord’s admonition to Joshua (Josh. 1:6, 7, 9). The specific instructions given here echo the standards of righteousness associated with the Mosaic covenant (Deut. 5:33; 8:6, 11; 11:1, 22).

2:4 not lack a man: God had made an unconditional covenant with David (2 Sam. 7:12–16; 1 Chr. 17:11–14), granting to him a continual posterity and a royal dynasty. Although the Davidic covenant was an everlasting sacred promise, individual kings through their evil behavior could fail to receive the benefits of the covenant (see Ps. 89:3, 4, 14–24, 27–37). The line of promise would be preserved and

Death of David

Israel "would not lack a man," but there would come a time when the promised Ruler would not be on an earthly throne (Hos. 3:4). God's prophets predict that the heir of the throne of David will yet reign over a repentant, regathered, and restored Israel (see Jer. 33:19–26; Ezek. 34:22–31) in fulfillment of the promises contained in the Abrahamic, Davidic, and New covenants (Ezek. 37:21–28; Mic. 7:18–20). The NT reveals that all this will be realized in Jesus Christ, the Savior King (Acts 3:25, 26; 15:16, 17; Gal. 3:26–29; Rev. 3:21), who is David's Heir in the ultimate sense (Acts 2:22–36).

2:5–9 David's parting advice singled out some problems that had not been solved. One concerned Joab. The bold, headstrong Joab had murdered two generals (2 Sam. 3:27; 20:10) and David's son Absalom (2 Sam. 18:14); he also had joined Adonijah's ill-fated conspiracy (1:7, 19). Another problem concerned Shimei, who had treated the king shamefully on a previous occasion (2 Sam. 16:5–13; 19:16–23). gray hair: Both Joab and Shimei had lived a long time without requital for their wicked deeds. The aged king knew that these men would likely continue to be a problem to Solomon even as they had been to him.

2:7 David also included directions of kindness for the household of Barzillai, who had stood by him throughout the period associated with Absalom's rebellion (2 Sam. 17:27–29; 19:31–39). To eat at the king's table carried with it not only distinct honor, but royal favor (see 2 Sam. 9:7; 2 Kin. 25:29). It meant that the royal household would make provision for this family in perpetuity.

2:10 There is a so-called tomb of David today on Mt. Zion in Jerusalem marking approximately where he might have been buried.

Solomon Executes Adonijah

¹³Now Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bathsheba the mother of Solomon. So she said, ^z“Do you come peaceably?”

And he said, “Peaceably.” ¹⁴Moreover he said, “I have something to say to you.”

And she said, “Say it.”

¹⁵Then he said, “You know that the kingdom was ^amine, and all Israel had set their expectations on me, that I should reign. However, the kingdom has been turned over, and has become my brother’s; for ^bit was his from the LORD. ¹⁶Now I ask one petition of you; do not ³deny me.”

And she said to him, “Say it.”

¹⁷Then he said, “Please speak to King Solomon, for he will not refuse you, that he may give me ^cAbishag the Shunammite as wife.”

¹⁸So Bathsheba said, “Very well, I will speak for you to the king.”

¹⁹Bathsheba therefore went to King Solomon, to speak to him for Adonijah. And the king rose up to meet her and ^dbowed down to her, and sat down on his throne and had a throne set for the king’s mother; ^eso she sat at his right hand. ²⁰Then she said, “I desire one small petition of you; do not ^frefuse me.”

And the king said to her, “Ask it, my mother, for I will not refuse you.”

²¹So she said, “Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah your brother as wife.”

²²And King Solomon answered and said to his mother, “Now why do you ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Ask for him the kingdom also—for he is my ^golder brother—for him, and for ^hAbiathar the priest, and for Joab the son of Zeruiah.” ²³Then King Solomon swore by the LORD, saying, ^h“May God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah has not spoken this word against his own life! ²⁴Now therefore, as the LORD lives, ²⁵So King Solomon sent by the hand of ^jBenaiah the son of Jehoiada; and he struck him down, and he died.

Abiathar Exiled, Joab Executed

²⁶And to Abiathar the priest the king said, “Go to ^kAnathoth, to your own fields, for ⁶you are deserving of death; but I will not put you to death at this time, ^lbecause you carried the ark of the Lord God before my father David, and because you were afflicted every time my father was afflicted.” ²⁷So Solomon removed Abiathar from being priest to the LORD, that he might ^mfulfill the word of the LORD which He spoke concerning the house of Eli at Shiloh.

²⁸Then news came to Joab, for Joab ⁿhad defected to Adonijah, though he had not defected to Absalom. So Joab fled to the tabernacle of the LORD, and ^otook hold of the horns of the altar. ²⁹And King Solomon was told, “Joab has fled to the tabernacle of the LORD; there he is, by the altar.” Then Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, “Go, ^pstrike him down.” ³⁰So Benaiah went to the tabernacle of the LORD, and said to him, “Thus says the king, ^q‘Come out!’”

And he said, “No, but I will die here.” And Benaiah brought back word to the king, saying, “Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.”

³¹Then the king said to him, ^r“Do as he has said, and strike him down and bury him, ^sthat you may take away from me and from the house of my father the innocent blood which Joab shed. ³²So the LORD ^twill return his ⁷blood on his head, because he struck down two men more righteous ^uand better than he, and killed them with the sword—^vAbner the son of Ner, the commander of the army of Israel, and ^wAmasa the son of Jether, the commander of the army of Judah—though my father David did not know

2:13, 17 come peaceably: Adonijah would have Bathsheba believe that his request for Abishag was simply compensation for not receiving the crown that all had expected to go to him. Yet Adonijah’s plea carried with it serious ramifications. Taking a member of the king’s harem would normally be interpreted as a claim to the throne (2 Sam. 3:7–10; 12:8; 16:21, 22). Abishag had cared for David in his old age (1:1–4, 15).

2:22 the kingdom also: Solomon not only saw through Adonijah’s plot, but recognized Joab and Abiathar as fellow conspirators. All three were dealt with severely (vv. 23–35).

2:25 hand of Benaiah: This mighty man of David did not participate in Adonijah’s plots (1:8, 26). Furthermore, he participated in the anointing of Solomon at Gihon (1:38).

2:27 When Abiathar was removed from office as a priest, his influence was greatly restricted. Solomon spared Abiathar’s life in recognition of his past service to God and David (2 Sam. 15:24, 29; 1 Chr. 15:11–15). With this act God’s word to Eli came to fulfillment. Eli’s descendants were removed from serving the Lord (1 Sam. 2:30–33).

2:28 Because Joab was a murderer (2 Sam. 3:27; 18:14; 20:10), he could not claim the protective sanctity of the horns of the altar (1:50). Therefore, he could not escape execution (vv. 29–31).

it. ³³ Their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab and ^u upon the head of his descendants forever. ^v But upon David and his descendants, upon his house and his throne, there shall be peace forever from the LORD.”

³⁴ So Benaiah the son of Jehoiada went up and struck and killed him; and he was buried in his own house in the wilderness. ³⁵ The king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in his place over the army, and the king put ^z Zadok the priest in the place of ^a Abiathar.

Shimei Executed

³⁶ Then the king sent and called for ^b Shimei, and said to him, “Build yourself a house in Jerusalem and dwell there, and do not go out from there anywhere. ³⁷ For it shall be, on the day you go out and cross ^c the Brook Kidron, know for certain you shall surely die; ^d your ^e blood shall be on your own head.”

³⁸ And Shimei said to the king, “The saying is good. As my lord the king has said, so your servant will do.” So Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days.

³⁹ Now it happened at the end of three years, that two slaves of Shimei ran away to ^e Achish the son of Maachah, king of Gath. And they told Shimei, saying, “Look, your slaves are in Gath!” ⁴⁰ So Shimei arose, saddled his donkey, and went to Achish at Gath to seek his slaves. And Shimei went and brought his slaves from Gath. ⁴¹ And Solomon was told that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and had come back. ⁴² Then the king sent and called for Shimei, and said to him, “Did I not make you swear by the LORD, and warn you, saying, ‘Know for certain that on the day you go out and travel anywhere, you shall surely die’? And you said to me, ‘The word I have heard is good.’ ⁴³ Why then have you not kept the oath of the LORD and the commandment that I gave you?” ⁴⁴ The king said more-

Solomon Requests Wisdom

3 Now ^a Solomon made ¹ a treaty with Pharaoh king of Egypt, and married Pharaoh’s daughter; then he brought her ^b to the City of David until he had finished building his ^c own house, and ^d the house of the LORD, and ^e the wall all around Jerusalem. ² ^f Meanwhile the people sacrificed at the high places, because there was no house built for the name of the LORD until those days. ³ And Solomon ^g loved the LORD, ^h walking in the statutes of his father David, except that he sacrificed and burned incense at the high places.

⁴ Now ⁱ the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there, ^j for that was the great high place: Solomon offered a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. ⁵ ^k At Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon ^l in a dream by night; and God said, “Ask! What shall I give you?”

⁶ ^m And Solomon said: “You have shown great mercy to Your servant David my father, because he ⁿ walked before You in truth, in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with You; You have continued this great kindness for him, and You ^o have given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. ⁷ Now, O LORD my God, You have made Your servant king instead of my father David, but I am a ^p little child; I do not know how

2:35 Solomon then decisively appointed his two loyalists to the positions vacated. Benaiah became the captain of the army and Zadok the high priest. Zadok was a descendant of Eleazar, the son of Aaron (see 1 Chr. 6:4-8).

2:36-46 At first Solomon placed Shimei under an extended house arrest rather than executing him outright for his shameful treatment of David (see 2:8, 9). However, Shimei felt he must pursue two slaves that had run away. This disobedience led to his death. all the wickedness: Shimei had openly opposed and cursed David (2 Sam. 16:5-13; 19:16-23). He openly violated the terms of the agreement with Solomon (vv. 36, 37). By executing Joab and Shimei and removing Abiathar, Solomon fulfilled David’s instructions to him (vv. 5, 8) and also solved the problem of a hostile high priest.

3:1 married: In the ancient Middle East, political alliances were often ratified by the marriage of the son of one king to the daughter of another. Except in unusual circumstances, the pharaohs of Egypt did not observe this custom (but see 1 Chr. 4:17, 18). Therefore, the giving of Pharaoh’s daughter to Solomon attested to the Israelite king’s growing prestige and importance to the Egyptian king. Pharaoh gave the important town of Gezer to the couple as a wedding present (9:16). house of the Lord: Both Solomon’s palace and the temple are called a house. Just as Solomon occupied the palace, the Lord was considered uniquely present with His people in the temple.

3:2 Whether the worship ceremonies took place in specially constructed enclosures or at an open-air sanctuary (13:32), such hilltop areas or high places provided a setting where Canaanite religious rites could be infiltrated into Israel’s worship (11:7; 2 Kin. 16:4).

3:5 Gibeon is a hill about six miles northwest of Jerusalem.

3:7 The term for child often refers to a servant or to an inexperienced person still in training for a profession (see 19:21; 20:14, 15; 2 Kin. 4:12). With proper humility, Solomon stressed his relative youth and inexperience.

⁹to go out or come in. ⁸And Your servant is in the midst of Your people whom You ^rhave chosen, a great people, ^stoo numerous to be numbered or counted. ⁹^tTherefore give to Your servant an ²understanding heart ^uto judge Your people, that I may ^vdiscern between good and evil. For who is able to judge this great people of Yours?"

¹⁰The speech pleased the Lord, that Solomon had asked this thing. ¹¹Then God said to him: "Because you have asked this thing, and have ^wnot asked long life for yourself, nor have asked riches for yourself, nor have asked the life of your enemies, but have asked for yourself understanding to discern justice, ¹²^xbehold, I have done according to your words; ^ysee, I have given you a wise and understanding heart, so that there has not been anyone like you before you, nor shall any like you arise after you. ¹³And I have also ^zgiven you what you have not asked: both ^ariches and honor, so that there shall not be anyone like you among the kings all your days. ¹⁴So ^bif you walk in My ways, to keep My statutes and My commandments, ^cas your father David walked, then I will ^dlengthen ³your days."

¹⁵Then Solomon ^eawoke; and indeed it had been a dream. And he came to Jerusalem and stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, offered up burnt offerings, offered peace offerings, and ^fmade a feast for all his servants.

Solomon's Wise Judgment

¹⁶Now two women who were harlots came to the king, and ^gstood before him. ¹⁷And one woman said, "O my lord, this woman and I dwell in the same house; and I gave birth while she was in the house. ¹⁸Then it happened, the third day after I had given birth, that this woman also gave birth. woman's son died in the night, because she lay on him. ²⁰So she arose in the middle of the night and took my son from my side, while your maidservant slept, and laid him in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. ²¹And when I rose in the morning to nurse my son, there he was, dead. But when I had examined him in the morning, indeed, he was not my son whom I had borne."

²²Then the other woman said, "No! But the living one is my son, and the dead one is your son."

And the first woman said, "No! But the dead one is your son, and the living one is my son."

Thus they spoke before the king.

²³And the king said, "The one says, 'This is my son, who lives, and your son is the dead one'; and the other says, 'No! But your son is the dead one, and my son is the living one.'" ²⁴Then the king said, "Bring me a sword." So they brought a sword before the king. ²⁵And the king said, "Divide the living child in two, and give half to one, and half to the other."

²⁶Then the woman whose son was living spoke to the king, for ^hshe yearned with compassion for her son; and she said, "O my lord, give her the living child, and by no means kill him!"

But the other said, "Let him be neither mine nor yours, but divide him."

²⁷So the king answered and said, "Give the first woman the living child, and by no means kill him; she is his mother."

²⁸And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had rendered; and they feared the king, for they saw that the ⁱwisdom of God was in him to administer justice.

Solomon's Administration

4 So King Solomon was king over all Israel. ²And these were his officials: Azariah the son of Zadok, the priest; ³Elihioreph and Ahijah, the sons of Shisha,

3:9 an understanding heart: The phrase suggested not only the willingness and patience to listen to all sides of an issue, but also the desire for the ability to reason.

3:12 God answered Solomon's request in abundant measure, granting him not only an understanding heart, but one that was wise for handling the crucial affairs of life in a fair and skillful manner. The abilities that God gave to Solomon were truly exceptional.

3:13 what you have not asked: Because Solomon chose a greater gift than riches and honor, God promised him everything else as well (Matt. 6:33).

3:15 a dream: Dreams were one of the ways that God revealed His will (Gen. 20:3; 37:5; Dan. 2:3). Although David had brought the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6), the tabernacle and its furnishings remained in Gibeon, which served as an important worship center (v. 4; see 2 Chr. 1:3–5).

3:16 The fact that harlots could appear before Solomon suggested that he made himself available to persons of all stations of life who had a legitimate claim for justice.

3:26 yearned with compassion: Her love as a mother made her give up her own child rather than see it die.

3:28 wisdom . . . justice: These important qualities which marked Solomon's reign from the beginning would characterize the rule of Israel's Messiah in a far greater way (Is. 11:1–5).

4:1–6 Solomon's wisdom was also demonstrated in his appointment of proper officials for all the needs of state. For civil affairs, Solomon appointed scribes and a chief officer over the district officials (Azariah). He chose Benaiah to replace Joab as commander for the army (see also 2:35) and a head of forced labor. As a part of his personal staff, he appointed a special advisor, the king's friend; a chief of protocol, the recorder; and a minister of palace and state, to be over the household. This last position became a powerful office in royal administration. Men who occupied this powerful position were Obadiah (18:3), Eliakim (2 Kin. 18:18), and Shebna (Is. 22:15).

as the sand by the sea in multitude, ^eeating and drinking and rejoicing. ²¹So ^pSolomon reigned over all kingdoms from ^qthe ⁷River to the land of the Philistines, as far as the border of Egypt. ^r*They* brought tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life.

²²s Now Solomon's ⁸provision for one day was thirty ⁹kors of fine flour, sixty kors of meal, ²³ten fatted oxen, twenty oxen from the pastures, and one hundred sheep, besides deer, gazelles, roebucks, and fatted fowl.

²⁶s Solomon had ³forty thousand stalls of ^zhorses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. ²⁷And ^athese governors, each man in his month, provided food for King Solomon and for all who came to King Solomon's table. There was no lack in their supply. ²⁸They also brought barley and straw to the proper place, for the horses and steeds, each man according to his charge.

²⁹And ^bGod gave Solomon wisdom and exceedingly great understanding, and largeness of heart like the sand on the seashore. ³⁰Thus Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the men ^cof the East and all ^dthe wisdom of Egypt. ³¹For he was ^ewiser than all men—^fthan Ethan the Ezrahite, ^gand Heman, Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol; and

4:7–19 These twelve governors were in charge of Solomon's districts. They were responsible for handling lesser administrative tasks and raising revenue for the crown. The districts did not follow tribal boundaries.

4:18 Not the same person as the Shimei at 2:8. This Shimei may be the Shimei of 1:8—a supporter of Solomon.

4:20, 21 numerous as the sand: God fulfilled His promise to make Abraham's descendants numerous, a great nation (Gen. 15:5, 18). Solomon's kingdom extended far beyond the traditional boundaries of Israel. Through this greatly expanded empire, Jewish people not only traveled to far-flung regions, but they took with them their knowledge of the living God. River: The Euphrates.

4:22 kors: The kor was the same size as the homer (Ezek. 45:14), six and a quarter bushels, a normal load for a donkey.

4:23 oxen ... fowl: Meat was a rare item in a person's diet, suggestive of a feast (Prov. 9:2).

4:24, 25 The name Solomon is related to the word peace. It is fitting for this name to be associated with the time of Israel's great reign of peace. The vine and fig tree are symbols of God's blessing for those who obey His covenant.

4:26 forty thousand stalls: Some Greek manuscripts read four thousand (a figure also found in 2 Chr. 9:25). According to 10:26 and 2 Chr. 1:14, Solomon had 1,400 chariots. Since three horses were considered a chariot team and would be quartered together, four thousand would be about the number of horses Solomon needed.

4:27, 28 The immense provisions needed for the royal house (vv. 22, 23) were supplied monthly by each of the 12 governors (see 4:7–19).

4:29 In addition to giving Solomon, literally, a hearing (3:9) and discerning (3:12) heart, God gave him largeness (or breadth) of heart. All three Hebrew terms underscore Solomon's understanding. This verse describes Solomon's understanding as limitless and immeasurable, like the sand on the seashore, just like the numbers of the Israelites (v. 20).

4:30 The term men of the East has been associated with Mesopotamia (Gen. 29:1), the east bank of the Jordan (Is. 11:14), or with Arabia in general (Judg. 6:3, 33; 7:12). All these are places whose inhabitants had a reputation for wisdom (see Obad. 8). The fabled reputation of the wisdom of Egypt had been attested to in Egyptian literature for more than a millennium before Solomon's time.

4:31 Ethan the Ezrahite: See the title of Ps. 89. Heman: See 1 Chr. 16:42 (where Jeduthun may be the same as Ethan).

his fame was in all the surrounding nations. ^{32h}He spoke three thousand proverbs, and his ⁱsongs were one thousand and five. ³³Also he spoke of trees, from the cedar tree of Lebanon even to the hyssop that springs out of the wall; he spoke also of animals, of birds, of creeping things, and of fish. ³⁴And men of all nations, from all the kings of the earth who had heard of his wisdom, ^jcame to hear the wisdom of Solomon.

Solomon Prepares to Build the Temple

5 Now ^aHiram king of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon, because he heard that they had anointed him king in place of his father. ^bfor Hiram had always loved David. ²Then ^cSolomon sent to Hiram, saying:

- ³ ^dYou know how my father David could not build a house for the name of the LORD his God ^ebecause of the wars which were fought against him on every side, until the LORD put ¹his foes under the soles of his feet.

wages for your servants according to whatever you say. For you know there is none among us who has skill to cut timber like the Sidonians.

⁷So it was, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly and said, Blessed be the LORD this day, for He has given David a wise son over this great people!

⁸Then Hiram sent to Solomon, saying:

I have considered the message which you sent me, and I will do all you desire concerning the cedar and cypress logs.

⁹ My servants shall bring them down ^jfrom Lebanon to the sea; I will float them in rafts by sea to the place you indicate to me, and will have them broken apart there; then you can take them away. And you shall fulfill my desire ^kby giving food for my household.

¹⁰Then Hiram gave Solomon cedar and cypress logs according to all his desire. ¹¹^lAnd Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand ⁵kors of wheat as food for his household, and ⁶twenty kors of pressed oil. Thus Solomon gave to Hiram year by year.

¹²So the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, ^mas He had promised him; and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and the two of them made a treaty together.

4:32–34 proverbs . . . songs: Solomon was the author of a large part of the Book of Proverbs. He is also traditionally assigned the authorship of the Song of Solomon, Ps. 72 and 127, and Ecclesiastes.

5:1 Hiram: This Phoenician king ruled over Tyre for 34 years (978–944 B.C.). Loved reflects traditional Middle Eastern diplomatic vocabulary for political alliances and reinforces the biblical evidence that Hiram was David’s friend and ally (v. 12; see 2 Sam. 5:11, 12). Hiram initiated the relationship with Solomon, based on his earlier relationship with David. When Solomon wrote to Hiram (vv. 2–6), he spoke freely of the Lord as the God of David and himself. Hiram responded with praise (v. 7).

5:3 house: Although God did not allow David to build the temple (2 Sam. 7:13), David made preparations for it (1 Chr. 21:18–22:19; 28:9–29:19). name: God’s name was associated with His revealed character and reputation (see Ex. 3:14, 15), as well as His sovereign ownership of everything (Ex. 20:24; Ps. 22:22).

5:4 The shift from “the LORD his God” (v. 3) to the LORD my God demonstrates that Solomon and his father had the same faith.

5:6 cedars . . . Lebanon: In addition to the Bible, other ancient literature attests to the extensive use of wood from the cedar trees of Lebanon for building and furnishing temples and palaces. The principal building material in Jerusalem was limestone. none among us: Since Israel did not have cedar forests like those in Lebanon, the Israelites did not have workmen skilled in building with it.

5:7 Blessed be the Lord: The acknowledgment of another people’s deity is well known both in the Bible (10:9; Dan. 3:28) and in other ancient Middle Eastern literature.

5:8–11 Hiram’s reply indicates that he was a shrewd businessman. Not only would Solomon pay the wages of Hiram’s servants, but he would make the payments to Hiram (vv. 6, 11; 2 Chr. 2:10). In addition to men and material, Hiram also supplied gold to Solomon, for which he apparently demanded collateral (9:10–14), and which Solomon could later redeem (2 Chr. 8:1, 2).

understanding

(Heb. tebunah) (4:29; Job 12:13; Prov. 3:13; 21:30) Strong’s #8394

The verbal root of this noun means “to distinguish” or “to discern.” Thus this noun conveys the idea of discernment. The Hebrew word is directly connected to the idea of wisdom in 22 passages, including Prov. 8 where they are both personified (7:14; Ex. 31:3; Prov. 8:1; 10:23). Due to its close association with wisdom, the word occurs often in Proverbs. Solomon contrasted understanding with folly (Prov. 14:29; 15:21; 18:2). He also exhorted his son to apply his heart to understanding (Prov. 2:2). Ultimately all discernment is from the Lord (Prov. 2:6), whose wisdom is infinite (Ps. 147:5; Is. 40:28).

¹³Then King Solomon raised up a labor force out of all Israel; and the labor force was thirty thousand men. ¹⁴And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month in shifts: they were one month in Lebanon and two months at home; ¹⁵Adoniram was in charge of the labor force. ¹⁶So Solomon had seventy thousand who carried burdens, and eighty thousand who quarried stone in the mountains, ¹⁷besides three thousand ¹⁸three hundred from the ¹⁹chiefs of Solomon's deputies, who supervised the people who labored in the work. ¹⁷And the king commanded them to quarry large stones, costly stones, and ¹⁸hewn stones, to lay the foundation of the ¹⁹temple. ¹⁸So Solomon's builders, Hiram's builders, and the Gebalites quarried them; and they prepared timber and stones to build the ⁹temple.

the ³sanctuary of the house was ⁴twenty cubits long across the width of the house, and the width of ⁵the vestibule extended ⁶ten cubits from the front of the house. ⁴And he made for the house ^dwindows with beveled frames.

⁵Against the wall of the ⁷temple he built ^echambers all around, against the walls of the temple, all around the sanctuary ^fand the ⁸inner sanctuary. Thus he made side chambers all around it. ⁶The lowest chamber was five cubits wide, the middle was six cubits wide, and the third was seven cubits wide; for he made narrow ledges around the outside of the temple, so that the support beams would not be fastened into the walls of the ⁹temple. ⁷And ^gthe temple, when it was being built, was built with stone finished at the quarry, so that no hammer or chisel or any iron tool was heard in the temple while it was being built. ⁸The doorway for the ¹middle story was on the right side of the temple. They went up by stairs to the middle story, and from the middle to the third.

⁹h So he built the ²temple and finished it, and he paneled the temple with beams and boards of cedar. ¹⁰And he built side chambers against the entire temple, each five cubits high; they were attached to the temple with cedar beams.

5:13, 14 labor force: The workmen were put to work as forced labor gangs on public projects. Solomon's long and extensive use of this type of social conscription to accomplish his vast building projects became a source of considerable difficulty for his successor Rehoboam (12:4).

5:15-17 quarried stone: Stonecutters were common laborers who cut and crushed rocks from a quarry.

6:1 four hundred and eightieth year: Many scholars take this date as the key date for establishing the time of the Exodus. The division of the kingdom at the death of Solomon can be dated at 930 B.C. (11:41-43). Allowing 40 years for Solomon's rule (11:42), the fourth year of his reign would be 966 B.C. If the Exodus took place 480 years before 966 B.C., its date was 1446 B.C. Some consider this date too early for what occurs in the Book of Exodus and date the Exodus in the thirteenth century B.C. They suggest that the 480 years may be a round figure representing 12 generations, or that it may have been arrived at by adding the length of various concurrent or overlapping periods as though they were placed in one lineal string of eras.

6:2 house... for the LORD: For the interior of the temple Solomon followed the floor plan of the tabernacle but doubled its dimensions. sixty cubits: The standard cubit was about 18 inches. The dimensions here are approximately 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. Solomon's temple was constructed on Mt. Moriah (2 Chr. 3:1; see Gen. 22:2) at the threshing floor of Ornan (or Araunah, 2 Sam. 24:24). Like the tabernacle, the temple was divided into the Most Holy Place, the holy place, and an outer courtyard. The outer court contained a bronze altar for sacrifices and a brass basin set on the backs of 12 bulls. On the east end of the temple there was a porch. Before the entrance to the porch were two freestanding pillars: Jachin (to the right) and Boaz (to the left; see 7:21). Passing over the front porch one would enter the holy place. A veil separated the holy place from the Most Holy Place, in which were housed the ark and the mercy seat guarded by two cherubim. Only the priests could enter the temple itself to minister before the Lord.

6:5, 6 Three-storied chambers were built along the temple's outer walls. A series of ledges served as resting places for the beams of the floors. This meant that the three floors were progressively wider as one went up.

6:7 The rock was precut at the quarry for its proper fit in the temple building, so no... tool was heard at the temple itself. This required a high degree of skill in measuring, cutting, and fitting the immense stones in place.

(Heb. eben) (5:17; Gen. 35:14; 2 Kin. 12:12) Strong's #68

The stones that littered the landscape of the ancient Middle East were used in numerous ways. They were the building material for houses, city walls, and fortifications (5:17; 2 Kin. 12:12). Stones were also used for religious purposes, to build sacred pillars (Gen. 35:14) and altars (Deut. 27:5). Sometimes stones were piled up as a memorial that marked the site of a divine revelation (Gen. 28:18, 22) or a significant event in the life of an individual (Gen. 31:46) or a nation (4:6). Because a stone was commonly used as a foundation for a structure, God Himself was called the "Stone of Israel" (Gen. 49:24). But Isaiah also described the Lord as "a stone of stumbling" for those Israelites who rejected Him (Is. 8:14). These same images were applied to Jesus Christ in the NT (Is. 28:16; 1 Pet. 2:4-8).

¹¹Then the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying: ¹²*“Concerning this temple which you are building, ⁱif you walk in My statutes, execute My judgments, keep all My commandments, and walk in them, then I will perform My ⁴word with you, ^jwhich I spoke to your father David. ¹³And ^kI will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not ^lfor-sake My people Israel.”*

¹⁴So Solomon built the temple and finished it. ¹⁵And he built the inside walls of the temple with cedar boards; from the floor of the temple to the ceiling he paneled the inside with wood; and he covered the floor of the temple with planks

All was cedar; there was no stone to be seen.

6:11 word of the LORD: This message to Solomon might have come by means of a prophet. On other occasions, Solomon had more personal encounters with the Lord (3:5; 9:2; 11:11).

6:12, 13 The most important work of Solomon was certainly the building of the temple. God promised to bless Solomon and his work if he faithfully obeyed His commands.

6:19 The ark of the covenant of the LORD (Deut. 10:8; Josh. 3:11) is so named because it housed the two stone tablets of the covenant—the Ten Commandments (Deut. 10:1–5). The ark symbolized the presence of the sovereign God in the midst of His people (8:10, 11; Josh. 3:13).

6:20 the inner sanctuary: The Most Holy Place was a cube of 30 feet. with pure gold: The amount of gold is given as six hundred talents, or about 23 tons, in 2 Chr. 3:8.

Sparing No Expense

Whenever modern-day churches draw up plans and budgets for buildings in which to worship, they face an age-old tension: What is appropriate for a worship center in terms of size, materials, beauty, and expense? For Solomon, there seems to have been only one answer to that question as he proposed to build God's temple: Spare no expense! Consider the costliness of Solomon's temple:

- It was made of the most precious of building materials, many of them imported: cedar (5:6), quarried stone (5:15–18), gold (6:20–22), olive wood (6:23–28, 31–33), cypress (6:34), and bronze (7:13–47).
- The project employed 30,000 laborers (5:13), 150,000 stonemasons and haulers (5:15), and 3,300 supervisors (5:16).
- The temple was paneled with cedar, some of which was ornately carved (6:9, 15–18).
- Its floors and walls were overlaid with gold (6:20–22).
- It was furnished with items of finely crafted wood and gold (6:23–35; 7:48–50).
- So much bronze was used that its weight (and therefore cost) was not determined (7:45–47).
- The work continued nonstop for seven years (6:37–38).

Was Solomon justified in incurring such an expense? The question is not easily answered.

On the one hand, the project contributed to a number of problems of Solomon's reign: heavy taxation, a growing underclass of foreigners, and the depletion of the forests of Lebanon. The temple was not the sole cause of these troubles (9:15–19), but it was built with a policy of “only the best” that seemed to typify the Solomonic kingdom.

On the other hand, Solomon apparently recognized that architecture is not neutral; it makes a statement. The temple was a remarkable work of art, built to the glory of God (8:12, 13). God apparently approved of Solomon's achievement, for He blessed the sanctuary with His presence (8:10, 11).

Yet even as the construction went forward, the Lord reminded His builder that what mattered was not a house of cedar and gold, but the keeping of the Law (6:11–13). Perhaps that is the most important architectural principle of all when it comes to houses of worship: It is not the size, beauty, or expense of the structure, but the sincere devotion and obedience of those who worship in the structure. After all, the Lord does not dwell only in sanctuaries built by people, but in the people themselves (8:27; Acts 7:48; 17:24; 1 Cor. 6:19, 20).

the altar of cedar. ²¹So Solomon overlaid the inside of the temple with pure gold. He stretched gold chains across the front of the inner sanctuary, and overlaid it with gold. ²²The whole temple he overlaid with gold, until he had finished all the temple; also he overlaid with gold ⁿthe entire altar that was by the inner sanctuary.

²³Inside the inner sanctuary ^ohe made two cherubim of olive wood, each ten cubits high. ²⁴One wing of the cherub was five cubits, and the other wing of the cherub five cubits: ten cubits from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other. ²⁵And the other cherub was ten cubits; both cherubim were of the same size and shape. ²⁶The height of one cherub was ten cubits, and so was the other cherub. ²⁷Then he set the cherubim inside the inner ⁶room; and ⁿthey stretched out the wings of the cherubim so that the wing of the one touched one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall. And their wings touched each other in the middle of the room. ²⁸Also he overlaid the cherubim with gold.

²⁹Then he carved all the walls of the temple all around, both the inner and outer sanctuaries, with carved ^qfigures of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers. ³⁰And the floor of the temple he overlaid with gold, both the inner and outer sanctuaries.

³¹For the entrance of the inner sanctuary he made doors of olive wood; the lintel and doorposts were ⁷one-fifth of the wall. ³²The two doors were of olive wood; and he carved on them figures of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers, and overlaid them with gold; and he spread gold on the cherubim and on the palm trees. ³³So for the door of the ⁸sanctuary he also made doorposts of olive wood, ⁹one-fourth of the wall. ³⁴And the two doors were of cypress wood; ^rtwo panels comprised one folding door, and two panels comprised the other folding door. ³⁵Then he carved cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers on them, and overlaid them with gold applied evenly on the carved work.

³⁶And he built the ^sinner court with three rows of hewn stone and a row of cedar beams.

³⁷^tIn the fourth year the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid, in the month of ¹Ziv. ³⁸And in the eleventh year, in the month of ²Bul, which is the eighth month, the house was finished in all its details and according to all its plans. So he was ^useven years in building it.

Solomon's Other Buildings

⁷ But Solomon took ^athirteen years to build his own house; so he finished all his house.

²He also built the ^bHouse of the Forest of Lebanon; its length was ¹one hundred cubits, its width ²fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits, with four rows of cedar pillars, and cedar beams on the pillars. ³And it was paneled with cedar above the beams that were on forty-five pillars, fifteen to a row. ⁴*There were* windows with beveled frames in three rows, and window was opposite window in three tiers. ⁵And all the doorways and doorposts had rectangular frames; and

6:23 The two cherubim were overlaid with gold and set so as to face the door to the holy place (2 Chr. 3:12, 13). These cherubim were large, standing 15 feet high. They were in addition to the two cherubim on the mercy seat (8:6–8). A cherub was probably similar to the winged sphinxes common in ancient Middle Eastern sculpture.

(Heb. zahab) (6:20; 2 Sam. 21:4; 2 Chr. 9:1, 9; Job 23:10) Strong's #2091

This word almost always denotes the substance of gold, although occasionally it represents an alloy of gold (10:16) or the color gold (Zech. 4:12). Gold symbolized wealth and was quite often mentioned along with silver, both of which were abundant during Solomon's reign (Gen. 13:2; 2 Chr. 1:15; Ezek. 16:13). In the OT, most references to gold relate to the tabernacle or to Solomon's temple and palace (Ex. 25:3; 2 Chr. 2:7; 9:13–27). Although gold was valued highly and continues to be, the Scripture asserts that certain qualities are to be valued more: wisdom (Job 28:17), loving favor (Prov. 22:1), and the judgments, law, and commandments of the Lord (Ps. 19:9, 10; 119:72, 127).

ture. These creatures had a human face, a lion's body, and wings (see Ex. 25:19).
6:27 The inner room symbolized the dwelling place of the living God among His people. Only one person would enter this room, and that was the high priest on one day of the year.
6:29, 30 The decoration of the temple must have been exquisite. cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers: These same three figures are mentioned in vv. 32, 35. The temple was decorated with beautiful carvings, even in places most people would never see. The beauty of the building was a symbol of the beauty of God's presence.
6:31 The entrance to the inner sanctuary was two doors made of olive wood. A veil or curtain hung there as well (Ex. 26:31–36; 2 Chr. 3:14).
6:33, 34 Double-leaved, foldable doors made of cypress wood gave access to the holy place.
6:36 The use of the inner court was restricted to the priests.
6:37, 38 seven years: The period of time was necessary because of the greatness of the task. Solomon had immense crews of men engaged in the building of the temple (see 5:13–18).
7:1, 2 Solomon's desire to complete the Lord's house before building his own house is commendable. House of the Forest of Lebanon: Rows of cedar pillars as well as the free use of cedar throughout this building, gave a forest-like appearance to it. The building apparently was used at least in part as an armory (10:16, 17; Is. 22:8).

window was opposite window in three tiers.

⁶He also made the Hall of Pillars: its length was fifty cubits, and its width thirty cubits; and in front of them was a portico with pillars, and a canopy was in front of them.

⁷Then he made a hall for the throne,

⁷ ³ Lit. floor of the upper level the Hall of Judgment, where he might judge; and it was paneled with cedar from floor to ³ceiling.

⁸And the house where he dwelt had another court inside the hall, of like workmanship. Solomon also made a house like this hall for Pharaoh's daughter, ^cwhom he had taken as wife.

7:6, 7 The Hall of Pillars was a colonnaded entry hall to the Hall of Judgment. The Hall of Judgment was where the king could hear and decide cases too difficult for lesser officials.

7:8 house where he dwelt: Solomon's own house and that of Pharaoh's daughter are mentioned last. The gate between the palace complex and the temple area is called "the gate of the escorts" (2 Kin. 11:19).

Solomon's Temple

The temple of Solomon, located near the king's palace, functioned as God's royal palace and Israel's national center of worship. The Lord said to Solomon, "I have consecrated this house . . . to put My name there forever, and My eyes and My heart will be there perpetually" (1 Kin. 9:3). By its cosmological and royal symbolism, the sanctuary taught the absolute sovereignty of the Lord over the whole creation and his special headship over Israel.

The floor plan is a type that has a long history in Semitic religion, particularly among the West Semites. An early example of the tripartite division into portico, main hall, and inner sanctuary has been found at Syrian Ebla (c. 2300 B.C.) and, much later but more contemporaneous with Solomon, at 'Ain Dara in north Syria (tenth century B.C.) and at Tell Taynat in southeast Turkey (eighth century B.C.). Like Solomon's, the temples at 'Ain Dara and at Tell Taynat had three divisions, had two columns supporting the entrance, and were located adjacent to the royal palace.

Many archaeological parallels can be drawn to the methods of construction used in the temple, e.g., the "hewn stone and . . . cedar beams" technique described in 1 Kin. 6:36. Interestingly, evidence for the largest bronze-casting industry ever found in the Holy Land comes from the same locale and period as that indicated in Scripture: Zarethan in the Jordan valley c. 1000 B.C.

Temple source materials are subject to academic interpretation, and subsequent art reconstructions vary.

This model recognizes influence from the wilderness tabernacle, accepts general Near Eastern cultural diffusion, and rejects overt pagan Canaanite symbols. It uses known archaeological parallels to supplement the text and assumes interior dimensions from 1 Kin. 6:17–20.

⁹All these were of costly stones cut to size, trimmed with saws, inside and out, from the foundation to the eaves, and also on the outside to the great court. ¹⁰The foundation was of costly stones, large stones, some ten cubits and some eight cubits. ¹¹And above were costly stones, hewn to size, and cedar wood. ¹²The great court was enclosed with three rows of hewn stones and a row of cedar beams. So were the ^dinner court of the house of the LORD ^eand the vestibule of the temple.

Hiram the Craftsman

¹³Now King Solomon sent and brought ^fHuram from Tyre. ¹⁴*He was* the son of a widow from the tribe of Naphtali, and ^ghis father was a man of Tyre, a bronze worker; ^hhe was filled with wisdom and understanding and skill in working with all kinds of bronze work. So he came to King Solomon and did all his work.

The Bronze Pillars for the Temple

¹⁵And he ^jcast ⁱtwo pillars of bronze, each one eighteen cubits high, and a line of twelve cubits measured the circumference of each. ¹⁶Then he made two capitals of cast bronze, to set on the tops of the pillars. The height of one capital was five cubits, and the height of the other capital was five cubits. ¹⁷*He made* a lattice network, with wreaths of chainwork, for the capitals which were on top of the pillars: seven chains for one capital and seven for the other capital. ¹⁸So he made the pillars, and two rows of pomegranates above the network all around to 7:9 costly stones: Exquisitely dressed blocks of the best quality limestone.

7:12 The great court was an outer court enclosing the entire temple and palace complex.

7:13, 14 Hiram was of mixed parentage. His father was a Phoenician artisan who had married a widow from the tribe of Naphtali (2 Chr. 2:14). Like his father, Hiram had become a master craftsman; his contributions to the work on the temple were extensive (7:40–47).

7:15–22 Among the major works of Hiram were the freestanding pillars of bronze near the entrance of the temple. These were objects of great beauty and gave the appearance of formidable strength. These pillars spoke of the power and might of God.

Temple Furnishings

Glimpses of the rich ornamentation of Solomon's temple can be gained through recent discoveries that illumine the text of 1 Kin. 6–7.

1 ARK OF THE COVENANT

Cherubim with wings flanking a royal throne are attested in Egyptian, Israelite, and Phoenician art (e.g., at Megiddo).

2 SEA OF CAST BRONZE

An extremely close parallel to the wheeled portable basins used in the courtyard of the temple has come from archaeological excavations on Cyprus. This representation combines elements from the biblical text with the archaeological evidence.

3 INCENSE ALTAR

A stone incense altar having four horns on the corners was found at Megiddo. It provides a clear idea of the shape of the gold incense altar in the temple.

4 TABLE FOR THE SHOWBREAD

The table for the showbread was made of gold.

5 LAMPSTAND

Ten lampstands were in the temple, five on each side of the sanctuary (1 Kin. 7:49), to which were added ten tables (2 Chr. 4:8). Ritual sevenfold lamps have been found at several places in Israel, including Hazor and Dothan. The stand itself is modeled on bronze ones from the excavations at Megiddo.

cover the capitals that were on top; and thus he did for the other capital.

¹⁹The capitals which were on top of the pillars in the hall were in the shape of lilies, four cubits. ²⁰The capitals on the two pillars also had pomegranates above, by the convex surface which was next to the network; and there were ^jtwo hundred such pomegranates in rows on each of the capitals all around.

²¹^kThen he set up the pillars by the vestibule of the temple; he set up the pillar on the right and called its name ⁶Jachin, and he set up the pillar on the left and called its name ⁷Boaz. ²²The tops of the pillars were in the shape of lilies. So the work of the pillars was finished.

The Sea and the Oxen

²³And he made ^lthe Sea of cast bronze, ten cubits from one brim to the other; it was completely round. Its height was five cubits, and a line of thirty cubits measured its circumference.

²⁴Below its brim were ornamental buds encircling it all around, ten to a cubit, ^mall the way around the Sea. The ornamental buds were cast in two rows when it was cast. ²⁵It stood on ⁿtwelve oxen: three looking toward the north, three looking toward the west, three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east; the Sea was set upon them, and all their back parts pointed inward. ²⁶It was a handbreadth thick; and its brim was shaped like the brim of a cup, like a lily blossom. It contained ⁸two thousand baths.

The Carts and the Lavers

²⁷He also made ten ⁹carts of bronze; four cubits was the length of each cart, four cubits its width, and three cubits its height. ²⁸And this was the design of the carts: They had panels, and the panels were between frames; ²⁹on the panels that were between the frames were lions, oxen, and cherubim. And on the frames was a pedestal on top. Below the lions and oxen were wreaths of plaited work. ³⁰Every cart had four bronze wheels and axles of bronze, and its four feet had supports. Under the laver were supports of cast bronze beside each wreath. ³¹Its opening inside the crown at the top was one cubit in diameter; and the opening was round, shaped like a pedestal, one and a half cubits in outside diameter; and also on the opening were engravings, but the panels were square, not round. ³²Under the panels were the four wheels, and the axles of the wheels were joined to the cart. The height of a wheel was one and a half cubits. ³³The workmanship of the wheels was like the workmanship of a chariot wheel; their axle pins, their rims, their spokes, and their hubs were all of cast bronze. ³⁴And there were four supports at the four corners of each cart; its supports were part of the cart itself. ³⁵On the top of the cart, at the height of half a cubit, it was perfectly round. And on the top of the cart, its flanges and its panels were of the same casting. ³⁶On the plates of its flanges and on its panels he engraved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, wherever there was a clear space on each, with wreaths all around. ³⁷Thus he made the ten carts. All of them were of ¹the same mold, one measure, and one shape.

³⁸Then ^ohe made ten lavers of bronze; each laver contained ²forty baths, and each laver was four cubits. On each of the ten carts was a laver. ³⁹And he put five carts on the right side of the house, and five on the left side of the house. He set the Sea on the right side of the house, toward the southeast.

Furnishings of the Temple

⁴⁰^pHuram³ made the lavers and the shovels and the bowls. So Hiram finished doing all the work that he was to do for King Solomon for the house of the LORD: ⁴¹the two pillars, the two bowl-shaped capitals that were on top of the two pillars; the two ^qnetworks covering the two bowl-shaped capitals which were on top of the pillars; ⁴²^rfour hundred pomegranates for the two networks (two rows of pomegranates for each network, to cover the two bowl-shaped capitals that were on 7:21 Jachin ... Boaz: Giving symbolic names to the pillars helped teach their meaning in the true worship of the living God. Jachin means "He Will Establish." Boaz may mean "In Him Is Strength." Another possible meaning is "He Is Quick." These two free-standing pillars were placed near the porch in front of the temple (2 Chr. 3:17). There is a question about the height of the capitals. Verse 16 records it as five cubits (as does Jer. 52:22), but 2 Kin. 25:17 as three cubits. This apparent discrepancy may involve simply a difference in what was measured, with 2 Kin. 25:17 recording the size of only the upper portion of the capitals.

7:23–26 Cast in one piece and set upon 12 bronze oxen, the Sea of cast bronze replaced the laver of washings for the tabernacle (Ex. 30:17–21). While the quantity of water held by the Sea is given here as two thousand baths (about 11,500 gallons), three thousand baths (17,500 gallons) is recorded in 2 Chr. 4:5. The figure in 2 Chronicles could be an error of copying (in the previous verse the number three occurs four times), or possibly it is an example of using different standards for the length of the cubit.

7:27–38 The ten carts each containing a bronze laver (v. 38) were arranged beside the molten Sea, five on either side, and were used for rinsing the burnt offerings (2 Chr. 4:6). These carts were both functional and ornamental.

top of the pillars); ⁴³the ten carts, and ten lavers on the carts; ⁴⁴one Sea, and twelve oxen under the Sea; ⁴⁵the pots, the shovels, and the bowls.

All these articles which ⁴Huram made for King Solomon for the house of the LORD were of burnished bronze. ⁴⁶^tIn the plain of Jordan the king had them cast in clay molds, between ^uSuccoth and ^vZaretan. ⁴⁷And Solomon did not weigh all the articles, because there were so many; the weight of the bronze was not ^wdetermined.

⁴⁸Thus Solomon had all the furnishings made for the house of the LORD: ^xthe altar of gold, and ^ythe table of gold on which was ^zthe showbread; ⁴⁹the lampstands of pure gold, five on the right side and five on the left in front of the inner sanctuary, with the flowers and the lamps and the wick-trimmers of gold; ⁵⁰the basins, the trimmers, the bowls, the ladles, and the ⁵censers of pure gold; and the hinges of gold, both for the doors of the inner room (the Most Holy Place) and for the doors of the main hall of the temple.

⁵¹So all the work that King Solomon had done for the house of the LORD was finished; and Solomon brought in the things ^awhich his father David had dedicated: the silver and the gold and the furnishings. He put them in the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

^bthat they might bring ^cup the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the City of David, which is Zion. ²Therefore all the men of Israel assembled with King Solomon at the ^dfeast in the month of ¹Ethanim, which is the seventh month. ³So all the elders of Israel came, ^eand the priests took up the ark. ⁴Then they brought up the ark of the LORD, ^fthe ²tabernacle of meeting, and all the holy furnishings that were in the tabernacle. The priests and the Levites brought them up. ⁵Also King Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel who were assembled with him, were with him before the ark, ^gsacrificing sheep and oxen that could not be counted or numbered for multitude. ⁶Then the priests ^hbrought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD to ⁱits place, into the inner sanctuary of the temple, to the Most Holy Place, ^junder the wings of the cherubim. ⁷For the cherubim spread their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubim overshadowed the ark and its poles. ⁸The poles ^kextended so that the ³ends of the poles could be seen from the holy place, in front of the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside. And they are there to this day. ⁹¹Nothing was in the ark ^mexcept the two tablets of stone which Moses ⁿput there at Horeb, ^owhen the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

¹⁰And it came to pass, when the priests came out of the holy place, that the cloud ^pfilled the house of the LORD, ¹¹so that the priests could not continue ministering because of the cloud; for the ^qglory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD.

7:48 The furnishings of the temple were designed to correspond with similar furnishings in the tabernacle. The golden altar replaced the altar of incense (Ex. 30:2–4), ten golden tables (2 Chr. 4:8) took the place of the table of the presence (Ex. 25:23–30), and ten lampstands were substituted for the one golden lampstand (Ex. 25:31–40). Although there were ten tables and lampstands where before there was one, their functions remained the same, all ten being considered one unit (see 2 Chr. 29:18).

7:51 The gifts of David dedicated to service in the temple were probably stored in one of the side chambers. David's personal example of giving (see 1 Chr. 29:1–9) provided a high model of godly concern in leadership.

8:1 Having been brought to Jerusalem previously (2 Sam. 6), the ark of the covenant was now put in its place in the temple. Because the temple was completed in the eighth month of Solomon's eleventh year of reign, Solomon must have waited some 11 months for the dedication of the temple. This would allow all the furnishings to be completed and installed, final touches to be added, and ample preparation to be made for this solemn yet joyful event. The feast of tabernacles, occurring at the conclusion of the ceremonial year and commemorating God's granting of rest in the Promised Land to His people would provide a particularly appropriate occasion. Moreover, the covenant renewal observed in connection with this great feast (Deut. 31:10) made this time all the more appropriate. Accordingly, the festival season was lengthened to two weeks to allow the sacredness and joy of these days to have their full effect (see 2 Chr. 5:11–13).

8:3, 4 The holy ark was carried by the priests; all was done as God's law demanded.

8:5–7 The joy of the people is seen in the abundance of sacrifices of sheep and oxen. The placement of the holy ark in its proper place without incident was truly a reason to celebrate. They had brought the symbol of the living God into the shrine which had been built to honor Him.

8:8 poles could be seen: This statement probably means that the carrying poles of the ark, which were not to be removed from their rings (Ex. 25:15), were so long that if one were to attempt to see their length, one would have to look into the Most Holy Place to see their ends. The ark with its poles was thus aligned crosswise to the door (or north to south).

8:9 The two tablets of stone upon which the Ten Commandments were inscribed were known as the "tablets of the covenant" (Deut. 9:9) and were kept in the ark (Deut. 10:1–5, 8) along with the jar of manna (Ex. 16:33, 34) and Aaron's rod that budded (Num. 17:10).

8:10, 11 As a cloud had covered the tabernacle and God's glory had filled it when it was inaugurated (Ex. 40:34, 35), so now a cloud filled the temple. This visible presence of God's dwelling with His people—sometimes called the "shekinah glory"—gave the people assurance and incentive for obedient and holy living.

12^r Then Solomon spoke:

“The LORD said He would dwell ^sin the dark cloud.

13 ^tI have surely built You an exalted house,

“And a place for You to dwell in forever.”

Solomon's Speech at Completion of the Work

14 Then the king turned around and ^vblessed the whole assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel was standing. 15 And he said: ^w“Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, who ^xspoke with His mouth to my father David, and with His hand has fulfilled it, saying, 16 “Since the day that I brought My people Israel out of Egypt, I have chosen no city from any tribe of Israel in which to build a house, that ^yMy name might be there; but I chose ^zDavid to be over My people Israel.’ 17 Now ^ait was in the heart of my father David to build a ⁴temple for the name of the LORD God of Israel. 18 ^bBut the LORD said to my father David, ‘Whereas it was in your heart to build a temple for My name, you did well that it was in your heart. 19 Nevertheless ^cyou shall not build the temple, but your son who will come from your body, he shall build the temple for My name.’ 20 So the LORD has fulfilled His word which He spoke; and I have ⁵filled the position of my father David, and sit on the throne of Israel, ^das the LORD promised; and I have built a temple for the name of the LORD God of Israel. 21 And there I have made a place for the ark, in which is ^ethe covenant of the LORD which He made with our fathers, when He brought them out of the land of Egypt.”

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

22 Then Solomon stood before ^fthe altar of the LORD in the presence of all the assembly of Israel, and ^gspread out his hands toward heaven; 23 and he said: “LORD God of Israel, ^hthere is no God in heaven above or on earth below like You, ⁱwho keep Your covenant and mercy with Your servants who ^jwalk before You with all their hearts. 24 You have kept what You promised Your servant David my father; You have both spoken with Your mouth and fulfilled it with Your hand, as it is this day. 25 Therefore, LORD God of Israel, now keep what You promised Your servant David my father, saying, ^k“You shall not fail to have a man sit before Me on the throne of Israel, only if your sons take heed to their way, that they walk before Me as you have walked before Me.’ 26 ^lAnd now I pray, O God of Israel, let Your word come true, which You have spoken to Your servant David my father.

27 “But ^mwill God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, heaven and the ⁿheaven of heavens cannot contain You. How much less this temple which I have built! 28 Yet regard the prayer of Your servant and his supplication, O LORD my God, and listen to the cry and the prayer which Your servant is praying before You today: 29 that Your eyes may be open toward this ⁶temple night and day, toward the place of which You said, ^o“My name shall be ^pthere,’ that You may hear the prayer which Your servant makes ^qtoward this

8:12, 13 Then Solomon spoke: God’s dwelling in dark clouds is often mentioned in the Scriptures (Ex. 19:9; 20:21). This is a sign of His transcendence. Yet He is both near and far, both immanent and transcendent. God is obscured by a dark cloud; but at the same time He chooses to be present in His exalted house.

8:14–21 Here is a model for public declaration in a formal setting. Throughout there is glory given to the Lord, as well as a fair assessment of the work of His people in accomplishing His will.

8:20 the LORD has fulfilled: Israel’s God is a keeper of promises. His promise to give Abraham’s descendants a land (Gen. 15:13, 14, 18–21; see Josh. 14:12–15) had been provisionally realized (Josh. 21:43–45). Solomon also appropriated God’s promise to David (see 2 Sam. 7:12–18). Subsequent kings in the Davidic line could likewise by faith enjoy the blessings of God promised in the Davidic covenant (see Ps. 89:3, 4, 19–24, 27–37; see Ps. 2).

8:22–30 Solomon had begun his reign with a conscious dependence on God (3:9). His long public prayer (vv. 22–53) recognized that continuing need in his life (vv. 26, 28) and the lives of his people (vv. 30, 31, 33, 35, 38, 44, 46–48). In his prayer Solomon stressed God’s faithfulness, and the need for similar faithfulness on the part of Israel, rulers and people alike, if God’s full blessings were to be realized.

8:27 heaven . . . temple: The God of Scripture is infinite; all that He has made, vast as creation may be, finally has its limits. No mere building, no matter how wonderful, can be thought of as the dwelling place of God. Yet in His grace the Lord condescends to be viewed as having His dwelling among men. God’s dwelling in a temple prefigured the Incarnation when the Creator became man, born in a stable in Bethlehem.

supplication

(Heb. techinnah) (8:28; Jer. 42:2, 9; Dan. 9:20) Strong’s #8467

This word signifies a petition for favor or mercy. Supplication is almost always directed to God; but Jeremiah used the word twice to represent a formal petition he made to a king (Jer. 37:20; 38:26). Of the 24 occurrences of this word in the OT, 13 are in connection with Solomon’s prayer dedicating the temple (8:23—9:3; 2 Chr. 6:14–42). Other words with the same root (and indicating supplication) occur seven times in the same context. Supplication is generally a petition for God to be merciful in the impending distress; thus personal enemies are cited on several occasions (Ps. 55:1–3; 119:70; Jer. 36:7). The Bible specifically records that God heard the supplications of David (Ps. 6:9), Solomon (9:3), and of wicked King Manasseh, who humbled himself before God (2 Chr. 33:12, 13).

³³ “When Your people Israel are defeated before an enemy because they have sinned against You, and ^vwhen they turn back to You and confess Your name, and pray and make supplication to You in this temple, ³⁴ then hear in heaven, and forgive the sin of Your people Israel, and bring them back to the land which You gave to their ^wfathers.

8:30 Since God was present in the temple in Jerusalem, prayer was to be directed toward this place (see Ex. 15:17; Dan. 6:10).

8:31, 32 Solomon’s first request asks for righteous judgment. In such situations where there was insufficient evidence to establish a charge, the accused was obliged to take an oath declaring his innocence.

8:33 sinned against You: Solomon’s second request asks for forgiveness of sin, where sin against God has caused Israel to be defeated.

8:35–40 Solomon’s third and fourth requests deal with healing the land after distress or drought due to the people’s sin (see Deut. 28:21–24, 38, 42, 52, 59–61). The remedy in such cases of judgment is repentance and prayer for forgiveness, followed by renewed faithfulness to the standards of God’s covenant.

8:41–43 Solomon’s fifth request deals with prayer by a foreigner. Unlike God’s people or resident aliens within the commonwealth of Israel (see Deut. 10:18, 19), foreigners have no particular claim on the ear of God. But God’s people expected foreigners to be drawn to Him through the worship of His people.

8:44–53 Solomon’s sixth and seventh requests concern matters relative to wartime situations. Battle (v. 44) was to be waged in accordance with divine directions (Deut. 20; 21:10–14) and could be lost by disobedience (see Deut. 28:64–68; Josh. 7). Believers must face all of life’s crucial encounters with trust in God and faithful adherence to the standards of His word (Ps. 91; 119:57–61, 161–168, 173–176).

Solomon Blesses the Assembly

⁵⁴*r* And so it was, when Solomon had finished praying all this prayer and supplication to the LORD, that he arose from before the altar of the LORD, from kneeling on his knees with his hands spread up to heaven. ⁵⁵Then he stood ^sand blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice, saying: ⁵⁶“Blessed be the LORD, who has given ^trest² to His people Israel, according to all that He promised. ^uThere has not failed one word of all His good promise, which He promised through His servant Moses. ⁵⁷May the LORD our God be with us, as He was with our fathers. ^vMay He not leave us nor forsake us, ⁵⁸that He may ^wincline our hearts to Himself, to walk in all His ways, and to keep His commandments and His statutes and His judgments, which He commanded our fathers. ⁵⁹And may these words of mine, with which I have made supplication before the LORD, be near the LORD our God day and night, that He may maintain the cause of His servant and the cause of His people Israel, as each day may require, ⁶⁰*x* that all the peoples of the earth may know that ^ythe LORD is God; there is no other. ⁶¹Let your ^zheart therefore be ³loyal to the LORD our God, to walk in His statutes and keep His commandments, as at this day.”

So the king and all the children of Israel dedicated the house of the LORD. ⁶⁴On ^bthe same day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the LORD; for there he offered burnt offerings, grain offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings, because the ^cbronze altar that was before the LORD was too small to receive the burnt offerings, the grain offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings.

God's Second Appearance to Solomon

⁹And ^ait came to pass, when Solomon had finished building the house of the LORD ^band the king's house, and ^call Solomon's desire which he wanted to do, ²that the LORD appeared to Solomon the second time, ^das He had appeared to him at Gibeon. ³And the LORD said to him: ^e“I have heard your prayer and your supplication that you have made before Me; I have consecrated this house which you have built ^fto put My name there forever, ^gand My eyes and My heart will be there perpetually. ⁴Now if you ^hwalk before Me ⁱas your father David walked, in integrity of heart and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded you, ^{and} if you ^jkeep My statutes and My judgments, ⁵then I will establish the throne of your kingdom over Israel forever, ^kas I promised David your father, saying, ‘You shall not fail to have a man on the throne of Israel.’ ⁶^lBut if you or your sons at all ¹turn from following Me, and do not keep My commandments ^{and} My statutes which I have set before you,

8:54 he arose . . . from kneeling: The parallel account of 2 Chr. 6:12-42 records that Solomon knelt on a tall platform that he had built for the occasion in order that all might see him praying before God. Chronicles reports that Solomon closed his prayer with a plea (see Ps. 132:8-10) that God would continue residing with His people and remembering His promises to David (2 Chr. 6:41, 42). The writer of Kings records Solomon's dedicatory blessing on the congregation of Israel, in which Solomon praises God for giving the people their present rest (vv. 54-66; see Deut. 12:9-25), invokes God's continued presence and direction of His people (vv. 57-60), and challenges the people to be loyal to God and His laws (v. 61). Chronicles adds that Solomon's prayer and blessing were accompanied by heavenly fire that consumed the sacrifice on the altar (2 Chr. 7:1-3).

8:60 all the peoples: This verse does not limit God to the Jews only but includes Gentiles as well.

8:61 The Hebrew term translated loyal basically means “at peace with,” hence, “complete” or “perfect” (see also 11:4; 15:3, 14).

8:62-66 The ceremony concluded with many special sacrifices (v. 62) and ended on a high note of joyful (v. 66) praise and thanksgiving to God for His goodness.

9:1-9 the second time: God had appeared previously to Solomon in Gibeon (3:4-15). The Lord's warning was a necessary reminder for Solomon, who would come to compromise the conditions required for enjoying God's blessing. Solomon would have to endure the consequences of disobedience (see 11:1-11).

but go and serve other gods and worship them, ^{7m}then I will ²cut off Israel from the land which I have given them; and this house which I have consecrated ⁿfor My name I will cast out of My sight. ^oIsrael will be a proverb and a byword among all peoples. ⁸And as for ^pthis house, which is exalted, everyone who passes by it will be astonished and will hiss, and say, ^q“Why has the LORD done thus to this land and to this house?” ⁹Then they will answer, “Because they forsook the LORD their God, who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have embraced other gods, and worshiped them and served them; therefore the LORD has brought all this ^rcalamity on them.”

Solomon and Hiram Exchange Gifts

¹⁰Now ^sit happened at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD and the king's house ^{11t}(Hiram the king of Tyre had supplied Solomon with cedar and cypress and gold, as much as he desired), that King Solomon then gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. ¹²Then Hiram went from Tyre to see the cities which Solomon had given him, but they did not please him. ¹³So he said, “What kind of cities are these which you have given me, my brother?” ^uAnd he called them the land of ³Cabul, as they are to this day. ¹⁴Then Hiram sent the king one hundred and twenty talents of gold.

Solomon's Additional Achievements

¹⁵And this is the reason for ^vthe labor force which King Solomon raised: to build the house of the LORD, his own house, ⁴the ^wMillo, the wall of Jerusalem, ^xHazor, ^yMegiddo, and ^zGezer. ¹⁶(Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and taken Gezer and burned it with fire, ^ahad killed the Canaanites who dwelt in the city, and had given it as a dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife.)

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Forced Labor

Adoram (or Adoniram), David's superintendent of forced labor, kept his job under Solomon. The need for forced labor increased during Solomon's reign because of the building of the temple, as well as the construction of palaces and fortifications. Solomon also had extensive personal properties that required maintenance and needed a large work squad. During Solomon's reign, the superintendent of forced labor held an important office, for he supervised the work of thousands of people. Adoniram was responsible for 150,000 foreign men in the labor force with 3,600

Israelite supervisors over them. He also had 30,000 Israelites working for him, supervised by 300 officers. The entire structure of nearly 184,000 men must have been well organized and carefully policed, but we have no way of knowing exactly how that was done. We do not know whether the army or a special force was responsible to see that the work was done.

9:10–14 These twenty cities (v. 11) lay east and southeast of Acco in the tribal allotment to Asher. Apparently they had been ceded to Hiram as collateral for the gold necessary for furnishing the temple and palace complex. Hiram's displeasure with them would later result in Solomon's redeeming the towns by repaying the debt in some other manner (see 2 Chr. 8:1, 2).

9:14 one hundred and twenty talents of gold: This is an immense amount (see also the gift of the queen of Sheba in 10:10). A talent was said to be the full load one man could carry (see 2 Kin. 5:23). It was equal to three thousand shekels, or about 70 pounds.

9:15 The identification and location of the Millo are uncertain. Probably the word refers to architectural terraces and buttressing on the slope of the eastern hill of Jerusalem. Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer: These three cities were important commercial, administrative, and military centers for Solomon. Archaeological excavations have uncovered common design elements in the walls and gates of all three. 9:16 Gezer, which had been a strong Canaanite city, was part of Ephraim's territorial assignment. Ephraim had never taken Gezer; however, Egypt had conquered the city. Its key location on the edge of the lowlands west of Jerusalem made it a splendid gift for Pharaoh to give on the occasion of his daughter's marriage to Solomon. 9:17, 18 Three cities were key to Solomon's defensive strategy. Lower Beth Horon and Baalath served to defend Judah's western front. Tadmor is probably the important commercial city in Syria, later known as Palmyra.

9:20, 21 The five nations listed here are peoples who constituted the early inhabitants of Canaan. Several such lists are given in the OT (see Josh. 3:10). Solomon assigned their surviving members to work on public projects in accordance with the principle of compulsory labor (see 5:13).

^jfrom these Solomon raised ^kforced labor, as it is to this day. ²²But of the children of Israel Solomon ^lmade no forced laborers, because they were men of war and his servants: his officers, his captains, commanders of his chariots, and his cavalry.

²³Others were chiefs of the officials who were over Solomon's work: ^mfive hundred and fifty, who ruled over the people who did the work.

²⁴But ⁿPharaoh's daughter came up from the City of David to ^oher house which ⁵Solomon had built for her. ^pThen he built the Millo.

^{25q}Now three times a year Solomon offered burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar which he had built for the LORD, and he burned incense with them on the altar that was before the LORD. So he finished the temple.

^{26r}King Solomon also built a fleet of ships at ^sEzion Geber, which is near ⁶Elath on the shore of the Red Sea, in the land of Edom. ^{27t}Then Hiram sent his servants with the fleet, seamen who knew the sea, to work with the servants of Solomon. ²⁸And they went to ^uOphir, and acquired four hundred and twenty talents of gold from there, and brought it to King Solomon.

The Queen of Sheba's Praise of Solomon

10 Now when the ^aqueen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the LORD, she came ^bto test him with hard questions. ²She came to Jerusalem with a very great ¹retinue, with camels that bore spices, very much gold, and precious stones; and when she came to Solomon, she spoke with him about all that was in her heart. ³So Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing ²so difficult for the king that he could not explain it to her. ⁴And when the queen of Sheba had seen all the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, ⁵the food on his table, the seating of his servants, the service of his waiters and their apparel, his cup-bearers, ^eand his entryway by which he went up to the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit in her. ⁶Then she said to the king: "It was a true report which I heard in my own land about your words and your wisdom. ⁷However I did not believe the words until I came and saw with my own eyes; and indeed the half was not told me. Your wisdom and prosperity exceed the fame of which I heard. ^{8d}Happy are your men and happy are these your servants, who stand continually before you and hear your wisdom! ^{9e}Blessed be the LORD your God, who ^fdelighted in you, setting you on the throne of Israel! Because the LORD has loved Israel forever, therefore He made you king, ^gto do justice and righteousness."

¹⁰Then she ^hgave the king one hundred and twenty talents of gold, spices in great quantity, and precious stones. There never again came such abundance of spices as the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon. ¹¹ⁱAlso, the ships of Hiram, which brought gold from Ophir, brought great quantities of ³almug wood and precious stones from Ophir. ^{12j}And the king made ⁴steps of the almug wood for the house of the LORD and for the king's house, also harps and stringed instruments for singers. There never again came such ^kalmug wood, nor has the like been seen to this day.

¹³Now King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba all she desired, whatever she asked, besides what Solomon had given her according to the royal generosity. So she turned and went to her own country, she and her servants.

9:25 These three times a year included the Feasts of Unleavened Bread, Pentecost, and Tabernacles (see Deut. 16:16). Not only did Solomon show himself a faithful spiritual shepherd by leading his people in worship, but continual attention to prescribed religious duties would keep the temple finished, or properly maintained.

9:26 Ezion Geber was at the head of the modern Gulf of Aqaba. Its key location as an outlet to the Red Sea and the regions beyond made it commercially important to Solomon and to Hiram, his Phoenician trading partner (2 Chr. 8: 17, 18).

9:28 One of the main commercial sites reached via Ezion Geber, Ophir may have supplied gold for Solomon to repay his debt to Hiram (see 5:8-11; 9:11-14). Solomon also received a generous gift of gold from the queen of Sheba (10:10).

10:1 Located in southwestern Arabia (present-day Yemen), Sheba was the homeland of the Sabaeans, a people whose far-flung commercial enterprises stretched from Syria to east Africa to distant India. The Sabaeans dealt in such precious commodities as gold, gemstones, perfumes, and rare spices. The queen of Sheba came to ask Solomon hard questions to satisfy her own mind and to examine his wisdom. She serves as an example of what must have happened on a lesser scale throughout the reign of Solomon. His wisdom, which became proverbial (4:29-34), was an attractive force. Wise men and sages from other cultures came to Jerusalem and learned of the wisdom that is rooted in the fear of God (Prov. 1:7).

10:3-9 Solomon's brilliant replies to the queen of Sheba's difficult questions (v. 3), as well as the skillful use of his wisdom for the needs and interests of his kingdom convinced her that such wisdom must be divinely bestowed. Her acknowledgment of Solomon's God and the Lord's covenant faithfulness toward Israel does not necessarily mean that she made a commitment of personal faith in the Lord. Such recognition of foreign deities was common in the literature of the ancient world. However, the possibility exists that she experienced a spiritual awakening as a result of her time with Solomon (see 5:7).

10:10 one hundred and twenty talents: Solomon used the gold not only to furnish the temple (6:20-35; 7:49-51) and palace (10:18-21) but also to make five hundred ornamental shields, which were placed in the House of the Forest of Lebanon (10:16, 17).

Solomon's Great Wealth

¹⁴The weight of gold that came to Solomon yearly was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold, ¹⁵besides that from the ¹traveling merchants, from the income of traders, ^mfrom all the kings of Arabia, and from the governors of the country.

¹⁶And King Solomon made two hundred large shields of hammered gold; six hundred shekels of gold went into each shield. ¹⁷He also made ⁿthree hundred shields of hammered gold; three minas of gold went into each shield. The king put them in the ^oHouse of the Forest of Lebanon.

¹⁸Moreover the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold. ¹⁹The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round at the back; there were armrests on either side of the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the armrests. ²⁰Twelve lions stood there, one on each side of the six steps; nothing like this had been made for any other kingdom.

²¹^qAll King Solomon's drinking vessels were gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were pure gold. Not one was silver, for this was accounted as nothing in the days of Solomon. ²²For the king had ^rmerchant⁵ ships at sea with the fleet of Hiram. Once every three years the merchant ^sships came bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and ⁶monkeys. ²³So ^tKing Solomon surpassed all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom.

²⁸^xAlso Solomon had horses imported from Egypt and Keveh; the king's merchants bought them in Keveh at the current price. ²⁹Now a chariot that was imported from Egypt cost six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse one hundred and fifty; ^yand ⁸thus, through their agents, they exported them to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Syria.

Solomon's Heart Turns from the LORD

11 But ^aKing Solomon loved ^bmany foreign women, as well as the daughter of Pharaoh: women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians, and Hittites— ²from the nations of whom the LORD had said to the children of Israel, ^c“You shall not intermarry with them, nor they with you. Surely they will turn away your hearts after their gods.” Solomon clung to these in love. ³And he had seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned away his heart. ⁴For it was so, when Solomon was old, ^dthat his wives turned his heart after other gods; and his ^eheart was not ¹loyal to the LORD his God, ^fas was the heart of his father David. ⁵For Solomon went after ^gAshto-

10:16, 17 Made of wood (or basketwork) and covered with gold plating, these shields were intended for ceremonial occasions.

10:18 The throne of ivory was probably made of wood inlaid with ivory, as well as being overlaid with finest gold. Solomon received ivory as a result of his trading ventures with Hiram (v. 22).

10:22 Solomon's merchant ships are linked to his commercial arrangements with Hiram.

10:24, 25 all the earth: This phrase refers to the international reputation of Solomon's wisdom.

10:26 one thousand four hundred chariots: The reasonableness of the figure given here may be seen in that Shalmaneser III of Assyria reports that at the Battle of Qarqar (853 B.C.) he faced a combined enemy chariot force of 3,900, some two thousand of whom were supplied by Israel.

10:27 silver . . . cedar: The point is that Israel under Solomon enjoyed its greatest period of prosperity. This time of prosperity and peace also must have allowed for the growth of scholarship and for arts and music.

10:28 Keveh is probably the city of Que attested in a ninth century B.C. inscription found in southern Asia Minor. Que is probably also the Cilicia of classical literature (see Acts 6:9).

11:1 many foreign women: The word order in the Hebrew text emphasizes the word foreign, with a secondary emphasis on the adjective many. Solomon had committed two egregious sins. Taking foreign wives violated the Lord's prohibitions against marrying Canaanite women (v. 2; Ex. 34:12-17; Deut. 7:1-3); taking many wives violated the standard of monogamy established at the beginning (Gen. 2:24, 25), and resulted in rampant polygamy, something God had also forbidden to Israel's future kings (Deut. 17:17). Doubtless many of Solomon's marriages were in accord with the common ancient Middle Eastern convention of sealing alliances by marriages between members of the royal houses contracting the alliances. Solomon's yielding to the customs of the day would have serious spiritual consequences for himself (vv. 3-13) and his people (2 Kin. 17:7-20).

11:2 clung to these in love: Our harsh assessment of Solomon's many wives is mitigated somewhat by the use of this phrase (compare also, “King Solomon loved,” in v. 1).

11:3 seven hundred . . . three hundred: If the reference to 60 queens and 80 concubines in Song 6:8 is to Solomon's wives, it represents a much earlier period in Solomon's reign.

11:4 Although it is true that David did not always live up to God's standards, he was loyal to God and trusted Him implicitly, even when he was rebuked for his sins (see 2 Sam. 12:13; Ps. 32:1-5; 53:1-5). Because of the influence of his many wives, Solomon compromised his faith by worshiping foreign gods.

11:5 Ashtoreth was a Canaanite goddess of love and war. Milcom was the national god of the Ammonites.

reth the goddess of the Sidonians, and after ⁱMilcom² the abomination of the ⁱAmmonites. ⁶Solomon did evil in the sight of the LORD, and did not fully follow the LORD, as did his father David. ^{7j}Then Solomon built a ³high place for ^kChemosh the abomination of Moab, on ^lthe hill that is east of Jerusalem, and for Molech the abomination of the people of Ammon. ⁸And he did likewise for all his foreign wives, who burned incense and sacrificed to their gods.

⁹So the LORD became angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned from the LORD God of Israel, ^mwho had appeared to him twice, ¹⁰and ⁿhad commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods; but he did not keep what the LORD had commanded. ¹¹Therefore the LORD said to Solomon, “Because you have done this, and have not kept My covenant and My statutes, which I have commanded you, ^oI will surely tear the kingdom away from you and give it to your ^pservant. ¹²Nevertheless I will not do it in your days, for the sake of your father David; I will tear it out of the hand of your son. ^{13q}However I will not tear away the whole kingdom; I will give ^rone tribe to your son ^sfor the sake of My servant David, and for the sake of Jerusalem ^twhich I have chosen.”

Adversaries of Solomon

¹⁴Now the LORD ^uraised up an adversary against Solomon, Hadad the Edomite; he was a descendant of the king in Edom. ^{15v}For it happened, when David was in Edom, and Joab the commander of the army had gone up to bury the slain, ^wafter he had killed every male in Edom ¹⁶(because for six months Joab remained there with all Israel, until he had cut down every male in Edom), ¹⁷that Hadad fled to go to Egypt, he and certain Edomites of his father's servants with him. Hadad was still a little child. ¹⁸Then they arose from Midian and came to Paran; and they took men with them from Paran and came to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, who gave him a house, apportioned food for him, and gave him land. ¹⁹And Hadad found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him as wife the sister of his own wife, that is, the sister of Queen Tahpenes. ²⁰Then the sister of Tahpenes bore him Genubath his son, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house. And Genubath was in Pharaoh's household among the sons of Pharaoh.

^{21x}So when Hadad heard in Egypt that David ⁴rested with his fathers, and that Joab the commander of the army was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, ⁵“Let me depart, that I may go to my own country.”

²²Then Pharaoh said to him, “But what have you lacked with me, that suddenly you seek to go to your own country?”

So he answered, “Nothing, but do let me go anyway.”

²³And God raised up another adversary against him, Rezon the son of Eliadah, who had fled from his lord, ^uHadadezer king of Zobah. ²⁴So he gathered men to him and became captain over a band of raiders, ²when David killed those of Zobah. And they went to Damascus and dwelt there, and reigned in Damascus. ²⁵He was an adversary of Israel all the days of Solomon (besides the trouble that Hadad caused); and he abhorred Israel, and reigned over Syria.

Jeroboam's Rebellion

²⁶Then Solomon's servant, ^aJeroboam the son of Nebat, an Ephraimite from 11:7 The use of a high place in association with the worship of foreign gods shows the terrible danger that the high places presented to Israel (see 3:2–4; 14:23; see also Mic. 1:3). Chemosh was the national god of Moab. His worship was practiced repeatedly by God's people (see 2 Kin. 23:13). The veneration of this deity is also attested in the recently discovered Ebla Tablets in a form that suggests his association with the city of Carchemish along the upper bend of the Euphrates River. Molech is associated with human sacrifice and with Baal (Jer. 7:31, 32; 19:5, 6; 32:35).

11:9–13 God appeared twice before to Solomon (3:5; 9:2). Solomon's spiritual odyssey may be seen in the details of his three audiences with God. While God graciously postponed the division of Solomon's kingdom until after his death, internal troubles appeared while he was still alive (vv. 14–40).

11:11 your servant: That is, Jeroboam the son of Nebat (see 11:26; 12:20).

11:13 one tribe: The tribe is Judah, the principal tribe of the southern kingdom. Simeon had assimilated with Judah by this time (see also 12:17, 20, 21).

11:14–22 Hadad the Edomite was one of the survivors who had escaped when David defeated the Edomite army (see 2 Sam. 8:13, 14). Pharaoh's ready reception and favorable treatment of Hadad probably had political ramifications, the pharaoh seeing in him a potential future ally on Israel's border.

11:23–25 Having escaped David's earlier campaigns against the Arameans (2 Sam. 8:3–6), Rezon would later become king of Damascus and his people would remain a constant threat to Israel.

11:26 The Ephraimite Jeroboam, at first a highly gifted, trusted official for Solomon (v. 28) would come under Solomon's wrath (v. 40). Like Hadad the Edomite (v. 17), he fled to Egypt where he found refuge. Eventually Jeroboam was instrumental in bringing about the prophesied schism of the country (12:2–19). He became the first king of the northern kingdom (12:20).

11:26, 27 this is what caused: The phrasing suggests that there was a problem in the building projects that led to Jeroboam's rebellion. These two verses explain something about Jeroboam's background. He was a major officer of one of the large work groups. Among the projects to which Jeroboam had been assigned were the building of the Millo (see at 9:15), and the repair of the City of David.

Zereda, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow, ^balso ^crebelled against the king.

²⁹ Now it happened at that time, when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet ^fAhijah the Shilonite met him on the way; and he had clothed himself with a new garment, and the two were alone in the field. ³⁰ Then Ahijah took hold of the new garment that was on him, and ^gtore it into twelve pieces. ³¹ And he said to Jeroboam, "Take for yourself ten pieces, for ^hthus says the LORD, the God of Israel: 'Behold, I will tear the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon and will give ten tribes to you ³² (but he shall have one tribe for the sake of My servant David, and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel), ³³ *i*because ⁷they have forsaken Me, and worshiped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the people of Ammon, and have not walked in My ways to do what is right in My eyes and keep My statutes and My judgments, as did his father David. ³⁴ However I will not take the whole kingdom out of his hand, because I have made him ruler all the days of his life for the sake of My servant David, whom I chose because he kept My commandments and ⁴⁰ Solomon therefore sought to kill Jeroboam. But Jeroboam arose and fled to Egypt, to ⁿShishak king of Egypt, and was in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

Death of Solomon

⁴¹ Now ^othe rest of the acts of Solomon, all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the book of the acts of Solomon? ⁴² ^pAnd the period that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years. ⁴³ ^qThen Solomon ⁸rested with his fathers, and was buried in the City of David his father. And Rehoboam his son reigned in his ^rplace.

The Revolt Against Rehoboam

12 And ^aRehoboam went to ^bShechem, for all Israel had gone to Shechem to make him king. ² So it

11:29 The prophecy of Ahijah of Shiloh was fulfilled literally (12:1–20). Ahijah, whose name means "My Brother Is the Lord," would remain God's loyal prophet down into his old age (14:1–18).

11:30–32 God had already warned Solomon that all but one tribe would be taken away from Solomon's heir (v. 13; see 12:20). Only ten tribes, however, are promised to Jeroboam. The twelfth tribe might be Simeon, which was absorbed by Judah. Possibly Benjamin existed as a buffer state between Israel and Judah, at times linked with the southern kingdom (2 Chr. 11:3; 14:8) and at times with the northern kingdom.

11:33 they have forsaken Me: See the list of particulars in vv. 4–8.

11:36 This is a biblical image of one of the divinely intended functions of Davidic kings in ancient Israel. In the midst of the darkness of a pagan world, the Davidic kings were to be a lamp to the nations, in anticipation of the Coming One who is the Light of the World (see John 1:1–9; see also 15:4; 2 Samuel 21:17; 2 Kin. 8:19; 2 Chr. 21:7).

11:38 an enduring house: Although God gave Jeroboam the opportunity to establish a lasting dynasty, he proved unworthy (see 12:25–33; 14:10–18). Jeroboam's name would forever be associated with the spiritual infidelity that would ultimately bring the northern kingdom to ruin (see 2 Kin. 17:21–23).

11:40 Solomon, whose reign was characterized by peace more than that of any other king in Jerusalem (see again 4:24), ended his life in strife as he sought to kill Jeroboam. Shishak (or Sheshonq I, 945–924 B.C.) was the first pharaoh of Egypt's strong twenty-second dynasty. Ironically, this future destroyer of Israel appears here as a protector of one of its future kings.

11:41–43 Because of his considerable sin, the golden era that Solomon initiated would die with him. Had he lived out his life in righteousness, and had he taught his son Rehoboam to succeed him in true justice, the golden era might have endured for generations.

11:41 The book of the acts of Solomon is mentioned only here; compare the references to the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel (14:19) and the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah (14:29). It is likely that the author of the present Book of Kings drew on these sources.

11:42 The symmetry of the forty years (see also 2:10–12) of the reigns of David and Solomon may be a providential congruity, speaking of God's blessing on each of their reigns.

11:43 rested with his fathers: The meaning of this idiom in the Hebrew Bible is burial in the same place as one's ancestors. There may also be an indirect reference to life after death. Rehoboam his son: It is usual in a royal obituary to state who it was that followed the deceased on the throne. This provides a sense of continuity.

12:1 Rehoboam became a means of prompting civil war and the secession of the ten northern tribes. Situated in Ephraim, Shechem was an important center of Israelite activity. By going for his coronation to a place with ancient ties to the history of his people, and which was situated in the region of the northern tribes, doubtless Rehoboam believed that he was making a strategic move. The term

The Divided Kingdom

930–586 B.C.

The division of Solomon's kingdom had geographical and political causes, with roots reaching back to earlier tribal rivalries. Israel was closer to Phoenician cities and major trade routes than Judah, whose heartland was a plateau-like ridge higher than the district around Samaria.

The Syrian wars were fierce and destructive contests between the kingdom of Damascus and Israel during the greater part of the ninth century. These wars ended with the conquests of Jeroboam II and an era of great prosperity for Israel.

The campaigns of Tiglath-Pileser III of Assyria were enormously destructive, following a celebrated pattern of siege warfare. By 732 B.C. the northern kingdom was tributary to the Assyrians.

1 The final capture and destruction of Samaria took place in 722/721 B.C. after a long siege. The surviving inhabitants were exiled to distant places in the Assyrian Empire, and new settlers were brought to Samaria.

2 The Benjamite frontier was an issue that brought Judah and Israel into conflict early in their history. After a struggle between Asa and Baasha, the border was finally fixed south of Bethel in the territory of Benjamin.

The role of Mesha, king of Moab, was first that of a vassal and then a rebel, as both the Bible and the Mesha stele make clear.

Periods of expansion and contraction characterized the two kingdoms during the period 930–722 B.C. Judah was to some extent protected by its geography, but Israel was forced to develop an efficient standing army with substantial chariotry to defend against frequent attacks. Assyrian records mention that Ahab of Israel provided 2,000 chariots—by far the largest contingent in the anti-Assyrian alliance—in the battle of Qarqar in 853 B.C.

3 Judah's prosperity was intermittent and depended in large part on control of the trade routes to Egypt and the Red Sea. Border fortresses in the Judahite desert guarded the approaches from Edom. The "front door" of Judah was through Lachish and from there up to Hebron and Jerusalem. The capital was besieged many times, most forcefully by the Assyrians in 701 B.C. and by the Babylonians in 597 and 586, leading to the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar and marking the end of the monarchy.

An impressive devotion to the Davidic dynastic line characterized the southern kingdom and helped to maintain stability, in contrast to the more mercurial northern kingdom.

happened, when ^cJeroboam the son of Nebat heard it (he was still in ^dEgypt, for he had fled from the presence of King Solomon and had been dwelling in Egypt), ³that they sent and called him. Then Jeroboam and the whole assembly of Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam, saying, ⁴“Your father made our “yoke” heavy; now therefore, lighten the burdensome service of your father, and his heavy yoke which he put on us, and we will serve you.”

⁵So he said to them, “Depart for three days, then come back to me.” And the people departed.

⁶Then King Rehoboam consulted the elders who stood before his father Solomon while he still lived, and he said, “How do you advise me to answer these people?”

⁷And they spoke to him, saying, ^f“If you will be a servant to these people today, and serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.”

⁸But he rejected the advice which the elders had given him, and consulted the young men who had grown up with him, who stood before him. ⁹And he said to them, “What advice do you give? How should we answer this people who have spoken to me, saying, ‘Lighten the yoke which your father put on us?’”

¹⁰Then the young men who had grown up with him spoke to him, saying, “Thus you should speak to this people who have spoken to you, saying, ‘Your father made our yoke heavy, but you make it lighter on us’—thus you shall say to them: ‘My little finger shall be thicker than my father’s waist!’ ¹¹And now, whereas my father put a heavy yoke on you, I will add to your yoke; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with ²scourges!’”

¹²So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had directed, saying, “Come back to me the third day.” ¹³Then the king answered

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

The Divided Kingdom

Tensions had existed between the tribes since the time of the judges, especially between Judah in the south and Ephraim, the most influential tribe in the north. Solomon’s taxation to fund the building of the temple and palace in the southern city of Jerusalem alienated the northern tribes even further. After Solomon’s death, his son Rehoboam was approached by the people of Israel with a request for tax relief. Rehoboam rejected their request, and the nation split into two kingdoms. Rehoboam remained king of the southern kingdom (Judah) while Jeroboam became king of the northern kingdom (Israel). The northern kingdom of Israel collapsed in 722 B.C. when the Assyrians destroyed its capital, Samaria. The southern kingdom of Judah survived until 586 B.C., when it fell to the Babylonians.

the people ³roughly, and rejected the advice which the elders had given him; ¹⁴and he spoke to them according to the advice of the young men, saying, “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with ⁴scourges!” ¹⁵So the king did not listen to the people; for ^gthe turn of events was from the LORD, that He might fulfill His word, which the LORD had ^hspoken by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

¹⁶Now when all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, the people answered the king, saying:

ⁱ“What share have we in David?

We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.

To your tents, O Israel!

Now, see to your own house, O David!”

So Israel departed to their tents. ¹⁷But Rehoboam reigned over ^jthe children of Israel who dwelt in the cities of Judah.

all Israel refers to representatives of the northern tribes who had convened to consider the confirmation of Rehoboam as king of all the land.

12:4 A system of forced labor had been imposed by Solomon to accomplish and maintain his building projects (see 5:13–18). Because this burdensome service was especially hateful to the northern tribes, relief from it was a crucial issue.

12:6, 7 By elders is meant the chief government officials who had advised Rehoboam’s father Solomon (see 4:1–19). Their advice was to show moderation and temperance.

12:8, 9 The young men were men of Rehoboam’s generation whom he had appointed to government office.

12:10, 11 little finger... father’s waist: The advice of Rehoboam’s own advisors was that the system of forced labor should be intensified until its sting became like that of a scorpion. Scourges were leather whips that could have more than one tail to which barbed points or metal spikes were attached.

12:15 from the LORD: Even at this crucial time of national schism, God was sovereignly working through human events to accomplish His will, which had been made known through earlier prophecy (11:29–39).

12:16 What share have we in David: The ancient rivalry felt by the northern tribes now came to a peak in resentment against the tribe of Judah and the house of David. Saul was from the tribe of Benjamin and had been regarded as “one of their own.” David, from the south, had seemed distant. Rehoboam’s insensitivity to the volatile situation led to a division of the nation.

12:17 cities of Judah: The southern section also included the ¹⁸Then King Rehoboam ^ksent Adoram, who was in charge of the revenue; but all Israel stoned him with stones, and he died. Therefore King Rehoboam mounted his chariot in haste to flee to Jerusalem. ¹⁹So ^lIsrael has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

²⁰Now it came to pass when all Israel heard that Jeroboam had come back, they sent for him and called him to the congregation, and made him king over all ^mIsrael. There was none who followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah ⁿonly.

²¹And when ^oRehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah with the tribe of ^pBenjamin, one hundred and eighty thousand chosen men who were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, that he might restore the kingdom to Rehoboam the son of Solomon. ²²But ^qthe word of God came to Shemaiah the man of God, saying, ²³“Speak to Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, to all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people, saying, ²⁴“Thus says the LORD: “You shall not go up nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel. Let every man return to his house, ^rfor this thing is from Me.”” Therefore they obeyed the word of the LORD, and turned back, according to the word of the LORD.

Jeroboam's Gold Calves

²⁵Then Jeroboam ^sbuilt⁵ Shechem in the mountains of Ephraim, and dwelt there. Also he went out from there and built ^tPenuel. ²⁶And Jeroboam said in his heart, “Now the kingdom may return to the house of David: ²⁷If these people “go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, then the heart of this people will turn back to their lord, Rehoboam king of Judah, and they will kill me and go back to Rehoboam king of Judah.”

²⁸Therefore the king asked advice, ^vmade two calves of gold, and said to the people, “It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem. ^wHere are your gods, O Israel, which brought you up from the land of Egypt!” ²⁹And he set up one in ^xBethel, and the other he put in ^yDan. ³⁰Now this thing became ^za sin, for the people went to worship before the one as far as Dan. ³¹He made ⁶shrines on the high places, ^aand made priests from every class of people, who were not of the sons of Levi.

³²Jeroboam ⁷ordained a feast on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, like ^bthe feast that was in Judah, and offered sacrifices on the altar. So he did at Bethel, sacrificing to the calves that he had made. ^cAnd at Bethel he installed the priests of the high places which he had made. ³³So he made offerings on the altar which he tribal allotment of Simeon. But Simeon was absorbed by Judah; their allotment was “within the inheritance of the children of Judah” (Josh. 19:1).

12:19 That is, to the day of the narrator. In the end, Israel’s rebellion was its own destruction.

12:20 Jeroboam . . . king: The coronation of Jeroboam had been prophesied by Ahijah the prophet of the Lord (see 11:29–31). Nonetheless, the actual coronation apparently was done apart from priest or prophet of the Lord; there was no divine anointing, no true religious ceremony. Only the kings of the southern kingdom would have the sanction of the Davidic covenant (see 2 Sam. 7).

12:21 Rehoboam’s first inclination when he arrived in Jerusalem was to lead a war of reprisal against Israel. Benjamin: People of the border tribe might have gone either direction.

12:22 According to 2 Chr. 12:15, Iddo the prophet and Shemaiah together wrote a history of Rehoboam’s reign.

12:23, 24 this thing is from Me: The foolish behavior of Rehoboam brought about God’s judgment in dividing the nation into two new kingdoms.

12:25 built Shechem: That is, he fortified the ancient site (see 12:1). This strategic and historic city became the first capital of the northern kingdom. In fortifying this site, Jeroboam seems to have wanted to associate his reign with classic religious sites from the early history of Israel.

12:26, 27 However, Jeroboam knew in his heart that merely having a new presence in Shechem and Peniel would not in itself make the people of the northern kingdom forget the glories of the temple in Jerusalem.

12:28 Not only would they strike a familiar chord from Israel’s history, but the two calves of gold would arouse the interest of the remaining Canaanites in the northern kingdom. The result of Jeroboam’s action was religious confusion and apostasy; it would bring God’s sure condemnation (see 14:9). It should be recognized that this is the first time the Scriptures mention any deliberate attempt to establish a heterodox doctrine, a substandard cult as an official practice for the nation of Israel. While judgment was announced on this apostasy (ch. 13), the execution of this judgment would not take place for over two hundred years (the schism came in 930 B.C.; the destruction of the northern kingdom did not come until 722 B.C.). Jeroboam appealed to the people in several ways: (1) Traveling all the way to Jerusalem was too far, and it was unnecessary. (2) These calves were gods. (3) These calves were worshiped by their ancestors.

12:29 Bethel was north of Jerusalem in Benjamite territory, although its precise location is uncertain. It has been identified with Beitin; recent archaeological discoveries suggest Tell Bireh. Ai was nearby. In any case, Bethel had enjoyed a prominent place in Israelite history throughout the earlier patriarchal (Gen. 28:10–21) and post-conquest (Judg. 20:26–31) eras. Dan was in the northern portion of Israel. It was known as Laish and Leshem (Josh. 19:47; Judg. 18:7) until its capture by the Danites (Judg. 18:29). By that time it had already achieved a reputation as a center for pagan worship (Judg. 18:30). Jeroboam’s choice of these two sites was a brilliant move. He had one site in the northernmost part of his kingdom and another in the southernmost part; both had long ties to Israel’s past. No longer must the people make the long, arduous, and dangerous trip to Jerusalem. Jeroboam said, in effect, “We have brought religion to you.”

12:30 The divine declaration is simple: this thing became a sin. The exclusive claim of Jerusalem as the central place of the worship of God in the holy temple (see 6:1) was now being ignored by the people of Israel.

12:31–33 Jeroboam’s new religious institutions included starting a new religious order that did not include the Levites; setting up shrines at high places (see 3:2, 3); and replacing the Feast of Tabernacles with a fall festival in the eighth month. His various attempts at religious innovation would quickly incur God’s denunciation (ch. 13) and earn him a reputation that would live in spiritual infamy (13:33, 34; 22:52).

had made at Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, in the month which he had ^ddevised in his own heart. And he ⁸ordained a feast for the children of Israel, and offered sacrifices on the altar and ^eburned incense.

The Message of the Man of God

13 And behold, ^aa man of God went from Judah to Bethel ¹by the word of the LORD, ^band Jeroboam stood by the altar to burn incense. ²Then he cried out against the altar ²by the word of the LORD, and said, “O altar, altar! Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, a child, ^cJosiah by name, shall be born to the house of David; and on you he shall sacrifice the priests of the high places who burn incense on you, and men’s bones shall be ^dburned on you.’” ³And he gave ^ea sign the same day, saying, “This is the sign which the LORD has spoken: Surely the altar shall split apart, and the ashes on it shall be poured out.”

⁴So it came to pass when King Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, who cried out against the altar in Bethel, that he stretched out his hand from the altar, saying, “Arrest him!” Then his hand, which he stretched out toward him, withered, so that he could not pull it back to himself. ⁵The altar also was split apart, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the LORD. ⁶Then the king answered and said to the man of God, “Please ^fentreat the favor of the LORD your God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me.”

So the man of God entreated the LORD, and the king’s hand was restored to him, and became as before. ⁷Then the king said to the man of God, “Come home with me and refresh yourself, and ^gI will give you a reward.”

Death of the Man of God

¹¹Now an ^jold prophet dwelt in Bethel, and his ³sons came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Bethel; they also told their father the words which he had spoken to the king. ¹²And their father said to them, “Which way did he go?” For his sons ⁴had seen which way the man of God went who came from Judah. ¹³Then he said to his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” So they saddled the donkey for him; and he rode on it, ¹⁴and went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak. Then he said to him, “Are you the man of God who came from Judah?”

And he said, “I am.”
¹⁵Then he said to him, “Come home with me and eat bread.”

¹⁶And he said, ^k“I cannot return with you nor go in with you; neither can I eat bread nor drink water with you in this place. ¹⁷For ⁵I have been told ^lby the word of the LORD, ‘You shall not eat bread nor drink water there, nor return by going the way you came.’”

¹⁸He said to him, “I too am a prophet as you are, and an angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD, saying, ‘Bring him back with you to your house, that he may eat bread and drink water.’” (He was lying to him.)

¹⁹So he went back with him, and ate bread in his house, and drank water.

13:1 man of God: This prophet is unknown to us. The phrase by the word of the LORD occurs seven times in this chapter (vv. 1, 2, 5, 9, 17, 18, 32) and emphasizes that the man of God was functioning at the command of God and in God’s power. Jeroboam . . . altar to burn incense: Having established his own deviant religion and his apostate priesthood, Jeroboam hardly had compunctions about serving priestly functions.

13:3 The word sign indicates something miraculous (Ex. 4:21; Jer. 33:20, 21). Miraculous signs may indicate either the intended purpose of the deed or its wondrous effects, both ideas often occurring together (see Deut. 6:22; Ps. 78:43).

13:4, 5 Unlike David, who confessed his sin when he was accused by Nathan the man of God (see 2 Sam. 12:13), the wicked Jeroboam sought to arrest his accuser. Instead he found his own arm “arrested” and the altar destroyed.

13:6–10 In mercy, the prophet was used by God to heal the hand of the king, but he would have none of his hospitality or reward.

13:6 the LORD your God: This language may be simply deferential to the prophet, but here it may indicate a recognition by Jeroboam that he was no longer really serving the living God. 13:8 not go in: In biblical times, sharing a meal was more than just a social custom. It implied an intimate fellowship. Great religious ceremonies from the Passover to the Lord’s Table center on people eating together. The prophet did not want his act of mercy to suggest that God accepted Jeroboam’s deviant worship.

13:11 Besides being an important cult center (see 12:29), Bethel may have had one of the early prophetic schools (see 2 Kin. 2:3–7). an old prophet: Perhaps the aged prophet had been previously associated with such a group. Whatever his status then, at this point he clearly tells lies (see v. 18).

13:12–18 The prophet was clearly an apostate. He had not spoken against Jeroboam; instead, he boldly lied to the Lord’s true prophet.

13:19 went back with him: The man of God had withstood Jeroboam’s attempt to save face by having the prophet stay with him (v. 7), yet now the prophet failed to discern the deception and plainly violated God’s clear instructions (v. 9). The prophet would pay a terrible price for his disobedience (v. 24).

²⁰Now it happened, as they sat at the table, that the word of the LORD came to the prophet who had brought him back; ²¹and he cried out to the man of God who came from Judah, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Because you have disobeyed the word of the LORD, and have not kept the commandment which the LORD your God commanded you, ²²but you came back, ate bread, and drank water in the ^mplace of which the LORD said to you, “Eat no bread and drink no water,” your corpse shall not come to the tomb of your fathers.’”

²³So it was, after he had eaten bread and after he had drunk, that he saddled the donkey for him, the prophet whom he had brought back. ²⁴When he was gone, ⁿa lion met him on the road and killed him. And his corpse was thrown on the road, and the donkey stood by it. The lion also stood by the corpse. ²⁵And there, men passed by and saw the corpse thrown on the road, and the lion standing by the corpse. Then they went and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt.

²⁶Now when the prophet who had brought him back from the way heard it, he said, “It is the man of God who was disobedient to the word of the LORD. Therefore the LORD has delivered him to the lion, which has torn him and killed him, according to the word of the LORD which He spoke to him.” ²⁷And he spoke to his sons, saying, “Saddle the donkey for me.” So they saddled it. ²⁸Then he went and found his corpse thrown on the road, and the donkey and the lion standing by the corpse. The lion had not eaten the corpse nor torn the donkey. ²⁹And the prophet took up the corpse of the man of God, laid it on the donkey, and brought it back. So the old prophet came to the city to mourn, and to bury him. ³⁰Then he laid the corpse in his own tomb; and they mourned over him, saying, ^o“Alas, my brother!” ³¹So it was, after he had buried him, that he spoke to his sons, saying, “When I am dead, then bury me in the tomb where the man of God is buried; ^play my bones beside his bones. ^{32 q}For the ⁶saying which he cried out by the word of the LORD against the altar in Bethel, and against all the ⁷shrines on the high places which are in the cities of ^rSamaria, will surely come to pass.”

Judgment on the House of Jeroboam

14 At that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam became sick. ²And Jeroboam said to his wife, “Please arise, and disguise yourself, that they may not recognize you as the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Shiloh. Indeed, Ahijah the prophet is there, who told me that ^a*I would be king over this people*. ^{3 b}Also take ¹with you ten loaves, some cakes, and a jar of honey, and go to him; he will tell you what will become of the child.” ⁴And Jeroboam’s wife did so; she arose ^cand went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were ²glazed by reason of his age.

⁵Now the LORD had said to Ahijah, “Here is the wife of Jeroboam, coming to ask you something about her son, for he 13:20 Whatever his motives were for bringing the man of God to his house, the aged prophet now received a true word from God. He realized too late his awful part in the condemnation of the man of God. The divine sentence (v. 22) would be speedily executed (v. 24).

13:24 The way the lion stood by both the man of God and his donkey shows that the lion did not kill for food but was God’s executioner (see vv. 25, 26, 28).

13:29–32 The old prophet was brought back to biblical faith at the sight of the death of the true prophet from Judah. The true but disobedient prophet had paid a terrible price for his disobedience to what he knew to be the word of God (vv. 20–24).

13:32 the saying . . . will surely come to pass: This confession proclaims renewal of faith in God’s word by the prophet who had become deceitful. The mercy of God is at His disposal! The Lord had healed the hand of Jeroboam (v. 6) because of His mercy, and the Lord restored the faith of the deceitful prophet because of His mercy as well.

13:32 cities of Samaria: The city of Samaria did not in fact come into being for nearly a half century (see 16:24), but the author mentions it here from his own later perspective.

13:33 Rather than learning from the report of this incident, Jeroboam became even more set in his evil way. His apostasy would earn for him his reputation as the one who “made Israel sin” (16:26).

14:1 Abijah: The name means “My Father Is the Lord.”

14:2 In a time of distress Jeroboam turned not to one of his own prophets but to the true prophet of God who had predicted his kingship (11:29–39). Although Ahijah was now old (v. 4), his spiritual insight was not so dim that he could not see through disguised human intentions (v. 5).

14:3 ten loaves: The gifts that Jeroboam’s wife took along are not those customarily given by a king (see 2 Kin. 8:7–9) but rather were common fare (see 1 Sam. 9:6–8). Jeroboam no doubt was hoping he could deceive the prophet by sending a simple gift.

14:4 Located about 20 miles north of Jerusalem, Shiloh had been the religious center for the nation during the time of the judges and was the location of the tabernacle (Josh. 18:1; 1 Sam. 1:3). The city was destroyed by the Philistines after the loss of the ark (1 Sam. 4:1–11; Jer. 7:12–15).

14:4–6 Although he could not see, Ahijah could “see” by means of the revelation of the living God.

is sick. Thus and thus you shall say to her; for it will be, when she comes in, that she will pretend to be another woman.”

⁶And so it was, when Ahijah heard the sound of her footsteps as she came through the door, he said, “Come in, wife of Jeroboam. Why do you pretend to be another person? For I have been sent to you with bad news.” ⁷Go, tell Jeroboam, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ^d“Because I exalted you from among the people, and made you ruler over My people Israel, ⁸and ^etore the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to you; and yet you have not been as My servant David, ^fwho kept My commandments and who followed Me with all his heart, to do only what was right in My eyes; ⁹but you have done more evil than all who were before you, ^gfor you have gone and made for yourself other gods and molded images to provoke Me to anger, and ^hhave cast Me behind your back— ¹⁰therefore behold! ⁱI will bring disaster on the house of Jeroboam, and ^jwill cut off from Jeroboam every male in Israel, ^kbond and free; I will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as one takes away refuse until it is all gone. ¹¹The dogs shall eat ^lwhoever belongs to Jeroboam and dies in the city, and the birds of the air shall eat whoever dies in the field; for the LORD has spoken!” ¹²Arise therefore, go to your own house. ^mWhen your feet enter the city, the child shall die. ¹³And all Israel shall mourn for him and bury him, for he is the only one of Jeroboam who shall ³come to the grave, because in him ⁿthere is found something good toward the LORD God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

Death of Jeroboam

¹⁹Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he ^xmade war and how he reigned, indeed they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel. ²⁰The period that Jeroboam reigned was twenty-two years. So he rested with his fathers. Then ^yNadab his son reigned in his place.

Rehoboam Reigns in Judah

²¹And Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. ^zRehoboam was forty-one years old when he became king. He reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city ^awhich the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put His name there. ^bHis mother’s name was Naamah, an Ammonitess. ^{22 c}Now Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and they ^dprovoked Him to jealousy with their sins which they committed, more than all that their fathers had done. ²³For they also built for them-

14:7–16 Despite the prophetic sanction of the establishment of his kingdom (v. 7), Jeroboam’s sins were severe enough to prevent his house from staying on the throne of Israel (vv. 8–10). Worse news still would come for his family. The child would die just as his mother returned to her city, Tirzah (vv. 12, 13, 17). Moreover, an enemy would rise to destroy the household of the king (vv. 14–16).

14:10 bond and free: Like “heaven and earth” in Gen. 1:1, the two opposites together mean totality, or all kinds and classes of people (see 2 Kin. 14:26).

14:11 Dogs were scavengers in the ancient Middle East and came to symbolize the dregs of society (see 2 Kin. 8:13).

14:13 something good: Abijah’s character receives special divine consideration. Although the age of Jeroboam’s son is not certain, he may have been quite young.

14:14 cut off the house: As prophesied here, the end of Jeroboam’s line would soon be accomplished (15:27–16:7).

14:15 God had promised that He would uproot Israel should it violate its covenantal obligations (Deut. 28:63, 64). wooden images: The worship carried on here concerns the goddess Asherah. She had become associated with Baal (Judg. 3:7; 2 Kin. 23:4). Her worship would become one of the sins that would bring about the downfall of the northern kingdom (2 Kin. 17:9–11). See also 16:33.

14:17 Famed for its beauty (Song 6:4), Tirzah was a royal retreat and the capital of the northern kingdom’s first two dynasties (see 15:33).

14:18 all Israel mourned: The sorrow of the people was also part of Ahijah’s prophecy (v. 13).

14:19 The book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel is mentioned often in 1 Kings as an early source book for the history of the northern kingdom. These chronicles should not be confused with the biblical books of 1 and 2 Chronicles.

14:20 Each of the subsequent kings of Israel would be judged against the example of the wickedness of Jeroboam (see 15:34). Only with Ahab (see 16:31) was a worse pattern set.

14:21 the city which the LORD had chosen: These words celebrate not only Jerusalem (Deut. 12:1–19) but also the Davidic kingship.

14:22 Judah did evil: Although Rehoboam apparently began his reign well (see 2 Chr. 11:5–17, 23), his spiritual condition soon deteriorated (2 Chr. 12:1). Despite the fact that Judah had several spiritually sensitive kings, apostasy ultimately took its toll in the southern kingdom, just as it also did in the northern kingdom (2 Kin. 17:18–20).

14:23 The high places were a problem throughout the history of Judah and Israel (Mic. 1:3). At times, the worship offered on them might have been done sincerely, in the true worship of God selves ^ehigh ⁷ places, ^fsacred pillars, and ^gwooden images on every high hill and ^hunder every green tree. ²⁴ⁱ And there were also ⁸perverted persons in the land. They did according to all the ^jabominations of the nations which the LORD had cast out before the children of ^kIsrael.

^{25l} It happened in the fifth year of King Rehoboam that Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. ^{26m} And he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house; he took away everything. He also took away all the gold shields ⁿwhich Solomon had made. ²⁷ Then King Rehoboam made bronze shields in their place, and ⁹committed them to the hands of the captains of the ¹guard, who guarded the doorway of the king's house. ²⁸ And whenever the king entered the house of the LORD, the guards carried them, then brought them back into the guardroom.

^{29o} Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ³⁰ And there was ^pwar between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days. ^{31q} So Rehoboam ²rested with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the City of David. ^r His mother's name was Naamah, an Ammonitess. Then ^sAbijam ³his son reigned in his place.

Abijam Reigns in Judah

15 In ^a the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam the son of Nebat, Abijam became king over Judah. ² He reigned three years in Jerusalem. ^b His mother's name was ^cMaachah the granddaughter of ^dAbishalom. ³ And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him; ^e his heart was not ¹loyal to the LORD his God, as was the heart of his father David. ⁴ Nevertheless ^ffor David's sake the LORD his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, by setting up his son after him and by establishing Jerusalem; ⁵ because David ^gdid what was right in the eyes of the LORD, and had not turned aside from anything that He commanded him all the days of his life, ^hexcept in the matter of Uriah the Hittite. ⁶ⁱ And there was war between ²Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of his life. ^{7j} Now the rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? And there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.

^{8k} So Abijam ³rested with his fathers, and they buried him in the City of David. Then Asa his son reigned in his place.

Luke 1:6 ^h 2 Sam. 11:3, 15–17; 12:9, 10 ⁶ ⁱ 1 Kin. 14:30; 2 Chr. 12:15–13:20 ² So with MT, LXX, Tg., Vg.; some Heb. mss., Syr. Abijam ⁷ ^j 2 Chr. 13:2–22 ⁸ ^k 2 Chr. 14:1 ³ Died and joined his ancestors

(see 3:2–4; see also 2 Kin. 12:3). But these were also the places in which Canaanite worship rites were practiced in honor of Baal and where other foreign gods were worshiped as well. Sacred pillars refers to standing pillars of stone or wood. God had prohibited Israel from setting these up (see Deut. 16:22). Wooden images is literally “Asherahs” (see v. 15), and refers to obscene wooden symbols that were associated with the sexual worship of the Canaanite deity of that name.

14:24 perverted persons: Male prostitutes were part of the fertility rituals of ancient Canaan (see Deut. 23:18). Here the word is a term that means “devoted to sacred service.” abominations: This is an exceedingly strong term; it describes perverted activities that impelled God to dispossess the Canaanite peoples from their land (see Deut. 18:9, 12).

14:25 Shishak: Although Jerusalem and Judah were spared total annihilation at this time because Rehoboam repented, Jerusalem was looted as a result of the sins that took place “on his watch” (2 Chr. 12:1–9). Egyptian records confirm that Shishak's invasion was widespread and highly successful.

14:26–28 The sacking of treasures of the house of the LORD (v. 26) is particularly shocking, when we think of the long and detailed description of Solomon's greatest accomplishment, the building and furnishing of the holy temple in Jerusalem (chs. 6–8).

14:27 bronze shields: A compelling symbol of the ruin of the temple treasures is seen in the change from shields of gold (v. 26; see 10:16, 17) to bronze.

14:29 The book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah is mentioned 15 times in Kings. Apparently it was an official record of events in the southern kingdom down to the days of Jehoiakim. Neither this work nor “the chronicles of the kings of Israel” (v. 19) is to be confused with the biblical books of Chronicles.

14:30 The early history of Rehoboam and Jeroboam (see 11:26–12:17) led to their continuing enmity and war.

15:1 Although it may reflect a popular name for Abijah (2 Chr. 12:16), Abijam is a strange name for a king of Judah, as it ties together the Hebrew word for “Father” with the Hebrew word for “Sea”—normally a deity of Canaan. It is possible that this name reflects the Canaanite influence that had come even into the royal family this early in Judah's reign. The alternative name Abijah is a standard name of praise to God. It means “My Father Is the Lord.”

15:2 The daughter of Uriel of Gibeah (2 Chr. 13:2) and Tamar (see 2 Sam. 14:27), Maachah was the granddaughter of Abishalom and the favorite of Rehoboam's 18 wives. A woman of strong will, she wielded a good deal of influence during the reign of her son Abijam and her grandson Asa. The mothers of the kings of Judah are named to show that the claims to the throne are legitimate.

15:3 The word translated loyal here denotes one who is wholly devoted to God. Contrast this negative assessment of Abijam with the positive use of the same term when Asa is evaluated (15:14).

15:4 for David's sake: That is, because of God's love for David and the promise He had made to him (see 2 Sam. 7). lamp: This is one of the lovely images of God's intended blessing on the Davidic house.

15:5 The quality of David's reign is celebrated. Uriah: At the same time, his most grievous sin is not omitted (2 Sam. 11; 12).

15:6 Because Rehoboam reigned until his fifty-eighth year (14:21), Abijam probably knew little respite from war (see 14:30). Abijam did at least trust God during the war against Jeroboam, and God gave him a decisive victory (see 2 Chr. 13:2–20).

15:7, 8 This follows the pattern established for recording the obituaries of the kings of Judah.

15:9 Asa: The meaning of his name is perhaps “Healer.”

king of Israel, Asa became king over Judah. ¹⁰ And he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem. His grandmother's name was Maachah the granddaughter of Abishalom. ¹¹ Asa did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, as did his father David. ¹² And he banished the ⁴perverted persons from the land, and removed all the idols that his fathers had made. ¹³ Also he removed ⁿMaachah his grandmother from being queen mother, because she had made an obscene image of ⁵Asherah. And Asa cut down her obscene image and ^oburned it by the Brook Kidron. ¹⁴ But the ⁶high places were not removed. Nevertheless Asa's ^qheart was loyal to the LORD all his days. ¹⁵ He also brought into the house of the LORD the things which his father ^rhad dedicated, and the things which he himself had dedicated: silver and gold and utensils.

¹⁶ Now there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days. ¹⁷ And ^sBaasha king of Israel came up against Judah, and built ^tRamah, ^uthat he might let none go out or come in to Asa king of Judah. ¹⁸ Then Asa took all the silver and gold that was left in the treasuries of the house of the LORD and the treasuries of the king's house, and delivered them into the hand of his servants. And King Asa sent them to ^vBen-Hadad the son of Tabrimmon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, who dwelt in ^wDamascus, saying, ¹⁹ "Let there be a treaty between you and me, as there was between my father and your father. See, I have sent you a present of silver and gold. Come and break your treaty with Baasha king of Israel, so that he will withdraw from me."

²⁰ So Ben-Hadad heeded King Asa, and

^x sent the captains of his armies against the cities of Israel. He attacked ^yIjon, ^zDan, ^aAbel Beth Maachah, and all Chinneroth, with all the land of Naphtali. ²¹ Now it happened, when Baasha heard it, that he stopped building Ramah, and remained in ^bTirzah.

²² Then King Asa made a proclamation throughout all Judah; none was exempted. And they took away the stones and timber of Ramah, which Baasha had used for building; and with them King Asa built ^dGeba of Benjamin, and ^eMizpah.

²³ The rest of all the acts of Asa, all his might, all that he did, and the cities which he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? Nadab Reigns in Israel

²⁵ Now ⁱNadab the son of Jeroboam became king over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and he reigned over Israel two years. ²⁶ And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father, and in ^jhis sin by which he had made Israel sin.

²⁷ Then Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him. And Baasha killed him at ^kGibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines, while Nadab and all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon. ²⁸ Baasha killed him in the third year of Asa king of Judah, and 15:12 perverted persons: This term is used for sacred prostitutes in the Canaanite religious practices (22:46; 2 Kin. 23:7).

15:13 removed Maachah: Asa's many spiritual activities (see 2 Chr. 14:2-5; 15:1-18) are telescoped into a few statements here (vv. 11-15). Although the reforms mentioned in vv. 11, 12 took place early in Asa's reign (see 2 Chr. 14:2-5), the chronicler indicates (2 Chr. 15:16) that the deposing of Maachah took place in the fifteenth year of his rule (895 B.C.). Maachah's removal came as a result of a time of covenant renewal (2 Chr. 15:1-15) and a consequent reaction against her vile idolatry.

15:14 In some instances the high places were intended as places where the Lord was worshiped (see 3:2; 1 Sam. 9:12); in other cases they were used for pagan purposes (see 2 Chr. 14:2-3).

15:16 war: There were periods of peace between the two nations (see the league of Ahab and Jehoshaphat in ch. 22). But this was a period of warfare, particularly in the border areas.

15:17 Ramah was about five and a half miles north of Jerusalem on the main north-south commercial route through the land, and it was therefore of great importance to both kingdoms. It gave east-west access to both the foothills of Ephraim and the Mediterranean coast, so it was of strategic military importance as well. Baasha was striking a blow for control of the center of the land.

15:18 To stave off the penetration of Israel into Judah, King Asa plundered the temple for money to try to make a military alliance with Damascus. Since the campaign mentioned here took place in the first decade of the ninth century B.C., the king involved was Ben-Hadad I (900-860 B.C.). Tabrimmon: There is a deliberate change in the Hebrew spelling of this name, based on an antipathy toward the god who is represented in the original name. Instead of writing Tab-Ramman, meaning "Thunderer," an epithet of the storm god Hadad (see Zech. 12:11), the author wrote Tab-Rimmon, the Hebrew word meaning "Pomegranate."

15:19 Asa apparently suggested that for all practical purposes a treaty between the house of David and Damascus had been in effect since the days of Solomon.

15:21 The retreat of Baasha from Ramah was due to the renewed treaty between Asa of Judah and Ben-Hadad of Damascus.

15:22 Asa's swift action in taking Ramah allowed him to dismantle its fortifications and the use of the material to fortify two nearby strategic Benjaminite towns, Geba and Mizpah. The control of these three sites afforded advanced defensive protection for Jerusalem and northern Judah.

15:25, 26 Nadab: His name means "Generous" or "Noble," but he did not live up to his name.

15:27, 28 Baasha killed him: As Baasha, a military commander for Nadab, had done to his master, so it would be done to his own house. Zimri, one of the commanders of his chariot corps, would conspire against Baasha's son Elah and kill him (16:9, 10).

reigned in his place. ²⁹And it was so, when he became king, that he killed all the house of Jeroboam. He did not leave to Jeroboam anyone that breathed, until he had destroyed him, according to ^mthe word of the LORD which He had spoken by His servant Ahijah the Shilonite, ³⁰ⁿbecause of the sins of Jeroboam, which he had sinned and by which he had made Israel sin, because of his provocation with which he had provoked the LORD God of Israel to anger.

³¹Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ³²^oAnd there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

Baasha Reigns in Israel

³³In the third year of Asa king of Judah, Baasha the son of Ahijah became king over all Israel in Tirzah, and reigned twenty-four years. ³⁴He did evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in ^pthe way of Jeroboam, and in his sin by which he had made Israel sin.

16 Then the word of the LORD came to ^aJehu the son of ^bHanani, against ^cBaasha, saying: ²^d“Inasmuch as I lifted you out of the dust and made you ruler over My people Israel, and ^eyou have walked in the way of Jeroboam, and have made My people Israel sin, to provoke Me to anger with their sins, ³surely I will ^ftake ¹away the posterity of Baasha and the posterity of his house, and I will make your house like ^gthe house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat. ⁴The dogs shall eat ^hwhoever belongs to Baasha and dies in the city, and the birds of the air shall eat whoever dies in the fields.”

⁵Now the rest of the acts of Baasha, what he did, and his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ⁶So Baasha ²rested with his fathers and was buried in ^jTir-

zah. Then Elah his son reigned in his place.

⁷And also the word of the LORD came by the prophet ^kJehu the son of Hanani against Baasha and his house, because of all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD in provoking Him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam, and because ^lhe killed them.

Elah Reigns in Israel

⁸In the twenty-sixth year of Asa king of Judah, Elah the son of Baasha became king over Israel, and reigned two years in Tirzah. ⁹^mNow his servant Zimri, commander of half his chariots, conspired against him as he was in Tirzah drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza, ⁿsteward³ of his house in Tirzah. ¹⁰And Zimri went in and struck him and killed him in the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned in his place.

¹¹Then it came to pass, when he began to reign, as soon as he was seated on his throne, that he killed all the household of Baasha; he ^odid not leave him one male, neither of his relatives nor of his friends. ¹²Thus Zimri destroyed all the household of Baasha, ^paccording to the word of the LORD, which He spoke against Baasha by Jehu the prophet, ¹³for all the sins of Baasha and the sins of Elah his son, by which they had sinned and by which they had made Israel sin, in provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger ^qwith their ⁴idols.

¹⁴Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

Zimri Reigns in Israel

¹⁵In the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, Zimri had reigned in Tirzah seven days. And the people were encamped ^ragainst Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines. ¹⁶Now the 15:29, 30 The death of Nadab was in line with prophetic fulfillment, an act of God's judgment on the house of Jeroboam I (see 14:9, 16). Nonetheless, the manner of his death was condemned by God through His prophet Jehu (see 16:2, 7).

15:33 Baasha . . . in Tirzah: The second capital of Israel (see 14:17) was located in the highlands of Ephraim between Shechem (the first capital, see 12:25) and Mt. Gilboa.

15:34 did evil: Political exchange had not signaled any improvement in the spiritual climate of Israel.

16:1-7 As the son of the prophet Hanani whom Asa had executed (2 Chr. 16:7-10), Jehu (not to be confused with Jehu the king of Israel; see 2 Kin. 9:2) came from the southern kingdom. His long prophetic ministry lasted into the days of Jehoshaphat. Like his father before him, he confronted sin fearlessly—even in the royal house.

16:4 In the ancient Middle East considerable attention was given to the proper care of the body of the deceased. Usually the body was interred on the day of death. When a body was left to the dogs and the birds, an intolerable feeling of shame extended to all family and friends of the deceased. For examples, see the ignoble ends of King Ahab (22:38) and Queen Jezebel (2 Kin. 9:33-37).

16:8 The first two dynasties of Israel ended in tragedy. Like Jeroboam's son Nadab (15:28), Baasha's son Elah was assassinated. There were three more claimants to the throne before the year 885 B.C. was finished: Zimri, Tibni, and Omri. With the advent of Omri, Israel's third dynasty would be established.

16:10-12 The assassination of Elah and the annihilation of his house by Zimri (v. 12), while treacherous, had prophetic sanction because of the wickedness of Elah and his father Baasha.

16:13 idols: Here the plural of the term for "vapor" is used. This is a contemptuous term describing the deities of false, pagan theology.

16:15 As Baasha had done (15:29), so Zimri also fulfilled prophecy against a royal house (vv. 8-14).

people who were encamped heard it said, “Zimri has conspired and also has killed the king.” So all Israel made Omri, the commander of the army, king over Israel that day in the camp. ¹⁷Then Omri and all Israel with him went up from Gibbethon, and they besieged Tirzah. ¹⁸And it happened, when Zimri saw that the city was ⁵taken, that he went into the citadel of the king’s house and burned the king’s house ⁶down upon himself with fire, and died, ¹⁹because of the sins which he had committed in doing evil in the sight of the LORD, ²⁰in walking in the ¹way of Jeroboam, and in his sin which he had committed to make Israel sin.

²⁰Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and the treason he committed, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

Omri Reigns in Israel

²¹Then the people of Israel were divided into two parts: half of the people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri. ²²But the people who followed Omri prevailed over the people who followed Tibni the son of Ginath. So Tibni died and Omri reigned. ²³In the thirty-first year of Asa king of Judah, Omri became king over Israel, and reigned twelve years. Six years he reigned in ¹⁴Tirzah. ²⁴And he bought the hill of Samaria from Shemer for two talents of silver; then he built on the hill, and called the name of the city which he built, ¹⁵Samaria,⁷ after the name of Shemer, owner of the hill. ²⁵¹⁰Omri did evil in the eyes of the LORD, and did worse than all who were before him. ²⁶For he ¹⁵walked in all the ways of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin by which he had made Israel sin, provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their ¹⁵idols.⁸

²⁷Now the rest of the acts of Omri which he did, and the might that he showed, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

²⁸So Omri rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. Then Ahab his son reigned in his place.

Ahab Reigns in Israel

²⁹In the thirty-eighth year of Asa king of Judah, Ahab the son of Omri became king over Israel; and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. ³⁰Now Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD, more than all who were before him. ³¹And it came to pass, as though it had been a trivial thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, ²that he took as wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal, king of the ¹Sidonians;⁹ and he went and served Baal and worshiped him. ³²Then he set up an altar for Baal in ¹the temple of Baal, which he had built in Samaria.

16:18 Because he burned the king’s house in Tirzah, Zimri may have contributed to Omri’s building of a new capital city and royal residence (v. 24), perhaps one that could be defended better.

16:21 The source of Omri’s political base is not certain. According to Josephus, Tibni was killed in the dynastic power struggles that brought in the dynasty of Omri.

16:23–28 Although Omri reigned for only 12 short years, he was one of the more impressive of the kings of Israel in terms of his accomplishments. He invaded Moab and figured prominently in an alliance aimed at stopping the westward advance of the rising power of Assyria. His exploits are commemorated in the Moabite Stone and the Assyrian annals. Indeed, he was so important to the Assyrians that they called Israel “The House of Omri” long after his death. Yet the author of Kings describes little of Omri’s achievements, because he did evil in the eyes of the LORD.

16:24 Omri’s choice of Samaria as the site for his new capital city was doubtless motivated by several factors: its central geographic setting, its commercial location, and its defensive potential. As a Canaanite territory, it had political, ethnic, and religious independence from all previous allegiances.

16:30, 31 The first level of evaluation of Ahab is the same as that given to his father (compare v. 30 with v. 25). a trivial thing: By these words we realize that in Ahab we come to the very lowest point in the degeneration of the spiritual life of the kings of Israel. Each of the kings of the northern kingdom from Nadab (15:26), Jeroboam’s son, to Omri (16:26), Ahab’s father, had been guilty of walking in the perverse pathway of Jeroboam I. Ahab acted as though the sins of Jeroboam were a trivial thing. He did this in two ways: first, in his politically important marriage to Jezebel; second, in his promotion of Baal worship as the state religion. As in the case of the foreign wives of Solomon before him (11:1–13), Ahab’s marriage produced tragic results. Jezebel could influence Ahab to be wicked (ch. 21). However, when she was absent from Ahab, he had moments of relatively good behavior (ch. 20). Her father was both king and priest of Baal in Sidon; similarly, Jezebel was princess and priestess of Baal. Her Phoenician name was Abizebel, meaning “My Father (Baal) Is Noble.” The Hebrew scribes deliberately dropped a letter from her name. Thus she would be known forever as Jezebel, a dishonorable name meaning “Lacking Honor.” he went and served Baal and worshiped him: The outrage is that Ahab had gone quite beyond a mere combining of beliefs. He became a full-fledged worshiper of Baal, the Canaanite deity, for whom his wife Jezebel was a priestess.

16:32, 33 Further, Ahab established an altar for Baal, a temple of Baal, and a wooden image. In these actions Ahab went a con-

Baal

(Heb. ba'al) (16:31; 18:21; Judg. 2:13; 2 Kin. 10:20) Strong’s #1168

Baal was a pagan god of storms and fertility, worshiped throughout the ancient Middle East because of his association with powerful forces. His name literally means “Owner,” “Master,” or “Husband.” In Canaanite literature, Baal is often associated with the fertility goddess Asherah, whose sacred “Asherah poles” are mentioned numerous times in the OT (2 Kin. 21:7). Worship of these pagan deities involved self-mutilation, ritual prostitution, and infant sacrifice. Despite these despicable practices, the Israelites themselves adopted Baal worship—a factor which eventually led to God’s punishment (Judg. 2:11–15; Jer. 19:4–6).

33^d And Ahab made a ^gwooden image. Ahab ^edid more to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel who were before him. 34 In his days Hiel of Bethel built Jericho. He laid its foundation ¹with Abiram his firstborn, and with his youngest son Segub he set up its gates, ^faccording to the word of the LORD, which He had spoken through Joshua the son of Nun.

Elijah Proclaims a Drought

17 And Elijah the Tishbite, of the ^ainhabitants of Gilead, said to Ahab, ^b“As the LORD God of Israel lives, ^cbefore whom I stand, ^dthere shall not be dew nor rain ^ethese years, except at my word.”

²Then the word of the LORD came to him, saying, ³“Get away from here and turn eastward, and hide by the Brook Cherith, which flows into the Jordan. ⁴And it will be that you shall drink from the brook, and I have commanded the ^fravens to feed you there.”

⁵So he went and did according to the word of the LORD, for he went and stayed by the Brook Cherith, which flows into the Jordan. ⁶The ravens brought him bread and meat in the morning, and bread and meat in the evening; and he drank from the brook. ⁷And it happened after a while that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

which belongs to ^hSidon, and dwell there. See, I have commanded a widow there to provide for you.” ¹⁰So he arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, indeed a widow was there gathering sticks. And he called to her and said, “Please bring me a little water in a cup, that I may drink.” ¹¹And as she was going to get it, he called to her and said, “Please bring me a morsel of bread in your hand.”

¹²So she said, “As the LORD your God lives, I do not have bread, only a handful of flour in a bin, and a little oil in a ¹jar; and see, I am gathering a couple of sticks that I may go in and prepare it for myself and my son, that we may eat it, and ⁱdie.”

¹³And Elijah said to her, “Do not fear; go and do as you have said, but make me a small cake from it first, and bring it to me; and afterward make some for yourself and your son. ¹⁴For thus says the LORD God of Israel: ‘The bin of flour shall not be used up, nor shall the jar of oil run dry, until the day the LORD sends rain on the earth.’”

¹⁵So she went away and did according to the word of Elijah; and she and he and her household ate for many days. ¹⁶The bin of flour was not used up, nor did the jar of oil run dry, according to the word of the LORD which He spoke by Elijah.

Elijah Revives the Widow's Son

¹⁷Now it happened after these things that the son of the woman who owned the house became sick. And his sickness was so ²serious that ³there was no siderable distance in establishing the Baal cult as the state religion of Israel. The worship of Baal in Israel would ultimately spell the end of both kingdoms (see 2 Kin. 17:16–23; Jer. 2:1—3:25). The sin that Ahab and Jezebel brought into the nation of Israel was a total rejection of the living God.

16:34 In defiance of Joshua’s curse (Josh. 6:26, 27), Hiel built Jericho. Jericho had been occupied at various times (see Judg. 3:13), but not as a permanently occupied fortified city. Either Hiel offered his sons as foundation sacrifices (following ancient custom) or they died in some mishap. One way or the other, Joshua’s curse was carried out.

17:1 No prophet had arisen since Moses (Deut. 18:15–19) like Elijah. His name means “The Lord Is My God.” Elijah would speak for God fearlessly in the midst of the spiritual vacuum that gripped the northern kingdom throughout the days of Ahab, Ahaziah, and Jehoram. Tishbite has been understood traditionally as referring to a town named Tishbe or as designation for the settlers in Gilead. A formal, solemn oath (see David’s words in 1:19), as the LORD God of Israel lives, was also a brilliant declaration. Elijah, who stood unafraid before the king of Israel, unannounced and uninvited, could do so because he stood before One whose glory, majesty, and power were infinitely greater than Ahab’s. dew nor rain: Because the Canaanite belief was that only Baal could govern the dew and the rain, Elijah’s pronouncement was as an immediate challenge: Who is really God, Baal or the Lord? (see 18:21; Deut. 28:12; 33:28).

17:5 The Brook Cherith was across the Jordan, far from the palace in Samaria.

17:6 The Lord of all creation may use any means He wishes to feed His prophet, even the ravens.

17:9 Zarephath was in Phoenician territory, seven miles south of Sidon, the stronghold of Baal. The Lord’s sustaining Elijah first by a raven and then by a widow provided the prophet with a dramatic test of faith at the outset of his ministry. The widow, too, would be taught the value of trusting in God alone (v. 24). Many widows were exceptionally poor, as they had few options in an agrarian culture. This one was in a desperate plight when she encountered God’s prophet.

17:12 the Lord your God: The widow of Zarephath was a woman of faith in the living God, even though she lived in a foreign land. Bread here denotes a round cake. The flour bin was a large earthenware container (Gen. 24:14), while jar denotes a smaller, portable container such as a jug or flask.

17:13 me . . . first: Elijah’s challenge to the widow would call for faith in the midst of her desperate circumstances.

17:14 The Lord God of Israel acknowledges the woman’s identification of the Lord as Elijah’s God (v. 12), but also points the widow directly to Him who is the Sustainer of all.

17:15, 16 While an apostate Israelite nation suffered because of the drought, God supplied the daily necessities to a non-Israelite who willingly took Him at His word. The fresh supply of oil and flour each day would be a reminder to both the prophet and the widow of the value of personal trust in Him who alone is sufficient to meet every need (see Phil. 4:19).

breath left in him. ¹⁸ So she said to Elijah, ^j “What have I to do with you, O man of God? Have you come to me to bring my sin to remembrance, and to kill my son?”

¹⁹ And he said to her, “Give me your son.” So he took him out of her arms and carried him to the upper room where he was staying, and laid him on his own bed. ²⁰ Then he cried out to the LORD and said, “O LORD my God, have You also brought tragedy on the widow with whom I lodge, by killing her son?” ^{21 k} And he stretched himself out on the child three times, and cried out to the LORD and said, “O LORD my God, I pray, let this child’s soul come back to him.” ²² Then the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came back to him, and he ^l revived.

²³ And Elijah took the child and brought him down from the upper room into the house, and gave him to his mother. And Elijah said, “See, your son lives!”

²⁴ Then the woman said to Elijah, “Now by this ^m I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in your mouth is the truth.”

Elijah’s Message to Ahab

18 And it came to pass after ^a many days that the word of the LORD came to Elijah, in the third year, saying, “Go, present yourself to Ahab, and ^b I will send rain on the earth.”

² So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab; and there was a severe famine in Samaria. ³ And Ahab had called Obadiah, who was ¹ in charge of his house. (Now Obadiah feared the LORD greatly. ⁴ For so it was, while Jezebel ² massacred the prophets of the LORD, that Obadiah had taken one hundred prophets and hidden them, fifty to a cave, and had fed them with bread and water.) ⁵ And Ahab had said to Obadiah, “Go into the land to all the springs of water and to all the brooks; perhaps we may find grass to keep the horses and mules alive, so that we will not have to kill any livestock.” ⁶ So they divided the land between them to explore it; Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

⁷ Now as Obadiah was on his way, suddenly Elijah met him; and he ^e recognized him, and fell on his face, and said, “Is that you, my lord Elijah?”

⁸ And he answered him, “It is I. Go, tell your master, ‘Elijah is here.’”

⁹ So he said, “How have I sinned, that you are delivering your servant into the hand of Ahab, to kill me? ¹⁰ As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my master has not sent someone to hunt for you; and when they said, ‘He is not here,’ he took an oath from the kingdom or nation that they could not find you. ¹¹ And now you say, ‘Go, tell your master, ‘Elijah is here’!” ¹² And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from you, that ^d the Spirit of the LORD will carry you to a place I do not know; so when I go and tell Ahab, and he cannot find you, he will kill me. But I your servant have feared the LORD from my youth. ¹³ Was it not reported to my lord what I did when Jezebel killed the prophets of the LORD, how I hid one hundred men of the LORD’s prophets, fifty to a cave, and fed them with bread and water? ¹⁴ And now you say, ‘Go, tell your master, ‘Elijah is here.’” He will kill me!”

¹⁵ Then Elijah said, “As the LORD of

17:18 Sin is not always the immediate cause of suffering (see John 9:3; Heb. 12:7–11).

17:19 Elijah stayed in an upper room, temporary quarters on the roof accessible from outside the house. This arrangement reserved the privacy of all parties and protected the widow’s reputation in the community.

17:21 Elijah’s action in the stretching out of himself on the dead lad three times may symbolize the power of the thrice holy God (see Num. 6:24–26; Is. 6:3). Elisha later would perform a similar act (2 Kin. 4:34; see also Acts 20:10).

17:21, 22 cried . . . heard: The scriptural motif of crying and being heard, or calling and being answered, is a theme that emphasizes intimacy of fellowship or communion (see Ps. 22:24; 91:15; 102:1, 2).

17:24 now . . . I know: The widow’s belief had now grown into fullness of faith. That Elijah was indeed a “man of God” (v. 18) had been proved by word and deed. The entire incident demonstrates that the Lord is the God of Israelite and Gentile alike (see Acts 10:34, 35; 11:18; Rom. 3:29), and that He is the author of life itself (see Luke 20:38; John 11:25, 26).

18:1 The NT indicates that the drought ended in the fourth year (Luke 4:25; James 5:17). If the point of reckoning here is late in the third year, the end of the drought may well have not occurred until some three and a half years after its inception.

18:3 Although Jewish tradition has identified them, this Obadiah is probably not the author of the Book of Obadiah. Nothing in that book points to so early a date as this time. The Obadiah here is a highly sympathetic figure, whose great faith in God and heroic actions help us gain a more balanced picture of the situation of people of faith in Israel at the time. in charge of his house: This phrase reflects an official title (see 4:6). Obadiah was Ahab’s palace official and minister of state, in both cases serving as the king’s personal representative.

18:4 That there could be one hundred prophets for Obadiah to hide may be seen from the fact that associations of prophets who met and may even have lived together are known from this period onward (see 1 Sam. 10:5; 2 Kin. 2:3–7; 6:1, 2). Over twenty thousand caves have been found in the vicinity of Mt. Carmel, many of them capable of holding 50 men.

18:5 Keeping horses alive was important to maintain military preparedness in a world where there was nearly always the threat of new hostilities.

18:12 Obadiah was not quite sure whether he could trust the Lord’s prophet. Obadiah recognized that God’s Holy Spirit might come upon His servants (Judg. 6:34; 11:29) in such a way as to carry them to other places (Ezek. 8:3; 11:1). Obadiah had already jeopardized his life in hiding God’s prophets. Reporting Elijah’s presence without producing him to an already infuriated Ahab might well cost him his life (vv. 9, 14).

hosts lives, before whom I stand, I will surely present myself to him today.”

¹⁶So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

¹⁷Then it happened, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said to him, “Is that you, O troubler of Israel?”

¹⁸And he answered, “I have not troubled Israel, but you and your father’s house have, ¹⁹in that you have forsaken the commandments of the LORD and have followed the Baals. ¹⁹Now therefore, send and gather all Israel to me on ^hMount Carmel, the four hundred and fifty prophets of Baal, ⁱand the four hundred prophets of ³Asherah, who ⁴eat at Jezebel’s table.”

Elijah’s Mount Carmel Victory

²⁰So Ahab sent for all the children of Israel, and ^jgathered the prophets together on Mount Carmel. ²¹And Elijah came to all the people, and said, ^k“How long will you falter between two opinions? If the LORD is God, follow Him; but if Baal, ^lfollow him.” But the people answered him not a word. ²²Then Elijah said to the people, ^m“I alone am left a prophet of the LORD; ⁿbut Baal’s prophets are four hundred and fifty men. ²³Therefore let them give us two bulls; and let them choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire under it; and I will prepare the other bull, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire under it. ²⁴Then you call on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the LORD; and the God who ^oanswers by fire, He is God.”

So all the people answered and said, ⁵“It is well spoken.”

²⁵Now Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, “Choose one bull for yourselves and prepare it first, for you are many; and call on the name of your god, but put no fire under it.”

²⁶So they took the bull which was given them, and they prepared it, and called on the name of Baal from morning even till noon, saying, “O Baal, ⁶hear us!” But there was ⁷no voice; no one answered. Then they ⁷leaped about the altar which they had made.

²⁷And so it was, at noon, that Elijah mocked them and said, “Cry ⁸aloud, for he is a god; either he is meditating, or he is busy, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he is sleeping and must be awakened.” ²⁸So they cried aloud, and ⁹cut themselves, as was their custom, with ⁹knives and lances, until the blood gushed out on them. ²⁹And when midday was past, ^rthey prophesied until the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice. But there was ^sno voice; no one answered, no one paid attention.

³⁰Then Elijah said to all the people, “Come near to me.” So all the people came near to him. ^tAnd he repaired the altar of the LORD that was broken down. ³¹And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD had come, saying, “Israel shall be your name.” ³²Then with the stones he built an altar ^vin the name of the LORD; and he made a trench around the altar large enough to hold two seahs of seed.

18:18 Baals: The wording indicates that Ahab had a practice of attending services at various local shrines where this deity was worshipped.

18:19 The wife of Ei, Asherah was a fertility goddess whose exploits and veneration were linked with Baal (see 14:15). The worship of Baal and Asherah held a constant fascination for Israel from earliest times (Ex. 34:13; Num. 25; Judg. 2:13) and eventually caused Israel’s demise (2 Kin. 17:16–18).

18:22 Although there were other prophets alive at the time (v. 13), Elijah focused on the fact that he alone stood ready to confront the 450 prophets of Baal.

18:24 The contest between the Lord and Baal would reveal who was the true god of storm. Such a god would have lightning in his arsenal of weapons (see Ps. 18:12–14; Hab. 3:11). Sending fire for the wood and the offering would be a reasonable test of the power of the rival deities.

18:27 The sharp words for he is a god were mocking and derisive. Perhaps their god was lost in thought, meditating, and simply needed them to call louder. Is busy is a euphemism. In his harsh attack on the folly of idolatry, Elijah suggested that the reason their god did not answer was that he had gone to a celestial men’s room.

18:30 repaired the altar: This was an earlier altar that had been used by the true people of God on a legitimate high place (see 3:2–4). Elijah avoided all contact with the altar that was associated with Baal.

18:31 The numerical symbolism of twelve stones cannot be missed. The people of Israel had descended from twelve tribes.

18:32 The rebuilding of the altar in the name of the Lord would be a reminder that the Lord had not abdicated His position; He was still the God of all Israel, including the northern kingdom, where pagan syncretism and full Baal worship prevailed.

(Heb. shem) (8:20; 18:24; Ex. 6:3) Strong’s #8034

The Hebrew word shem may be related to a root meaning “to mark,” but this is uncertain. In Bible times, a person’s name not only served as a means of identification, but it could also describe a person’s character, position, or destiny (see 1 Sam. 25:25 for the meaning of Nabal’s name, “Fool”). Sometimes a person was renamed, reflecting a change in that person’s character or status (see Gen. 35:10). The various names of God are especially important. Each name reveals a particular aspect of His nature (for example, God Most High or the Lord of Hosts). For this reason, His name is to be honored and should never be used irreverently (Ex. 20:7). By sharing His name with Israel, God indicated the intimacy of His covenantal relationship with them (Ex. 3:13–15).

³³ And he ^wput the wood in order, cut the bull in pieces, and laid it on the wood, and said, “Fill four waterpots with water, and ^xpour it on the burnt sacrifice and on the wood.” ³⁴ Then he said, “Do it a second time,” and they did it a second time; and he said, “Do it a third time,” and they did it a third time. ³⁵ So the water ran all around the altar; and he also filled ^ythe trench with water.

³⁶ And it came to pass, at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near and said, “LORD ^zGod of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, ^alet it be known this day that You are God in Israel and I am Your servant, and that ^bI have done all these things at Your word. ³⁷ Hear me, O LORD, hear me, that this people may know that You are the LORD God, and that You have turned their hearts back to You again.”

³⁸ Then ^cthe fire of the LORD fell and consumed the burnt sacrifice, and the wood and the stones and the dust, and it licked up the water that was in the trench. ³⁹ Now when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces; and they said, ^d“The LORD, He is God! The LORD, He is God!”

⁴¹ Then Elijah said to Ahab, “Go up, eat and drink; for there is the sound of abundance of rain.” ⁴² So Ahab went up to eat and drink. And Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; ^h then he bowed down on the ground, and put his face between his knees, ⁴³ and said to his servant, “Go up now, look toward the sea.”

So he went up and looked, and said, “There is nothing.” And seven times he said, “Go again.”

⁴⁴ Then it came to pass the seventh time, that he said, “There is a cloud, as small as a man’s hand, rising out of the sea!” So he said, “Go up, say to Ahab, ¹ ‘Prepare your chariot, and go down before the rain stops you.’”

⁴⁵ Now it happened in the meantime that the sky became black with clouds and wind, and there was a heavy rain. So Ahab rode away and went to Jezreel. ⁴⁶ Then the ⁱhand of the LORD came upon Elijah; and he ^jgirded ² up his loins and ran ahead of Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

Elijah Escapes from Jezebel

19 And Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, also how he had ^aexecuted all the prophets with the sword. ² Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, ^b“So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I do not make your life as the life of one of them by tomorrow about this time.” ³ And when he saw that, he arose and ran for his life, and went to Beersheba, which belongs to Judah, and left his servant there.

⁴ But he himself went a day’s journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a ¹broom tree. And he ^cprayed that he might die, and said, “It is enough! Now, LORD, take my life, for I am no better than my fathers!”

18:33–35 third time: The three applications of water not only made the sacrifice thoroughly soaked and beyond human trickery but may again attest the power of the thrice holy God (see 17:21).

18:36 The phrase LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel so characteristic of worship in the early period (see Gen. 50:24; Ex. 3:6, 15, 16), reminded Elijah’s hearers of the inviolability of the Abrahamic covenant. The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, was still the God of the northern kingdom, and the nation’s only hope of life, protection, and blessing in the land of promise (Deut. 30:20; 2 Kin. 13:23).

18:37 Elijah’s prayer had two elements. First, he wished that the Lord would demonstrate clearly to the people that He alone is the living God. Second, he prayed for the full revival of God’s people. The first prayer would be answered in a dramatic manner.

18:38 Showing who really was the god of storm, Baal proved impotent, while the fire of the LORD destroyed everything on the site.

18:39 God’s power over fire, water, and rain (v. 45) demonstrated that He, not Baal, is the LORD, He is God!

18:40 The prophets were executed because of their blatant sin and the ruin they had brought upon the nation.

18:41, 42 The respective reactions of the king and the prophet are enlightening. A compromising king, as bidden, gladly celebrated, while a faithful prophet bowed down and prayed for the promised result of the Lord’s miraculous victory.

18:44 This cloud may have seemed as small as a man’s hand when it was first visible from Mt. Carmel’s height, but Elijah sensed the approach of the growing storm and warned Ahab that he had better hurry.

18:45 Elijah had announced more than three years earlier that there would be no more rain unless it came from the hand of the living God (see 17:1).

18:46 girded up his loins: Elijah tucked his garment into his sash, enabling him to run freely the 13 miles to Jezreel.

19:1, 2 The report Ahab told Jezebel did not cause her to repent or to turn from Baal to God. Ahab merely reported the facts that led to her personal embarrassment. Her response was to issue a death warrant for Elijah.

19:3 Elijah understood Jezebel’s intentions when he saw her response, and he realized dejectedly that the Lord’s victory on Mt. Carmel would not necessarily bring a quick end to the paganism that was rampant in the land. Elijah faced profound disappointment when he saw that nothing really had changed. Despite the tremendous demonstration of the reality of God’s power on Mt. Carmel, the people would soon forget and revert to their old evil ways. He . . . ran for his life, not from fear, but from a desire that Jezebel not be the one to kill him. Actually he wished for death, but he prayed that his death would be at the Lord’s hand.

19:4 The broom tree has sufficient foliage for shade and often grows to a height of ten feet. It grows abundantly in Israel.

⁵Then as he lay and slept under a broom tree, suddenly an ²angel touched him, and said to him, “Arise and eat.” ⁶Then he looked, and there by his head was a cake baked on ³coals, and a jar of water. So he ate and drank, and lay down again. ⁷And the ⁴angel of the LORD came back the second time, and touched him, and said, “Arise and eat, because the journey is too great for you.” ⁸So he arose, and ate and drank; and he went in the strength of that food forty days and ⁴forty nights as far as ^eHoreb, the mountain of God.

⁹And there he went into a cave, and spent the night in that place; and behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and He said to him, “What are you doing here, Elijah?”

¹⁰So he said, ^f“I have been very ^gzealous for the LORD God of hosts; for the children of Israel have forsaken Your covenant, torn down Your altars, and ^hkilled Your prophets with the sword. ⁱI alone am left; and they seek to take my life.”

God's Revelation to Elijah

¹¹Then He said, “Go out, and stand ^jon the mountain before the LORD.” And behold, the LORD ^kpassed by, and ^la great and strong wind tore into the mountains and broke the rocks in pieces before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake; ¹²and after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire; and after the fire ⁵a still small voice.

¹³So it was, when Elijah heard it, that ^mhe wrapped his face in his mantle and went out and stood in the entrance of the cave. ⁿSuddenly a voice came to him, and said, “What are you doing here, Elijah?”

^{14o}And he said, “I have been very zealous for the LORD God of hosts; because the children of Israel have forsaken Your covenant, torn down Your altars, and killed Your prophets with the sword. I alone am left; and they seek to take my life.”

¹⁵Then the LORD said to him: “Go, return on your way to the Wilderness of Damascus; ^pand when you arrive, anoint Hazael as king over Syria. ¹⁶Also you shall anoint ^qJehu the son of Nimshi as king over Israel. And ^rElisha the son of Shaphat of Abel Meholah you shall anoint as prophet in your place. ^{17s}It shall be that whoever escapes the sword of Hazael, Jehu will ^tkill; and whoever escapes the sword of Jehu, ^uElisha will kill. ^{18v}Yet I have reserved seven thousand in Israel, all whose knees have not bowed to Baal, ^wand every mouth that has not kissed him.”

Elisha Follows Elijah

¹⁹So he departed from there, and found Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was plowing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and he was with the twelfth. Then Elijah passed by him and threw his ^xmantle on him. ²⁰And he left the oxen and ran after Elijah, and said, ^y“Please let me kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow you.”

And he said to him, “Go back again, for what have I done to you?”

²¹So Elisha turned back from him, and took a yoke of oxen and slaughtered them and ^zboiled their flesh, using the oxen’s equipment, and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he arose and followed Elijah, and became his servant.

19:5, 6 God brought Elijah a cake and water, even as He had provided for him in earlier days (see ch. 17).

19:7 Although the angel of the LORD can at times refer to God Himself (Ex. 3:2-6), in the Book of Kings it means a supernatural messenger (2 Kin. 1:3; 19:35).

19:8 As it frequently does in the Scriptures, Horeb refers to Mt. Sinai itself, “the mountain of God” (see Ex. 3:1).

19:10 zealous: Like Phinehas of old (Num. 25:7-13), Elijah had a passion for God that made him stand against the idolatry he saw all around him. I alone am left: In his depression, he thought he alone was faithful to God. When he was killed, there would be no one left to serve God.

19:11, 12 the LORD was not in: Although each of the things mentioned in vv. 11, 12 could signal God’s presence (see Ex. 40:38; Zech. 14:4, 5; Acts 2:2, 3), Elijah learned that God is not just a God of the spectacular. At times, the work of God is experienced in a still small voice, “the sound of a gentle stillness.” Elijah had called for lightning, and he had called for fire and national revival. What Elijah did not see was that God was at work in the lives of many people (v. 18).

19:15 Elijah’s work for God was far from complete, but it would now take a new direction. Elijah would anoint Elisha (vv. 19-21), Elisha would anoint Hazael (2 Kin. 8:7-15), and Jehu would be anointed by Elisha’s servant (2 Kin. 9:1-10). The importance of Elijah’s task may be seen in that Elisha became Elijah’s designated successor, and Jehu and Hazael became kings.

19:17 The three individuals, Elisha, Jehu, and Hazael, were instruments of God. One would follow the other in works of judgment on God’s hard-hearted people.

19:18 There were still many people who were faithful to the living God. Seven thousand had not stooped to worship Baal. Although in each generation there are great spiritual leaders who do the work of God, there is a community of God among everyday people whose lives are not spectacular but who live faithfully for God.

19:21 Unlike those whom Jesus would mention in his teachings (Matt. 8:18-22; Luke 9:57-62), Elisha turned back to his home only to break fully with his past. As Joshua had faithfully served Moses in a period of training for a position of great responsibility, so Elisha would humbly serve this later “Moses” until Elijah was taken into heaven (2 Kin. 2:1-12). The use of the word servant of Elisha matches the use of this word for Gehazi, the servant of Elisha in 2 Kin. 4:12.

Lives of Elijah and Elisha

The life-and-death struggle with Baalism, acute in Elijah's day, intensified under Elisha and culminated in bloody purges of the priests of Baal. Ahab's line was overthrown, and reforms were promulgated by Jehu.

Elijah's rugged figure became a model of the ideal prophet in Israel. Jesus fulfilled 40 days and nights of desert fasting, as Elijah had done; many believed he was a reincarnated Elijah (see 1 Kin. 19:8; Matt. 4:2; 16:14).

Elisha also became a model for the prophets. Jesus' miracle of feeding the 5,000 was similar to Elisha's feeding 100 men with 20 barley loaves.

ELIJAH

Elijah of Tishbe was instrumental in Israel's reaction to Baalism. Jezebel of Tyre was symbolic of the nation's corruption.

- 1 Fed by ravens
- 2 Miracle of the widow's jar of oil
- 3 After the triumph on Mount Carmel, Elijah ordered the people to slaughter the prophets of Baal.
- 4 Elijah was so discouraged that he wanted to die. Fleeing to Sinai, he was told to anoint a new generation of political and religious leaders.
- 5 At Naboth's vineyard in Jezreel, God's servant confronted Jezebel's puppet, the king.

ELISHA

Elisha, like Elijah, performed miracles and was called "the chariots of Israel and their horsemen" (2 Kin. 13:14).

- 1 Born west of the Jordan, the prophet frequented shrines at Mount Carmel and Gilgal. Dothan, a flourishing town in this period, was probably his residence.
- 2 Spring healed
- 3 Jeered by youths
- 4 Elisha journeyed from Mount Carmel to Shunem to raise a child from the dead, as Elijah had done at Zarephath.
- 5 Vision of chariots of fire
- 6 Elisha and his servant anointed Hazael and Jehu, completing Elijah's commission at Horeb.

Ahab Defeats the Syrians

20 Now ^aBen-Hadad the king of Syria gathered all his forces together; thirty-two kings ^{were} with him, with horses and chariots. And he went up and besieged ^bSamaria, and made war against it. ²Then he sent messengers into the city to Ahab king of Israel, and said to him, “Thus says Ben-Hadad: ³‘Your silver and your gold ^{are} mine; your loveliest wives and children ^{are} mine.’”

⁴And the king of Israel answered and said, “My lord, O king, just as you say, I and all that I have ^{are} yours.”

⁵Then the messengers came back and said, “Thus speaks Ben-Hadad, saying, ‘Indeed I have sent to you, saying, “You shall deliver to me your silver and your gold, your wives and your children”; ⁶but I will send my servants to you tomorrow about this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants. And it shall be, ^{that} whatever is ¹pleasant in your eyes, they will put ^{it} in their hands and take ^{it}.’”

⁷So the king of Israel called all the elders of the land, and said, “Notice, please, and see how this ^{man} seeks trouble, for he sent to me for my wives, my children, my silver, and my gold; and I did not deny him.”

⁸All the elders and all the people said to him, “Do not listen or consent.”

⁹Therefore he said to the messengers of Ben-Hadad, “Tell my lord the king, ‘All that you sent for to your servant the first time I will do, but this thing I cannot do.’”

And the messengers departed and brought back word to him.

¹⁰Then Ben-Hadad sent to him and said, “The gods do so to me, and more

¹¹So the king of Israel answered and said, “Tell ^{him}, ‘Let not the one who puts on ^{his} armor ^dboast like the one who takes ^{it} off.’”

¹²And it happened when Ben-Hadad heard this message, as he and the kings ^{were} drinking at the ³command post, that he said to his servants, “Get ready.” And they got ready to attack the city.

¹³Suddenly a prophet approached Ahab king of Israel, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Have you seen all this great multitude? Behold, ^II will deliver it into your hand today, and you shall know that ^II am the LORD.’”

¹⁴So Ahab said, “By whom?”

And he said, “Thus says the LORD: ‘By the young leaders of the provinces.’”

Then he said, “Who will set the battle in order?”

And he answered, “You.”

¹⁵Then he mustered the young leaders of the provinces, and there were two hundred and thirty-two; and after them he mustered all the people, all the children of Israel—seven thousand.

¹⁶So they went out at noon. Meanwhile Ben-Hadad and the thirty-two kings helping him ^{were} getting drunk at the command post. ¹⁷The young leaders of the provinces went out first. And Ben-Hadad sent out ^a patrol, and they told him, saying, “Men are coming out of Samaria!” ¹⁸So he said, “If they have come out for peace, take them alive; and if they have come out for war, take them alive.”

¹⁶ ^g 1 Kin. 16:9; 20:12; [Prov. 20:1]

20:1 The king of Syria was Ben-Hadad II (860–842 B.C.). Although there is a modern nation called Syria, the ancient name for the people who had their capital in Damascus was Aramean, and their land was Aram (see 2 Kin. 5:1). One of the distinctive features of the ancient Middle East was the practice of forming alliances. Coalitions such as the thirty-two kings were common in times of war (Gen. 14:1–16).

20:2 When he is associated with his wicked wife Jezebel, Ahab appears as thoroughly evil. But in this chapter he appears as a capable leader in a time of international turmoil, and as a person who had some sense of the power and presence of God (see vv. 13, 14).

20:3, 4 Taken by themselves, Ben-Hadad’s words are mine meant no more than that Israel was a client state to the more powerful Aramean state. Ahab’s reply all . . . are yours would then have been acceptance of such a treaty, in which Israel was the subservient party.

20:5, 6 The language was no longer that of political formalities; this was a demand for complete surrender of everything of value, of any person of worth, of whatever was pleasant in Ahab’s eyes, to be handed over to the foreign monarch.

20:7, 8 Ahab apparently held out little hope of withstanding so vast an enemy host. His elders (v. 8) counseled him against submitting.

20:10 Ben-Hadad’s boast was that his striking power was so great that Samaria would be ground to a powder, yielding barely enough for each of his soldiers to carry away a handful.

20:11 Ahab’s proverbial reply reminded Ben-Hadad that a boast alone would not get the job done.

20:12 The notice that Ben-Hadad was drinking during the time he should have been preparing for battle shows his arrogance. He was celebrating victory before he had begun fighting (see v. 16).

20:13 This prophet is not named. We are reminded that there were many true prophets of the Lord at the time (18:13; 20:35). I will deliver . . . you shall know: Just as God had demonstrated His person and power on Mt. Carmel (ch. 18), He would now make Himself known to Ahab in the coming battle.

20:14, 15 The prophet revealed the outlines of the strategy Ahab should use. To his credit, Ahab obeyed the divine command and mustered his force.

20:16 This was an alliance of thirty-two kings from small areas in Aram and the surrounding territories. But they were all getting drunk—an arrogant act before the battle had even begun.

20:17–21 Ahab followed up his probing skirmish with a well-timed charge by his main striking force. Ben-Hadad, the king of the Arameans, barely escaped (v. 20) with his life. The resulting great slaughter (v. 21) was a tremendous victory for the army of Ahab.

army which followed them. ²⁰And each one killed his man; so the Syrians fled, and Israel pursued them; and Ben-Hadad the king of Syria escaped on a horse with the cavalry. ²¹Then the king of Israel went out and attacked the horses and chariots, and killed the Syrians with a great slaughter.

²²And the prophet came to the king of Israel and said to him, “Go, strengthen yourself; take note, and see what you should do, ^hfor ⁴in the spring of the year the king of Syria will come up against you.”

The Syrians Again Defeated

²³Then the servants of the king of Syria said to him, “Their gods are gods of the hills. Therefore they were stronger than we; but if we fight against them in the plain, surely we will be stronger than they. ²⁴So do this thing: Dismiss the kings, each from his position, and put captains in their ⁵places; ²⁵and you shall muster an army like the army ⁶that you have lost, horse for horse and chariot for chariot. Then we will fight against them in the plain; surely we will be stronger than they.”

And he listened to their voice and did so.

²⁶So it was, in the spring of the year, that Ben-Hadad mustered the Syrians and went up to ⁱAphek to fight against Israel. ²⁷And the children of Israel were mustered and given provisions, and they went against them. Now the children of Israel encamped before them like two little flocks of goats, while the Syrians filled the ^jcountryside.

²⁸Then a ^kman of God came and spoke to the king of Israel, and said, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Because the Syrians have said, “The LORD is God of the hills, but He is not God of the valleys,” therefore ^lI will deliver all this great multitude into your hand, and you shall know that I am the LORD.’” ²⁹And they encamped opposite each other for seven days. So it was that on the seventh day the battle was joined; and the children of Israel killed one hundred thousand foot soldiers of the Syrians in one day. ³⁰But the rest fled to Aphek, into the city; then a wall fell on twenty-seven thousand of the men who were left.

And Ben-Hadad fled and went into the city, into an inner chamber.

Ahab's Treaty with Ben-Hadad

³¹Then his servants said to him, “Look now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings. Please, let us ^mput sackcloth around our waists and ropes around our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; perhaps he will spare your life.” ³²So they wore sackcloth around their waists and put ropes around their heads, and came to the king of Israel and said, “Your servant Ben-Hadad says, ‘Please let me live.’”

And he said, “Is he still alive? He is my brother.”

³³Now the men were watching closely to see whether any sign of mercy would come from him; and they quickly grasped at this word and said, “Your brother Ben-Hadad.”

So he said, “Go, bring him.” Then Ben-Hadad came out to him; and he had him come up into the chariot.

³⁴So Ben-Hadad said to him, ““The cities which my father took from your father I will restore; and you may set up marketplaces for yourself in Damascus, as my father did in Samaria.”

Then Ahab said, “I will send you away with this treaty.” So he made a treaty with him and sent him away.

Ahab Condemned

³⁵Now a certain man of ^othe sons of the prophets said to his neighbor ⁿby the word of the LORD, “Strike me, please.” And the man refused to strike him. ³⁶Then he said to him, “Because you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, 20:22 This is likely the same prophet through whom God had given an encouraging message (v. 13; contrast v. 35). Ahab ultimately trusted in human wisdom rather than divine standards (see v. 42). The period of late spring to early summer was one of the two main seasons for military expeditions. Provisions were readily available for men and cattle. The end of the rains allowed the movement of troops and provisions to be made more easily.

20:23 The Aramean advisors reflected traditional ancient Middle Eastern theological conceptions. Their gods' powers, such as their gods of the hills, were limited to particular locations. But the living God is not limited by time (Ps. 90:2) or space (Ps. 139:7-12). This is a fact beyond the imagination of these pagan “theologians.”

20:26 This Aphek is not the Philistine city where the ark was lost (see 1 Sam. 4:1), but another location just east of the Jordan in northern Gilead. Apparently the Arameans were launching their second campaign in the Jordan valley. The Arameans would learn that the living God can deliver His people in the valley as well as the hills (see Ps. 23:4; Joel 3:12-14).

20:31 Ben-Hadad now appealed to Ahab's merciful nature. The Aramean king sent his servants to Ahab in the traditional attire of submission and repentance.

20:32 The term brother was commonly used when relations between kings were cordial (see 9:13). Ben-Hadad might have been implying, “We are both kings.”

20:35 This certain man is probably a different prophet than the one mentioned earlier in the story (see vv. 13, 22). sons of the prophets: Although this term first occurs here, prophetic associations were known at least from Samuel's time (1 Sam. 10). Obadiah had only recently been instructed about rescuing such groups of prophets from Ahab's purge (18:13-14).

surely, as soon as you depart from me, a lion shall kill you.” And as soon as he left him, ^aa lion found him and killed him.

³⁷And he found another man, and said, “Strike me, please.” So the man struck him, inflicting a wound. ³⁸Then the prophet departed and waited for the king by the road, and disguised himself with a bandage over his eyes. ³⁹Now ^ras the king passed by, he cried out to the king and said, “Your servant went out into the midst of the battle; and there, a man came over and brought a man to me, and said, ‘Guard this man; if by any means he is missing, ^syour life shall be for his life, or else you shall ⁷pay a talent of silver.’ ⁴⁰While your servant was busy here and there, he was gone.”

Then the king of Israel said to him, “So shall your judgment be; you yourself have decided it.”

⁴¹And he hastened to take the bandage away from his eyes; and the king of Israel recognized him as one of the prophets. ⁴²Then he said to him, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Because you have let slip out of your hand a man whom I appointed to utter destruction, therefore your life shall go for his life, and your people for his people.’”

⁴³So the king of Israel ^uwent to his house sullen and displeased, and came to Samaria.

Naboth Is Murdered for His Vineyard

21 And it came to pass after these things that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard which was in ^aJezreel, next to the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. ²So Ahab spoke to Naboth, saying, “Give me your ^bvineyard, that I may have it for a vegetable garden, because it is near, next to my house; and for it I will give you a vineyard better than it. Or, if it seems good to you, I will give you its worth in money.”

³But Naboth said to Ahab, “The LORD forbid ^cthat I should give the inheritance of my fathers to you!”

⁴So Ahab went into his house sullen and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him; for he had said, “I will not give you the inheritance of my fathers.” And he lay down on his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no food. ⁵But ^dJezebel his wife came to him, and said to him, “Why is your spirit so sullen that you eat no food?”

⁶He said to her, “Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite, and said to him, ‘Give me your vineyard for money; or else, if it pleases you, I will give you another vineyard for it.’ And he answered, ‘I will not give you my vineyard.’”

⁷Then Jezebel his wife said to him, “You now exercise authority over Israel! Arise, eat food, and let your heart be cheerful; I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.”

⁸And she wrote letters in Ahab’s name, sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters to the elders and the nobles who were dwelling in the city with Naboth. ⁹She wrote in the letters, saying, him, saying, “You have ^eblasphemed

¹¹So the men of his city, the elders and nobles who were inhabitants of his city, did as Jezebel had sent to them, as it was written in the letters which she had sent to them. ¹²^gThey proclaimed a fast, and seated Naboth with high honor among the people. ¹³And two men, scoundrels, came in and sat before him; and the scoundrels ^hwitnessed against him, against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, “Naboth has blasphemed God and the king!” ⁱThen they took him outside the city and stoned him with stones, so that he died. ¹⁴Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, “Naboth has been stoned and is dead.”

20:42, 43 The prophet’s dramatic tale is symbolic; as Ahab had judged the case, so he would be judged (see 22:29–37).

20:43 Sullen here connotes stubbornness as well as a downcast spirit. Rather than being grateful to God for the victories, Ahab resorts to human reason and adamantly refuses to change his ways.

21:1 Samaria was Ahab’s capital city; its name is used to represent all of Israel (see 2 Kin. 1:3; 2 Chr. 24:23; Jon. 3:6).

21:2 Technically, all land was the Lord’s, who granted it in perpetuity to each Israelite tribe and family (Lev. 25:23–28). Accordingly, the property belonged to Naboth (Num. 36:2–9). Even the king was obliged to obey the law (1 Sam. 10:25). Ahab therefore negotiated with Naboth for his property.

21:7 In reminding Ahab that he was king and could do as he pleased, Jezebel reflected her Canaanite background where kings ruled absolutely (see Deut. 17:14–20; 1 Sam. 8:11–18).

21:8 Such letters would be written by royal scribes on scrolls or tablets and then sealed with the sender’s personal sign.

21:13 two men, scoundrels: The charge against Naboth was serious (see Ex. 22:28). Although two witnesses were required in capital cases (Deut. 17:6), these two men were scoundrels, easily bribed into giving false testimony (Prov. 19:28). Naboth was executed outside the city as the Law required (Lev. 24:14). God’s law was followed in the manner and place of his death, though his execution was an outrage against the whole spirit of the Law. As in the case of Achan (Josh. 7:24, 25), Naboth’s sons were stoned to death with him (see 2 Kin. 9:26), preventing any successor of Naboth from seeking to undo the illegal land seizure.

¹⁵And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, “Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give you for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead.” ¹⁶So it was, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab got up and went down to take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

The LORD Condemns Ahab

¹⁷Then the word of the LORD came to ^kElijah the Tishbite, saying, ¹⁸“Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, ^lwho lives in Samaria. There he is, in the vineyard of Naboth, where he has gone down to take possession of it. ¹⁹You shall speak to him, saying, “Thus says the LORD: “Have you murdered and also taken possession?”” And you shall speak to him, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ^m“In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, dogs shall lick your blood, even yours.””

²⁰So Ahab said to Elijah, ⁿ“Have you found me, O my enemy?”

And he answered, “I have found you, because ^oyou have sold yourself to do evil in the sight of the LORD: ²¹‘Behold, ^pI will bring calamity on you. I will take away your ^qposterity, and will cut off from Ahab ^revery male in Israel, both ^sbond and free. ²²I will make your house like the house of ^tJeroaboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of ^uBaasha the son of Ahijah, because of the provocation with which you have provoked Me to anger, and made Israel sin.’ ²³And ^vconcerning Jezebel the LORD also spoke, saying, ‘The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the ²wall of Jezreel.’ ²⁴The dogs shall eat ^wwhoever belongs to Ahab and dies in the city, and the birds of the air shall eat whoever dies in the field.”

²⁵But ^xthere was no one like Ahab who sold himself to do wickedness in the sight of the LORD, ^hbecause Jezebel his wife ³stirred him up. ²⁶And he behaved very abominably in following idols, according to all ^zthat the Amorites had done, whom the LORD had cast out before the children of Israel.

²⁷So it was, when Ahab heard those words, that he tore his clothes and ^aput sackcloth on his body, and fasted and lay in sackcloth, and went about mourning.

²⁸And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, ²⁹“See how Ahab has humbled himself before Me? Because he ^bhas humbled himself before Me, I will not bring the calamity in his days. ^cIn the days of his son I will bring the calamity on his house.”

Micaiah Warns Ahab

22 Now three years passed without war between Syria and Israel. ²Then it came to pass, in the third year, that ^aJehoshaphat the king of Judah went down to visit the king of Israel.

³And the king of Israel said to his servants, “Do you know that ^bRamoth in Gilead is ours, but we hesitate to take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?” ⁴So he said to Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to fight at Ramoth Gilead?”

Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, ^c“I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.” ⁵Also Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, ^d“Please inquire for the word of the LORD today.”

⁶Then the king of Israel ^egathered ¹the prophets together, about four hundred men, and said to them, “Shall I go against Ramoth Gilead to fight, or shall I refrain?”

So they said, “Go up, for the Lord will deliver it into the hand of the king.”

⁷And ^fJehoshaphat said, “Is there not still a prophet of the LORD here, that we may inquire of ²Him?”

⁸So the king of Israel said to Jehosha-

21:15 Because Naboth . . . was dead, the property was confiscated by the throne. Although Ahab apparently was unconcerned about how this took place, he could not escape his guilty conscience (v. 20). 21:19 Soon Ahab’s blood would be licked by dogs at the pool in Samaria (22:37, 38). Ahab had lost all sense of God’s law, the basic teaching of which was always love for God and for neighbor (see Matt. 22:37–40). Ahab’s consistent idolatry demonstrated that he had no whole-hearted love for God (see 18:18). Taking Naboth’s vineyard showed he had no love for his neighbor either. 21:25 The vacillating nature of Ahab’s complex character is seen here. He could all too easily be led into wickedness by his wife. Nevertheless, he could at times display courage (22:34, 35) and even real humility before God (v. 29). Unfortunately, he never really entered into a genuine spiritual relationship with God. The result was that he, like all who despise God’s mercies (see 2 Pet. 3:5–10), would perish and leave his ill-gotten gain behind him (see Ps. 49:5–14).

22:1–3 Faced with the rising threat of Assyria, Ahab had failed to press his advantage of three years before. He had not reoccupied the strategic highlands of Ramoth in Gilead. In the days of Solomon this area served as an administrative center (4:13), but apparently it was lost during the reign of Omri. Now that Aram and Israel as allies had successfully turned back Shalmaneser III of Assyria at Qarqar (853 B.C.), control of Ramoth Gilead was crucial. 22:4 Jehoshaphat was the fourth king of the southern kingdom. He was related to Ahab through the marriage of his son Jehoram to Ahab’s daughter Athaliah (2 Kin. 8:18, 27). Jehoshaphat’s relation to Ahab now placed him in the precarious position of going to war with Ahab against the Arameans. 22:5 Kings in the ancient Middle East commonly sought the will of the gods before entering battle (see Judg. 20:27, 28; 1 Sam. 23:1–4). Jehoshaphat did not rely on Ahab’s false prophets; he desired a true word of the LORD.

phat, “There is still one man, Micaiah the son of Imlah, by whom we may inquire of the LORD; but I hate him, because he does not prophesy good concerning me, but evil.”

And Jehoshaphat said, “Let not the king say such things!”

⁹Then the king of Israel called an officer and said, “Bring Micaiah the son of Imlah quickly!”

¹⁰The king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, having put on their robes, sat each on his throne, at a threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets prophesied before them. ¹¹Now Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah had made ^ghorns of iron for himself; and he said, “Thus says the LORD: ‘With these you shall ^hgore the Syrians until they are destroyed.’” ¹²And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, “Go up to Ramoth Gilead and prosper, for the LORD will deliver it into the king’s hand.”

¹³Then the messenger who had gone to call Micaiah spoke to him, saying, “Now listen, the words of the prophets with one accord encourage the king. Please, let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak encouragement.”

¹⁴And Micaiah said, “As the LORD lives, ⁱwhatever the LORD says to me, that I will speak.”

¹⁵Then he came to the king; and the king said to him, “Micaiah, shall we go to war against Ramoth Gilead, or shall we refrain?”

And he answered him, “Go and prosper, for the LORD will deliver it into the hand of the king!”

¹⁶So the king said to him, “How many times shall I make you swear that you tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?”

¹⁷Then he said, “I saw all Israel ^jscattered on the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd. And the LORD said, ‘These have no master. Let each return to his house in peace.’”

¹⁸And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not tell you he would not prophesy good concerning me, but evil?”

Go out and do so.’ ²³Therefore look! The LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these prophets of yours, and the LORD has declared disaster against you.”

²⁴Now Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah went near and ^ostruck Micaiah on the cheek, and said, ^p“Which way did the spirit from the LORD go from me to speak to you?”

²⁵And Micaiah said, “Indeed, you shall see on that day when you go into an ^qinner chamber to hide!”

²⁸But Micaiah said, “If you ever return in peace, ^sthe LORD has not spoken by me.” And he said, “Take heed, all you people!”

Ahab Dies in Battle

²⁹So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth Gilead. ³⁰And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “I will disguise myself and go into battle; but you put on your robes.” So the king of Israel ^tdisguised himself and went into battle.

³¹Now the ^uking of Syria had commanded the thirty-two ^vcaptains of his chariots, saying, “Fight with no one small or great, but only with the king of Israel.” ³²So it

22:9 The prophet Micaiah is not known except in connection with this incident (see 2 Chr. 18:8–27).

22:10 A threshing floor was often used by the Canaanites for holding court. Threshing floors could also be scenes of spiritual importance (see Judg. 6:36–40; 1 Chr. 21:15–22:1).

22:11 Zedekiah tried to validate his prophetic pronouncement with symbolic magic. The horns symbolize great strength (Num. 24:8; Ps. 18:2), an idea reinforced by the use of iron. A goring horn is used elsewhere in Scripture to symbolize victorious power (Dan. 8:7).

22:17 The imagery of sheep and shepherd was familiar to Micaiah’s hearers (see Ezek. 34:12; Mark 14:27). Micaiah’s words are dramatic, emphasizing the gravity of Ahab’s projected venture and counteracting Zedekiah’s lies.

22:23 lying spirit: These prophets prophesied under the influence of evil, but their false predictions were just what Ahab wanted to hear.

22:30 By hiding himself behind a disguise, Ahab hoped he could thwart Micaiah’s prophecy of doom. Jehoshaphat’s participation in royal regalia in a battle where he did not even belong (2 Chr. 19:1–3) nearly cost him his life. Ben-Hadad tried to shorten the battle by finding and killing Ahab. Jehoshaphat’s life was spared not only by his timely cry but by God’s direct intervention (2 Chr. 18:31).

was, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, “Surely it is the king of Israel!” Therefore they turned aside to fight against him, and Jehoshaphat ¹⁰cried out. ³³And it happened, when the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from pursuing him. ³⁴Now a certain man drew a bow at random, and struck the king of Israel between the joints of his armor. So he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn around and take me out of the battle, for I am wounded.”

³⁵The battle increased that day; and the king was propped up in his chariot, facing the Syrians, and died at evening. The blood ran out from the wound onto the floor of the chariot. ³⁶Then, as the sun was going down, a shout went throughout the army, saying, “Every man to his city, and every man to his own country!”

³⁷So the king died, and was brought to Samaria. And they buried the king in Samaria. ³⁸Then someone washed the chariot at a pool in Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood while ³the harlots bathed, according ^x to the word of the LORD which He had spoken.

³⁹Now the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, ^y the ivory house which he built and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ⁴⁰So Ahab ⁴rested with his fathers. Then ^zAhaziah his son reigned in his place.

Ivory

Because ivory comes from the tusks of elephants, it was hard to get in the Middle East. Elephants once lived in Syria, but the search for ivory killed off all of them by 800 B.C. Craftsmen around Beersheba made ivory figurines as early as 3500 B.C. Solomon's merchant ships brought him ivory for his throne (1 Kin. 10:18–22). Ahab ordered his craftsmen to build an “ivory house,” because he so admired the fine ivory work done by the Phoenicians. Pieces of ivory were inlaid in the walls of this house, and it contained many hand-carved ivory figurines. These included figures of people, animals, flowers, plants, and mythological figures. When Assyrians forced the southern kingdom to pay tribute, it included gifts of ivory.

22:34 The phrase at random indicates that the bowman did not realize that he was aiming at Ahab. The shot itself was well placed, striking the king in the gap between the breastplate and the lower armor. Ahab's wounded body was propped up in his chariot so his soldiers would keep on fighting, and not give up immediately as Ben-Hadad hoped.

22:38 The fulfillment of Elijah's grisly prophecy (see 21:19–24) concerning the house of Ahab unfolds here as the dogs licked up his blood.

22:39 Archaeological excavations at Samaria have illustrated the nature of Ahab's ivory house, a house with luxurious decorations made of ivory. The palace contained objects of ivory, and the walls and furniture were inlaid with pieces of ivory.

22:43 Jehoshaphat continued in his father Asa's spiritual footsteps.

These high places were often used in the worship of Israel's God (see 3:2–4).

22:45 made war: In addition to the campaign at Ramoth Gilead, Jehoshaphat's military ventures included strengthening his forces and borders (2 Chr. 17:14–19), repelling an invasion (2 Chr. 20:1–30), and conducting an Edomite campaign (2 Kin. 3:6–27).

22:46 perverted persons: See 14:24 for a description of these Canaanite cultic prostitutes, who were a part of the debased religious practices of Baal worship.

22:48 The destruction of the merchant ships sponsored by Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah ended the projected commercial enterprise. The prophet pronounces God's displeasure with the whole project (see 2 Chr. 20:35–37).

22:52 Ahaziah thus continued in the spiritual course laid out for him by his father. The story does not end here but is continued in 2 Kings. The division of the Book of Kings was done for convenience when the Bible was translated into Greek in the second century B.C.

(Heb. qatar) (13:1; 22:43; Num. 16:40; 2 Chr. 13:11) Strong's #6999

This Hebrew word has the basic meaning “to produce smoke.” It is used only in reference to religious offerings. The offerings are sometimes made to the Lord and sometimes to other gods (9:25; 12:33; 2 Kin. 22:17). In the Book of Leviticus, the word is used to speak of true worship that the Lord had ordained. But in the historical books of 1 Kings—2 Chronicles, the word is primarily used for the rituals of false worship. Even many of the “good” kings of Israel failed to abolish improper burning of incense (22:43; 2 Kin. 12:3; 14:4; 15:4, 35). Jeremiah often used the word to denounce the errors of his people, though he used it once to prophesy of a time when Israel would perpetually worship the true God (Jer. 1:16; 11:13; 33:14–18).

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS

FROM THE ASCENSION of the prophet Elijah to heaven through the eventual fall of Israel and Judah, 2 Kings continues the history begun in 1 Kings of one people and two kingdoms. The narrative does not merely celebrate the Israelites. Instead, it displays both high and low points in the history of Israel and Judah. While it is true that few of the kings of the northern kingdom of Israel are spoken of highly, the kings of the southern kingdom of Judah do not fare much better. First and Second Kings are more than a recounting of names and facts. The books describe a people without direction, leaders who failed to lead, and a God who was forced to discipline His rebellious people.

Author and Composition Like 1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings were originally one book in Hebrew. The book was divided into two parts when the Old Testament was translated into Greek in about 150 B.C.

Hence debate over the authorship of 1 Kings applies equally to the authorship of 2 Kings. Many evangelical biblical scholars continue to endorse the traditional view that Jeremiah wrote the Books of the Kings. They point to Jeremiah's priestly origin, his prophetic activity, his access to governmental authorities at the highest level, and his close personal involvement in the complex religious, social, and political activities that occurred during the collapse and fall of Judah in the early sixth century B.C. Jeremiah was certainly in an ideal position to know the spiritual situation of the day and to have access to state records, historical information, and other source material necessary for writing such a book. Jeremiah could well have written and compiled the book during the period of religious reform led by King Josiah (22:8).

Historical Content Second Kings continues the history of the divided kingdom from the point where 1 Kings ends, with the reigns of Ahaziah in the northern kingdom (853–852 B.C.) and Jehoshaphat in the southern kingdom (872–847 B.C.) It traces the events in the rest of Israel's third dynasty, together with corresponding details in Judah during the reigns of Jehoram and Ahaziah. In so doing, it describes details especially relevant to the prophetic ministries of Elijah and Elisha (1:1—9:37). During this period, the northern kingdom faced continued pressure from Aram (Syria) under its kings Ben-Hadad II and Hazael, as well as new threats from the rising state of Assyria with its powerful King Shalmaneser III (858–824 B.C.).

The account of the fourth dynasty in Israel begins with a purge of the rampant Baal worship that had plagued the first three dynasties (10:1—15:12). Unfortunately, the founder of this dynasty, Jehu, was an opportunist who used the attack on Baal worship to further his own causes. Rather than keeping the Law completely, he perpetuated the apostate state religion initiated by Jeroboam I—the worship of the calves at Bethel and Dan. His successors in the fourth dynasty proved little better. The corresponding rulers of the southern kingdom ranged from the wicked Athaliah to Josiah and Amaziah, who received mild divine commendation. Externally, the Aramean menace was ended by the military campaign of Adad Nirari III of Assyria. Yet Assyria itself passed into a period of decline that spanned the first half of the eighth century B.C.

With the death of Zechariah in 752 B.C., the northern kingdom entered a time of rapid decline that mirrored its spiritual condition. The combined effects of spiritual apostasy and moral debauchery, together with unwise political entanglements with Assyria, ultimately brought the northern kingdom to its end in 722 B.C. Meanwhile, Jotham and his wicked son Ahaz were ruling the southern kingdom of Judah. Ahaz was so evil that even the godly Isaiah had little effect on the king's spiritual condition. The Scriptures attribute Judah's ultimate demise to the idolatry of this king (2 Chr. 28:23).

The remainder of 2 Kings deals with the varying fortunes and spiritual pilgrimage of the southern kingdom, tracing Judah's history from the righteous Hezekiah (chs. 18–20) to the wicked sons of Josiah, under whom Jerusalem faced three invasions and deportations, the last in 586 B.C. Thus Judah was increasingly caught up in the complex international events that took place from the late eighth to the early sixth century B.C.

Judah's ability to maintain its identity in the midst of its powerful neighbors was due on the one hand to God, who was faithful to His covenant with the house of David, and on the other hand to the spiritual gains made during the reigns of its two faithful kings, Hezekiah (729–699 B.C.) and Josiah (640–609 B.C.). However, the forces of apostasy that had brought about the collapse of the northern kingdom also took their toll in the southern kingdom. Judah was led away captive, and their exile would last 70 years. Second Kings ends on this tragic note. Only the final word of Jehoiachin's release provides a ray of hope in the darkness of captivity (25:27–30). The symbolic message is clear: the Lord would still fulfill His promise to restore His people (see 1 Kin. 8:46–53).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

While Elijah pointed to Jesus but was a clearer forerunner of John the Baptist (Matt. 11:14; 17:10; Luke 1:17), it is the younger man for whom Elijah prepared the way, Elisha, who definitely reminds us of Jesus. When you stop and think about it, the similarities are impressive. Elijah (like John the Baptist) lived apart from people, and he stressed the law, judgment, and repentance. But Elisha, like Jesus, lived among the people and emphasized grace, life, and hope (see 4:8–37; 6:14–23; 8:7–15; 19:16–21).

God Judges Ahaziah

Moab ^arebelled against Israel ^bafter the death of Ahab.

²Now ^cAhaziah fell through the lattice of his upper room in Samaria, and was injured; so he sent messengers and said to them, “Go, inquire of ^dBaal-Zebub, ¹the god of Ekron, whether I shall recover from this injury.” ³But the ²angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, “Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them, ‘Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron?’” ⁴Now therefore, thus says the LORD: “You shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.” So Elijah departed.

⁵And when the messengers returned to ³him, he said to them, “Why have you come back?”

⁶So they said to him, “A man came up to meet us, and said to us, ‘Go, return to the king who sent you, and say to him, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are sending to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore you shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.’”’”

⁷Then he said to them, “What kind of man was it who came up to meet you and told you these words?”

⁸So they answered him, ^f“A hairy man wearing a leather belt around his waist.”

And he said, ^g“It is Elijah the Tishbite.”

to him; and there he was, sitting on the top of a hill. And he spoke to him: “Man of God, the king has said, ‘Come down!’”

¹⁰So Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, “If I am a man of God, then ^hlet fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty men.” And fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty. ¹¹Then he sent to him another captain of fifty with his fifty men.

And he answered and said to him: “Man of God, thus has the king said, ‘Come down quickly!’”

¹²So Elijah answered and said to them, “If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty men.” And the fire of God came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

¹³Again, he sent a third captain of fifty with his fifty men. And the third captain of fifty went up, and came and ⁴fell on his knees before Elijah, and pleaded with him, and said to him: “Man of God, please let my life and the life of these fifty servants of yours ⁱbe precious in your sight.” ¹⁴Look, fire has come down from heaven and burned up the first two captains of fifties with their fifties. But let my life now be precious in your sight.”

¹⁵And the ⁵angel of the LORD said to Elijah, “Go down with him; do not be afraid of him.” So he arose and went down with him to the king. ¹⁶Then he said to him, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Because you have sent messengers to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron,

1:1 Moab rebelled: This chronological notice likely relates to the rebellion of Mesha, the well-known king of Moab. Its placement here may serve merely as an indicator of the problems that would soon fall on Israel.

1:2 Ahaziah: The account of his brief, wicked reign begins in 1 Kin. 22:51. The division of the Book of Kings into two parts was for the convenience of the translators, as is indicated by the fact that Ahaziah's reign carries over from one book to the other without a break.

lattice of his upper room: Houses in ancient Israel usually had one story. Palaces and grander houses would have had a second level. The upper stories commonly had balconies enclosed with latticework, allowing for the flow of air while maintaining protection from the sun and a certain privacy. Such latticework could easily be broken.

1:3 the angel of the LORD: At times this phrase refers to God. But often, and possibly here, this phrase speaks of one who is the LORD's messenger, but who is somehow distinguished from Him. The dramatic story of Elijah begins in 1 Kin. 17:1. no God in Israel: The contempt of the LORD for the errant behavior of the king is palpable in these words. king of Samaria: A king was identified by his country or by his capital city (see 1 Kin. 21:1; 2 Chr. 24:23; Jon. 3:6). This is just another title for the king of Israel. god of Ekron: Ahaziah followed the Baal worship of his father. The cult of Baal was strongly identified with Ekron, a city well known for its practice of divination (1 Sam. 6:2; Is. 2:6). Ahaziah sent his messenger to Ekron not only because the city was nearby but probably because he hoped to keep the nature and extent of his injury secret. In ancient times, a king who was seriously injured or ill would be vulnerable to opportunistic attempts on his life and throne. Thus in his own view, and likely through the counsel of his advisors, Ahaziah did the “smart thing.” It was not, however, the right thing.

1:4 The determination of God was that the king would die for his sins. The king had sought a divine message from a foreign god, but received the LORD's word nonetheless.

1:5, 6 The messengers of the king were prevented by Elijah from completing their errand. God did not want any sham message coming and encouraging the wicked king. He had already received the word of the living God (v. 4).

1:7, 8 Although hairy may refer to Elijah's garments, the usual translation hairy man is supported by the ancient versions. Ahaziah knew the man was his opponent, Elijah the Tishbite (see 1 Kin. 17:1).

1:10 fire . . . from heaven: Heavenly fire could signal divine judgment (see Gen. 19:24). Elijah had already called down such fire in his contest with the prophets of Baal (1 Kin. 18:36–38). This fire was likely lightning. Baal was not the god of the storm he was reputed to be. The God of Israel was—and is—the LORD of creation.

1:13 Fifty men were a military unit attested elsewhere in the literature of the ancient Middle East. Each captain of fifty approached Elijah with a growing fear of the power of God associated with this great prophet.

is it because there is no God in Israel to inquire of His word? Therefore you shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.”

¹⁷So Ahaziah died according to the word of the LORD which Elijah had spoken. Because he had no son, ^jJehoram⁶ became king in his place, in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah.

¹⁸Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah which he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

Elijah Ascends to Heaven

2 And it came to pass, when the LORD was about to “take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with ^bElisha from Gilgal. ²Then Elijah said to Elisha, “Stay here, please, for the LORD has sent me on to Bethel.”

But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives, and ^das your soul lives, I will not leave you!” So they went down to Bethel.

³Now ^ethe sons of the prophets who were at Bethel came out to Elisha, and said to him, “Do you know that the LORD will take away your master ^ffrom over you today?”

And he said, “Yes, I know; keep silent!”

⁴Then Elijah said to him, “Elisha, stay here, please, for the LORD has sent me on to Jericho.”

But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as your soul lives, I will not leave you!” So they came to Jericho.

So he answered, “Yes, I know; keep silent!”

⁶Then Elijah said to him, “Stay here, please, for the LORD has sent me on to the Jordan.”

But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as your soul lives, I will not leave you!” So the two of them went on. ⁷And fifty men of the sons of the prophets went and stood facing them at a distance, while the two of them stood by the Jordan. ⁸Now Elijah took his mantle, rolled it up, and struck the water; and ^fit was divided this way and that, so that the two of them crossed over on dry ^gground.

⁹And so it was, when they had crossed over, that Elijah said to Elisha, “Ask! What may I do for you, before I am taken away from you?”

Elisha said, “Please let a double portion of your spirit be upon me.”

¹⁰So he said, “You have asked a hard thing. Nevertheless, if you see me when I am taken from you, it shall be so for you; but if not, it shall not be so.” ¹¹Then it happened, as they continued on and talked, that suddenly ^ha chariot of fire appeared with horses of fire, and separated the two of them; and Elijah ⁱwent up by a whirlwind into heaven.

¹²And Elisha saw it, and he cried out, ^j“My father, my father, the chariot of Israel and its horsemen!” So he saw him no more. And he took hold of his own clothes and tore them into two pieces.

1:17 So Ahaziah died: The prophetic word was fulfilled as announced. no son: This meant that the dynasty had ended. A king named Jehoram thus ruled in both kingdoms.

1:18 the rest of the acts: This follows the usual pattern for recording the obituaries of the kings of the northern kingdom.

2:1 about to take up Elijah into heaven: The story that follows is so extraordinary that the narrator introduces its subject early.

2:2-6 Stay here: The tripling of these incidents is similar to the tripling of the incidents of ch. 1 (the three bands of 50 soldiers who came to seize Elijah). As the LORD lives: Elisha made a solemn promise three times in these same verses; he determined that he would remain by his master Elijah no matter what might occur.

2:3 take away: The same Hebrew verb is used for Enoch’s entrance to heaven (Gen. 5:24). The work that God was about to do had been divinely revealed to many of God’s servants (see vv. 3, 5). This widespread knowledge of God’s purpose would protect against later denials by cynical persons that the event had ever taken place. keep silent: It is not clear what prompted Elisha’s harsh words here (and in v. 5).

2:8 The water was the Jordan River (vv. 7, 13), somewhere near Jericho. Elijah was like Moses in that his life and ministry show many parallels to that of Israel’s greatest prophet. As Moses had divided the waters of the Red Sea in the final act of the redemption of Israel from Egypt (Ex. 14), so now Elijah replicated this miracle by dividing the waters of the Jordan. The difference is that Elijah did not use the power of God as a great redeeming miracle as Moses had done, but as an almost casual demonstration of God’s wonders as he was walking on his way.

2:9 double portion: Although the narrative reports twice as many miracles for Elisha as Elijah, that was not the point of Elisha’s request. His real request was that he would be Elijah’s spiritual successor (Deut. 21:17). It was not a double portion of Elijah’s goods that Elisha wanted but a double portion of his spirit. In material things, the principal heir received a double portion of his father’s goods. Elisha wanted the principle of primary inheritance to apply to spiritual things. Nearby were all sorts of prophets. All of them would be his heirs. Any one of them might become the leading successor of Elijah. We may assume from the life he lived that Elisha’s request was not due to pride. He simply wanted to be the man of God who would follow Elijah’s model.

2:11 In one of the most dramatic scenes in the Bible, heaven opened, a fiery chariot with fiery horses appeared, a whirlwind blew, and the prophet of God vanished alive into heaven. The fire associated with the chariot and the horses indicate the presence of God, much as the fiery angels do that Isaiah saw stationed around the throne of God (see Is. 6:2).

2:12 The term my father underscores Elijah’s relationship to Elisha as his spiritual mentor as well as the greatness of Elijah’s reputation. The whole phrase is repeated at Elisha’s passing (13:14). While these words were a tribute to Elijah on this great occasion, Elisha’s accompanying actions indicated his personal sorrow at the loss of his spiritual master and friend.

¹³He also took up the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and went back and stood by the bank of the Jordan. ¹⁴Then he took the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and struck the water, and said, “Where is the LORD God of Elijah?” And when he also had struck the water, ^kit was divided this way and that; and Elisha crossed over.

¹⁵Now when the sons of the prophets who were ^lfrom ²Jericho saw him, they said, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” And they came to meet him, and bowed to the ground before him. ¹⁶Then they said to him, “Look now, there are fifty strong men with your servants. Please let them go and search for your master, ^mlest perhaps the Spirit of the LORD has taken him up and cast him upon some mountain or into some valley.”

And he said, “You shall not send anyone.”

¹⁷But when they urged him till he was ⁿashamed, he said, “Send them!” Therefore they sent fifty men, and they searched for three days but did not find him. ¹⁸And when they came back to him, for he had stayed in Jericho, he said to them, “Did I not say to you, ‘Do not go?’”

Elisha Performs Miracles

¹⁹Then the men of the city said to Elisha, “Please notice, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my lord sees; but the water is bad, and the ground barren.”

²⁰And he said, “Bring me a new bowl, and put salt in it.” So they brought it to him. ²¹Then he went out to the source of ²³Then he went up from there to Beth-el; and as he was going up the road, some youths came from the city and mocked him, and said to him, “Go up, you bald-head! Go up, you baldhead!”

²⁴So he turned around and looked at them, and ^qpronounced a curse on them in the name of the LORD. And two female bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of the youths.

²⁵Then he went from there to ^rMount Carmel, and from there he returned to Samaria.

Moab Rebels Against Israel

3 Now ^aJehoram the son of Ahab became king over Israel at Samaria in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years. ²And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, but not like his father and mother; for he put away the sacred pillar of Baal ^bthat his father had made. ³Nevertheless he persisted in ^cthe sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin; he did not depart from them.

⁴Now Mesha king of Moab was a sheepbreeder, and he ^dregularly paid the king of Israel one hundred thousand ^elambs and the wool of one hundred thousand rams. ⁵But it happened, when ^fAhab died, that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel.

2:13 took up the mantle: Elijah had once laid this mantle on Elisha as a symbolic action (1 Kin. 19:19); now Elisha took up the prophetic status and ministry that the mantle symbolized.

2:14 The mantle was only a symbol, but in the hands of Elijah it had been an instrument for the power of the living God. The mantle had been for Elijah what the rod had been for Moses and Aaron (see Ex. 4:1–9; 7:9). It became the symbol of God’s power in the hands of Elisha.

2:15 The spirit of Elijah: The prophets witnessed both the miracle of Elijah (v. 8) and the similar miracle of Elisha. In this way there would be common agreement that Elisha was the successor of Elijah. They bowed, not in worship, but in respect and submission to the will of God.

2:16 fifty strong men: Groups of 50 men were often called upon to perform an arduous task (see 1:9–15). The men decided they needed a search party. Even though they had received a revelation from God that Elijah would be taken to heaven (see v. 3), still they checked things out.

2:17 he was ashamed: Although these words may indicate Elisha’s sense of shame on behalf of his disciples for their disbelief, the use of the phrase elsewhere indicates that it means Elisha was worn out, no longer willing to resist (8:11; see Judg. 3:25). He came to the point where he gave in to their request.

2:20 Elisha performed a purification ceremony (see Lev. 2:13; Num. 18:19). The salt taken from a new bowl and cast into the water symbolized the cleansing of the water for new use.

2:21, 22 The miracle was done in the name of God; Elisha was only

His instrument. to this day: That is, at the day of the writing of the account.

2:23 Go up, you baldhead: While the severity of the sentence has been questioned, the words of the youths indicated their disbelief of Elijah’s “going up” into heaven (see v. 11) and their disrespect for God’s prophet. God did not tolerate blasphemy against Himself by the demeaning of Elijah’s departure, or the abuse of His prophet, whom He had called for an important task at a critical period in Israel’s history.

2:25 Elisha made his home on Mount Carmel (see 4:25), as well as in Samaria (see 5:3).

3:2 sacred pillar of Baal: Probably this was a stone pillar or statue erected by Ahab and bearing an inscription and image of the god Baal. Although it was put away temporarily, it apparently was not destroyed, because it later became one of the objects of Jehu’s purge (10:26, 27).

3:4 Mesha king of Moab: The existence of this Moabite king is confirmed by an inscription on a pillar known as the Moabite Stone. The inscription indicates that Omri had conquered the plains of Moab north of the Arnon River and that the area remained under Israelite control throughout Ahab’s reign. Thus the events of this chapter probably took place after Jehoram’s accession and shortly before Jehoshaphat’s death in 847 B.C. (1:1). sheepbreeder: This Hebrew word is used only of Mesha and of Amos the prophet (Amos 1:1). As for Mesha, his business must have been enormous if he could pay such an exorbitant tribute.

Moabite Stone

Discovered in Moab by a German missionary in 1868, this black basalt stone is nearly four feet high and contains about 34 lines of writing similar to Hebrew. The stone was probably erected about 850 B.C., and the story written on it celebrates King Mesha's overthrow of the nation of Israel (although the biblical account makes it clear that Israel was victorious in the battle). The stone shows that Mesha honors his god Chemosh in terms similar to the OT reverence for the Lord. Besides telling of his violent conquests, Mesha boasted on the stone of the building of cities (with Israelite forced labor) and the construction of cisterns, walls, gates, towers, a king's palace, and even a highway. The Moabite Stone has profound biblical relevance. Historically, it confirms OT accounts, it has a theological parallel to Israel's worship of one god, and it is valuable geographically because it mentions no less than 15 sites listed in the OT.

⁶So King Jehoram went out of Samaria at that time and mustered all Israel. ⁷Then he went and sent to Jehoshaphat king of Judah, saying, “The king of Moab has rebelled against me. Will you go with me to fight against Moab?”

And he said, “I will go up; ⁹I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.” ⁸Then he said, “Which way shall we go up?”

And he answered, “By way of the Wilderness of Edom.”

⁹So the king of Israel went with the king of Judah and the king of Edom, and they marched on that roundabout route seven days; and there was no water for the army, nor for the animals that followed them. ¹⁰And the king of Israel said, “Alas! For the LORD has called these three kings together to deliver them into the hand of Moab.”

¹¹But ^ⁿJehoshaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the LORD here, that we may inquire of the LORD by him?”

So one of the servants of the king of Israel answered and said, “Elisha the son of Shaphat is here, who ^ⁱ‘poured’ ^ⁱwater on the hands of Elijah.”

¹²And Jehoshaphat said, “The word of the LORD is with him.” So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom ^ⁱwent down to him.

¹³Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, ^ⁿ“What have I to do with you? ^ⁱGo to ^ᵐthe prophets of your father and the ^ⁿ‘prophets of your mother.’”

But the king of Israel said to him, “No, for the LORD has called these three kings together to deliver them into the hand of Moab.”

¹⁴And Elisha said, ^ⁿ“As the LORD of hosts lives, before whom I stand, surely were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, I would not look at you, nor see you. ¹⁵But now bring me ^ᵖa musician.”

Then it happened, when the musician ^⁹played, that ^ⁱthe hand of the LORD came upon him. ¹⁶And he said, “Thus says the LORD: ^ⁿ‘Make this valley full of ^²ditches.’ ¹⁷For thus says the LORD: ‘You shall not see wind, nor shall you see rain; yet that valley shall be filled with water, so that you, your cattle, and your animals may drink.’ ¹⁸And this is a simple matter in the sight of the LORD; He will also deliver the Moabites into your hand. ¹⁹Also you shall attack every fortified city and every choice city, and shall cut down every good tree, and stop up every spring of water, and ruin every good piece of land with stones.”

²⁰Now it happened in the morning, when ^ⁱthe grain offering was offered, that

3:6 The rebellion of Moab provoked Jehoram into a punitive war. 3:7 Will you go with me: Because Jehoshaphat was related to the throne of the northern kingdom through the marriage of his son Jehoram to Ahab's daughter Athaliah, it could be presumed that he would be available as an ally. Because Edom had been added to the orbit of Judah as a result of an earlier war, Jehoshaphat proposed that they march through Edom to attack the Moabite territory. This route for their forces would avoid Moabite border fortresses and bring the attack from their rear.

3:9, 10 The route was very difficult. no water: In such a military campaign as this, both men and animals needed more water than they could carry with them.

3:11 prophet of the Lord: A prophet or diviner often traveled with armies on their campaigns. While the account apparently focuses on the military campaign as such, the crucial role of Elisha in the story emphasizes the importance of the prophetic office in ancient Israel.

3:13 prophets of your father: Elisha spoke scathingly about the wicked kings of the north consulting with prophets of Baal (1:2, 3).

3:14 as the LORD of hosts lives . . . I stand: This is the same language used by Elijah (see 1 Kin. 17:1). I would not look at you: As a devotee of Baal, Jehoram had no claim on the favor of God. Nevertheless, he would enjoy the benefits of God's grace toward Jehoshaphat.

3:15 Elisha's call for a musician is an effort to achieve an atmosphere free of war and strife so that he might concentrate on the anticipated divine revelation.

3:16–19 As in connection with many OT miracles, the prophet's words carry instructions for human participation (4:3, 4, 41; 6:6), in order that man's faith and the divine provision may each have their proper part.

3:20 filled with water: The dry stream beds can easily overflow their banks in downpours of rain. Even distant areas can be flooded by water from faraway mountain streams swelled by heavy rains.

suddenly water came by way of Edom, and the land was filled with water.

²¹And when all the Moabites heard that the kings had come up to fight against them, all who were able to bear arms and older were ³gathered; and they stood at the border. ²²Then they rose up early in the morning, and the sun was shining on the water; and the Moabites saw the water on the other side as red as blood. ²³And they said, “This is blood; the kings have surely struck swords and have killed one another; now therefore, Moab, to the spoil!”

²⁴So when they came to the camp of Israel, Israel rose up and attacked the Moabites, so that they fled before them; and they entered their land, killing the Moabites. ²⁵Then they destroyed the cities, and each man threw a stone on every good piece of land and filled it; and they stopped up all the springs of water and cut down all the good trees. But they left the stones of “Kir Haraseth intact.” However the slingers surrounded and attacked it.

²⁶And when the king of Moab saw that the battle was too fierce for him, he took with him seven hundred men who drew swords, to break through to the king of Edom, but they could not. ²⁷Then ^vhe took his eldest son who would have reigned in his place, and offered him as a burnt offering upon the wall; and there was great ⁴indignation against Israel. ^wSo they departed from him and returned to their own land.

Elisha and the Widow's Oil

4 A certain woman of the wives of ^athe sons of the prophets cried out to Elisha, saying, “Your servant my husband is dead, and you know that your servant feared the LORD. And the creditor is coming ^bto take my two sons to be his slaves.”

the house?” And she said, “Your maid-servant has nothing in the house but a jar of oil.”

³Then he said, “Go, borrow vessels from everywhere, from all your neighbors—empty vessels; ^cdo not gather just a few. ⁴And when you have come in, you shall shut the door behind you and your sons; then pour it into all those vessels, and set aside the full ones.”

⁵So she went from him and shut the door behind her and her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured it out. ⁶Now it came to pass, when the vessels were full, that she said to her son, “Bring me another vessel.”

And he said to her, “There is not another vessel.” So the oil ceased. ⁷Then she came and told the man of God. And he said, “Go, sell the oil and pay your debt; and you and your sons live on the rest.”

Elisha Raises the Shunammite's Son

⁸Now it happened one day that Elisha went to ^dShunem, where there was a ¹notable woman, and she ²persuaded him to eat some food. So it was, as often as he passed by, he would turn in there to eat some food. ⁹And she said to her husband, “Look now, I know that this is a holy man of God, who passes by us regularly. ¹⁰Please, let us make ³a small upper room on the wall; and let us put a bed for him there, and a table and a chair and a lampstand; so it will be, whenever he comes to us, he can turn in there.”

¹¹And it happened one day that he came there, and he turned in to the upper room and lay down there. ¹²Then he said to ^eGehazi his servant, “Call this Shunammite woman.” When he had called her, she stood before him. ¹³And he said to him, “Say now to her, ‘Look, you have been concerned for us with all this care. 3:23 This is blood: The red water looked like blood, and the Moabite king assumed falsely that the former enemies had once again fallen out with each other. It was a tragic miscalculation.

4:1 A certain woman: The fate of widows was perilous in the ancient Middle East. A practical test of biblical piety was to observe how those in power treated widows and orphans (see Job 24:21; Ps. 146:9). creditor: Both the Bible (see Lev. 25:39–45) and other ancient laws permitted selling one’s family members into slavery for payment of debts. God’s law worked toward limiting the abuse and the length of time in such a situation.

4:2 The small flask held olive oil intended for anointing, rather than food or fuel. Such a small flask was not very valuable.

4:7 Elisha is called the man of God throughout this section (vv. 16, 21, 22, 25, 27). The word God in Hebrew is literally “the God,” meaning the true or genuine God. sell . . . pay . . . live: Elisha met not only her immediate needs but the long-range ones as well.

4:8, 9 The friendship of Elisha with the woman at Shunem is also similar to the friendship of Elijah with the widow of Zarephath (1 Kin. 17:8–16). holy man of God: The adjective describes Elisha, a man she perceived was truly set apart for the ministry of God.

4:10 upper room: Such quarters were commonly on the roof and could be reached from the outside. This accommodated the guest while providing privacy. Recognizing Elisha as one of God’s choice servants, the Shunammite woman was especially concerned that the normal measures of hospitality be applied even more fully.

4:12 The term for servant often means a person engaged in a period of training. Rather than looking down upon this role, such a servant could consider the position an opportunity. Often these were responsible duties. The same word was also used of Elisha’s own relation to Elijah (1 Kin. 19:21). Unfortunately, Gehazi would not prove as worthy of his master’s trust as Elisha had been of Elijah’s.

She answered, “I dwell among my own people.”

¹⁴ So he said, “What then is to be done for her?”

And Gehazi answered, “Actually, she has no son, and her husband is old.”

¹⁵ So he said, “Call her.” When he had called her, she stood in the doorway.

¹⁶ Then he said, ⁴ “About this time next year you shall embrace a son.”

And she said, “No, my lord. Man of God, ^f do not lie to your maidservant!”

¹⁷ But the woman conceived, and bore a son when the appointed time had come, of which Elisha had told her.

¹⁸ And the child grew. Now it happened one day that he went out to his father, to the reapers. ¹⁹ And he said to his father, “My head, my head!”

So he said to a servant, “Carry him to his mother.” ²⁰ When he had taken him and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, and then died. ²¹ And she went up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, shut the door upon him, and went out. ²² Then she called to her husband, and said, “Please send me one of the young men and one of the donkeys, that I may run to the man of God and come back.”

²³ So he said, “Why are you going to him today? It is neither the ^g New Moon nor the Sabbath.”

And she said, ⁵ “It is well.” ²⁴ Then she saddled a donkey, and said to her servant, “Drive, and go forward; do not slacken the pace for me unless I tell you.” ²⁵ And so she departed, and went to the man of God ^h at Mount Carmel.

So it was, when the man of God saw her afar off, that he said to his servant Gehazi, “Look, the Shunammite woman!” ²⁶ Please run now to meet her, and say to her, “Is it well with you? Is it well with your husband? Is it well with the child?”

And she answered, “It is well.” ²⁷ Now when she came to the man of God at the hill, she caught him by the feet, but Gehazi came near to push her away. But the man of God said, “Let her alone; for her soul is in deep distress, and the LORD has hidden it from me, and has not told me.”

²⁸ So she said, “Did I ask a son of my lord? ⁱ Did I not say, ‘Do not deceive me?’”

²⁹ Then he said to Gehazi, ^j “Get ⁶ yourself ready, and take my staff in your hand, and be on your way. If you meet anyone, ^k do not greet him; and if anyone greets you, do not answer him; but ^l lay my staff on the face of the child.”

³⁰ And the mother of the child said, ^m “As the LORD lives, and as your soul lives, I will not ⁿ leave you.” So he arose and followed her. ³¹ Now Gehazi went on ahead of them, and laid the staff on the face of the child; but there was neither voice nor hearing. Therefore he went back to meet him, and told him, saying, “The child has ^o not awakened.”

³² When Elisha came into the house, there was the child, lying dead on his bed. ³³ He ^p went in therefore, shut the door behind the two of them, ^q and prayed to the LORD. ³⁴ And he went up and lay on the child, and put his mouth on his mouth, his eyes on his eyes, and his hands on his hands; and ^r he stretched himself out on the child, and the flesh of the child became warm. ³⁵ He returned and walked back and forth in the house, and again went up ^s and stretched himself out on him; then ^t the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. ³⁶ And he called Gehazi and said, “Call this Shunammite woman.” So he

4:14–16 Elisha decided that the best thing he could do for the woman was promise her the birth of a son, despite her years of frustration about this. do not lie: The Shunammite woman felt that even Elisha could not fulfill such a promise.

4:17 The birth of the son to the woman was similar to the fulfillment of the promise of God in the birth of Isaac (Gen. 21).

4:21 the bed of the man of God: The Shunammite’s action speaks strongly of her faith. Despite her overwhelming sorrow, she placed the fate of her child close to Elisha, through whose word, and by means of God’s mercy, she had gained her son in the first place. Placing the body on the bed of the man of God also kept his death a secret until she could reach Elisha, from whom she had once seen the impossible accomplished. Again, compare the story of Elijah and the son of the woman of Zarephath (1 Kin. 17:17–24).

4:23 New Moon . . . Sabbath: There was no work on these days and so they would be most suitable for seeing the prophet (see Ex. 20:9–12; Amos 8:5).

4:26, 27 Elisha knew that something was wrong by the furious way she drove (v. 24), but God had not made the particular issue known to the prophet. the LORD has hidden: The prophets did not know everything. They only knew what God made known to them (5:26).

caught him by the feet: This action is a mark of humility and reverence (see Matt. 28:9).

4:28 Did I ask: Her pain in the death of her child was worse than the emptiness she had felt before he was born. It was the prophet’s fault, she charged. Yet it was to the prophet she had come for help.

4:29 Elisha’s staff, like Elijah’s mantle (see 2:13, 14), was symbolic of the power of God and the authority of the prophet. Laid upon the body of the child, the staff would signify that the prophet intended to come, and that he had faith that God would restore the boy.

4:30 As the LORD lives: With this oath, the woman asserted her faith in the living God (1 Kin. 17:1). Elisha had used similar language when he refused to leave Elijah (2:2, 4, 6). Now he heard these words from her.

4:32–37 Elisha’s actions demonstrate that his faith was in the person and power of God alone, and not in the staff that symbolized his prophetic office. Although he repeated the symbolic actions learned from Elijah his teacher (see 1 Kin. 17:17–22), his faith transcended mere symbol and ritual. He sought God who alone can grant life and perform the miraculous (Ps. 36:9; 49:7–9). The restoration of the boy’s life (compare vv. 32, 35) is a demonstration that life itself is in the hands of God (1 Kin. 17:23).

called her. And when she came in to him, he said, “Pick up your son.” ³⁷ So she went in, fell at his feet, and bowed to the ground; then she “picked up her son and went out.

Elisha Purifies the Pot of Stew

³⁸ And Elisha returned to ^v Gilgal, and there was a ^w famine in the land. Now the sons of the prophets were ^x sitting before him; and he said to his servant, “Put on the large pot, and boil stew for the sons of the prophets.” ³⁹ So one went out into the field to gather herbs, and found a wild vine, and gathered from it a lapful of wild gourds, and came and sliced them into the pot of stew, though they did not know what they were. ⁴⁰ Then they served it to the men to eat. Now it happened, as they were eating the stew, that they cried out and said, “Man of God, there is ^y death in the pot!” And they could not eat it.

⁴¹ So he said, “Then bring some flour.” And ^z he put it into the pot, and said, “Serve it to the people, that they may eat.” And there was nothing harmful in the pot.

Elisha Feeds One Hundred Men

⁴² Then a man came from ^a Baal Shalisha, ^b and brought the man of God bread of the firstfruits, twenty loaves of barley bread, and newly ripened grain in his knapsack. And he said, “Give it to the people, that they may eat.”

⁴³ But his servant said, ^c “What? Shall I set this before one hundred men?”

He said again, “Give it to the people, that they may eat; for thus says the LORD: ^d ‘They shall eat and have some left over.’”

⁴⁴ So he set it before them; and they ate ^e and had some left over, according to the word of the LORD.

Naaman's Leprosy Healed

5 Now ^a Naaman, commander of the army of the king of Syria, was ^b a great and honorable man in the eyes of his master, because by him the LORD had given victory to Syria. He was also a mighty man of valor, but a leper. ² And the Syrians had gone out ^c on ¹ raids, and had brought back captive a young girl from the land of Israel. She ² waited on Naaman's wife. ³ Then she said to her mistress, “If only my master were with the prophet who is in Samaria! For he would heal him of his leprosy.” ⁴ And Naaman went in and told his master, saying, “Thus and thus said the girl who is from the land of Israel.”

⁵ Then the king of Syria said, “Go now, and I will send a letter to the king of Israel.”

So he departed and ^d took with him ten talents of silver, six thousand shekels of gold, and ten changes of clothing. ⁶ Then he brought the letter to the king of Israel, which said,

Now be advised, when this letter comes to you, that I have sent Naaman my servant to you, that you may heal him of his leprosy.

⁷ And it happened, when the king of Israel read the letter, that he tore his clothes and said, “Am I ^e God, to kill and make alive, that this man sends a man to me to heal him of his leprosy? Therefore please consider, and see how he seeks a quarrel with me.”

⁸ So it was, when Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, “Why have you torn your clothes? Please let him come to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.”

4:38 Gilgal was the first place the Israelites camped after crossing the Jordan into Canaan (Josh. 4:19, 20). Gilgal was probably about one mile northeast of Jericho. sitting before him: Elisha sat at the head of the sons of the prophets.

4:39, 40 The wild gourds were poisonous. death in the pot: The reaction of the hungry men was immediate and frightening.

4:41 The flour had no magical properties, of course. Elisha's faith in the living God effected the miraculous cure.

4:42–44 Baal Shalisha was near Gilgal. The firstfruits were to be presented to God and His priests (Lev. 23:15–17, 20). With an entrenched false priesthood and a debased state religion prevailing in the northern kingdom, the man brought his offering to Elisha. The faithful prophet miraculously multiplied the loaves—with some left over.

5:1 This Aramean general Naaman was a remarkable figure in biblical history. This verse is filled with phrases describing his character, his honor, and his ability. Surprisingly, we read that his military victories were granted by the LORD. The Hebrew word translated leper refers to any of several serious skin diseases (Lev. 13:1–46; Num. 5:1–4), including certain fungi (Lev. 13:47–56; 14:33–57). The king of Syria was Ben-Hadad II (860–842 B.C.). He was a constant threat to the northern kingdom and would lead an invasion against it later (6:24—7:20).

5:2 captive . . . young girl: God used the testimony of a Jewish servant girl and brought the commanding general of Israel's greatest military foe to biblical faith.

5:3 the prophet . . . in Samaria: Although Elisha traveled frequently and may sometimes have lived at Mt. Carmel (see 4:25), he apparently maintained a residence in the capital city of Samaria (see vv. 9, 24; 2:25; 6:9—7:20).

5:4, 5 It is a measure of the respect that the Aramean king had for his general that he granted his unusual request. Naaman's gifts are a measure of his wealth—and of his great personal need.

5:6 While such letters of introduction were common in the ancient Middle East, Ben-Hadad's frequent forays against Israel made the king suspicious that the Aramean king was seeking a pretext for yet another invasion of Israelite territory (see v. 2).

5:8 torn his clothes: Tearing a robe could be a sign of grief or agitation (see 11:14), as well as a mark of the sorrow that leads to repentance (Joel 2:13).

⁹Then Naaman went with his horses and chariot, and he stood at the door of Elisha's house. ¹⁰And Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, "Go and ^fwash in the Jordan seven times, and your flesh shall be restored to you, and you shall be clean." ¹¹But Naaman became furious, and went away and said, "Indeed, I said to myself, 'He will surely come out to me, and stand and call on the name of the LORD his God, and wave his hand over the place, and heal the leprosy.' ¹²Are not the ³Abanah and the Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Could I not wash in them and be clean?" So he turned and went away in a rage. ¹³And his ^gservants came near and spoke to him, and said, "My father, if the prophet had told you to do something great, would you not have done it? How much more then, when he says to you, 'Wash, and be clean?'" ¹⁴So he went down and dipped seven times in the Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God; and his ^hflesh was restored like the flesh of a little child, and ⁱhe was clean.

¹⁵And he returned to the man of God, he and all his aides, and came and stood before him; and he said, "Indeed, now I know that there is ^jno God in all the earth, except in Israel; now therefore, please take ^ka gift from your servant."

¹⁶But he said, ^l"As the LORD lives, before whom I stand, ^mI will receive nothing." And he urged him to take it, but he refused.

¹⁷So Naaman said, "Then, if not, please let your servant be given two mule-loads of earth; for your servant will no longer offer either burnt offering or sacrifice to other gods, but to the LORD. ¹⁸Yet in this thing may the LORD pardon your servant: when my master goes into the temple of Rimmon to worship there, and ⁿhe leans on my hand, and I bow down in the temple of Rimmon—when I bow down in the temple of Rimmon, may the LORD please pardon your servant in this thing."

¹⁹Then he said to him, "Go in peace." So he departed from him a short distance.

Gehazi's Greed

²⁰But ^oGehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, said, "Look, my master has spared Naaman this Syrian, while not receiving from his hands what he brought; but as the LORD lives, I will run after him and take something from him."

²¹So Gehazi pursued Naaman. When Naaman saw him running after him, he got down from the chariot to meet him, and said, "Is all well?"

²²And he said, "All is ^pwell. My master has sent me, saying, 'Indeed, just now two young men of the sons of the prophets have come to me from the mountains of Ephraim. Please give them a talent of silver and two changes of garments.'"

²³So Naaman said, "Please, take two talents." And he urged him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and handed them to two of his servants; and they carried them on ahead of him. ²⁴When he came to ⁴the citadel, he took them from their hand, and stored them away in the house; then he let the men go, and they departed. ²⁵Now he went in and stood before his master. Elisha said to him, "Where did you go, Gehazi?"

And he said, "Your servant did not go anywhere."

5:9 at the door: For some reason Elisha did not meet with the general face to face. Perhaps it was because contact with one with skin disorder would render the prophet unclean and therefore cut off his ministry with others (see Num. 5:1–4).

5:10 Elisha's instruction for Naaman to wash seven times in the Jordan emphasizes that the full cure for Naaman's condition could be effected solely by the power of Israel's sovereign God. The proud Aramean needed a lesson in humility and putting his personal trust in God alone (see v. 15). The issue was obedience.

5:11, 12 Understandably, Naaman's initial response was one of disbelief and anger. This seemed a very strange and humiliating command for a general in the army of Aram. What, after all, was the Jordan compared to the greater rivers of Aram?

5:13, 14 Naaman listened to his advisors, did as he was commanded, and was healed. clean: The word suggests that the problem of skin diseases causing uncleanness was an issue in his country as well. The wonderful thing about Naaman is that once he gave it thought, he would have done whatever God commanded him through His prophet.

5:15 stood before him: Now that Naaman was clean, he could stand in the presence of the prophet Elisha (compare vv. 9, 10). no God in all the earth: Naaman stands as a wonderful example of a foreigner who came to faith in God. take a gift: What Naaman had received could not have been purchased, nor would Elisha take advantage of the situation.

5:17 earth: Although ancient Middle Eastern custom associated the identity of a god with the location where he was worshiped, Elisha might have felt in this instance that Naaman's newly-gained acquaintance with Israel's God might be benefited with this tangible reminder of the land of his cure.

5:18 The name Rimmon is an example of a deliberate corruption of a name of a foreign god by the Hebrew scribes. Instead of writing Ramman, meaning "Thunderer," a name for the storm god Hadad (see Zech. 12:11), they wrote Rimmon, meaning "Pomegranate."

5:20 Gehazi: The sad story of Gehazi's greed serves as a contrast to the principled behavior of his master Elisha (vv. 15, 16).

5:23 talents: A talent was an enormous amount of silver—equal to 3,000 shekels, or about 70 lbs. two of his servants: Each would have been carrying a heavy load.

5:24 the citadel: The Hebrew word can refer to a hill or mound, or a building such as a citadel (see 2 Chr. 27:3, 4; Mic 4:8). Gehazi dismissed the men before coming to a place where his greedy gain might be observed by people who would know about Naaman and Elisha.

5:25 Since he had lied first to Naaman (v. 22), now he must lie to Elisha.

²⁶Then he said to him, “Did not my heart go with you when the man turned back from his chariot to meet you? Is it ^atime to receive money and to receive clothing, olive groves and vineyards, sheep and oxen, male and female servants? ²⁷Therefore the leprosy of Naaman ^cshall cling to you and your descendants forever.” And he went out from his presence ^dleprous, as white as snow.

The Floating Ax Head

6 And ^athe sons of the prophets said to Elisha, “See now, the place where we dwell with you is too small for us. ²Please, let us go to the Jordan, and let every man take a beam from there, and let us make there a place where we may dwell.”

So he answered, “Go.”

³Then one said, ^b“Please consent to go with your servants.”

And he answered, “I will go.” ⁴So he went with them. And when they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees. ⁵But as one was cutting down a tree, the iron ax head fell into the water; and he cried out and said, “Alas, master! For it was ^cborrowed.”

⁶So the man of God said, “Where did it fall?” And he showed him the place. So ^dhe cut off a stick, and threw it in there; and he made the iron float. ⁷Therefore he said, “Pick it up for yourself.” So he reached out his hand and took it.

The Blinded Syrians Captured

⁸Now the ^eking of Syria was making war against Israel; and he consulted with his servants, saying, “My camp will be in such and such a place.” ⁹And the man of God sent to the king of Israel, saying, “Beware that you do not pass this place, for the Syrians are coming down there.” ¹⁰Then the king of Israel sent someone to the place of which the man of God had told him. Thus he warned him, and he was watchful there, not just once or twice.

¹¹Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was greatly troubled by this thing; and he called his servants and said to them, “Will you not show me which of us is for the king of Israel?”

¹²And one of his servants said, “None, my lord, O king; but Elisha, the prophet who is in Israel, tells the king of Israel the words that you speak in your bedroom.”

¹³So he said, “Go and see where he is, that I may send and get him.”

And it was told him, saying, “Surely he is in ^fDothan.”

¹⁴Therefore he sent horses and chariots and a great army there, and they came by night and surrounded the city.

¹⁵And when the servant of the man of God arose early and went out, there was an army, surrounding the city with horses and chariots. And his servant said to him, “Alas, my master! What shall we do?”

¹⁶So he answered, ^g“Do not fear, for ^hthose who are with us are more than those who are with them.” ¹⁷And Elisha prayed, and said, “LORD, I pray, open his eyes that he may see.” Then the LORD ⁱopened the eyes of the young man, and he saw. And behold, the mountain was full of ^jhorses and chariots of fire all around Elisha. ¹⁸So when the Syrians came down to him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, and said, “Strike this people, I pray, with blindness.” And ^kHe struck them with blindness according to the word of Elisha.

¹⁹Now Elisha said to them, “This is not the way, nor is this the city. Follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom you seek.” But he led them to Samaria.

²⁰So it was, when they had come to Samaria, that Elisha said, “LORD, open the eyes of these men, that they may see.” And the LORD opened their eyes, and they saw; and there they were, inside Samaria!

5:26 Did not my heart go: The use of the term heart suggests not only Elisha’s knowledge but also his strong feeling for Gehazi.

5:27 The irony of justice punished Gehazi’s sin with the leprosy of Naaman.

6:2-5 The details of this building program set the stage for the loss of the iron ax head. In a time when most tools were still made of bronze, an iron blade was valuable.

6:7 he . . . took it: The man must have been tremendously impressed with what he saw, but the ax head could be of no use to him until he actually reached out and took it.

6:8-12 This remarkable narrative takes the reader into the tent of Ben-Hadad, the king of Aram, and to the meetings he had with his general staff. It turned out, much to the king’s consternation, that his plans were known to the king of Israel and his staff. Ben-Hadad suspected a spy, and he was right. The spy was Elisha, who had never left Israel.

6:13-15 Dothan was in the central highlands of Israel. It is mentioned only here and in Gen. 37, when Joseph was sold to the Midianites (see Gen. 37:17).

6:15 the servant of the man of God: Since Gehazi had become a leper (see 5:27), it is possible that this is another servant. However, Gehazi is mentioned again in 8:4 as one who was still faithfully representing the miracles done through Elisha.

6:16 those who are with us: Elisha knew that God’s unseen army was far more powerful than any visible army.

6:17 horses and chariots of fire: In answer to his prayer, Elisha’s reassuring words to his servant (v. 16) were validated by letting him see the spiritual realities that lay beyond normal human sight. Such a fiery scene had accompanied Elijah’s translation into heaven (2:11).

6:19, 20 I will bring you: Elisha’s words are technically true, although he employed tactics common in times of war to lead the Arameans to Samaria rather than Dothan. Such wartime measures are noted elsewhere in the Scriptures (Josh. 2:4-6; 1 Sam. 27:8-12).

²¹ Now when the king of Israel saw them, he said to Elisha, “My ¹ father, shall I kill them? Shall I kill them?”

²² But he answered, “You shall not kill them. Would you kill those whom you have taken captive with your sword and your bow? ^m Set food and water before them, that they may eat and drink and go to their master.” ²³ Then he prepared a great feast for them; and after they ate and drank, he sent them away and they went to their master. So ⁿ the bands of Syrian raiders came no more into the land of Israel.

Syria Besieges Samaria in Famine

²⁶ Then, as the king of Israel was passing by on the wall, a woman cried out to him, saying, “Help, my lord, O king!”

²⁷ And he said, “If the LORD does not help you, where can I find help for you? From the threshing floor or from the winepress?” ²⁸ Then the king said to her, “What is troubling you?”

And she answered, “This woman said to me, ‘Give your son, that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow.’ ²⁹ So ^q we boiled my son, and ate him. And I said to her on the next day, ‘Give your son, that we may eat him’; but she has hidden her son.”

³⁰ Now it happened, when the king heard the words of the woman, that he ^r tore his clothes; and as he passed by on the wall, the people looked, and there underneath he had sackcloth on his body.

³¹ Then he said, ^s “God do so to me and ³² But Elisha was sitting in his house, and ^t the elders were sitting with him. And the king sent a man ahead of him, but before the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, ^u “Do you see how this son of ^v a murderer has sent someone to take away my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?” ³³ And while he was still talking with them, there was the messenger, coming down to him; and then the king said, “Surely this calamity is from the LORD; ^w why should I wait for the LORD any longer?”

⁷ Then Elisha said, “Hear the word of the LORD. Thus says the LORD: ^a ‘Tomorrow about this time a ¹ seah of fine flour shall be sold for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel, at the gate of Samaria.’”

^{2b} So an officer on whose hand the king leaned answered the man of God and said, “Look, ^c if the LORD would make windows in heaven, could this thing be?”

And he said, “In fact, you shall see it with your eyes, but you shall not eat of it.”

The Syrians Flee

³ Now there were four leprous men ^d at the entrance of the gate; and they said to one another, “Why are we sitting here until we die? ⁴ If we say, ‘We will enter the city,’ the famine is in the city, and we shall die there. And if we sit here, we die also. Now therefore, come, let us surrender to the ^e army of the Syrians. If they keep us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall only die.” ⁵ And they rose at twilight to go to the camp of the Syrians; and when they had come to the outskirts of the Syrian camp, to their surprise no

6:21–23 The end of this story is even more amazing than the beginning. The blind soldiers were brought within the capital city of Israel where they easily might have been slaughtered. Instead, they were given a banquet and were sent back to Ben-Hadad unharmed.

6:21 The term of deference my father was used earlier by Elisha to Elijah (see 2:12), and to Naaman by his servants (see 5:13). Its use here by King Jehoram (see 3:1) for Elisha is a clear indication that Jehoram knew he was not in charge.

6:23 bands . . . came no more: That is, for a period of time. The wars between the two nations revived after a period (see 6:24).

6:24 The siege of Samaria, the capital of Israel, was Ben-Hadad’s final attempt to destroy his rival Jehoram of Israel.

6:25 The desperate conditions in besieged Samaria had made even once common food and commodities scarce and expensive. The dove droppings may have been used for fuel or even as a substitute for salt.

6:28 eat him: Israel had been warned that national disobedience could reduce the people to such a loathsome deed (Lev. 26:29; Deut. 28:53, 57).

6:30 The king was not unmoved by the plight of his people. He tore his garments and wore sackcloth to attest to his concern.

6:31 if the head of Elisha: The phrase is an oath expressing the enraged king’s will to kill Elisha, whom he blamed for the severe conditions.

7:1 Public business was conducted at the city gate (see Gen. 19:1; Ruth 4:1). Elisha’s words were good news: Although costly, food would once again be available.

7:2 an officer: The Hebrew term for officer originally designated the third man in a chariot, who held a large shield. By this time it meant a high military official serving as adjutant (9:25; 10:25). The officer’s doubt brought judgment on him. Although the food did come, this officer ate none of it.

7:3, 4 Because leprous men were excluded from the city (Lev. 13:4–6; Num. 5:2, 3) and avoided by all, they probably were ignored by the invaders and had been left to their fate. If the ordinary people of the city were suffering from hunger, how much more must these men have been suffering. They concluded that they had nothing to lose by going to the other side.

one was there. ⁶For the Lord had caused the army of the Syrians ^fto hear the noise of chariots and the noise of horses—the noise of a great army; so they said to one another, “Look, the king of Israel has hired against us ^gthe kings of the Hittites and the kings of the Egyptians to attack us!” ⁷Therefore they ^harose and fled at twilight, and left the camp intact—their tents, their horses, and their donkeys—and they fled for their lives. ⁸And when these lepers came to the outskirts of the camp, they went into one tent and ate and drank, and carried from it silver and gold and clothing, and went and hid them; then they came back and entered another tent, and carried some from there also, and went and hid it.

⁹Then they said to one another, “We are not doing right. This day is a day of good news, and we remain silent. If we wait until morning light, some ²punishment will come upon us. Now therefore, come, let us go and tell the king’s household.” ¹⁰So they went and called to the gatekeepers of the city, and told them, saying, “We went to the Syrian camp, and surprisingly no one was there, not a human sound—only horses and donkeys tied, and the tents intact.” ¹¹And the gatekeepers called out, and they told it to the king’s household inside.

¹²So the king arose in the night and said to his servants, “Let me now tell you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we are ¹hungry; therefore they have gone out of the camp to ³hide themselves in the field, saying, ‘When they come out of the city, we shall catch them alive, and get into the city.’”

¹³And one of his servants answered and said, “Please, let several men take five of the remaining horses which are left in the city. Look, they may either become like all the multitude of Israel that are left in it; or indeed, I say, they may become like all the multitude of Israel left from those who are consumed; so let us send them and see.” ¹⁴Therefore they took two chariots with horses; and the king sent them in the direction of the Syrian army, saying, “Go and see.” ¹⁵And they went after them to the Jordan; and indeed all the road was full of garments and weapons which the Syrians had thrown away in their haste. So the messengers returned and told the king. ¹⁶Then the people went out and plundered the tents of the Syrians. So a seah of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel, ^jaccording to the word of the LORD.

¹⁷Now the king had appointed the officer on whose hand he leaned to have charge of the gate. But the people trampled him in the gate, and he died, just ^kas the man of God had said, who spoke when the king came down to him. ¹⁸So it happened just as the man of God had spoken to the king, saying, ^l“Two seahs of barley for a shekel, and a seah of fine flour for a shekel, shall be sold tomorrow about this time in the gate of Samaria.”

¹⁹Then that officer had answered the man of God, and said, “Now look, if the LORD would make windows in heaven, could such a thing be?”

And he had said, “In fact, you shall see it with your eyes, but you shall not eat of it.” ²⁰And so it happened to him, for the people trampled him in the gate, and he died.

The King Restores the Shunammite’s Land

8 Then Elisha spoke to the woman ^awhose son he had restored to life, saying, “Arise and go, you and your household, and stay wherever you can; for the LORD ^bhas called for a ^cfamine, and furthermore, it will come upon the land for seven years.” ²So the woman arose and did according to the saying of the man of God, and she went with her household and dwelt in the land of the Philistines seven years.

³It came to pass, at the end of seven years, that the woman returned from the land of the Philistines; and she went to make an appeal to the king for her

7:6 the noise of a great army: Doubtless, the army was God’s (see 6:16–18). By the kings of the Hittites is meant the descendants of the earlier Hittites of Asia Minor who now inhabited various Aramean states. Assyrian documents routinely mention Palestine as “Hittite Land.”

7:7, 8 In their joy, the lepers took advantage of their good fortune. 7:9 Good news and good fortune had to be shared (Prov. 15:27; 21:17, 18), and the men feared that failure to do so might merit divine punishment.

7:12 what the Syrians have done: The Israelite king suspected that another military trick was being played on him. He did not connect the good news with Elisha’s prophecy of good times.

7:13–16 At last the king sent a scouting party, which confirmed the good news. The prophecy concerning the restoration of food for the city was fulfilled (see v. 1).

7:17–20 you shall not eat of it: All of Elisha’s prophecy came true. The sudden miraculous flight of the Arameans had provided goods aplenty, but the doubting officer would not enjoy them.

8:1 As had happened in the days of Elijah (1 Kin. 17; 18), God again instituted a famine. Such cases of divinely induced calamities were intended to chastise His people and bring them to repentance (see Joel 2:12–14; Zeph. 3:5–7). God in His kindness spared the family of the Shunammite woman to whom Elisha had had such a significant ministry (see 4:8–37). It appears that she may have become a widow by the time of this incident.

8:3 to make an appeal: The Shunammite woman had not house and for her land. ⁴Then the king talked with ^dGehazi, the servant of the man of God, saying, “Tell me, please, all the great things Elisha has done.” ⁵Now it happened, as he was telling the king how he had restored the dead to life, that there was the woman whose son he had ^erestored to life, appealing to the king for her house and for her land. And Gehazi said, “My lord, O king, this is the woman, and this is her son whom Elisha restored to life.” ⁶And when the king asked the woman, she told him.

So the king appointed a certain officer for her, saying, “Restore all that was hers, and all the proceeds of the field from the day that she left the land until now.”

Death of Ben-Hadad

⁷Then Elisha went to Damascus, and ^fBen-Hadad king of Syria was sick; and it was told him, saying, “The man of God has come here.” ⁸And the king said to ^gHazael, ^h“Take a present in your hand, and go to meet the man of God, and ⁱinquire of the LORD by him, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this disease?’” ⁹So ^jHazael went to meet him and took a present with renounced or sold her property, but merely had left during the previous famine. Moreover, she had returned within seven years (see Deut. 15:1–6; Ruth 4:3, 4). Since the property was still legally hers, she pressed her claim to the king himself.

8:4, 5 Just as the Shunammite woman arrived, Gehazi was telling Jehoram about her. At this point, Gehazi was still faithful to the ministry of Elisha.

8:6 Restore all: We get a complex picture of King Jehoram. At times he was so angry at Elisha that he wished him dead (6:31), yet even then he was in mourning for his people. He acknowledged Elisha’s spiritual leadership at other times (see 6:21), but he knew that Elisha did not hold him in high regard (see 3:14). In this section, his righteous judgment should be contrasted with the wretched behavior of the wicked Ahab with respect to the land of another farmer (see 1 Kin. 21:1–16).

8:7 Although Ben-Hadad felt that Elisha’s arrival was accidental, God’s prophet had come to Damascus in fulfillment of the instructions originally given by God to Elijah (1 Kin. 19:15–17). The instructions concerning dynastic change in Israel would soon be carried out (9:1–13).

8:8, 9 Ironically, a sick king of Israel had inquired of a false god concerning the nature of his illness (1:2); here, the pagan king of a foreign nation inquired of the living God concerning the nature of his illness.

8:10 You shall certainly recover: Left to natural circumstances, Ben-Hadad would recover. Yet Elisha knew that Hazael would seize both the opportunity of the king’s illness and fulfill Elisha’s prophecy by assassinating the king and taking the throne. Hazael chose his own method of carrying out the issue of dynastic succession in Damascus, not God’s (see v. 15).

8:11, 12 ashamed: He had reached the end of his ability to resist his emotions. the man of God wept: Elisha wept over the suffering that Hazael would bring upon Israel.

8:13 In the ancient Middle East, the dog was despised because it was a scavenger (see 1 Kin. 14:11; 21:23). Appropriately, Hazael would similarly be held in disdain.

him, of every good thing of Damascus, forty camel-loads; and he came and stood before him, and said, “Your son Ben-Hadad king of Syria has sent me to you, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this disease?’” rael, just as the house of Ahab had done, for ^tthe daughter of Ahab was his wife; and he did evil in the sight of the LORD. ¹⁹Yet the LORD would not destroy Judah, for the sake of His servant David, ^uas He promised him to give a lamp to him and his sons forever.

²⁰In his days ^vEdom revolted against Judah’s authority, ^wand made a king over themselves. ²¹So ³Joram went to Zair, and all his chariots with him. Then he rose by night and attacked the Edomites who had surrounded him and the captains of the chariots; and the troops fled to their tents. ²²Thus Edom has been in revolt against Judah’s authority to this day. ^xAnd Libnah revolted at that time.

Shalmaneser III of Assyria notes Hazael’s accession to the throne with the words: “Hazael, son of nobody, seizes the throne.” By these contemptuous words, we learn that Hazael was not the son of Ben-Hadad, but an opportunistic usurper.

8:15 Having succeeded Ben-Hadad as king, Hazael reigned for about 40 years (842–802 B.C.). He remained an inveterate foe of God’s people (see 10:32, 33; 13:3, 22). Yet like Elisha and Jehu, Hazael was an instrument of God’s judgment on His sinful people (1 Kin. 19:15–17).

8:16–18 Jehoram: With Jehoram’s accession to the throne of Judah, kings by the same name now ruled in both kingdoms. The name Jehoram means “The Lord Is Exalted” and can be spelled Joram. eight years: Joram of the northern kingdom ruled from 852 to 841 B.C.; Jehoram of the southern kingdom from 848 to 841 B.C. Although he had served alongside his father Jehoshaphat for the previous four years, Jehoram now ruled in his own right. With his father’s death, he killed all his brothers and any claimant to the throne (2 Chr. 21:2–4), actions that would be repeated by his wicked wife Athaliah at the time of his death (11:1). A wicked ruler (2 Chr. 21:11), he was greatly influenced by Queen Athaliah (2 Chr. 21:6). Wickedness and spiritual bankruptcy in the royal house would bring about God’s judgment on Judah in three separate military engagements with Edom, Libnah, and a combined Philistine-Arabian incursion (2 Chr. 21:16, 17), as well as a severe plague that would eventually take the life of the king (2 Chr. 21:12–15, 18, 19).

8:18 the daughter of Ahab: Most shocking was that the same source of evil that had brought God’s judgment against the northern kingdom was now being brought into the southern kingdom. Ahab had been a wicked king, but his wickedness had been greatly accelerated by the actions and attitudes of his pagan wife Jezebel (see 1 Kin. 16:31). Now their daughter Athaliah (see 11:1) was established as the queen of Judah and the wife of a descendant of David. From the vantage point of international relations, the marriage of a daughter of the king of Israel to the king of Judah was a strategic event that could ease hostility between the two nations. But from a spiritual standpoint, this marriage was a grim omen of disaster for Judah.

8:19 Despite Jehoram’s infidelity and wickedness, God remained faithful to the Davidic covenant (see 2 Sam. 7:12–16; Ps. 89:30–37). a lamp: This was a figure of the hope of the Davidic promise in the darkest of times, and the fulfillment in Him who is the light of the world (see 1 Kin. 15:4; John 1:1–13).

8:20–22 Judah’s struggles with Edom were often accompanied by trouble with the Philistines (see 2 Chr. 21:16; Joel 3:4–8). Edom would remain a constant menace with the ²³ Now the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ²⁴ So Joram ⁴ rested with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the City of David. Then ⁵ Ahaziah his son reigned in his place.

Ahaziah Reigns in Judah

²⁵ In the twelfth year of Joram the son of Ahab, king of Israel, Ahaziah the son of Jehoram, king of Judah, began to reign. ²⁶ Ahaziah was ² twenty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah the granddaughter of Omri, king of Israel. ²⁷ And he walked in the way of the house of Ahab, and did evil in the sight of the LORD, like the house of Ahab, for he was the son-in-law of the house of Ahab.

of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, and go in and make him rise up from among ^d his associates, and take him to an inner room. ³ Then ^e take the flask of oil, and pour it on his head, and say, ‘Thus says the LORD: “I have anointed you king over Israel.”’ Then open the door and flee, and do not delay.”

⁴ So the young man, the servant of the prophet, went to Ramoth Gilead. ⁵ And when he arrived, there were the captains of the army sitting; and he said, “I have a message for you, Commander.”

Jehu said, “For which one of us?”

And he said, “For you, Commander.”

⁶ Then he arose and went into the house. And he poured the oil on his head, and said to him, ^f “Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ‘I have anointed you king over the people of the LORD, over Israel. ⁷ You shall strike down the house of Ahab your master, that I may ^g avenge the blood of My servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the LORD, ^h at the hand of Jezebel. ⁸ For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; and ⁱ I will cut off from Ahab all ^j the males in Israel, both ^k bond and free. ⁹ So I will make the house of Ahab like the house of ^l Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of ^m Baasha the son of Ahijah. ¹⁰ ⁿ The dogs shall eat Jezebel on the plot of ground at Jezreel, and there shall be none to bury her.”’ And he opened the door and fled.

¹¹ Then Jehu came out to the servants of his master, and one said to him, “Is all well? Why did ^o this madman come to you?”

And he said to them, “You know the man and his babble.”

¹² And they said, “A lie! Tell us now.”

result that although Amaziah would later defeat Edom (14:22), they would renew armed hostilities against Judah in the days of Ahaz (2 Chr. 28:17, 18). Edom's constant enmity against God's people served as a focus of attention for Israel's prophets, who often predicted Edom's ultimate defeat and destruction (see Is. 34:5–15; Jer. 49:7–22).

8:25 Ahaziah means “The Lord Has Grasped.”

8:26 twenty-two years old: This figure is correct; compare 2 Chr. 22:2. granddaughter of Omri: The Hebrew word translated granddaughter is literally “daughter.” Athaliah, Ahab's daughter, is the person meant (v. 18; 2 Chr. 21:6).

8:27 the way of the house of Ahab: The lowest point of Israel's religious apostasy was reached in the reign of Ahab and his wicked wife Jezebel (see 1 Kin. 16:31). Most likely due to the role of Athaliah, the evil that had spoiled Ahab affected the house of the king of Judah.

8:28 Here began the troubles with Hazael (v. 12). Ahaziah's grandfather Jehoshaphat had been drawn into war at Ramoth Gilead by Ahab (1 Kin. 22), and now Ahaziah was led by Joram to war in the same area. Ramoth Gilead means “Heights of Gilead.” It was about 25 miles east of the Jordan. Hazael had recently been crowned in Damascus, and the year 841 B.C. would witness a change in the royal houses of both Israel and Judah.

8:29 Ahab had one of his palaces at Jezreel, a site between Megiddo and Beth Shan (1 Kin. 18:45). Both the injured Joram and Ahaziah came to Jezreel for a most fateful meeting (ch. 9).

9:1–3 The selection of Jehu as the next king of Israel was by prophetic designation; contrast 1:17. The name Jehu means “The Lord Is He.” The instructions given by Elisha to one of his associates were marked by secrecy and intrigue. The action of the prophet was seditious in the eyes of the current king.

9:4, 5 for you: The servant was obedient to Elisha and was daring in his approach to Jehu.

9:6 poured the oil: As in the case of Hazael (8:7–13), the third part of the Lord's threefold command to Elijah (1 Kin. 19:15–18) was carried out by another. First, Elijah personally fulfilled the divine directive concerning Elisha (see 1 Kin. 19:19–21). Then he set in motion the process that would effect the other two commands. Elisha carried out the order with respect to Hazael. Third, one of the sons of the prophets serving under Elisha handled the case of Jehu. In the OT, an anointing was customarily reserved for a king (see 2 Sam. 2:4) or the high priest (see Ex. 40:13).

9:7–10 The prophetic words to Jehu indicate that he would destroy the evil of the house of Ahab. Jezebel: The wicked wife of Ahab is given special attention; her gruesome end is predicted. fled: Once the young prophet gave the Lord's stern message to Jehu, he fled, just as Elisha had commanded him (v. 3). His life was in danger; at this time only he knew what had transpired with Jehu.

9:12 A lie: Jehu's attempt to brush off the questions of his servants

So he said, “Thus and thus he spoke to me, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord: “I have anointed you king over Israel.”’”

¹³ Then each man hastened ¹⁴ to take his garment and put it ² under him on the top of the steps; and they blew trumpets, saying, “Jehu is king!”

Joram of Israel Killed

¹⁴ So Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, conspired against ⁹ Joram. (Now Joram had been defending Ramoth Gilead, he and all Israel, against Hazael king of Syria. ¹⁵ But ¹⁶ King ³ Joram had returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds which the Syrians had inflicted on him when he fought with Hazael king of Syria.) And Jehu said, “If you are so minded, let no one leave or escape from the city to go and tell it in Jezreel.” ¹⁶ So Jehu rode in a chariot and went to Jezreel, for Joram was laid up there; ¹⁷ and Ahaziah king of Judah had come down to see Joram.

¹⁷ Now a watchman stood on the tower in Jezreel, and he saw the company of Jehu as he came, and said, “I see a company of men.”

And Joram said, “Get a horseman and send him to meet them, and let him say, ⁴ ‘Is it peace?’”

¹⁸ So the horseman went to meet him, and said, “Thus says the king: ‘Is it peace?’”

And Jehu said, “What have you to do with peace? ⁵ Turn around and follow me.”

Ahaziah of Judah Killed

²⁷But when Ahaziah king of Judah saw this, he fled by the road to ¹Beth Haggan. So Jehu pursued him, and said, ²“Shoot him also in the chariot.” And they shot him at the Ascent of Gur, which is by Ibleam. Then he fled to ⁹Megiddo, and died there. ²⁸And his servants carried him in the chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his tomb with his fathers in the City of David. ²⁹In the eleventh year of Joram the son of Ahab, Ahaziah had become king over Judah.

Jezebel’s Violent Death

³⁰Now when Jehu had come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; ²and she put paint on her eyes and adorned her head, and looked through a window. ³¹Then, as Jehu entered at the gate, she said, ⁴“Is it peace, Zimri, murderer of your master?”

³²And he looked up at the window, and said, “Who is on my side? Who?” So two or three eunuchs looked out at him. ³³Then he said, “Throw her down.” So they threw her down, and some of her blood splattered on the wall and on the horses; and he trampled her underfoot. ³⁴And when he had gone in, he ate and drank. Then he said, “Go now, see to this accursed woman, and bury her, for ^bshe was a king’s daughter.” ³⁵So they went to bury her, but they found no more of her than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. ³⁶Therefore they came back and told him. And he said, “This is the word of the LORD, which He spoke by His servant Elijah the Tishbite, saying, ^c‘On the plot of ground at Jezreel

Ahab’s Seventy Sons Killed

10 Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. And Jehu wrote and sent letters to Samaria, to the rulers of ¹Jezreel, to the elders, and to ²those who reared Ahab’s sons, saying:

² Now as soon as this letter comes to you, since your master’s sons are with you, and you have chariots and horses, a fortified city also, and weapons, ³choose the ³best qualified of your master’s sons, set him on his father’s throne, and fight for your master’s house.

⁴But they were exceedingly afraid, and said, “Look, ^atwo kings could not ⁴stand up to him; how then can we stand?”

⁵And he who was in charge of the house, and he who was in charge of the city, the elders also, and those who reared the sons, sent to Jehu, saying, “We are your servants, we will do all you tell us; but we will not make anyone king. Do what is good in your sight.” ⁶Then he wrote a second letter to them, saying:

If you are for me and will obey my voice, take the heads of the men, your master’s sons, and come to me at Jezreel by this time tomorrow.

Now the king’s sons, seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, who were rearing them. ⁷So it was, when the letter came to them, that they took the king’s sons and ^bslaughtered seventy persons, put their heads in baskets and sent them to him at Jezreel.

⁸Then a messenger came and told him, saying, “They have brought the heads of the king’s sons.”

9:27 The wounded Ahaziah apparently made it to Samaria where he at last was apprehended by Jehu’s men (2 Chr. 22:8, 9) and taken to Megiddo where he died. His body finally was buried in the royal tombs in Jerusalem (v. 28).

9:30, 31 Jezebel knew that her end was near; she had heard about the deaths of the kings of Israel and Judah. Yet she brazenly spent time putting on her makeup and adorning herself. Defiant to the end, Jezebel called Jehu a Zimri, a traitor who had killed his master in order to seize the throne (1 Kin. 16:11, 12).

9:32, 33 Jehu had a couple of Jezebel’s servants throw her out the window. Her death was particularly gruesome. Eunuchs refers to males who have been castrated. Typically they were assigned to the harems of kings in the ancient Middle East. The word can also refer to officers in general.

9:34–37 bury her: After Jehu had Jezebel killed, he entered the palace to eat and drink. But then, because of Jezebel’s rank, he ordered that her body be given a proper burial. However, she had become food for dogs. This was the grisly fulfillment of Elijah’s prophecy (1 Kin. 21:23). Although Jezebel wanted Elijah dead (see 1 Kin. 19:1, 2), her own life was taken. as refuse: There was to be no marker, no mourning, no memorial, no sadness for this evil woman.

10:1 Ahab’s seventy sons included children and probably grandchildren. Jehu wanted to eliminate all rivals to his kingship. The rulers of Jezreel were Samaritan officials, who often visited the royal residence in Jezreel.

10:2–5 Jehu’s first letter was written in order to determine who might be the greatest risk to his reign. two kings: The deaths of Joram (9:14–26) and Ahaziah (9:27, 28) were fresh in the rulers’ minds, so the response of the leaders was a fearful submission to Jehu’s power.

And he said, “Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until morning.”

⁹So it was, in the morning, that he went out and stood, and said to all the people, “You are righteous. Indeed ^cI conspired against my master and killed him; but who killed all these? ¹⁰Know now that nothing shall ^dfall to the earth of the word of the LORD which the LORD spoke concerning the house of Ahab; for the LORD has done what He spoke ^eby His servant Elijah.” ¹¹So Jehu killed all who remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, and all his great men and his close acquaintances and his priests, until he left him none remaining.

Ahaziah's Forty-two Brothers Killed

¹²And he arose and departed and went to Samaria. On the way, at ⁵Beth Eked of the Shepherds, ¹³Jehu met with the brothers of Ahaziah king of Judah, and said, “Who are you?”

So they answered, “We are the brothers of Ahaziah; we have come down to greet the sons of the king and the sons of the queen mother.”

¹⁴And he said, “Take them alive!” So they took them alive, and ^gkilled them at the well of ⁶Beth Eked, forty-two men; and he left none of them.

The Rest of Ahab's Family Killed

¹⁵Now when he departed from there, he ⁷met ^hJehonadab the son of ⁱRechab, coming to meet him; and he greeted him and said to him, “Is your heart right, as my heart is toward your heart?”

And Jehonadab answered, “It is.”

Jehu said, “If it is, ^jgive me your hand.” So he gave him his hand, and he took him up to him into the chariot. ¹⁶Then he said, “Come with me, and see my ^kzeal for the LORD.” So they had him ride in his chariot. ¹⁷And when he came to Samaria, ^lhe killed all who remained to Ahab in Samaria, till he had destroyed them, according to the word of the LORD ^mwhich He spoke to Elijah.

10:9 killed all these: Jehu pretended that his message was misunderstood and that in any case it was Ahab's wickedness that ultimately had brought about the divine judgment of these men.

10:10 Evaluating Jehu is difficult. His praise for the ministry of the prophets of God and his stated respect for the word of God commend him to us. But he did not balance his judgmental actions on Ahab's family with mercy and justice for the poor and the oppressed. He was God's instrument of judgment, but he himself also stood under God's judgment (see 10:31).

10:11 Jehu . . . left him none remaining: In killing the house of Ahab, his supporters, as well as the surviving descendants of Ahaziah (vv. 13, 14), Jehu exceeded God's judgment. But he used the power God had given him for his selfish ends. Accordingly, no contradiction exists between the divine commissioning of Jehu (9:6–10) and the divine condemnation of him (10:31; see Hos. 1:4).

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

The Black Obelisk

Shalmaneser III (859–824 B.C.), son of Ashurnasirpal III, was the first Assyrian king to come into direct contact with Israel. He is not mentioned in the biblical narrative of the reign of Ahab of Israel (2 Chr. 18:1–34), but he does appear in an inscription that recounts a coalition composed principally of Syria and Israel (“Ahab, the Israelite”), a coalition that Shalmaneser met and presumably defeated at the famous Battle of Qarqar, on the Orontes River (853 B.C.).

This reference to Ahab is one of the most important non-biblical archaeological references to a person mentioned in Scripture. The famous Black Obelisk also mentions “Jehu, son of Omri” and describes him paying tribute to Shalmaneser. Jehu or his representative is portrayed on his hands and knees, kissing the ground at the feet of Shalmaneser. Jehu's Israelite servants are portrayed as bearing bars and vessels of precious metals, extended as presents for the Assyrian king.

Worshippers of Baal Killed

¹⁸Then Jehu gathered all the people together, and said to them, “Ahab served Baal a little, Jehu will serve him much. ¹⁹Now therefore, call to me all the ^oprophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests. Let no one be missing, for I have a great sacrifice for Baal. Whoever is missing shall not live.” But Jehu acted deceptively, with the intent of destroying

10:12–14 Beth Eked means “Binding House,” a site near Mt. Gilboa. Here Jehu slaughtered forty-two men of the house of Ahaziah.

10:15 Jehonadab means “The Lord Is Noble.” He came along with Jehu as an observer. son of Rechab: Jehonadab was an ascetic, nomadic Rechabite. These people were known for their faithfulness to God and to the austere regulations laid down by Jehonadab (see Jer. 35:1–16).

10:17 according to the word of the LORD: Jehu's action was by prophetic sanction (v. 10).

10:18–20 Finally, Jehu attacked overt Baal worship. With a lie, Jehu gathered all the principals of Baal worship to one place, the temple of Baal in Samaria (see v. 21; compare 1 Kin. 16:32). He pretended that he was an even more ardent champion of Baal than Ahab. He issued a royal decree for a national solemn assembly for Baal.

the worshipers of Baal. ²⁰ And Jehu said, ⁸ “Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal.” So they proclaimed it. ²¹ Then Jehu sent throughout all Israel; and all the worshipers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left who did not come. So they came into the ⁹ temple of Baal, and the ¹⁰ temple of Baal was full from one end to the other. ²² And he said to the one in charge of the wardrobe, “Bring out vestments for all the worshipers of Baal.” So he brought out vestments for them. ²³ Then Jehu and Jehonadab the son of Rechab went into the temple of Baal, and said to the worshipers of Baal, “Search and see that no servants of the LORD are here with you, but only the worshipers of Baal.” ²⁴ So they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings. Now Jehu had appointed for himself eighty men on the outside, and had said, “If any of the men whom I have brought into your hands escapes, whoever lets him escape, it shall be ⁹ his life for the life of the other.”

²⁵ Now it happened, as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, that Jehu said to the guard and to the captains, “Go in and kill them; let no one come out!” And they killed them with the edge of the sword; then the guards and the officers threw them out, and went into the ¹ inner room of the temple of Baal. ²⁶ And they brought the ¹ sacred pillars out of the temple of Baal and burned them. ²⁷ Then they broke down the sacred pillar of Baal, and tore down the ² temple of Baal and ³ made it a refuse dump to this day. ²⁸ Thus Jehu destroyed Baal from Israel.

²⁹ However Jehu did not turn away from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin, that is, from ¹ the golden calves that were at Beth-el and Dan. ³⁰ And the LORD ² said to Jehu, “Because you have done well in doing what is right in My sight, and have done to the house of Ahab all that was in My heart, ³ your sons shall sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation.” ³¹ But Jehu ³ took no heed to walk in the law of the LORD God of Israel with all his heart; for he did not depart from ⁴ the sins of Jeroboam, who had made Israel sin.

Death of Jehu

³² In those days the LORD began to cut off parts of Israel; and ⁵ Hazael conquered them in all the territory of Israel ³³ from the Jordan eastward: all the land of Gilead—Gad, Reuben, and Manasseh—from ⁶ Aroer, which is by the River Arnon, including ⁷ Gilead and Bashan.

³⁴ Now the rest of the acts of Jehu, all that he did, and all his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ³⁵ So Jehu ⁴ rested with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria. Then ⁸ Jehoahaz his son reigned in his place. ³⁶ And the period that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years.

Athaliah Reigns in Judah

11 When ¹ Athaliah ² the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was ³ dead, she arose and destroyed all the

10:21–23 temple of Baal: The temple that had been constructed by Ahab (see 1 Kin. 16:32). vestments: By having the Baal worshipers wear distinctive clothing, Jehu marked them for death. no servants of the LORD: Jehu carefully distinguished the enemy, in case some of the LORD’s true priests might have gathered with the priests of Baal. 10:25–28 as soon as he: It is not clear whether a Baal priest or Jehu himself was making the offering. If it was Jehu, it would have been the most effective way of keeping the priests from suspecting any danger. kill them: Jehu followed Elijah’s example on Mt. Carmel (see 1 Kin. 18:40). Yet Jehu’s executions were more thorough, for he had gathered all the priests and prophets of Baal in the nation. to this day: That is, at the time of writing. The suggestion is that even after the fall of Samaria one could see the foul place where the temple to Baal once had been. destroyed Baal: This summary statement refers only to the overt forms of Baal worship.

10:29 Jehu’s destruction of Baal worship (vv. 18–28) was a political act. His continuing the state worship policies established by Jeroboam I clearly shows his disregard for true spiritual revival in Israel.

10:30 done well: The evaluation of Jehu is one of limited obedience (see v. 31). Nonetheless, he accomplished a great deal and received God’s commendation for his work. Most likely, a prophet communicated God’s message to Jehu.

10:32, 33 Because Shalmaneser III was occupied with political pressures in the east, Hazael took advantage of the situation, harassing Israel throughout his long reign. After Jehu’s death, Hazael marched freely into Israel and even into Judah (12:17, 18; 13:22). The important point of these verses is that the attacks of Hazael were part of God’s judgment on Israel.

10:35 The record of Jehoahaz is given in 13:1–9. He was followed by Joash (also called Jehoash; 13:10–13), Jeroboam II (14:23–29), and very briefly by Zechariah (15:8–12). The assassination of Zechariah by Shallum after a reign of only six months ended the line of Jehu in the fourth generation, just as the Lord had said (10:30).

11:1 Athaliah means “The Lord Is Exalted.” Sadly, she did not live up

(Heb. yad) (10:24; Ex. 15:9; 18:9, 10; 1 Kin. 2:46) Strong’s #3027

The Bible speaks often of hands in the literal sense. But because hands are involved in almost all human activity, the word is often used symbolically. Because hands do the will of the entire person, hands may represent someone’s “whole being” (Ps. 24:4; Acts 2:23). The physical position of the hands suggests a person’s attitude. Uplifted hands symbolize either praise and petition to God or violence against another person (1 Kin. 11:27; Ps. 63:4; 1 Tim. 1:8). The expression “hand of the LORD” refers to His great power (Deut. 2:15; Ezek. 1:3). Often the emphasis of this expression is on God’s power in creation (Ps. 8:6; Is. 64:8). Sometimes His power in judgment is emphasized, especially in the phrase, “His hand is stretched out” (Is. 9:12, 17; see also Ruth 1:13). However, God may also extend His hand to express His mercy and forgiveness (Ps. 37:24).

royal heirs. ²But ¹Jehosheba, the daughter of King Joram, sister of ^dAhaziah, took ²Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's sons who were being murdered; and they hid him and his nurse in the bedroom, from Athaliah, so that he was not killed. ³So he was hidden with her in the house of the LORD for six years, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

Joash Crowned King of Judah

⁴In ^ethe seventh year Jehoiada sent and brought the captains of hundreds—of the bodyguards and the ³escorts—and brought them into the house of the LORD to him. And he made a covenant with them and took an oath from them in the house of the LORD, and showed them the king's son. ⁵Then he commanded them, saying, “This is what you shall do: One-third of you who ⁴come on duty ^fon the Sabbath shall be keeping watch over the king's house, ⁶one-third shall be at the gate of Sur, and one-third at the gate behind the escorts. You shall keep the watch of the house, lest it be broken down. ⁷The two ⁵contingents of you who go off duty on the Sabbath shall keep the watch of the house of the LORD for the king. ⁸But you shall surround the king on all sides, every man with his weapons in his hand; and whoever comes within range, let him be put to death. You are to be with the king as he goes out and as he comes in.”

Each of them took his men who were to be on duty on the Sabbath, with those who were going off duty on the Sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest. ¹⁰And the priest gave the captains of hundreds the spears and shields which had belonged to King David, ^hthat were in the temple of the LORD. ¹¹Then the escorts stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, all around the king, from the right ⁶side of the temple to the left side of the temple, by the altar and the house. ¹²And he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the ⁱTestimony;⁷ they made him king and anointed him, and they clapped their hands and said, ^j“Long live the king!”

Death of Athaliah

^{13k}Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the escorts and the people, she came to the people in the temple of the LORD. ¹⁴When she looked, there was the king standing by ^la pillar according to custom; and the leaders and the trumpeters were by the king. All the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets. So Athaliah tore her clothes and cried out, “Treason! Treason!”

to her name. all the royal heirs: Jehu had executed King Ahaziah of Judah, Athaliah's son, shortly after he had executed Joram of Israel (see 9:27–29). Ahaziah's older brother had been killed in an Arabian raid (2 Chr. 22:1). Further, Jehoram had killed his brothers and other royal relatives when he took the throne (2 Chr. 21:4), while Jehu had slain still more of the royal house (10:14). Therefore, Athaliah's destruction of all of the royal heirs must have concentrated on her own grandchildren. None of the usual details relative to accession to the crown in Judah are given here; Athaliah clearly usurped the office, setting aside the precepts of the Davidic covenant (see 2 Sam. 7:12–16; Ps. 89:35–37). 11:2, 3 Josephus says that Jehosheba was Ahaziah's half sister (Antiquities 9.7.1). As the wife of the high priest Jehoiada, her marriage and her relation to the royal house made it possible for her to rescue and hide the young Joash. Joash (or Jehoash; see 12:1) was the son of Ahaziah. He apparently was an infant at this time. Athaliah might not have known of his existence and for this reason failed to kill him in her purges. Yet Joash was to inherit the promises of the Davidic covenant. His righteous reign (12:2) may be attributed in part to his early years spent in the house of the LORD and to the godly instruction and protection of his aunt Jehosheba and his uncle, the high priest Jehoiada. Meanwhile, the unthinkable was happening: The daughter of Jezebel was now the queen of Judah. A worshiper of Baal was in power in the nation of God's promise. She built in Jerusalem a temple to Baal (v. 18).

11:4–8 the seventh year, that is, of the reign of Athaliah and the life of Joash (v. 21). Jehoiada: The name of the high priest means “The Lord Knows.” Other details about Jehoiada's careful preparations are given in 2 Chr. 23:1–11. Jehoiada's plan included the royal guard: the presentation and crowning of the legitimate royal heir coincided with the changing of the guard on the Sabbath.

11:4 bodyguards: The men of the royal guard are identified as the Cherethites and Pelethites in 2 Sam. 20:23; 1 Kin. 1:38. showed them the king's son: The revelation of this young prince was the critical moment. A zealous guard might easily have put him to death at once. There must have been a great deal of preparation on Jehoiada's part—and considerable prayer—for this moment.

11:9 The fact that the men of the royal guard followed the commands of Jehoiada the priest was remarkable. It must have been because they were utterly disgusted by the wickedness of Athaliah.

11:10, 11 spears and shields: David had dedicated these weapons to the temple after his campaigns against Hadadezer (2 Sam. 8:11). Since they were not gold or silver, they had apparently been ignored by Shishak when he looted the temple and palace in the days of Rehoboam (1 Kin. 14:26).

11:12 Deuteronomy prescribed the duties of the king with regard to the preservation of God's law (Deut. 17:18). By putting a copy of the law in Joash's hand and the crown on his head, Jehoiada presented him as the rightful heir to the throne. The term Testimony recalls the covenant, emphasizing that Joash's coronation was given both its scriptural warrant and its rightful connection to the Davidic covenant.

11:13–16 The execution of Athaliah is described in this section. in the temple of the LORD: The temple was the appropriate place to crown the king of God's appointment. It was also probably a good place to hide from a queen whose god was Baal. there was the king: What a shock this must have been to Athaliah. There stood a little boy that guaranteed the end of her reign. Her words Treason! Treason! were technically correct. But it was she who had committed treason by murdering all the survivors of the Davidic house—except for the one who was now king. killed: The priest would not allow her execution in the temple, but her death was necessary. With her dead, the young Joash was safe.

sword whoever follows her.” For the priest had said, “Do not let her be killed in the house of the LORD.” ¹⁶So they seized her; and she went by way of the horses’ entrance into the king’s house, and there she was killed.

¹⁷*m* Then Jehoiada n made a covenant between the LORD, the king, and the people, that they should be the LORD’s people, and also o between the king and the people. ¹⁸And all the people of the land went to the p temple of Baal, and tore it down. They thoroughly q broke in pieces its altars and 9 images, and r killed Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. And s the priest appointed t officers over the house of the LORD. ¹⁹Then he took the captains of hundreds, the bodyguards, the escorts, and all the people of the land; and they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, and went by way of the gate of the escorts to the king’s house. Then he sat on the throne of the kings. ²⁰So all the people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet, for they had slain Athaliah with the sword in the king’s house. ²¹Jehoash was t seven years old when he became king.

that ⁴a man g purposes in his heart to bring into the house of the LORD, ⁵let the priests take it themselves, each from his constituency; and let them repair the ⁵damages of the temple, wherever any dilapidation is found.”

⁶Now it was so, by the twenty-third year of King Jehoash, h that the priests had not repaired the damages of the temple. ⁷*i* So King Jehoash called Jehoiada the priest and the other priests, and said to them, “Why have you not repaired the damages of the temple? Now therefore, do not take more money from your constituency, but deliver it for repairing the damages of the temple.” ⁸And the priests agreed that they would neither receive more money from the people, nor repair the damages of the temple.

11:17 Covenant renewal was particularly necessary after the unholly usurpation by the wicked Athaliah.

11:18 As Jezebel had seen her wicked husband Ahab build a temple to Baal in Samaria (see 1 Kin. 16:32), so her daughter Athaliah was behind the building of a temple to Baal in the holy city of Jerusalem.

Mattan the priest of Baal: The very fact that there was a priest of Baal in Jerusalem is astonishing. If Athaliah and her associates had not been stopped, the sins of Samaria would have paled beside the sins of Jerusalem.

11:19–21 The young child was established as king before the nation. rejoiced . . . quiet: The joy of the people and the peacefulness of the land were marks of God’s blessing to the restored Davidic dynasty.

12:2 All the days in which Jehoiada the priest instructed him has an ominous tone. After Jehoiada’s death, the king’s activities would take a different turn, for Jehoash would become dependent upon counsel of a different sort (see 2 Chr. 24:17–19). Nonetheless, among the kings of Judah, he was one of the few who showed some signs of righteousness.

12:3 Although God Himself might be worshiped in such high places, the setting provided an association with Canaanite religious rites that could too easily lead to spiritual compromise (1 Kin. 3:2–4; see also 14:23). Apostasy would become a besetting sin later in Jehoash’s reign (2 Chr. 24:17–19, 24).

12:5 Money collected from special taxes and voluntary offerings was designated for repairing the temple. Thus renewed concern for spiritual things was evidenced after the neglect and abuse of the previous seven years (2 Chr. 24:7).

12:9 a chest: When the priest failed to do the work (vv. 6, 7), the king took a personal hand in seeing to its accomplishment. The chest he prepared was set against the wall at the entrance facing the right side of the altar. Because the people responded generously (2 Chr. 24:10), the work proceeded and was soon completed (vv. 11, 12; 2 Chr. 24:11–13).

12:13 At first no funds were used for fashioning the sacred vessels, but there was money left over at the completion of the building repairs, and with it the sacred vessels could be completed as well (2 Chr. 24:14).

from the money brought into the house of the LORD. ¹⁴But they gave that to the workmen, and they repaired the house of the LORD with it. ¹⁵Moreover ^othey did not require an account from the men into whose hand they delivered the money to be paid to workmen, for they dealt faithfully. ¹⁶^pThe money from the trespass offerings and the money from the sin offerings was not brought into the house of the LORD. ^qIt belonged to the priests.

Hazael Threatens Jerusalem

¹⁷^rHazael king of Syria went up and fought against Gath, and took it; then ^sHazael set his face to ¹go up to Jerusalem. ¹⁸And Jehoash king of Judah ^ttook all the sacred things that his fathers, Jehoshaphat and Jehoram and Ahaziah, kings of Judah, had dedicated, and his own sacred things, and all the gold found in the treasuries of the house of the LORD and in the king's house, and sent them to Hazael king of Syria. Then he went away from Jerusalem.

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Millo

The Millo of Jerusalem was probably part of the fortification of the Jebusite city that David captured. It may have been either a solid tower full of earth or a bastion strengthening a weak point in the wall. It was already in existence when David's army captured the Jebusite city (2 Sam. 5:9). The Millo was one of the building projects included in King Solomon's expansion program in Jerusalem in later years. He strengthened the Millo by using conscripted labor (1 Kin. 9:15). Centuries later, King Hezekiah had the Millo repaired in preparation for an invasion and siege by the Assyrians (2 Chr. 32:5). King Joash was killed "in the house of the Millo" (2 Kin. 12:20)—the victim of a conspiracy.

Jehoahaz Reigns in Israel

13 In the twenty-third year of ^aJoash ¹the son of Ahaziah, king of Judah, ^bJehoahaz the son of Jehu became king over Israel in Samaria, and reigned seven-teen years. ²And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and followed the ^csins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin. He did not ²depart from them.

³Then ^dthe anger of the LORD was aroused against Israel, and He delivered them into the hand of ^eHazael king of Syria, and into the hand of ^fBen-Hadad the son of Hazael, all their days. ⁴So Jehoahaz ^gpleaded with the LORD, and the LORD listened to him; for ^hHe saw the oppression of Israel, because the king of Syria oppressed them. ⁵ⁱThen the LORD gave Israel a deliverer, so that they

12:15 dealt faithfully: Joash had commissioned such trustworthy men that no accounting of their use of the funds was necessary.

12:17, 18 The Aramean invasion recorded here took place late in Joash's reign. The king fell into apostasy after the death of his godly counselor, the high priest Jehoiada (2 Chr. 24:17–19, 23, 24), and this invasion came as a judgment of his wickedness.

12:20, 21 Joash was severely wounded in Hazael's invasion (see 2 Chr. 24:24, 25), then he fell victim shortly afterward to the dissent and unpopularity that culminated in his assassination. Because of Joash's apostasy and murder of Zechariah, Jehoiada's son (2 Chr. 24:17–22), the king was not laid to rest in the royal tombs (see 2 Chr. 24:25).

13:1 The name Jehoahaz means "The Lord Has Grasped." Two centuries later another Jehoahaz would become king of Judah following the death of his father, the godly Josiah (23:31). The 17-year reign of Jehu's son Jehoahaz lasted from 814 to 798 B.C.

13:2, 3 evil . . . sins of Jeroboam: After the end of the house of Ahab in Jehu's purge (chs. 9; 10), the kings of Israel reverted to the level of syncretism that had been established by Jeroboam I. The mention of Hazael's son Ben-Hadad III (802–780 B.C.) may refer to his serving as a commander in his father's army or to his growing prominence in his father's later years (v. 24).

13:4 Although Jehoahaz did not follow the Lord exclusively (v. 6), God graciously heard his genuine plea for help. In His long-suffering mercy, God often deals patiently with people and blesses them despite their failures (see 1 Kin. 21:25–29; 2 Pet. 3:9).

13:5 Israel's deliverer has been variously identified. Probably it was the Assyrian king Adad-Nerari III. Referring to an Assyrian king as a anger

(Heb. 'aph) (13:3; Deut. 6:15; Ps. 18:8; Prov. 11:22; 29:8) Strong's #639

Depending upon the context, this word signifies either "nose," "nostril," or "anger" (Gen. 2:7; Prov. 15:1). This term occurs about half of the time with words referring to burning. Thus these figures of speech typically depict anger as the fierce breathing of a person through his nose: "a burning nose" (Ex. 32:10–12). Most of the references describe God's anger. God is said to be slow to anger, but can be provoked into exercising judgment (Ps. 103:8; Deut. 4:24–25). He is compassionate, but His wrath is reserved for those who break His covenant (Deut. 13:17; 29:25–27; Josh. 23:16; Judg. 2:20; Ps. 78:38). Although God's wrath is righteous, human anger is almost always evaluated in negative terms in the OT (Gen. 49:6; Prov. 14:17).

escaped from under the hand of the Syrians; and the children of Israel dwelt in their tents as before. ⁶Nevertheless they did not depart from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, who had made Israel sin, but walked in them; ⁷and the ³wooden image also remained in Samaria. ⁷For He left of the army of Jehoahaz only fifty horsemen, ten chariots, and ten thousand foot soldiers; for the king of Syria had destroyed them ^kand made them ^llike the dust at threshing.

⁸Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz, all that he did, and his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ⁹So Jehoahaz ⁴rested with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria. Then ⁵Joash his son reigned in his place.

Jehoash Reigns in Israel

¹⁰In the thirty-seventh year of Joash king of Judah, ⁶Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz became king over Israel in Samaria, and reigned sixteen years. ¹¹And he did evil in the sight of the LORD. Then Jeroboam sat on his throne. And Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

the king of Israel came down to him, and wept over his face, and said, “O my father, my father, ^qthe chariots of Israel and their horsemen!”

¹⁵And Elisha said to him, “Take a bow and some arrows.” So he took himself a bow and some arrows. ¹⁶Then he said to the king of Israel, “Put your hand on the bow.” So he put his hand on it, and Elisha put his hands on the king’s hands. ¹⁷And he said, “Open the east window”; and he opened it. Then Elisha said, “Shoot”; and he shot. And he said, “The arrow of the LORD’s deliverance and the arrow of deliverance from Syria; for you must strike the Syrians at ^rAphek till you have destroyed them.” ¹⁸Then he said, “Take the arrows”; so he took them. And he said to the king of Israel, “Strike the ground”; so he struck three times, and stopped. ¹⁹And the man of God was angry with him, and said, “You should have struck five or six times; then you would have struck Syria till you had destroyed it! ^sBut now you will strike Syria only three times.”

²⁰Then Elisha ⁸died, and they buried him. And the ^traiding bands from Moab invaded the land in the spring of the year. ²¹So it was, as they were burying a man, that suddenly they spied a band of raiders; and they put the man in the tomb of Elisha; and when the man was let down and touched the bones of Elisha, he revived and stood on his feet.

Israel Recaptures Cities from Syria

²²And ^uHazael king of Syria oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz. ²³But the LORD was ^vgracious to them, and ^wregarded them, ^xbecause of His covenant with Abraham, divinely commissioned deliverer of Israel is similar to the words of God in Isaiah describing the Persian King Cyrus as “His anointed” (see Is. 45:1; compare Is. 44:28).

13:6 the wooden image: The Hebrew word for wooden images is a reference to the Canaanite goddess Asherah. The image itself was a sacred tree or pole that was perceived perhaps as some sexually-oriented symbol of the fertility religion of Canaan.

13:11 At first, the 16-year reign of Jehoash of Israel appears to be recorded without further elaboration (vv. 10–13). But three stories are added: the death of Elisha during his reign (vv. 14–21), his military victories over the Aramean forces (vv. 24, 25), and his war with Amaziah of Judah (v. 12; 14:8–14).

13:14 O my father: Jehoash’s cry over the aged Elisha repeats the words of Elisha spoken when Elijah was taken up to heaven (2:12). Thus, both at the beginning of his ministry and at its conclusion, Elisha is unmistakably linked to his mentor Elijah. The grief of Jehoash at the impending death of Elisha shows that, like his father Jehoahaz (see vv. 4, 5), this Israelite king possessed some genuine spirituality. The line of Jehu had its good moments and received some reward from the Lord (see 10:30). However, none of this line or any other of the kings of Israel served God with all their heart (see 10:31).

13:15–19 This section describes a symbolic act that Elisha had Joash perform to ensure victories over his enemies; the king was only partially successful in completing the task. Elisha’s symbolic act of putting his hands on the king’s hands should have alerted the king that the aged prophet was conveying a divine blessing on him. Jehoash’s halfhearted compliance with Elisha’s instructions exposed his weak faith and illustrated God’s unfavorable evaluation of his character (v. 11). God’s dying prophet was rightly disturbed. Although God would allow Israel to defeat the Aramean army three times, their victory would be incomplete.

13:20 Elisha died: The supernatural translation of Elijah (ch. 2) was an unusual example of God’s power; Elisha died a normal death. bands from Moab: This prepares for the miracle in the grave of Elisha (v. 21), but the mention of invasions such as this reminds us of how perilous life was during so much of Israel’s history.

13:21 the man . . . revived: Even in death the mere presence of Elisha’s body was sufficient for a miracle. There was no magic in Elisha’s bones, but a demonstration of the power of God associated with His servant. This miracle should have reassured Jehoash that God intended to rescue Israel from the deadly grip of Aramean domination (see v. 25).

13:23 This verse is one of those dazzling lights that burst from the pages of the Bible, describing the wonderful mercy of the living

Isaac, and Jacob, and would not yet destroy them or cast them from His presence.

²⁴Now Hazael king of Syria died. Then Ben-Hadad his son reigned in his place. ²⁵And ⁹Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz recaptured from the hand of Ben-Hadad, the son of Hazael, the cities which he had taken out of the hand of Jehoahaz his father by war. ¹⁰Three times Joash defeated him and recaptured the cities of Israel.

Amaziah Reigns in Judah

God (see 14:26, 27). It draws in part on the imagery of Ex. 34:6. His covenant: God's faithfulness to His own promise is a regular theme of the OT (Ex. 2:23–25).

13:24 This Ben-Hadad is the son of Hazael (v. 3). After his father's death, he reigned as Ben-Hadad III (802–780 B.C.).

13:25 In accordance with Jehoash's striking the ground three times with arrows (v. 18), God gave Jehoash victory over the Arameans only three times. Yet God graciously overruled Jehoash's inadequate faith by granting Israel full victory over the Arameans during the reign of his son Jeroboam II.

14:1–3 The name Amaziah means “The Lord Is Mighty.” did what was right: Amaziah was one of the few godly kings in the kingdom of Judah; the best kings were Hezekiah (see 18:1) and Josiah (see 22:1). his father David . . . his father Joash: Here is a good example of different uses of the Hebrew word for father. It can signify either remote or immediate ancestry.

14:4 Like his father Jehoash before him (see 12:3), Amaziah allowed worship at the high places. This practice would blossom into open idolatry in the reigns of subsequent kings (16:4; 21:3).

14:5, 6 executed his servants: The principals are named in 12:20, 21. These men were guilty of assassinating his father and might have been a threat to his own reign. Book of the Law of Moses: Amaziah followed the law laid down in Deut. 24:16.

14:7 A more detailed account of Amaziah's defeat of the Edomites is given in 2 Chr. 25:5–13. Edom had regained its independence during the reign of Jehoram (see 8:20–22). Amaziah's conquest of the formidable city of Sela atop the seemingly unapproachable cliffs of the Wadi Musa was a monumental accomplishment. Rather than recognize God's hand in this feat, Amaziah became proud and fell into spiritual compromise (2 Chr. 25:14–16).

14:8 let us face one another: Amaziah's pride over his accomplishment (v. 10) and his anger over the looting of Judean cities by Israelite mercenaries dismissed before the Edomite campaign (2 Chr. 25:6–10, 13) clouded his thinking.

14:9, 10 Jehoash replied to Amaziah in the form of a fable—a kind of story designed to teach a moral. By speaking of Amaziah as a thistle in comparison with the cedar of Lebanon, Jehoash tried to help Amaziah put a more realistic construction on his recent victory.

14:11 Beth Shemesh: The name of the city means “House of the Sun,” indicating that there had once been a temple to the sun god there in Canaanite times. Beth Shemesh was in the Valley of Sorek, about 15 miles west of Jerusalem. This was the town where the holy ark was taken (1 Sam. 6:10–7:2) when it came back into Israelite hands after its “wanderings” among the Philistines. The tragedy of the battle between Amaziah and Jehoash was heightened by the fact that the proud Amaziah forced a battle in his own territory, Judah.

14:12 Judah was defeated: Jehoash's forces were seasoned warriors and had defeated the Arameans (see 13:25). Amaziah's pride spelled not only his own downfall (v. 13) but that of his capital city high places

(Heb. bamah) (14:4; 23:5; 1 Kin. 11:7; Jer. 19:5) Strong's #1116

This word often refers to a sacred area, an open-air sanctuary, located on top of a ridge. Before the temple was built, the Israelites could worship the true God at high places (see Solomon's worship of God at the high place at Gideon, 1 Kin. 3:2–4). But the Israelites soon began worshipping other gods, especially Baal, at these high places, copying the practices of the surrounding nations. The Israelites decorated these hilltops with pagan symbols, sacred pillars and stones, and these places were rallying points for pagan worship. They often were associated with Israel's religious rebellion and apostasy (1 Kin. 14:23; Jer. 19:5). Thus throughout the OT, the existence of high places and the worship that was practiced there was labeled as an affront to God (Ps. 78:58).

¹³Then Jehoash king of Israel captured Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Jehoash, the son of Ahaziah, at Beth Shemesh; and he went to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem from ^athe Gate of Ephraim to ^bthe Corner Gate—⁵four hundred cubits. ¹⁴And he took all ^cthe gold and silver, all the articles that were found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king's house, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

¹⁷^sAmaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, lived fifteen years after the death of Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel. ¹⁸Now the rest of the acts of Amaziah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ¹⁹And ^tthey formed a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish; but they sent after him to Lachish and killed him there. ²⁰Then they brought him on horses, and he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers in the City of David.

Jeroboam II Reigns in Israel

²³In the fifteenth year of Amaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel, became king in Samaria, and reigned forty-one years. ²⁴And he did evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from all the ^xsins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin. ²⁵He ^yrestored the ¹territory of Israel ^zfrom the entrance of Hamath to ^athe ²Sea of the Arabah, according to the word of the LORD God of Israel, which He had spoken through His servant ^bJonah the son of Amittai, the prophet who was from ^cGath Hepher. ²⁶For the LORD ^dsaw that the affliction of Israel was very bitter; and whether bond or free, ^ethere was no helper for Israel. ²⁷^fAnd the LORD did not say that He would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven; but He saved them by the hand of Jeroboam the son of Joash.

²⁸Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did—his might, how he made war, and how he recaptured for Israel, from ^gDamascus and Hamath, ^h*what had belonged* to Judah—are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ²⁹So Jeroboam ³rested with his fathers, the kings of Israel. Then ⁱZechariah his son reigned in his place.

Azariah Reigns in Judah

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Jeroboam king of Israel, ^aAzariah the son of Amaziah, king of Judah, ^bbecame king. ²He was sixteen years old when he (14:13, 14). fled to his tent: This is an idiom for a complete rout (2 Sam. 18:17).

14:13 The damage to Jerusalem's northern walls extended from the Corner Gate, at the northwest corner of the city wall, east to the Gate of Ephraim. The northwest corner of Jerusalem had always been the city's most vulnerable point (18:17). A breach in the wall of four hundred cubits (600 feet) was a huge gap for the invading army to enter the holy city through.

14:14 gold and silver . . . articles: The looting of precious objects from the temple, as well as from the palace—the king's house—shows the humiliation that Judah suffered as the result of this disastrous war fueled by Amaziah's pride. hostages: People as well as goods were carried off by the king of Israel. returned: It had not been the intention of Jehoash to occupy foreign territory.

14:17 The notice of fifteen years of life for Amaziah suggests he was released after the death of Jehoash for an additional period (782–767 B.C.). If so, he reigned alongside his son Azariah (or Uzziah), whose 52-year reign began in 792 B.C. (15:2).

14:19, 20 Amaziah not only reproduced his father's spiritual problems (see 14:3), he also died as his father had, at the hand of an assassin (12:20, 21). Lachish: This was one of the guard cities for Jerusalem, about 30 miles southwest of the capital. Lachish was seized by Sennacherib in 701 B.C., in the days of Hezekiah (18:13–17).

14:22 Elath is the famous seaport on the Gulf of Aqaba. During the reign of Ahaz, Elath was captured by Rezin of Aram and became an Edomite holding (see 16:6).

14:23 Jeroboam: This is the second king of Israel to have this name.

Jeroboam I was the founder of the northern kingdom at the time of the death of Solomon (930 B.C.; see 1 Kin. 11; 12). forty-one years: Jeroboam II had a very long reign. His 41 years included ten years as coregent with his father Jehoash (792–782 B.C.).

14:24 did evil: The assessment of his reign is like that of all the kings of Israel, except for the graver assessment given to the house of Ahab (see 10:29–31).

14:25 restored the territory: The first half of the eighth century B.C. was a period of prosperity and strength for the northern and southern kingdoms. Jeroboam II extended Israel's influence from the entrance of Hamath down the eastern side of the Jordan to the southern end of the Dead Sea. Since Azariah also campaigned in the southern territory, the two kingdoms must have been living in harmony and enjoying mutual cooperation. Jonah: Once again a prophet of God gave direction to a king. The reference to Jonah here provides the historical setting for the famous prophet.

14:26, 27 no helper: The living God saw that His people needed His help, and He became the helper of His people. God used Jeroboam II to bring Israel to a new period of greatness.

14:28 The Scriptures emphasize Jeroboam's military prowess. Yet Jeroboam's might may have also been economic. The well-known Samarian Ostraca, which may date from this period, record the delivery to Samaria of fine oil and barley produced on the royal estates.

14:29 The brief reign of Zechariah is noted in 15:8–12. He was the fourth in the line of Jehu to reign in Israel, in fulfillment of God's gracious promise to Jehu (see 10:30).

15:1, 2 Azariah (or Uzziah, 2 Chr. 26:1; Is. 1:1) is credited with became king, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jechehiah of Jerusalem. ³And he did what was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Amaziah had done, ^{4c}except that the ¹high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and burned incense on the high places. ⁵Then the LORD ^dstruck the king, so that he was a leper until the day of his ^edeath; so he ^fdwelt in an isolated house. And Jotham the king's son was over the royal house, judging the people of the land.

⁶Now the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ⁷So Azariah ²rested with his fathers, and ^gthey buried him with his fathers in the City of David. Then Jotham his son reigned in his place.

Zechariah Reigns in Israel

⁸In the thirty-eighth year of Azariah king of Judah, ^hZechariah the son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in Samaria six months. ⁹And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, ⁱas his fathers had done; he did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin. ¹⁰Then Shallum the son of Jabesh conspired against him, and ^jstruck and killed him in front of the people; and he reigned in his place.

Shallum Reigns in Israel

¹³Shallum the son of Jabesh became king in the thirty-ninth year of ³Uzziah king of Judah; and he reigned a full month in Samaria. ¹⁴For Menahem the son of Gadi went up from ¹Tirzah, came to Samaria, and struck Shallum the son of Jabesh in Samaria and killed him; and he reigned in his place.

¹⁵Now the rest of the acts of Shallum, and the conspiracy which he ⁴led, indeed they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel. ¹⁶Then from Tirzah, Menahem attacked ^mTiphsah, all who were there, and its territory. Menahem Reigns in Israel

¹⁷In the thirty-ninth year of Azariah king of Judah, Menahem the son of Gadi became king over Israel, and reigned ten years in Samaria. ¹⁸And he did evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart all his days from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin. ¹⁹^pPul⁵ king of Assyria came against the land; and Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver, that his ⁶hand might be with him to ⁷strengthen the kingdom

52 years of reign. This figure includes 10 years during which his father Amaziah was held captive (792–782 B.C.), 15 years of coregency with Amaziah upon his release from captivity (782–767 B.C.), and 27 years of sole reign (767–740 B.C.). The latter part of Azariah's reign was tainted by his intrusion into the priestly office (2 Chr. 26:16–19), an act that resulted in his being stricken with leprosy (v. 5). This condition put his son Jotham on the throne to rule with him and handle public matters relative to the royal office. The nature of Jotham's duties (v. 5), the assigning of a full 52 years of reign to Azariah, and Isaiah's dating of his call to the year of Azariah's (or Uzziah's) death (Is. 6:1) may indicate that Azariah retained the power of the throne until the end. His name Azariah means “The Lord Has Helped.”

15:3, 4 Azariah was another of the good kings in Judah and received some of the same evaluation that was given to Jehoash in 12:2, 3 and to Amaziah in 14:3, 4.

15:5 leper: The events that brought about this affliction are described in 2 Chr. 26:16–21. over the royal house: Jotham assumed the office of senior administrator. While the term over the house is used of the office of royal steward, this office grew in prestige, and the term came to designate a senior official of high standing. Jotham handled the business of state during his father's period of isolation.

15:12 fourth generation: Jehu had been promised a continuing posterity into the fourth generation as a reward for carrying out his divine commission (see 10:30). Unfortunately, Jehu and his house proved unworthy of their God-given opportunities so that they repeatedly earned the condemnation of God's prophets (13:18, 19; Hos. 1:4; Amos 7:9). After the death of Zechariah in 752 B.C. and the end of the fourth dynasty, Israel plunged into a period of degeneracy, bloody conspiracies, and international intrigue that would bring about its demise in 722 B.C. So Zechariah, whose name means “The Lord Remembers” (see 14:26, 27), was the last of the effective kings of Israel.

15:13–16 The short reign of Shallum, only one month, was indicative of the emerging collapse of the nation.

15:15 the rest of the acts: This follows the normal pattern for the obituaries of the kings of the northern kingdom. Even though Shallum was king for only one month, he still received the complete royal obituary.

15:16 Because of its beauty (Song 6:4), Tirzah served as a royal retreat (see 1 Kin. 14:17). It also was the national capital during Israel's first two dynasties. ripped open: Such inhuman atrocities were all too common in times of warfare in the ancient world (see 8:12; Amos 1:13). Israel's sin repeatedly placed it in danger of such barbaric acts (see Hos. 10:13, 14; 13:16).

15:17, 18 Menahem: This wicked king came to power by assassination and established his authority by brutal acts against humanity (vv. 14, 16). Ironically, his name means “Comforter.”

15:19 Pul is a second Babylonian name for the Assyrian king Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.; see v. 29; 1 Chr. 5:26). Although he came to the throne as a usurper from the ranks of the military, he would prove a competent king. Under Tiglath-Pileser III and his successors, Assyria became the dominant power in the Middle East for well over a century (747–612 B.C.). It was a period of repeated Assyrian interference in the affairs of Israel and Judah. The first such instance came quickly. In 743 B.C. Tiglath-Pileser III launched a western invasion that brought a great deal of Syria and Palestine under his control. The annals of this Assyrian king record that Menahem of Israel paid tribute to him, as is also recorded here (vv. 19, 20).

Assyrian Campaigns Against Israel and Judah

The Assyrian invasions of the eighth century B.C. were the most traumatic political events in the entire history of Israel.

The brutal Assyrian style of warfare relied on massive armies, superbly equipped with the world's first great siege machines manipulated by an efficient corps of engineers.

Psychological terror, however, was Assyria's most effective weapon. It was ruthlessly applied, with corpses impaled on stakes, severed heads stacked in heaps, and captives skinned alive.

The shock of bloody military sieges on both Israel and Judah was profound. The prophets did not fail to speak out against their horror, while at the same time pleading with the people to see God's hand in history, to recognize spiritual causes in the present punishment.

1. CAMPAIGNS OF TIGLATH-PILESER III (738–732 B.C.)

King Tiglath-Pileser of Assyria (745–727 B.C.) proved to be a vigorous campaigner, first exacting tribute from Menahem and then annexing Hamath, Philistia, Galilee, Gilead, and Damascus (738–732 B.C.) during the reign of Pekah.

The ferocious onslaught against the northern tribes left only central Israel and the capital city of Samaria intact.

By this time Israel was a tiny nation wracked by pro- and anti-Assyrian factions, multiple assassinations, hypocrisy, arrogance, and fear.

2. CAMPAIGN OF SHALMANESER V (725–722 B.C.)

The last king of Israel, Hoshea, conspired with Egypt and withheld the annual tribute to the Assyrians.

A protracted three-year siege conducted by Shalmaneser and concluded by Sargon II saw the end of the Israelite kingdom in 722–721 B.C.

At that time, according to Assyrian annals, "I [Sargon] besieged and conquered Samaria, led away as plunder 27,290 inhabitants . . . I installed over [those remaining] an officer of mine and imposed upon them the tribute of the former king."

3. SENNACHERIB'S CAMPAIGN AGAINST JUDAH (701 B.C.)

In the 14th year of Hezekiah, the Assyrians finally attacked Judah. The Prism of Sennacherib calls Hezekiah "overbearing and proud," indicating that he was part of Philistia's and Egypt's effort to rebel against Assyria.

A battle in the plain of Eltekeh was won by Assyria; the Egyptian and Cushite charioteers fled. Lachish was besieged and taken. Sennacherib's annals note: "As for Hezekiah the Jew, he did not submit to my yoke. I laid siege to 46 of his strong cities, walled forts and the countless small villages in their vicinity, and conquered them by means of well-tamped earth ramps and battering-rams brought near to the walls combined with the attack by foot-soldiers, using mines, breaches, and sapper work. I drove out 200,150 people, young and old, male and female, horses, mules, donkeys, camels, large and small cattle beyond counting, and considered them plunder. Himself I made a prisoner in Jerusalem, his royal residence, like a bird in a cage."

Nowhere, however, does the boastful Assyrian king record the disaster mentioned in 2 Kin. 19:35, 36; 2 Chr. 32:21; Is. 37:36, 37.

under his control. ²⁰And Menahem ^qexacted ⁷the money from Israel, from all the very wealthy, from each man fifty shekels of silver, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back, and did not stay there in the land.

²¹Now the rest of the acts of Menahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel? ²²So Menahem ⁸rested with his fathers. Then Pekahiah his son reigned in his place.

Pekahiah Reigns in Israel

²³In the fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah, Pekahiah the son of Menahem became king over Israel in Samaria, and reigned two years. ²⁴And he did evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin. ²⁵Then Pekah the son of Remaliah, an officer of his, conspired against him and ⁹killed him in Samaria, in the ^rcitadel of the king's house, along with Argob and Arieah; and with him were fifty men of Gilead. He killed him and reigned in his place.

³²In the second year of Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, ^xJotham the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, began to reign. ³³He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was ^yJerusha the daughter of Zadok. ³⁴And he did what was right in the sight of the LORD; he did ^zaccording to all that his father Uzziah had done. ³⁵^zHowever the ³high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and burned incense on the high places. ^aHe built the Upper Gate of the house of the LORD.

15:23 Pekahiah means "The Lord Has Opened the Eyes." After an evil reign of two years, a usurper "closed his eyes" for him.
15:27, 28 Like Shallum and Menahem before him, Pekah sat on the throne through usurpation and bloody deeds. Because Hoshea's nine-year reign (17:1) began in 732 B.C., Pekah's twenty years must have included a time of kingship in his own district during the unsettled days of Shallum, Menahem, and Pekahiah (752–740 B.C.). Apparently Pekah rode the crest of anti-Assyrian sentiment. That same political stance ultimately brought about his downfall, during Tiglath-Pileser III's second western campaign (734–732 B.C.). It is this campaign in Galilee to which Isaiah alluded (see Is. 9:1).
15:30 Hoshea . . . killed him: Tiglath-Pileser III's campaign apparently caused a pro-Assyrian reaction within Israel that brought about both Pekah's death and Hoshea's ascension to the throne. The annals of Tiglath-Pileser III record Hoshea's heavy tribute and the Assyrian king's claim that he himself set the new Israelite king in office.
15:32, 33 Jotham means "The Lord Is Perfect." Jotham's reign of sixteen years (752–736 B.C.) includes a 12-year coregency with his father Azariah. Since Jotham is earlier credited with 20 years (v. 30), it may be that he turned over the reigns of government to his son Ahaz in 736 B.C., even though he lived on for four more years.

15:34 Jotham's reign was partly righteous. After the purge of Ahaziah and Athaliah (9:27–29; 11:13–16), the kings of Judah who reigned in relative righteousness were Joash (Jehoash) (12:2, 3), Amaziah (14:3, 4), and Azariah (Uzziah, 15:3, 4). A positive righteousness would be modeled by Hezekiah (see 18:3–6) and again by Josiah (see 22:2).
15:36 The author of Chronicles indicates that Jotham did extensive building in Jerusalem and Judah (2 Chr. 27:3, 4) and engaged in a war against the Ammonites (2 Chr. 27:5). Jotham apparently carried out the practices that brought Judah power and prosperity during the years of his father Azariah (Uzziah).
15:37, 38 Rezin . . . Pekah: These two adversaries were even more prominent in the time of Ahaz (see ch. 16; see also Is. 7).
16:1 The name Ahaz means "He Has Grasped." The seventeenth year of Pekah was 736–735 B.C. Ahaz's 16-year reign apparently ended in 720 B.C. If so, like Jotham before him, Ahaz must have lived on another four years after giving up his rule. Hezekiah's first year of independent rule began in 715 B.C., 14 years before Sennacherib's what was right in the sight of the LORD his God, as his father David had done.³ But he walked in the way of the kings of Israel; indeed ^ahe made his son pass through the fire, according to the ^babominations of the nations whom the LORD had cast out from before the children of Israel. ⁴And he sacrificed and burned incense on the ^chigh places, ^don the hills, and under every green tree.

^{5e}Then Rezin king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem to make war; and they besieged Ahaz but could not overcome him. ⁶At that time Rezin king of Syria ^fcaptured ¹Elath for Syria, and drove the men of Judah from Elath. Then the ²Edomites went to Elath, and dwell there to this day.

⁷So Ahaz sent messengers to ^gTiglath-Pileser³ king of Assyria, saying, “I am your servant and your son. Come up and save me from the hand of the king of Syria and from the hand of the king of Israel, who rise up against me.” ⁸And Ahaz ^htook the silver and gold that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasuries of the king’s house, and sent it as a present to the king of Assyria. ⁹So the king of Assyria heeded him; for the king of Assyria went up against ¹Damascus and ^jtook it, carried its people captive to ^kKir, and killed Rezin.

¹⁰Now King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-Pileser king of Assyria, and saw an altar that was at Damascus; and King Ahaz sent to Urijah the priest the design of the altar and its pattern, according to all its workmanship. ¹¹Then ^lUrijah the priest built an altar according to all that King Ahaz had sent from Damascus. So Urijah the priest made it before King Ahaz came back from Damascus. ¹²And when the king came back from Damascus, the king saw the altar; and ^mthe king approached the altar and made offerings on it. ¹³So he burned his burnt offering and his grain offering; and he poured his drink offering and sprinkled the blood of his peace offerings on the altar. ¹⁴He also brought ⁿthe bronze altar which was before the LORD, from the front of the ⁴temple—from between the new altar and the house of the LORD—and put it on the north side of the new altar. ¹⁵Then King Ahaz commanded Urijah the priest, saying, “On the great new altar burn ^othe morning burnt offering, the evening grain offering, the king’s burnt sacrifice, and his grain offering, with the burnt offering of all the people of the land, their grain offering, and their drink offerings; and sprinkle on it all the blood of the burnt offering and all the blood of the sacrifice. And the bronze altar shall be for me to inquire by.” ¹⁶Thus did Urijah the priest, according to all that King Ahaz commanded.

^{17p}And King Ahaz cut off ^qthe panels of the carts, and removed the lavers from them; and he took down ^rthe Sea from the bronze oxen that were under it, and put it on a pavement of stones. ¹⁸Also he removed the Sabbath pavilion which they had built in the temple, and he removed the king’s outer entrance from the house of the LORD, on account of the king of Assyria.

¹⁹Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz which he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ²⁰So Ahaz rested with his fathers, and ^swas buried with his fathers in the City of David. Then Hezekiah his son reigned in his place.

Hoshea Reigns in Israel

17 In the twelfth year of Ahaz king of Judah, ^aHoshea the son of Elah became king of Israel in Samaria, and he reigned nine years. ²And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, but not as the kings invasion of Judah and his siege of Jerusalem in 701 B.C. (18:13). If Ahaz was 20 years old at his accession in 736 B.C. (v. 2), he would have lived to be around 40. Since Hezekiah was 25 years old at his accession to coregency in 729 B.C., Ahaz was in his early teens when Hezekiah was born.

16:3, 4 After a series of kings in Judah who demonstrated a relative righteousness, Ahaz followed the evil ways of the kings of the northern kingdom. The author of Chronicles reports that the rite of making one’s son pass through the fire was connected with the Baal worship practiced in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom (23:10; 2 Chr. 28:2, 3). Ahaz was an apostate who personally led his people in the religious worship practices of Canaan (v. 4; see 2 Chr. 28:2–4).

16:5 Because of Ahaz’s sin God delivered him into the hands of an alliance of the two kings Rezin and Pekah (see 15:37). A great slaughter followed, and a complete deportation of Judah was averted only by divine intervention (2 Chr. 28:5–15).

16:6 Azariah had recovered Elath for Judah (see 14:22). Now this major port city (see 1 Kin. 9:26) was taken from Judah. to this day:

That is, the day of the narration of these events.

16:7–9 Ahaz’s request of Tiglath-Pileser III coincides with the Assyrian king’s second western campaign (734–732 B.C.) that eventually brought about the fall of Damascus in 732 B.C. and the replacement of Pekah with Hoshea on the throne of Israel in the same year. Tiglath-Pileser listed the tribute of both Hoshea and Ahaz in connection with his campaigning.

16:10–15 Having been summoned to Damascus by Tiglath-Pileser III, Ahaz saw a pagan altar that suited his tastes. His use of the altar to make sacrifices to God underscored Ahaz’s essential paganism. His paganism was also evident in his many other religious innovations (vv. 14–18; 2 Chr. 28:2–4, 22–25). Ahaz went so far in his apostasy as to shut the doors of the temple (2 Chr. 28:24).

17:1 twelfth year: Hoshea became king in 732 B.C., so the 12 years of Ahaz indicate a period of coregency with his father Jotham, perhaps arranged due to the pressures of Tiglath-Pileser’s first western campaign (744–743 B.C.). Hoshea: The name means “Salvation.”

of Israel who were before him. ^{3b}Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against him; and Hoshea ^cbecame his vassal, and paid him tribute money. ⁴And the king of Assyria uncovered a conspiracy by Hoshea; for he had sent messengers to So, king of Egypt, and brought no tribute to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year. Therefore the king of Assyria shut him up, and bound him in prison.

Israel Carried Captive to Assyria

⁵Now ^dthe king of Assyria went throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria and besieged it for three years. ^{6e}In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria and ^fcarried Israel away to Assyria, ^gand placed them in Halah and by the Habor, the River of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

⁷For ^hso it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and they had ⁱfeared other gods, ⁸and ^jhad walked in the statutes of the nations whom the LORD had cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made. ⁹Also the children of Israel secretly did against the LORD their God things that were not right, and they built for themselves ¹high places in all their cities, ^kfrom watchtower to fortified city. ^{10l}They set up for themselves sacred pillars and ^mwooden images ²on every high hill and under every green tree. ¹¹There they burned incense on all the high places, like the nations whom the LORD had carried away before them; and they did wicked things to provoke the LORD to anger, ¹²for they served idols, ^oof which the LORD had said to them, ^p“You shall not do this thing.”

¹³Yet the LORD testified against Israel and against Judah, by all of His ^qprophets, ^revery seer, saying, ^s“Turn from your evil ways, and keep My commandments and My statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by My servants the prophets.” ¹⁴Nevertheless they would not hear, but ^tstiffened their necks, like the necks of their fathers, who ^udid not believe in the LORD their God. ¹⁵And they ^vrejected His statutes ^wand His covenant that He had made with their fathers, and His testimonies which He had testified against them; they followed ^xidols, ^ybecame idolaters, and went after the nations who were all around them, concerning whom the LORD had charged them that they should ^znot do like them. ¹⁶So they left all the commandments of the LORD their God, ^amade for themselves a molded image and two calves, ^bmade a wooden image and worshiped all the ^chost of heaven, ^dand served Baal. ^{17e}And they caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire, ^fpracticed witchcraft and soothsaying, and ^gsold themselves to do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke Him to anger. ¹⁸Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel, and removed them from His sight; there was none left ^hbut the tribe of Judah alone.

¹⁹Also ⁱJudah did not keep the commandments of the LORD their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel which they made. ²⁰And the LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel, afflicted them, and ^jdelivered them into the hand of plunderers, until He had cast them from His ^ksight. ²¹For ^lHe tore Israel from the house of David, and ^mthey made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king. Then Jeroboam drove Israel from following the LORD, and made them commit a great sin. ²²For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they did not depart from them, ²³until the LORD removed Israel out of His sight, ⁿas He had said by all His servants the prophets. ^oSo Israel was carried away from their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.

17:3 Shalmaneser V succeeded Tiglath-Pileser III as king of Assyria in 727 B.C.

17:4 conspiracy by Hoshea: Several elements of intrigue and international affairs may have entered into the picture here. Transitions in power were often occasions for rebellion or attempted overthrow. Further, a new strong man had appeared in Egypt—Tefnekht, a pharaoh of the twenty-fourth dynasty. The time may have seemed ripe for Hoshea to enter into an anti-Assyrian coalition.

17:5, 6 After a three-year siege, Samaria fell to the Assyrians in 722 B.C. Sargon, the field commander of Shalmaneser V who succeeded him to the throne, would later claim that it was he who took Samaria. It was ancient practice to deport large numbers of influential citizens of a conquered country or city to decrease the possibility of rebellion (see 25:11, 12; Ezek. 1:2, 3).

17:7 Israel had sinned: The reason for the fall of Samaria and the end of the northern kingdom is clearly stated to be its spiritual failure, in turning from the living God to worship other gods that exist only in people's depraved imagination. The rehearsal that follows of Israel's spiritual adultery (vv. 9–17) makes it clear that Israel had grown thoroughly corrupt from the leaders on down (vv. 7–9, 21). Despite repeated warnings (vv. 13, 14, 23), Israel had persisted in every form of idolatry and licentious worship (vv. 10–12, 16, 17).

17:21 Jeroboam . . . made them . . . sin: Jeroboam I had initiated the state worship that in effect set the standard for all of Israel's idolatrous activities. The worship of the calves at Dan and Bethel, and Israel's fascination with Baal (v. 16; see 1 Kin. 12:28, 29; 16:32, 33), are repeatedly cited as the chief causes of Israel's spiritual defeat and political collapse. Jeroboam I's heresy was a standard of wickedness for the kings who followed him in the northern kingdom.

Assyria Resettles Samaria

^{24p}Then the king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, ^qAva, Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel; and they took possession of Samaria and dwelt in its cities. ²⁵And it was so, at the beginning

17:24 The king of Assyria was probably Sargon II (722–705 B.C.), although the practice described here was continued by later kings as well. Such a mixing of populations would break down ethnic dis-

Exile of the Northern Kingdom

The mass deportation policy of the Assyrians was a companion piece to the brutal and calculated terror initiated by Ashurnasirpal and followed by all his successors. It was intended to forestall revolts but, like all Draconian measures, it merely spread misery and engendered hatred. In the end, it hastened the disintegration of the Assyrian Empire.

There is some evidence that Israel experienced its first deportations under Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.), a cruelty repeated by Sargon II (721–705 B.C.) at the time of the fall of Samaria. The latter king's inscriptions boast of carrying away 27,290 inhabitants of the city "as plunder." According to 2 Kin. 17:6, they were sent to Assyria, to Halah, to Gozan on the Habor River, and apparently to the eastern frontiers of the empire (to the towns of the Medes, most probably somewhere in the vicinity of Ecbatana, the modern Hamadan).

The sequel is provided by the inscriptions of Sargon: "The Arabs who live far away in the desert, who know neither overseers nor officials, and who had not yet brought their tribute to any king, I deported ... and settled them in Samaria." Much mythology has developed around the theme of the so-called ten lost tribes of Israel. A close examination of Assyrian records reveals that the deportations approximated only a limited percentage of the population, usually consisting of noble families. Agricultural workers, no doubt the majority, were deliberately left to care for the crops (cf. the Babylonian practice, 2 Kin. 24:14; 25:12).

of their dwelling there, that they did not fear the LORD; therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them. ²⁶So they spoke to the king of Assyria, saying, “The nations whom you have removed and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the rituals of the God of the land; therefore He has sent lions among them, and indeed, they are killing them because they do not know the rituals of the God of the land.” ²⁷Then the king of Assyria commanded, saying, “Send there one of the priests whom you brought from there; let him go and dwell there, and let him teach them the rituals of the God of the land.” ²⁸Then one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should fear the LORD.

²⁹However every nation continued to make gods of its own, and put them ^vin the shrines on the high places which the Samaritans had made, every nation in the cities where they dwelt. ³⁰The men of ^sBabylon made Succoth Benoth, the men of Cuth made Nergal, the men of Hamath made Ashima, ³¹^vand the Avites made Nibhaz and Tartak; and the Sepharvites ^uburned their children in fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim. ³²So they feared the LORD, ^vand from every class they appointed for themselves priests of the ³high places, who sacrificed for them in the shrines of the high places. ³³^vThey feared the LORD, yet served their own gods—according to the rituals of the nations from among whom they were carried away.

³⁴To this day they continue practicing the former rituals; they do not fear the LORD, nor do they follow their statutes or their ordinances, or the law and commandment which the LORD had commanded the children of Jacob, ^xwhom He

Hezekiah Reigns in Judah

18 Now it came to pass in the third year of ^aHoshea the son of Elah, king of Israel, that ^bHezekiah the son of Ahaz, king of Judah, began to reign. ²He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was ^cAbi ¹the daughter of Zechariah. ³And he did what was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father David had done.

⁴^dHe removed the ²high places and broke the sacred pillars, cut down the ³wooden image and broke in pieces the ^ebronze serpent that Moses had made; for until those days the children of Israel burned incense to it, and called it ⁴Nehushtan. ⁵He ^ftrusted in the LORD God of Israel, ^gso that after him was tinctions and weaken the loyalties that the people had. It would also help create a sense of empire. The list of cities recorded here may indicate the order for a caravan of relocated people. Samaria was the whole region where the repopulation took place; the inhabitants would eventually be called Samaritans.

17:28 one of the priests: Although a deported Israelite priest was sent back to instruct the Samaritan population in the worship of the LORD, the end result was a mixture of various forms of paganism with the apostate religion of the northern kingdom (vv. 30–33, 40, 41). In the course of time, both the Samaritans and their religion were rejected by the Jews (see John 4:9; 8:48).

17:34–39 A double charge is laid against the Samaritans: They did not worship the LORD, and they did not keep the laws and ordinances laid down by the LORD of the covenant. The author reminds all concerned that only the LORD is Israel’s Redeemer.

18:1, 2 The third year of Hoshea is 729 B.C. The 29 years of Hezekiah’s reign thus include a period of coregency with his father Ahaz before he ruled independently (715–699 B.C.). The name Hezekiah means “The LORD Has Strengthened.”

18:3 The assessment of Hezekiah begins similar to that of his predecessors, but it goes on to transcend the evaluations of “relative righteousness” that are typical of the other kings of Judah (see 15:34, 35).

18:4 Consistently, the kings who preceded Hezekiah are criticized by the author for not destroying the high places (15:34, 35). While there were traditions of worship of the true God at these locations, far too often they became sites for the licentious worship of Baal and Asherah. Hezekiah’s reforms included not only the destruction of the pagan cult objects introduced in the days of his apostate father Ahaz, but the bronze serpent that had been preserved since the days of Moses (2 Chr. 29–31). Symbols all too easily can be made into objects of veneration. Apparently such had become the case with this precious ancient object.

18:5, 6 none like him: Hezekiah’s faith was unparalleled by any other king who had preceded him after the time of David; Josiah’s adherence to the law would be extolled in a similar manner (23:25). The fact of Hezekiah’s faith forms the basis for the account that fol-

The Danger of Relics

Jesus said, “God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth” (John 4:24). That means that we worship and serve a God whom we cannot see with our eyes but must believe with our hearts. As a result, God is a bit of an abstraction for some people. One way that they have tried to make Him more real and present is through artifacts that they have associated with Him.

Yet as understandable as the veneration of relics may be, it is a dangerous practice. It can easily tempt people to worship the object rather than the God whom the object is supposed to point to. In essence, the relic becomes a focus of idolatry.

That happened with a number of items that the Israelites venerated, including the bronze serpent that Moses had made during the Exodus journey (2 Kin. 18:4). Originally, the serpent on the pole had served as a means of healing by causing those bit by a snake to look to the Lord for help. But after the people settled in the Promised Land, they apparently turned this standard into an idol, as if the bronze serpent itself had power to heal. They burned incense to it and even gave it a name, Nehushtan.

Similarly, the Israelites turned a ceremonial robe, or ephod, that Gideon made from the spoils of his victory over the Midianites, into an idol (Judg. 8:25–27). Later they tried to use the ark of the covenant as a charm against the Philistines, with disastrous results (1 Sam. 4:1–11).

These examples show the dangers of making too much of objects and places that have had a close association with the work of God. As human beings, we live in the natural world, but we worship a supernatural God. Therefore, we need to treat shrines and relics merely as means toward that end, never as ends in themselves.

And he ^krebelled against the king of Assyria and did not serve him. ⁸¹He ⁵subdued the Philistines, as far as Gaza and its territory, ^mfrom watchtower to fortified city.

⁹Now ⁿit came to pass in the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea the son of Elah, king of Israel, that Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria and besieged it. ¹⁰And at the end of three years they took it. ¹³And ^sin the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. ¹⁴Then Hezekiah king of Judah sent to the king of Assyria at Lachish, saying, “I have done wrong; turn away from me; whatever you impose on me I will pay.” And the king of Assyria assessed Hezekiah king of Judah three hundred talents of silver and thirty lows. Because Hezekiah trusted the Lord, he could courageously withstand Assyrian tyranny. The northern kingdom fell to King Shalmaneser V in 722 B.C. because it did not keep God’s holy standards (vv. 9–12), but Hezekiah’s trust and faithfulness would let him face the later invasion of King Sennacherib (701 B.C.) and receive divine help (19:32–36).

18:7, 8 In addition to refusing to serve any longer as a vassal of Assyria, Hezekiah also conquered the Philistines. This helped establish Judah as an independent nation and new power in the region. No longer was Judah under the threat of military incursions from neighboring states simply because of its weakness.

18:13 Hezekiah’s fourteenth year of sole rule was 701 B.C. The details of the generally rebellious situation that provoked Sennacherib to invade the western portion of his empire are recounted in his annals, where Hezekiah is particularly mentioned for his involvement in the whole affair.

18:14 I have done wrong: Literally, “I have sinned.” Hezekiah had refused to be a vassal of Assyria and was now threatened by their army. The annals of Sennacherib report how he made a wide-ranging invasion of Judah. With the Assyrian army already at Lachish, Hezekiah felt an overwhelming sense of doom. One of Sennacherib’s inscriptions describes the siege of Lachish and reports the heavy tribute demanded from Hezekiah. His fulfillment of Sennach-erib’s demands (vv. 14–16) doubtless whetted the conqueror’s appetite for additional booty. Therefore Sennacherib placed Jerusalem

The meaning of this verb is “to miss (a target)” or “to fall short (of a goal).” The word expresses this basic meaning in Judg. 20:16, where it is translated miss: “every one could sling a stone at a hair’s breadth and not miss.” When applied to ethics, the word implies falling short of a moral requirement. The word is the most common OT expression for sin. Several nouns are derived from the verb, including chet “sin” or “guilt” (Is. 53:12), chatta' “sinful men” (Num. 32:14), and chatta't “sin offering” (Lev. 4:3). In the NT, Paul also defined sin as “falling short”: “for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God” (Rom. 3:23). But then Paul offered the perfect remedy for our fallen condition: salvation through Jesus Christ (Rom. 3:24).

18:15, 16 This removal from the temple of immense amounts of silver, gold, and precious objects followed an earlier despoiling in the days of Amaziah (see 14:14).
18:17 Tartan . . . Rabsaris . . . Rabshakeh: These titles suggest persons of high station in Assyria. a great army: The accounts of the Assyrian kings suggest that they had mounted the largest armies known in the ancient Middle East. This huge army was stationed in the land of Judah. Fuller's Field was in the northwest corner of the city, the area most vulnerable to attack.
18:18 Eliakim was the senior palace administrator (see 15:5), and Shebna was the royal scribe. This verse indicates that Eliakim had already replaced Shebna in the office of senior palace administrator, as mentioned in Is. 22:15–25.
18:19 In the literature of the ancient Middle East, the term great king was reserved for a king of a major power. Here the Assyrian delegation delivered an ultimatum from the "great king" of Assyria to Jerusalem.
18:20 The Rabshakeh questioned the object of Hezekiah's trust. Perhaps Hezekiah's reputation for trusting in God was already widely known (v. 5). Trusting became the focal point of the Assyrian's psychological warfare (vv. 19–22, 24, 30).
18:21 Because Egypt depended upon the life-giving Nile with its reeds, the figure of a broken reed is most appropriate. Actually Sennacherib's warning against confidence in Egypt was well taken, the point having been made previously by Isaiah (Is. 30:3–5; 31:1–3).

18:23 if you are able: The Assyrian official's taunt is that the Israelites do not have enough men and that the men they have are not trained for the coming conflict.
18:25 The LORD said: The Assyrians may have been aware of prophecies concerning the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem and Assyria's own role as God's avengers (Is. 10:5–11). The remark was intended to introduce stark terror into the hearts of the people of Jerusalem (see 2 Chr. 32:18) by pointing out that now even their God was against them.
18:26 Since Aramaic was by this time the language of international communication, it might be expected that the Rabshakeh would carry on diplomatic negotiations with officials in Judah and avoid speaking the Hebrew of the common citizens. But the Assyrians loved speaking to people in their native dialect to make the intimidation more effective.
18:27 their own waste: The Rabshakeh portrayed the potential horror of the coming siege by using an obscene expression. The words were drawn from street language.
18:29–32 trust in the LORD: The matter of trust (vv. 19–24) continued as an issue. The Rabshakeh tempted the Israelites to abandon their trust in the Lord and trust in Sennacherib instead. Then the promised covenantal blessings (vv. 31, 32; see Deut. 8:8; Mic. 4:4; Zech. 3:10) could all be theirs. The repeated use of the words Do not listen to Hezekiah (vv. 22, 29, 30) was designed to lead the people to rebellion against their king. Moreover, he presented you away to a land like your own land, ^aa land of grain and new wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive groves and honey, that you may live and not die. But do not listen to Hezekiah, lest he persuade you, saying, “The LORD will deliver us.” ^{33f}Has any of the gods of the nations at all delivered its land from the hand of the king of Assyria? ³⁴Where are the gods of ^gHamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim and Hena and ^hIvah? Indeed, have they delivered Samaria from my hand? ³⁵Who among all the gods of the lands have delivered their countries from my hand, ⁱthat the LORD should deliver Jerusalem from my hand?”

³⁶But the people held their peace and answered him not a word; for the king’s commandment was, “Do not answer him.” ³⁷Then Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah ^jwith their clothes torn, and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

⁵So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah. ^{6f}And Isaiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to your master, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Do not be ^gafraid of the words which you have heard, with which the ^hservants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed Me. ⁷Surely I will send ⁱa spirit upon him, and he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.”’”

Sennacherib’s Threat and Hezekiah’s Prayer

⁸Then the Rabshakeh returned and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah, for he heard that he had departed ^jfrom Lachish. ⁹And ^kthe king heard concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, “Look, he has come out to make war with you.” So he again sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, ¹⁰“Thus you shall speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying: ‘Do not let your God ^lin whom you trust deceive you, saying, “Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.”’ ¹¹Look! his land as a wonderful place for them to live in.

18:33–35 The Rabshakeh’s assertion that none of the gods of the nations who had opposed Assyria had withstood the Assyrian king is both another aspect of the continued psychological warfare and another evidence of the Rabshakeh’s awareness of Isaiah’s prophetic words (see v. 25; Is. 10:7–11).

19:1 he tore his clothes: Tearing of clothes was often a sign of grief (6:30) or of sorrowful repentance (see Joel 2:12, 13). The humility of the king was evidenced in this action, one already performed by his trusted servants (see 18:37). In addition to humbling himself, the king went into the house of the LORD. That is, he sought guidance from the living God.

19:2 The ministry of the great prophet Isaiah had begun in the year that Uzziah or Azariah died (see Is. 6:1), nearly four decades earlier (740 B.C.). Once Isaiah had sought out Judah’s godless King Ahaz to minister to him (Is. 7:3); now the prophet was being sought by the godly Hezekiah. Isaiah participated in the events of Hezekiah’s reign, and the details of 18:13–20:19 are also recorded in Is. 36–39.

19:3 day of trouble: The Hebrew phrase translated here indicates not only the great danger of the present Assyrian crisis, but the distress that Hezekiah felt. Hezekiah realized that the Lord’s corrective chastisement had come upon Judah and Jerusalem. The closing proverb using the imagery of birth (see Hos. 13:13) stresses the need for God’s intervening strength if Jerusalem were to be delivered.

19:4 hear . . . reproach: The first verb does not suggest that God might not be aware of the words of the Rabshakeh. Rather, the words describe God as determining to redress the wrong.

19:6, 7 Isaiah’s prophecy was one of comfort. Not only would Sennacherib fail to conquer Jerusalem, but he would face a violent death upon his return home. Both points of the prophetic message would come true, although Sennacherib was not assassinated until 20 years later (c. 681 B.C.). In his annals Sennacherib boasts of five more campaigns; however, he makes no mention of any other invasions of Judah.

19:8 returned . . . departed: The Rabshakeh had been doing everything in his power to persuade Jerusalem to surrender without being attacked. But when he returned with his report, he found that his king was already distracted with another war and had already moved his army away. Still, the Rabshakeh did not give up, as v. 9 describes.

19:9 Since Tirhakah did not become king until 690 B.C., there is an apparent problem in the chronology of this verse. However, it is possible that the biblical author merely calls Tirhakah by the title he was best known by at the time of writing.

19:12 This is not the Eden of Genesis, but an area known today as Bit-Adini, south of Haran (see Ezek. 27:23; Amos 1:5).

of Hamath, the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Iyah?”

¹⁴ And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD. ¹⁵ Then Hezekiah prayed before the LORD, and said: “O LORD God of Israel, the One ^qwho dwells between the cherubim, ^rYou are God, You alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth. You have made heaven and earth. ¹⁶ Incline Your ear, O LORD, and hear; ^topen Your eyes, O LORD, and see; and hear the words of Sennacherib, ^uwhich he has sent to reproach the living God. ¹⁷ Truly, LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste the nations and their lands, ¹⁸ and have cast their gods into the fire; for they were ^vnot gods, but ^wthe work of men’s hands—wood and stone. Therefore they destroyed them. ¹⁹ Now therefore, O LORD our God, I pray, save us from his hand, ^xthat all the kingdoms of the earth may ^yknow that You are the LORD God, You alone.”

19:14 In a great act of faith, Hezekiah brought Sennacherib’s threatening letter before the LORD. Of course, Hezekiah understood that the Lord already knew the contents of the letter. But by this symbolic action, Hezekiah expressed his own utter dependence on God for deliverance.
19:15–19 Hezekiah prayed: Hezekiah knew that there is a greater King than the king of Assyria (18:19). Hezekiah’s trust in the Lord was demonstrated in his habit of prayer (see 20:2), and his prayer was answered favorably (vv. 20–34).
19:20 Isaiah gave him a direct answer from the Lord. This helps explain one of the ways in which the Lord spoke to the kings during the monarchy. Prophets could communicate the message from God to the king. Because you have prayed: The Lord rewarded His king with a promise of deliverance based in large part on his practical faith in God.
19:21 The virgin: Here we sense God’s approval of Jerusalem. When God speaks to His people concerning their sin, His speech can be direct, confrontational, and sometimes scathing. But when He speaks to others about His people and His city, He uses favorable language. They are, on the ideal level, like a virgin daughter to Him.

the daughter of Zion: As elsewhere in the OT (see Zeph. 3:14), this phrase should be written “daughter Zion,” without the “of.” Zion does not have a daughter; rather, Zion is the daughter. Zion (Jerusalem) is God’s daughter whom He will guard and protect as only a father would.
19:22–24 God’s answer to Hezekiah’s prayer came once again (see vv. 6, 7) through Isaiah (vv. 20, 21). Holy One of Israel is characteristic of Isaiah’s own manner of referring to God. He uses the phrase 26 times (see Is. 6:3). Sennacherib needed to know that his boastful pride blasphemed the sovereign and holy God of all nations. The verses that follow indicate that God knew not only the boasts, but the most inward thoughts of the Assyrian king.
19:25, 26 Did you not hear: Here the Lord answered the sarcasm of the Rabshakeh (18:17–25). In the manner of an ancient insult, God both asserted His own work on behalf of Judah and ridiculed the enemy who seemed completely unaware of reality.
19:27, 28 But I know: The Assyrians had a great gap in their understanding of reality; they did not include the living God in their processes. But they, in turn, were fully known. Hook and bridle are used to restrain animals (see Ps. 32:9; Ezek. 19:4). Because the Assyrian kings often treated their prisoners of war in such fashion,

28 Because your rage against Me and your tumult
Have come up to My ears, Therefore ¹I will put My hook in your nose
And My bridle in your lips,
And I will turn you back
^mBy the way which you came.

29 “This shall be a ⁿsign to you:

You shall eat this year such as grows
²of itself,
And in the second year what springs from the same;
Also in the third year sow and reap,
Plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them.

30 ^o And the remnant who have escaped of the house of Judah
Shall again take root downward,
And bear fruit upward.

31 For out of Jerusalem shall go a

And those who escape from Mount

32 “Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria:

Nor shoot an arrow there,
Nor come before it with shield,
Nor build a siege mound against it.

33 By the way that he came,
By the same shall he return;

Says the LORD.

Sennacherib's Defeat and Death

35 And ^uit came to pass on a certain night that the ⁴angel of the LORD went out, and killed in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when people arose early in the morning, there were the corpses—all dead. 36 So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went away, returned home, and remained at ^vNineveh. 37 Now it came to pass, as he was worshiping in the temple of Nisroch his god, that his sons ^wAdrammelech and Sharezer ^xstruck him down with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Ararat. Then ^yEsarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

Hezekiah's Life Extended

20 In ^athose days Hezekiah was sick and near death. And Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, went to him and said to him, “Thus says the LORD:
‘Set your house in order, for you shall die,
and not live.’”

2 Then he turned his face toward the wall, and prayed to the LORD, saying,
3 ^b“Remember now, O LORD, I pray, how I have walked before You in truth and with a loyal heart, and have done what was good in Your sight.” And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

4 And it happened, before Isaiah had gone out into the middle court, that the word of the LORD came to him, saying,
5 “Return and tell Hezekiah ^cthe leader of My people, ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of David your father: ^d“I have heard your prayer, I have seen ^eyour tears; surely I will heal you. On the third day you shall go up to the house of the LORD. 6 And I will add to your days fifteen years. I will deliver you and this city from the hand

Sennacherib would understand the threat only too well.

19:29 God graciously gave Hezekiah a sign (see also 20:9–11) of His good intentions for His people. Despite the fact that the Assyrian invasion had adversely affected the crops for that year and the next, by the third year the fields would again yield a plentiful harvest. Even as a natural growth would remain for the two years preceding the harvest of the third year, so God left in Israel a spiritual remnant that would in a future day swell into a mighty harvest of souls (see Joel 2:12–14; Mic. 2:12, 13; Zeph. 3:8–20).

19:30, 31 The promises in these verses were both for the immediate situation, for more remote times of regathering, and ultimately the final regathering of the Jewish people into their land in the time of the coming Messiah. zeal: The authenticating sign for the accomplishment of this promise is the solemn oath of God Himself (see Is. 9:7).

19:32 not come into this city: While Sennacherib later boasted of taking some 46 Judean cities, with reference to Jerusalem he could only report that he made Hezekiah “prisoner in Jerusalem, his royal residence, like a bird in a cage.” God’s defense and deliverance of Jerusalem demonstrated his faithfulness to the Davidic covenant (v. 34) in the face of blasphemous insults (vv. 22, 23, 27, 28; see 18:34, 35).

19:34 I . . . My own sake: As in the case of the redemption of Israel from Egypt at the time of the Exodus, so in the deliverance of Israel from the present trouble, God Himself would do it. He would not delegate the work of salvation to a lesser power.

19:36 departed: As God had promised through His prophet Isaiah (vv. 32–34), Sennacherib did not come against the city of Jerusalem.

19:37 The name Nisroch has been identified as the god Nusku or a corrupted form of Marduk, the traditional god of Mesopotamia. The events depicted here took place 20 years after God’s deliverance of Jerusalem. When his father was assassinated, Esarhaddon took the throne and ruled from 681 to 668 B.C.

20:2, 3 Contrast the action of the sick Hezekiah with that of Ahaziah in 1:1, 2. Hezekiah was a great man of prayer (see also 19:1, 14, 15). I have walked before You: Hezekiah’s prayer recognized that although all of life is in God’s hands, God is also a Rewarder of those who faithfully serve Him (see Deut. 5:30–33; 30:15, 16). Hezekiah’s habit of prayer would once again serve him well (see vv. 5, 6; 19:14–19).

20:4–6 The pattern of divine revelation to Hezekiah was through His prophet Isaiah (see 19:20); compare also the word of God through Jonah to King Jeroboam II (see 14:25). defend this city: The Lord promised deliverance for Jerusalem.

Gihon

Gihon was a spring outside the walls of Jerusalem where the city obtained part of its water supply (2 Chr. 32:30). The Canaanite inhabitants of ancient Jerusalem, or Jebus, had used and protected the spring in their fortifications. When David and his soldiers conquered Jebus, they entered it through the water shaft that led from the spring into the city (2 Sam. 5:8). Inhabitants of Jerusalem continued to use Gihon and its water channel. King Hezekiah channeled the water more elaborately when he constructed the famous Siloam tunnel in 701 B.C. as part of the city's preparation against the siege of the Assyrians (2 Kin. 20:20).

Gihon was the site where Solomon was anointed and proclaimed king (1 Kin. 1:33, 38, 45). Some scholars believe it later became customary for the new king to drink from the waters of Gihon during his coronation ceremony (Ps. 110:7).

of the king of Assyria; and ^fI will defend this city for My own sake, and for the sake of My servant David.”⁷ ⁷Then ^gIsaiah said, “Take a lump of figs.” So they took and laid it on the boil, and he recovered.

⁸And Hezekiah said to Isaiah, ^h“What is the sign that the LORD will heal me, and that I shall go up to the house of the LORD the third day?”

⁹Then Isaiah said, ⁱ“This is the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing which He has spoken: shall the shadow go forward ten degrees or go backward ten degrees?”

¹⁰And Hezekiah answered, “It is an easy thing for the shadow to go down ten ¹degrees; no, but let the shadow go backward ten degrees.”

¹¹So Isaiah the prophet cried out to the LORD, and ^jHe brought the shadow ten ²degrees backward, by which it had gone down on the sundial of Ahaz.

letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that Hezekiah had been sick. ¹³And ^lHezekiah was attentive to them, and showed them all the house of his treasures—the silver and gold, the spices and precious ointment, and ⁴all ⁵his armor—all that was found among his treasures. There was nothing in his house or in all his dominion that Hezekiah did not show them.

¹⁴Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?”

So Hezekiah said, “They came from a far country, from Babylon.”

¹⁵And he said, “What have they seen in your house?”

So Hezekiah answered, ^m“They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shown them.”

¹⁶Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD: ¹⁷Behold, the days are coming when all that is in your house, and what your fathers have accumulated until this day, ⁿshall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left,” says the LORD. ¹⁸‘And 20:7 The practice of applying figs to an ulcerated sore is well attested in the records of the ancient Middle East, being mentioned as early as the Ras Shamra (Ugaritic) tablets of the second millennium B.C.

20:9 Once more the Lord provided a sign of His superintending intervention (see 19:29–31). Unlike his father Ahaz who cared little about a divine sign (see Is. 7:12), Hezekiah welcomed it (see vv. 10, 11). Hezekiah’s underlying trust in the Lord (see 18:5) surfaced repeatedly throughout his reign.

20:12 Berodach-Baladan, or more properly Merodach-Baladan, was a Chaldean king who twice ruled in Babylon (721–710, 703 B.C.). A perennial enemy of Assyria, he was twice defeated by them and cast out from Babylon. His search for allies in his resistance to Assyria may have occasioned the embassy to Hezekiah, especially because he had heard of Hezekiah’s miraculous deliverance from the Assyrian army (2 Chr. 32:31).

20:12–15 One of the remarkable features of the Bible is that it does not gloss over the faults of its best heroes and heroines. This is a case in point. This account of the foolishness of Hezekiah follows immediately on the narrative of his great trust in the Lord (vv. 1–11).

20:16–18 Isaiah’s messages of judgment were as important as his messages of mercy (see ch. 19; 20:1–11). all . . . shall be carried to Babylon: Hezekiah’s enthusiastic reception of Merodach-Baladan’s ambassadors and disclosure of his wealth to them would be remembered in a future time when Babylon was no longer Judah’s friend. Even before the fall of Jerusalem to Babylon (586 B.C.), Hezekiah’s son Manasseh was carried off to Babylon by an Assyrian king (see 2 Chr. 33:11). Isaiah pointed out Hezekiah’s foolishness.

^othey shall take away some of your sons who will ⁶descend from you, whom you will beget; ^pand they shall be ^qeunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.”

¹⁹So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, ^r“The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good!” For he said, “Will there not be peace and truth at least in my days?”

Death of Hezekiah

^{20s}Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah—all his might, and how he ^tmade a ^upool and a ^vtunnel and ^wbrought water into the city—are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ²¹So ^wHezekiah ⁸rested with his fathers. Then Manasseh his son reigned in his place.

through the fire, practiced ^jsoothsaying, used witchcraft, and consulted spiritists and mediums. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke Him to anger. ⁷He even set a carved image of ⁴Asherah that he had made, in the ⁵house of which the LORD had said to David and to Solomon his son, ^k“In this house and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put My name forever; ^{8l}and I will not make the feet of Israel wander anymore from the land which I gave their fathers—only if they are careful to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that My servant Moses commanded them.” ⁹But they paid no attention, and Manasseh ^mseduced them to do more evil than the nations whom the LORD had destroyed before the children of Israel.

20:19 The word . . . is good: Although Hezekiah recognized that Isaiah’s dire prophecy was for a future day, he humbly acknowledged his folly in putting his people in danger.

20:20, 21 a pool and a tunnel: Hezekiah dug a tunnel between the spring of Gihon and the Pool of Siloam to bring a ready supply of water within the eastern wall of Jerusalem, a deed that would prove especially helpful in time of siege.

21:1 Manasseh: This wicked king bore the same name as the older son of Joseph (Gen. 41:51). His reign of fifty-five years (697–642 B.C.) was the longest of any of the kings of the divided kingdom. Externally, the period was one of political stability. It is known as the Assyrian Peace, an era in which the kings Esarhaddon (681–668 B.C.) and Ashurbanipal (668–626 B.C.) reigned and brought the Assyrian Empire to its zenith. However, the length of Manasseh’s reign does not indicate a good rule, but rather God’s persevering mercy and faithfulness to the Davidic covenant (see 2 Chr. 33:10–13).

21:3 high places . . . Baal . . . wooden image: All that Hezekiah had done removing the wickedness of Canaanite religion from Israel was reversed by his son. The wording suggests not simply that he allowed the rebuilding of these obscene images, but that he actively directed their construction. host of heaven: Worship of heavenly bodies was strictly forbidden in the law of God (Deut. 4:19; 17:2–7) and was condemned strongly by Israel’s prophets (see Is. 47:13; Amos 5:26). Yet Manasseh paid no attention to either the law or the prophets (vv. 7, 8; 2 Chr. 33:2–10).

21:4–9 The list of religious outrages of Manasseh seems unbelievably perverse. He even brought objects of pagan worship and obscene symbols of the fertility religion of Canaan into the temple itself (see vv. 4, 5, 7). All that had been accomplished by the relatively godly kings following the purge of Jehu (see 15:34) and by the very godly king Hezekiah (see 18:4–6) was undone by this reprobate. But wicked as Manasseh was, God heard his prayer when he repented and did good (see 2 Chr. 33:12–16).

21:10 The author of Chronicles (2 Chr. 33:10, 11) reports that Manasseh’s failure to heed the prophets of God led to his being taken prisoner by the Assyrian king. The chronicler also reports Manasseh’s repentance, restoration, and subsequent reform efforts (2 Chr. 33:12, 13, 15, 16), all of which came too late to stop Judah’s ongoing apostasy. As a result, with the accession of Manasseh’s son Amon (642–640 B.C.), Judah’s spiritual wickedness surfaced again (vv. 20–22).

21:12 his ears will tingle: The announcement of such a fearsome judgment was designed to bring the king to repentance. If God’s purpose were merely to bring judgment, He would have done so without an announcement.

21:13 the measuring line of Samaria: The figures in this verse are marvelously powerful. If the people had any realization of the horrors that had befallen their sister city to the north, they would not want to be “measured” by the same implements that had designed Samaria’s destruction. as one wipes a dish: God would soon bring a judgment so terrible that it would never be forgotten.

21:14 God’s declaration that He would forsake the remnant does of My inheritance and deliver them into the hand of their enemies; and they shall become victims of plunder to all their enemies, ¹⁵because they have done evil in My sight, and have provoked Me to anger since the day their fathers came out of Egypt, even to this day.”

¹⁶*w* Moreover Manasseh shed very much innocent blood, till he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another, besides his sin by which he made Judah sin, in doing evil in the sight of the LORD.

¹⁷Now ^xthe rest of the acts of *y*Manasseh—all that he did, and the sin that he committed—are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? ¹⁸So ^zManasseh ⁶rested with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Uzza. Then his son Amon reigned in his place.

Hilkiah Finds the Book of the Law

³*d* Now it came to pass, in the eighteenth year of King Josiah, that the king sent Shaphan the scribe, the son of Azaliah, the son of Meshullam, to the house of the LORD, saying: ⁴“Go up to Hilkiah the high priest, that he may count the money which has been ^ebrought into the house of the LORD, which ^fthe doorkeepers have gathered from the people. ⁵And let them ^gdeliver it into the hand of those doing the work, who are the overseers in the house of the LORD; let them give it to those who are in the house of the LORD doing the work, to repair the not mean He would abolish the Davidic covenant (see Ps. 89:30–37). Rather, the meaning of God's word here is that Judah, the political remnant of God's kingdom (17:18), would also know chastisement for its sin.

21:15 since the day: The story of the OT is not a record of God's anger, but of the delay of the exercise of His wrath.

21:16 innocent blood: In times of deep wickedness true believers often lose their lives (see Joel 3:19). Innocent blood may also refer to human sacrifice (v. 6; 2 Chr. 33:6).

21:18 garden of Uzza: His burial place apparently was not among the other kings of Judah. Some have suggested that the garden of Uzza was a sacred shrine to an astral deity.

21:19–22 Amon: This wicked king followed in the path of his father Manasseh, much as Ahaziah of Israel followed in the path of his father Ahab (see 1 Kin. 22:51–53).

21:23, 24 conspired against him: No reason is assigned for the conspiracy that brought about Amon's assassination. While it may have had some connection with the international crisis that precipitated Ashurbanipal's renewed attention to the west, Amon's own wickedness may have provided a sufficient cause. The assassins were themselves executed.

22:1 The name Josiah means “The Lord Supports.” Like the name of Cyrus (Is. 44:28; 45:1) and of the city of Bethlehem (Mic. 5:2), the name Josiah was announced by a prophet long before the time of his birth (see 1 Kin. 13:1, 2).

22:2 what was right: The young Josiah apparently was in the hands of godly advisors, one of whom may have been the prophet Zephaniah. In any case, his own concern for righteousness led to reform early in his reign (see 2 Chr. 34:3–7).

22:3 In his eighteenth year of reign (c. 622 B.C.), Josiah began extensive repairs on the temple (vv. 4–7; 2 Chr. 34:8–13).

22:4 Hilkiah the high priest: This man was a major figure in the revival of true religion that young Josiah accomplished. The work of restoring the temple was under his direction.

22:5–7 The careful accounting for the money used in the restoration of the temple is akin to that in the time of King Joash of Judah and of garden

(Heb. gan) (21:18, 26; Gen. 2:8–10; Song 4:15, 16; Jer. 31:12) Strong's #1588

Gardens that belonged to kings (25:4; Neh. 3:15) were actually royal parks. Occasionally, parts of royal gardens might be used for purposes such as vegetable gardens (1 Kin. 21:2) or even burial grounds (21:18, 26). When ordinary people owned gardens, their main function was to produce food (Num. 24:6; Jer. 29:5). Gardens are spoken of symbolically in the Bible as portraits of happiness and fruitfulness. For example, the lovers in the Song of Solomon compared one another to a garden of delights (Song 4:12; 5:1; 8:13). The Garden of Eden represented God's ideal environment for man. Some of this garden's features, especially its rivers and the Tree of Life, are also used to portray God's final blessings for His people (Ezek. 47:12; Rev. 22:1, 2, 14).

damages of the house—⁶to carpenters and builders and masons—and to buy timber and hewn stone to repair the house. ⁷However ^hthere need be no accounting made with them of the money delivered into their hand, because they deal faithfully.”

⁸Then Hilkiah the high priest said to Shaphan the scribe, ⁱ“I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the LORD.” And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it. ⁹So Shaphan the scribe went to the king, bringing the king word, saying, “Your servants have ¹gathered the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of those who do the work, who oversee the house of the LORD.” ¹⁰Then Shaphan the scribe showed the king, saying, “Hilkiah the priest has given me a book.” And Shaphan read it before the king.

¹¹Now it happened, when the king heard the words of the Book of the Law, ¹⁴So Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of ^lTikvah, the son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe. (She dwelt in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter.) And they spoke with her. ¹⁵Then she said to them, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel, “Tell the man who sent you to Me, ¹⁶“Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, ^mI will bring calamity the high priest associated with him, Jehoiada (12:9–16).

22:8, 9 By the Book of the Law may be meant either parts or all of the Pentateuch. This book, though placed by the side of the ark of the covenant (Deut. 31:26), may have been lost, set aside, or hidden during the wicked reigns of Manasseh and Amon.

22:10–13 read it before the king: This is the dramatic event that shaped Josiah’s reign. Imagine what it must have been for the young king to hear the Word of God read for the first time. tore his clothes: Once again (see 19:1) a godly king tore his clothes in genuine remorse. Josiah’s great qualities are seen in his desiring prophetic sanction for his new walk. He did not wish to move on with his own plan without a clear confirmation from the Lord.

22:14 Although Huldah the prophetess is mentioned only here (and in 2 Chr. 34:22–28) in the Scriptures, some have suggested that her husband Shallum was related to Jeremiah (see Jer. 32:7–12).

22:15 Huldah takes her place beside several prophetesses recorded in the Scriptures, such as Miriam (Ex. 15:20) and Deborah (Judg. 4:4). This woman was an authoritative agent for the transmission of the word of God to the highest authorities in the land of Judah. She served at the same time as other godly prophets, such as Jeremiah and Zephaniah.

22:16 all the words: The threat of calamity for apostasy that the Female Prophets

Huldah played a significant part in the history of Israel, although she appeared only once on the stage of the nation’s history, during a time of religious defection.

In Jerusalem, King Josiah of Judah initiated renewed interest in the Book of the Law, and Huldah participated in the subsequent spiritual revival. She was the wife of Shallum, who was “keeper of the wardrobe” (possibly either royal robes and attire or priestly garments and vestments). They lived in the Second Quarter, a newer section of Jerusalem which developed as a westward or northern expansion of the old city (perhaps somewhat like a modern-day suburb).

Huldah, not Jeremiah or Zephaniah (both of whom were active as prophets during this time), was consulted when the king instructed the priests to “inquire of the LORD” as to the meaning of the Book of the Law, a scroll that had been found during the work of restoration and cleaning in the temple. It was significant that with the number of prophets living in Jerusalem at that time, the priest Hilkiah and the rest of the king’s advisors turned to a woman for a word from God. This nullifies the reasoning some use to suggest that God only uses women for ministry when no men are available. Obviously, whether in a private audience or in the presence of the congregation, God used Huldah to bear testimony and deliver a message from Him to the high priest and to the king (22:14–20).

The tradition of female prophets is mentioned only sporadically in the Old Testament, but Huldah is not the only one highlighted. She is in good company with Miriam and Deborah (Ex. 15:20; Judg. 4:4); however, another female, Noadiah (Neh. 6:14), was a false prophet who worked against the people of God.

The regard for Huldah’s own integrity and authority as a woman of God made her validation of the recently discovered Book of the Law all that was required for immediate action on the part of the king. Her message was not her own, but from the Lord. The fact that the phrase, “Thus says the LORD,” is repeated four times in her short prophecy emphasizes that Huldah understood her responsibility and opportunity to be a channel through whom God delivered His word (22:15–17, 19).

All of the reforms set forth by King Josiah were based on the word of God as given to a woman. Huldah was apparently so well known as a woman of God and so highly trusted with regard to her understanding of God’s Law that for a time her nation’s whole religious consciousness and practice were re-ignited in faithfulness to God. Huldah, a deeply devout woman, made her God-given spiritual gifts available to God, and she was obedient and faithful to deliver the Word from God to her people.

on this place and on its inhabitants—all the words of the book which the king of Judah has read—¹⁷“because they have forsaken Me and burned incense to other gods, that they might provoke Me to anger with all the works of their hands. Therefore My wrath shall be aroused against this place and shall not be quenched.”¹⁸ But as for^o the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, in this manner you shall speak to him, ‘Thus says the LORD God of Israel: “Concerning the words which you have heard—¹⁹because your^p heart was tender, and you^q humbled yourself before the LORD when you heard what I spoke against this place and against its inhabitants, that they would become^r a desolation and^s a curse, and you tore your clothes and wept before Me, I also have heard^{you},” says the LORD.²⁰ “Surely, therefore, I will³ gather you to your fathers, and you^t shall⁴ be gathered to your grave in peace; and your eyes shall not see all the calamity which I will bring on this place.”’” So they brought back word to the king.

king heard may have been intended to reinforce the message of the parts of the Book of the Law that were found when the temple was being repaired and were read to the king (Deut. 28:15–68).

22:17–19 First was the bad news, addressed principally to the wicked who had forsaken God. Second was the good news, that Josiah would be delivered from impending judgment, basically due to his piety in a very difficult time.

22:20 in peace: Huldah's good word for Josiah personally was that he would not see the calamity that God was going to bring upon the people. Josiah's subsequent death in battle (23:29, 30) was not at issue in Huldah's prophecy. Like his godly grandfather Hezekiah, the righteous Josiah would not live to see God's future judgment of Judah (see 20:19).

23:1 all the elders: We may contrast Jehu's great gathering of the priests and prophets of Baal, in anticipation of his great "sacrifice" (see 10:18–31).

23:2 he read . . . the Book of the Covenant: Like Moses (Ex. 24:3–8) and Joshua (Josh. 8:34, 35) before him, Josiah followed the ancient standard for godly leadership (Deut. 17:18–20; 31:9–13) and assembled the people to renew the covenant (see also Josh. 24). The king's own spiritual reaction and the reforms that he enacted (see 2 Chr. 35:1–19) suggest that the texts dealing with covenant obligations and sanctions (Lev. 26; Deut. 28) were a part of the public reading.

23:4 Articles of pagan worship had been taken to the fields of Kidron in the reforms of Asa (1 Kin. 15:13) and Hezekiah (2 Chr. 29:16; 30:14). to Bethel: Carrying the remaining ashes of burned religious articles to Bethel was a bold condemnation of both the pagan religious rites and the place associated with them (see 1 Kin. 12:28–30; Amos 4:4, 5). Thus Josiah's reforms spilled over into the northern kingdom as well.

23:5 idolatrous priests: The term used here is also used by Zephaniah, who employs it of those priests who led the rites associated with Baal and with star worship of various kinds (Zeph. 1:4). These priests had been appointed by Judah's past kings but functioned outside the divinely established priesthood. Hosea had condemned the idolatrous priests who officiated in the calf worship at Bethel (Hos. 10:5).

23:6 Although destroyed by Hezekiah (18:4), wooden images associated with the worship of Asherah had been reintroduced by

(Heb. asherah) (17:10; 21:7; 23:6) Strong's #842

This word is both the name of a Canaanite fertility goddess (Asherah) and the designation of a wooden object representing her. In the OT, the word is rarely used as a proper name (21:7; 23:4; 1 Kin. 15:13; 18:19); far more often it is used for a carved image (21:7; 1 Kin. 14:15). Asherahs were placed on hills. Frequently altars and other images were next to these wooden images (1 Kin. 14:23; 2 Chr. 31:1; 33:19). The Lord warned His people before they entered the Promised Land that this false religion would snare them if they did not banish it from the land (Ex. 34:12–16; Deut. 7:2–6; 12:3; 16:21). Nevertheless, the problem persisted during much of the periods of the judges and kings (Judg. 3:7; 1 Kin. 16:33), although occasional reforms did seek to eliminate these images (18:4; Judg. 6:25–30). The prophets consistently sounded a clarion call to abandon such false worship, for God's judgment was coming (Is. 17:8; 27:9; Jer. 17:2; Mic. 5:14).

Israel and the kings of Judah. ²³But in the eighteenth year of King Josiah this Passover was held before the LORD in Jerusalem. ²⁴Moreover Josiah put away those who consulted mediums and spiritists, the household gods and idols, all the abominations that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, that he might perform the words of ^kthe law which were written in the book ^lthat Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD. ^{25m}Now before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart, with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the Law of Moses; nor after him did any arise like him.

Impending Judgment on Judah

²⁶Nevertheless the LORD did not turn from the fierceness of His great wrath, with which His anger was aroused against Judah, ⁿbecause of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked Him. ²⁷And the LORD said, “I will also remove Judah from My sight, as ^oI have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I said, ^p“My name shall be there.”

The Reign and Captivity of Jehoahaz

^{31v}Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he became king, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was ^wHamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. ³²And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his fathers had done. ³³Now Pharaoh Necho put him in prison ^xat Riblah in the land of Hamath, that he might not reign in Jerusalem; and he imposed on the land a tribute of one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold. ³⁴Then ^yPharaoh Necho made Eliakim the son of Josiah king in place of his father Josiah, and ^zchanged his name to ^aJehoiakim. 23:25 no king: Josiah’s following of the Law was unparalleled among the kings of Israel and Judah. Like his grandfather Hezekiah, who was famed for being without equal in his trust of the Lord (18:5), Josiah was truly a righteous king. Because of their outstanding examples of godliness, the authors of Kings and Chronicles devote considerable space to their reigns (chs. 18–20; 22:1—23:30; 2 Chr. 29–32; 34; 35).

23:27 Despite their efforts, Judah’s sin was so entrenched that judgment was inevitable (17:18, 19; 23:26, 27; Lam. 1:5). Even though Manasseh repented, he still reaped the results of his sin.

23:29, 30 Pharaoh Necho (609–594 B.C.) was the recently crowned king of Egypt’s twenty-sixth dynasty. During the long years of Josiah’s reign (640–609 B.C.), Assyrian power had steadily crumbled until, as Nahum had predicted, Nineveh itself had fallen (612 B.C.) to a coalition of Chaldeans, Medes, and others. The surviving Assyrian forces had regrouped at Haran. Because Egypt was a long-standing ally of Assyria, Necho journeyed northward to help the beleaguered Assyrians. Josiah’s deployment of his forces in the Valley of Megiddo was an attempt to prevent the Egyptians from aiding the Assyrian forces at Haran. Although Pharaoh Necho would be delayed sufficiently so that Haran would be lost to the Assyrians, Josiah’s action ultimately cost him his life (2 Chr. 35:20–25).

23:31 Jehoahaz (called Shallum in Jer. 22:11) was Josiah’s third son (see 24:18; 1 Chr. 3:15). The name Jehoahaz means “The Lord Has Grasped.” This is the same name as the king of Israel, the son of Jehu (10:35). Johanan, Josiah’s first son, apparently had died and Eliakim (or Jehoiakim), the second son, was bypassed. A fourth son, Mattaniah (or Zedekiah), would eventually ascend to the throne and rule as Judah’s last king (598–586 B.C.). Jehoahaz’s reign of three months came to an end with the return of Pharaoh Necho from Haran. Jehoahaz was summoned to Riblah, Necho’s headquarters in Syria. Then he was led away to die in Egypt. His brother Eliakim was installed on the throne with his name changed to Jehoiakim. Judah thus became no more than a vassal of Egypt. The curse for Judah’s disobedience was about to fall (see Deut. 28:64–68).

23:37 did evil: Jehoiakim’s short reign (608–598 B.C.) was noted for its extreme wickedness (2 Chr. 36:5, 8). Jeremiah depicts him as a despicable monster who took advantage of his people (Jer. 22:13, 14, 17), filled the land with every sort of vice and violence (Jer. 18:18–20), and opposed all that was holy (Jer. 25:1–7). Unlike his father Josiah, who led the nation in reformation at the hearing of the Word of God (22:11; 23:1–25), Jehoiakim went so far as to cut up and burn a scroll of Scripture (Jer. 36:21–24) and to kill Urijah, a true prophet of God (Jer. 26:20–23).

Judah Overrun by Enemies

24 In ^ahis days Nebuchadnezzar king of ^bBabylon came up, and Jehoiakim became his vassal for three years. Then he turned and rebelled against him. ^{2c} And the LORD sent against him raiding ¹bands of Chaldeans, bands of Syrians, bands of Moabites, and bands of the people of Ammon; He sent them against Judah to destroy it, ^daccording to the word of the LORD which He had spoken by His servants the prophets. ³ Surely at the commandment of the LORD this came upon Judah, to remove them from His sight ^ebecause of the sins of Manasseh, according to all that he had done, ^{4f}and also because of the innocent blood that he had shed; for he had filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, which the LORD would not pardon.

⁷ And ^hthe king of Egypt did not come out of his land anymore, for ⁱthe king of Babylon had taken all that belonged to the king of Egypt from the Brook of Egypt to the River Euphrates.

The Reign and Captivity of Jehoiachin

^{8j} Jehoiachin² was eighteen years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months. His mother's name was Nehushta the daughter of El-nathan of Jerusalem. ⁹ And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father had done.

^{10k} At that time the servants of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up against Jerusalem, and the city ³ was besieged. ¹¹ And Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came against the city, as his servants were besieging it. ^{12l} Then Jehoiachin king of Judah, his mother, his servants, his princes, and his officers went out to the king of Babylon; and the king of Babylon, ^min the eighth year of his reign, took him prisoner.

The Captivity of Jerusalem

¹³ⁿ And he carried out from there all the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house, and he ^ocut in pieces all the articles of gold which Solomon king of Israel had made in the temple of the LORD, ^pas the LORD had said. ¹⁴ Also ^qhe carried into captivity all Jerusalem: all the captains and all the mighty men of valor, ^rten thousand captives, and ^sall the craftsmen and smiths. None remained except ^tthe poorest people of the land. ¹⁵ And ^uhe carried Jehoiachin captive to Babylon. The king's mother, the king's wives, his officers, and the mighty of the land he carried into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon. ^{16v} All the valiant men, seven thousand, and craftsmen and smiths, one thousand, all who were strong and fit for war, these the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon.

Zedekiah Reigns in Judah

¹⁷ Then ^wthe king of Babylon made Mattaniah, ^x*Jehoiachin's*⁴ uncle, king in his place, and ^ychanged his name to Zedekiah.

^{18z} Zedekiah was twenty-one years old

24:1 After defeating the Assyrians and Egyptians at the Battle of Carchemish (605 B.C.), Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah and made the country his vassal. He took Daniel and other notables to Babylon as spoils of war. Nebuchadnezzar, who succeeded his father as king of Babylon in 605 B.C. and reigned until 562 B.C., boasted in his annals of 605 and 604 B.C. of the subjugation and submission of all Syria and Palestine. Jehoiakim served Nebuchadnezzar three years and then rebelled, perhaps finding courage to do so when Pharaoh Necho succeeded in turning back the Babylonians at the Egyptian border in 601 B.C.

24:2 The name Chaldeans originally applied to certain inhabitants of southern Mesopotamia. But by the neo-Babylonian period, the term Chaldean had become identified with Babylonians, and Babylonia was called Chaldea. After the fall of the Chaldean or Neo-Babylonian Empire, the term Chaldean was used to mean "soothsayer" (see Dan. 2:2). In this verse the ethnic sense of the term is meant. Not only Chaldeans but raiding parties from nearby countries harassed Judah.

24:3 Because Jehoiakim and Judah had reproduced the sins of Manasseh (see 21:1-17), God's judgment was inevitable. Jehoiakim himself would die soon, even as Nebuchadnezzar was launching a second campaign into Judah (598 B.C.).

24:8 The name Jehoiachin means "The Lord Has Appointed." eigh- teen years old: Because the scriptural descriptions of Jehoiachin seem to represent him as a mature young man (Jer. 22:24-30; Ezek. 19:6), Jehoiachin's age at accession was probably 18 rather than eight, as given elsewhere in some manuscripts (compare 2 Chr. 36:9).

24:12 Jehoiachin apparently had died before Nebuchadnezzar arrived at Jerusalem, because it was Jehoiachin who was carried off captive with other leaders of Judah (such as Ezekiel, see Ezek. 1:1). He had reigned only three months (v. 8); the year was 598 B.C. Jeremiah called him "Jeconiah" and "Coniah" (Jer. 22:24, 28).

24:14 Ten thousand is probably a round number for deportees of all types from Judah and Jerusalem. The figure probably includes various categories of exiles, such as those mentioned in v. 16.

24:15 carried Jehoiachin captive: Jehoiachin's captivity (see 2 Chr. 36:9, 10) was prophesied in Jer. 22:24-27. Unlike Jehoahaz, who was carried off into Egypt previously (23:33) and disappears from the pages of sacred history, Jehoiachin's eventual release is recorded twice (25:27-30; Jer. 52:31-34).

24:17 Mattaniah is Josiah's youngest son. His name means "The Gift of the Lord." All three of Josiah's sons who succeeded him as king reigned under a throne name: Shallum (1 Chr. 3:15; Jer. 22:11) ruled as Jehoahaz (23:31); Eliakim as Jehoiakim (23:34); and Mattaniah as Zedekiah. Likewise, Jeconiah (1 Chr. 3:16; Jer. 24:1), Jehoiakim's son, ruled as Jehoiachin (24:8).

Nebuchadnezzar's Campaigns Against Judah

605–586 B.C.

Events in Judah moved swiftly following the death of Josiah. Pharaoh Necho pressed his advantage by deporting Jehozahaz, the new ruler, and appointing a second son of Josiah, Jehoiakim, as king.

The prophet Jeremiah was taken to Egypt by Judahite refugees fleeing from Babylonian-controlled territory. They brought him to Tahpanhes, where he continued his prophecies.

DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM 586 B.C.

Zedekiah, the last king of Judah, was appointed by Nebuchadnezzar, but he also rebelled. Jerusalem was attacked and besieged for two and a half years. Lured by a feint of Pharaoh's army, the Babylonians withdrew temporarily. When the Egyptians retreated, however, the Babylonians returned with a vengeance to Jerusalem.

Facing starvation, Zedekiah with his army fled by night "by way of the gate between two walls" (2 Kin. 25:4) toward the Jordan River, but both were overtaken in the plains of Jericho.

Zedekiah was captured and was dragged off in chains to Riblah, where he saw his sons slaughtered before he was blinded and taken to Babylon. One month later (in 586 B.C.) Jerusalem was ransacked and burned. Numerous high officials were executed, the temple furnishings were carried off, and the people were exiled.

Dramatic military dispatches found at Lachish warn of the encircling army.

The Chaldeans (Kaidu), as the Neo-Babylonians were called, had important connections at Ur and Haran, centers of worship of the moon-god Sin. They also developed the trade routes across North Arabia, where Tema was particularly important, becoming the residence of Nabonidus during the last days of the kingdom.

CONQUEST OF JERUSALEM c. 597 B.C.

Soon a stronger power appeared in the north in the person of Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Chaldeans (Neo-Babylonians), who determined to follow the fierce policies of his Assyrian predecessors.

The tribute of Jehoiakim was paid at a distance when he heard of Nebuchadnezzar's approach. After three years as a Babylonian vassal, he rebelled, bringing a rapid response in the form of small-scale raids from Babylonians, Arameans, Moabites, and Ammonites (c. 602 B.C.). Finally, Nebuchadnezzar's forces controlled all of the coastal territory north of the Brook of Egypt.

When 18-year-old Jehoiachin had ruled just three months (597 B.C.), the main Babylonian army struck, capturing Jerusalem and exiling the king as a captive in Babylon. Ten thousand persons were deported.

when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was ^aHamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. ^{19b}He also did evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done. ²⁰For because of the anger of the LORD this happened in Jerusalem and Judah, that He finally cast them out from His presence. ^cThen Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

The Fall and Captivity of Judah

25 Now it came to pass ^ain the tenth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and encamped against it; and they built a siege wall against it all around. ²So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. ³By the ninth day of the ^bfourth month the famine had become so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land.

⁴Then ^cthe city wall was broken through, and all the men of war fled at night by way of the gate between two walls, which was by the king's garden, even though the Chaldeans were still encamped all around against the city. And ^dthe king¹ went by way of the ²plain. ⁵But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and they overtook him in the plains of Jericho. All his army was scattered from him. ⁶So they took the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon ^eat Riblah, and they pronounced judgment on him. ⁷Then they killed the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, ^fput³ out the eyes of Zedekiah, bound him with bronze fetters, and took him to Babylon.

24:18 Mattaniah, who reigned under the name Zedekiah, came to the throne in 598 B.C. This was the year of Jehoiakim's death and Jehoiachin's captivity. Zedekiah reigned until the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

24:20 Zedekiah rebelled: The king of Judah foolishly relied on the Egyptians under Pharaoh Apries (or Hophra, Jer. 44:30) for help (see Ezek. 17:15-18). Apries had recently succeeded Psamtik II (594-588 B.C.) on the throne. He had great plans for Egypt's renewed glory. Unfortunately, his plans were not realized. Although Apries challenged Nebuchadnezzar by attacking Phoenicia and coming to Zedekiah's assistance (Jer. 37:5), he was not able to deliver Judah (Jer. 37:7, 8). His own reign ended in a coup d'état that ultimately cost him his life.

25:2 eleventh year: The siege of Jerusalem lasted for nearly two years (see v. 1).

25:4 Zedekiah's escape route lay between two walls near the royal garden at the southeastern corner of the city.

25:6 After his capture, Zedekiah was taken to Riblah on the Orontes River in Syria, which was the field headquarters for Nebuchadnezzar's western campaigns. Jehoahaz had been summoned there earlier by Pharaoh Necho (23:33).

25:7 put out the eyes: The annals of the ancient Middle East often mention putting out the eyes of conquered people. The last thing Zedekiah saw was the reward of his sinful folly—the horrible spectacle of his own loved ones being put to death. He would carry this picture with him until his own death in a Babylonian prison (Jer. 52:11).

25:10 The walls of Jerusalem would lie in a ruined condition for a century and a half (see Neh. 2:11—6:16).

25:17 Three cubits may be the height of the capitals not including the upper portion of ornamental work, for 1 Kin. 7:16 and Jer. 52:22 record the height of the capitals as five cubits.

25:18 Although Seraiah was executed at Riblah (v. 21), his son Jehozadak was simply deported (1 Chr. 6:15). Through Jehozadak's line would come Ezra, the priest and great reformer, who one day would return to Jerusalem and take up Seraiah's work (Ezra 7:1). The second martyred priest Zephaniah may be the priest mentioned by Jeremiah (Jer. 21:1; 29:5). Jerusalem would be less prone to future rebellions with the chief religious and civil officials gone.

Exile of the Southern Kingdom

Knowledge about the destiny of the captives from Israel and Judah is sparse in the period following the capture of Samaria and the later destruction of Jerusalem.

Assyrians and Babylonians treated their subject peoples essentially the same: overwhelming military force used in a manner inspiring psychological terror, along with mass deportations and heavy tribute.

Three deportations are mentioned in Jer. 52:28–30, the largest one consisting of 3,023 Jews who were taken to Babylon along with King Jehoiachin in 597 B.C.

After the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuzaradan, the commander of the Babylonian army, hundreds of exiles were taken to Riblah in the land of Hamath, where, in addition to Zedekiah's sons, at least 61 were executed.

Clay tablets from the fifth century B.C. called the Murashu archives have been found at Nippur. They document the commercial transactions with Jewish families who remained in Mesopotamia following Ezra's return to Jerusalem.

Ezek. 1:1–3 and 3:15 indicate that other captives were placed at Tel Abib and at the Kebar River, both probably in the locale of Nippur, as were other villages mentioned in Ezra 2:59; 8:15, 17; Neh. 7:61.

Jehoiachin and his family were kept in Babylon, where clay ration receipts bearing his name and the names of his sons have been found.

men of ⁵the king's close associates who were found in the city, the chief recruiting officer of the army, who mustered the people of the land, and sixty men of the people of the land who were found in the city. ²⁰So Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, took these and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. ²¹Then the king of Babylon struck them and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. ^bThus Judah was carried away captive from its own land.

Gedaliah Made Governor of Judah

²²Then he made Gedaliah the son of ^cAhikam, the son of Shaphan, governor over ^dthe people who remained in the land of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had left. ²³Now when all the ^ecaptains of the armies, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah governor, they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah—Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, Johanan the son of Careah, Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and ⁶Jaazaniah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men. ²⁴And Gedaliah took an oath before them and their men, and said to them, “Do not be afraid of the servants of the Chaldeans. Jehoiachin Released from Prison

²⁷^hNow it came to pass in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, that ⁷Evil-Merodach king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, ⁱreleased Jehoiachin king of Judah from prison. ²⁸He spoke kindly to him, and gave him a more prominent seat than those of the kings who were with him in Babylon. ²⁹So Jehoiachin changed from his prison garments, and he ^jate ⁸bread regularly before the king all the days of his life. ³⁰And as for his ⁹provisions, there was a ¹regular ration given him by the king, a portion for each day, all the days of his life.

25:21 Like Israel before it (17:18), Judah was carried away captive because of its sinful apostasy.
25:22 Gedaliah: Gedaliah's father Ahikam had supported Jeremiah in his struggles with the apostate officials of Judah (Jer. 26:24). Gedaliah's training and his descent from a family noted for its antiestablishment stance doubtless made him acceptable to the Babylonians. The prophet Jeremiah, spared by the Babylonians (Jer. 39:11–14; 40:1–5), was allowed to stay and assist Gedaliah in the process of reconstruction in Judah (Jer. 40:6). There is confirmation of Gedaliah's importance in a seal impression recovered at Lachish mentioning him as “over the house,” that is, a senior administrator.
25:23 Mizpah had long been a center of spiritual and political prominence (1 Sam. 10:17; 1 Kin. 15:22). It was an ideal location for the provincial government. Jaazaniah: This name appears on a seal impression found in Mizpah. The murderous deeds of Ishmael and the role of Johanan in the events are detailed by Jeremiah (Jer. 40:7—43:7).

25:27 Evil-Merodach succeeded Nebuchadnezzar and reigned a short time (561–560 B.C.). Tablets from the reign of Nabonidus (555–539 B.C.) record the daily rations of Jehoiachin who is called “Yaukin, king of the land of Yahud” (Judah).
25:28 spoke kindly: Evil-Merodach's kindness toward Jehoiachin brings the Book of 2 Kings to an end—on a ray of hope. Exile is the end neither of Israel nor of the Davidic line.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE CHRONICLES

FIRST CHRONICLES is an inspirational history. Writing after the Exile, the author sought to inspire the remnant of Israelites with their extraordinary spiritual heritage. Appropriately, the book focuses on David. He was not only Israel's great king, but also one of Israel's greatest spiritual leaders. When he became king, one of his first priorities was to establish the worship of God as the center of Israel's national life. Amidst a great celebration, David brought the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem and appointed priests to minister regularly before it (chs. 15; 16). His actions demonstrated his concern that all of Israel would "give to the LORD the glory due His name" (16:29). This was Israel's extraordinary spiritual legacy: true worship of the living God.

Author and Date Originally both 1 and 2 Chronicles were one book. The overall consistency of style in the book indicates that although several contributors might have worked on it at various stages, one editor shaped the final product.

Jewish tradition identifies the editor as Ezra. This view finds support in the common themes and emphases of Chronicles and the Book of Ezra. Both books focus on the building and dedication of the temple. However, some have argued that the genealogies in 3:17–24 preclude Ezra's authorship because they include as many as 11 generations past Zerubbabel. To include such information, the book would have to have been written as late as the middle of the third century B.C.

On the other hand, it is possible that 3:17–24 may embrace only three generations. If so, a date of approximately 425 B.C. for the completion of Chronicles is quite reasonable. Ezra was active between 460 and 430 B.C. and thus could have incorporated this particular genealogy into the book. In short, the traditional Jewish view that Ezra wrote Chronicles can be accepted if it is remembered that Ezra was a compiler. He used sources and documents that account for the stylistic differences between the Book of Ezra and Chronicles.

Sources and Historicity It is evident that Chronicles is the result of a compilation process. The chronicler made use of the Books of Samuel and Kings for about half the narrative. Also, the genealogies in the beginning of the book are largely derived from the Pentateuch. The compiler even cites some of the sources. Among these are the genealogical records of the various tribes (7:9, 40), the book of the kings of Israel (9:1), and the books of Samuel, Nathan, and Gad (29:29).

A number of accounts in Chronicles parallel parts of Samuel and Kings. The fact that these accounts do not match word for word has led some scholars to assume that the chronicler was not concerned about accuracy in citation, or that the authors of all the books drew upon another common source. In any case, the inspiration and authority of 1 Chronicles is not at stake. Writing about the same events, the compiler of 1 Chronicles simply emphasized a different perspective on them than did the authors of Samuel and Kings. The synoptic Gospels function the same way. Each Gospel presents some of the same stories of Jesus in a different way. Each gives us new details and a new perspective on the event.

This chronicler's different emphases explain many of the differences between the narratives of Chronicles and Samuel. Some of the other apparent contradictions, especially in matters of spelling and numbers, can be explained as inadvertence in copying and text transmission. Numerals appear to have been written in notations that could easily be confused, and most of the deviations between Chronicles and Samuel can be accounted for in this manner. In many instances, the discrepancies are only apparent and suitable ways have been suggested to harmonize them. In any case, none of them threatens the inspiration and inerrancy of the original text.

Purpose Writing approximately when the Israelites returned from captivity, the chronicler wanted to emphasize the Israelites' continuity with their past. The remnant was returning to Jerusalem to rebuild the temple because of the promises God had given to David many years before (see Ezra 7:10–23). God's promises were still in effect—even though the people had been in exile.

The long genealogical section in 1 Chronicles emphasizes this continuity with the past (chs. 1–9). The genealogies point out that the promises to David were founded on God's ancient promises to the patriarchs. God had pledged to Abraham that He would make him the father of a great nation, one through which He would bless the whole earth (Gen. 12:1–3). God had also promised that a king would rule over this special nation (Gen. 17:6). It was revealed to Jacob that the king would descend specifically from Jacob's son Judah (Gen. 49:10). Finally, the genealogy in the Book of Ruth explains the link between the promise and the fulfillment by tracing the line of Judah through his son Perez to King David (Ruth 4:18–22). God had faithfully fulfilled His promise.

First Chronicles recounts the lineage of the people of God's promise and emphasizes the connection between Perez and King David (2:5–15). God would establish His reign upon the earth through David's royal line (17:7–15; see Gen. 17:7, 8; 2 Sam. 7). The kings God had promised to Abraham would begin with David and culminate in the One who would reign forever, Jesus (17:14; see Matt. 9:27; 12:23; Mark 10:47, 48; Luke 18:38). God had given the promise to David, and the faithful remnant inherited that same promise.

Since the chronicler wanted to encourage the returning Israelites, he focused on the glories of David's reign—his conquest of Jerusalem (11:4–9), his heroic soldiers (11:10–47), his victories over the Philistines (18:1–12), and his celebration when bringing the ark to Jerusalem (15:25–29). On the other hand, the author of Samuel told the story of David as an objective, realistic biography that did not overlook David's sins and failures. While it does not depict David as spiritually and morally perfect (see 13:9–14; 21:1, 8), Chronicles surprisingly omits the stories that reveal David's weakness—his affair with Bathsheba, his murder of Uriah (2 Sam. 11), Music was a significant part of life in the ancient Near East. The Bible mentions several instruments, five of which are listed in 1 Chronicles 15:28 (several more are mentioned in Ps. 150:3–5; Dan. 3:5).

and his estrangement from his son Absalom (2 Sam. 15). These are not omitted to give a false impression of David's character, for the books of Samuel recount these incidents in detail. Instead, Chronicles was written to inspire the remnant to follow in the spiritual footsteps of David.

At a time when the Israelites were rebuilding the nation and the temple (Ezra 3:7–13), the chronicler painted a picture of David's kingdom as a kingdom founded on the true worship of God. Not the throne, but the tabernacle and temple were the focus of David's kingdom. Chronicles extensively describes how David moved the ark of the covenant to a suitable place of worship (13:1–16:3), appointed appropriate religious personnel (16:4–6, 37–43; 23:1–26:32), and made plans for building a permanent temple (chs. 22; 28; 29). The theme of Chronicles is that God Himself established David's kingdom (29:10, 11) in fulfillment of His promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Through the Davidic covenant, David's kingdom itself embodies the promise of the future kingdom whose ruler is the great Son of David, Jesus Christ.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

As in 1 and 2 Samuel, Jesus is foreshadowed in this book through the life and influence of King David. God's covenant with David is a prelude to what the Messiah will bring about (7:11–14). Some might try to reason that David's son Solomon fulfilled the covenant, but they would only be partly right. Only Jesus can ultimately fulfill it.

The fact that the tribe of Judah is listed first in the national genealogy (2:3–15) was not coincidental. The writer was quietly celebrating that the monarchy, the temple construction, and the future Messiah (Jesus) would come from this tribe.

²⁹These are their genealogies: The ^rfirstborn of Ishmael was Nebajoth; then Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, ³⁰Mishma, Dumah, Massa, ²Hadad, Tema, ³¹Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah. These were the sons of Ishmael.

The Family of Keturah

1:1 Adam, Seth, Enosh: The names of these ancient, pre-Flood characters were included in the genealogical record with people whose historical identities have never been questioned, such as David (2:15) and Zerubbabel (3:19). This indicates that the chronicler had no question as to their historicity.

1:7, 8 Rodanim referred to the Rhodites, natives of the Greek island of Rhodes. sons of Ham: Great nations were indicated by some of the names here: Cush referred to the Ethiopians, Mizraim to the Egyptians, Canaan to the Canaanites.

1:10 Cush begot Nimrod: It seems that the chronicler used the genealogy of Gen. 10 as the primary source for this genealogy. However, he used it selectively. For example, Gen. 10:9–12 was not included. The apparent purpose of this genealogy was to establish the line between Adam and David, and between David and the reigning Davidic monarch.

1:12 Caphtorim: These people lived in Caphtor (Deut. 2:23), known in ancient Akkadian texts as Kaptara and probably to be identified as Crete. The Caphtorim were related to the Philistines, or the two terms might even be interchangeable (see Jer. 47:4; Amos 9:7).

1:13 Heth founded the nation of the Hittites, a people in what is now central Turkey who achieved great power and prominence in the middle of the second millennium B.C. After the Hittite kingdom fell to the Sea Peoples around 1200 B.C., many Hittites settled in enclaves in Syria and Palestine.

1:18 Eber was the ancestor of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The name Hebrew, a derivative of Eber's name, was applied to the Israelites. The central place Eber occupies in the genealogies of Abram in Genesis and 1 Chronicles suggests a connection between the names Hebrew and Eber (1:24–27; see Gen. 10:21; 11:10–26). Indeed the name Hebrew may simply mean an “Eberite.”

1:19 the earth was divided: This refers to the division of the earth's population by the scattering of the human race following the judgment of God on the Tower of Babel. Chronologically, Peleg apparently fits about halfway between Shem and Abram (1:24–27), a most suitable place for the Tower of Babel episode.

1:28 Isaac was the son of the covenant, so his name occurs first when the names Isaac and Ishmael are mentioned together, even though Ishmael was born first. Moreover, Ishmael was the son of Abraham's concubine Hagar—not of his wife Sarai.

1:32, 33 Both Ishmael and Midian were descendants of Abraham, Ishmael by a concubine and Midian by another wife Abraham married after Sarah's death (Gen. 25:1, 2). The Ishmaelites and Midianites were tribes that lived in the Arabian deserts.

sons of Isaac were Esau and Israel. ³⁵The sons of ^vEsau were Eliphaz, Reuel, Jeush, Jaalam, and Korah. ³⁶And the sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, ³Zephi, Gatam, and Kenaz; and by ^wTimna, Amalek. ³⁷The sons of Reuel were Nath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.

The Family of Israel

² These were the ^asons of ¹Israel: ^bReuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, ²Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

From Judah to David

³The sons of ^cJudah were Er, Onan, and Shelah. These three were born to him by the daughter of ^dShua, the Canaanitess. ^eEr, the firstborn of Judah, was wicked in the sight of the LORD; so He killed him. ⁴And ^fTamar, his daughter-in-law, ^gbore him Perez and Zerah. All the sons of Judah were five.

⁵The sons of ^hPerez were Hezron and Hamul. ⁶The sons of Zerah were ²Zimri, ⁱEthan, Heman, Calcol, and ³Dara—five of them in all.

⁷The son of ^jCarmi was ⁴Achar, the troubler of Israel, who transgressed in the ^kaccursed ⁵thing.

⁸The son of Ethan was Azariah.

⁹Also the sons of Hezron who were born to him were Jerahmeel, ⁶Ram, and ⁷Chelubai. ¹⁰Ram ¹begot Amminadab, and Amminadab begot Nahshon, ^mleader of the children of Judah; ¹¹Nahshon begot ⁸Salma, and Salma begot Boaz; ¹²Boaz begot Obed, and Obed begot Jesse; ¹³ⁿJesse begot Eliab his firstborn, Abinadab the second, ⁹Shimea the third, ¹⁴Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, ¹⁵Ozem the sixth, and David the ^oseventh.

¹⁶Now their sisters were Zeruiah and

1:36 Timna was Eliphaz's concubine (Gen. 36:12). Timna's son Amalek was the founder of the Amalekites, a people that became one of Israel's most persistent enemies (Ex. 17:8-16; Deut. 25:17-19; 1 Sam. 15:1-3).

1:38 Seir was the patriarchal name of the pre-Edomite population of the region east and south of the Dead Sea (Gen. 36:20-30). Esau's daughter-in-law Timna (vv. 35, 36) was the sister of Lotan and daughter of Seir. Thus the people of Seir and the descendants of Esau were related by marriage, and together these two people groups became the kingdom of Edom (v. 43).

1:43 the kings . . . of Edom: Compare Gen. 36:31-39. These kings were apparently descendants of Esau. The Edomites were ruled by kings several centuries before the Israelites. This fact helps explain Israel's later demand to have "a king to judge us like all the nations" (1 Sam. 8:5). Although the Edomite kings ruled in succession, they were not parts of a dynasty, as the reference to their particular cities makes clear. Apparently Edom did not have a capital, and its kings ruled from whatever place they considered home.

1:51 The Hebrew word translated chiefs usually referred to military leaders. Compare Gen. 36:40-43.

2:1, 2 Compare the order of the sons of Israel with Gen. 35:23-26.

2:3 Though he was the fourth son of Jacob (v. 1), Judah appears first in the detailed genealogy because the messianic promise was to be channeled through him (Gen. 49:10). Thus the chronicler reveals that his genealogy and his presentation of the events are controlled by theological concerns rather than strict chronology.

2:6 Though the line to David passed through Zerah's brother Perez, Zerah's descendants are mentioned here because of the prominence of Achar (v. 7), called Achan in the narrative of Josh. 7:10-26.

Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara are mentioned because of their role in temple music under King David and their distinction as poets and sages (15:16-19; 1 Kin. 4:29-31).

2:10 This genealogy is selective, focusing on only those members important to the lineage. For example, Nahshon was head of the tribe of Judah at the time of the wilderness march from Sinai to Kadesh Barnea (Num. 1:7; 2:3; 7:12). He was more than five generations removed from Judah himself (2:4-10), since the time between Judah and Nahshon was over 450 years.

2:16 Sisters are rarely mentioned in ancient genealogies. However, this genealogy pays particular attention to the family of David and thus to David's sisters.

Abigail. ¹⁶And the sons of Zeruiah were Abishai, Joab, and Asahel—three. ¹⁷Abigail bore Amasa; and the father of Amasa was ¹⁸Jether the Ishmaelite.

The Family of Hezron

¹⁸Caleb the son of Hezron had children by Azubah, his wife, and by Jerioth. Now these were her sons: Jesher, Shobab, and Ardon. ¹⁹When Azubah died, Caleb ²⁰took ²¹Ephrath³ as his wife, who bore him Hur. ²⁰And Hur begot Uri, and Uri begot ²¹Bezalel.

²¹Now afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of ²²Machir the father of Gilead, whom he married when he was sixty years old; and she bore him Segub. ²²Segub begot ²³Jair,⁴ who had twenty-three cities in the land of Gilead. ²³^u(Geshur and Syria took from them the towns of Jair, with Kenath and its towns—sixty towns.) All these belonged to the sons of Machir the father of Gilead. ²⁴After Hezron died in Caleb Ephrathah, Hezron's wife Abijah bore him ²⁵Ashhur the father of Tekoa.

The Family of Jerahmeel

²⁵The sons of Jerahmeel, the firstborn of Hezron, were Ram, the firstborn, and Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. ²⁶Jerahmeel had another wife, whose name was Atarah; she was the mother of Onam. ²⁷The sons of Ram, the firstborn of Jerahmeel, were Maaz, Jamin, and Eker. ²⁸The sons of Onam were Shammai and Jada. The sons of Shammai were Nadab and Abishur.

²⁹And the name of the wife of Abishur was Abihail, and she bore him Ahban and Molid. ³⁰The sons of Nadab were Seled and Appaim; Seled died without children. ³¹The son of Appaim was Ishi, the son of Ishi was Sheshan, and ³²Sheshan's son was Ahlai. ³²The sons of Jada, the brother of Shammai, were Jether and Jonathan; Jether died without children. ³³The sons of Jonathan were Peleth and Zaza. These were the sons of Jerahmeel.

³⁴Now Sheshan had no sons, only daughters. And Sheshan had an Egyptian servant whose name was Jarha. ³⁵Sheshan gave his daughter to Jarha his servant as wife, and she bore him Attai. ³⁶Attai begot Nathan, and Nathan begot ³⁷Zabad; ³⁷Zabad begot Ephlal, and Eph-

Genealogies

Genealogies of the ancient Middle East were fluid in nature. The relationship between names might change—names might be added or omitted. Genealogies were used to legitimize a person's position by showing his relationship to a recognized and accepted ancestor (linear genealogy). They also demonstrated the relationships among members or segments of the same family (segmented or mixed genealogy). The genealogies of 1 Chronicles provide evidence that God is sovereign over history from creation. Names within genealogies are reminders of what God has done in the past and often embody hope for the future as well. Continuity with the past is also demonstrated in God's hand at work in establishing and preserving Israel. The chronicler's interest was in God's choice—whether of an individual (Abraham), a nation (Israel), a tribe (Judah), or a king (David and Solomon).

Genealogies were important in the ancient world. The surface of this statue is covered with texts that record the names and titles of twenty-six generations of Basa's paternal family, 945–715 B.C., Egypt.

The Family of Caleb

⁴²The descendants of Caleb the brother of Jerahmeel were Mesha, his firstborn, who was the father of Ziph, and the sons of Mareshah the father of Hebron. ⁴³The sons of Hebron were Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema. ⁴⁴Shema begot Raham the father of Jorkoam, and Rekem begot Shammai. ⁴⁵And the son of Shammai was Maon, and Maon was the father of Beth Zur.

⁴⁶Ephah, Caleb's concubine, bore Haran, Moza, and Gazez; and Haran begot Gazez. ⁴⁷And the sons of Jahdai were Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph.

2:18 This Caleb was not the famous companion of Joshua (Num. 13:6; Josh. 14:6, 7), who lived several centuries later, during the conquest of Canaan. In fact, one of this Caleb's descendants, Bezalel (v. 20), was a craftsman charged with constructing the wilderness tabernacle (Ex. 31:2).

2:25 The sons of Jerahmeel would eventually occupy the Negev, the desert area of southern Judah.

2:42 This was the same Caleb as that of vv. 18, 19. Here his genealogy is much longer, apparently transmitted through other wives.

⁴⁸Maachah, Caleb's concubine, bore Sheber and Tirhanah. ⁴⁹She also bore Shaaph the father of Madmannah, Sheva the father of Machbenah and the father of Gibeab. And the daughter of Caleb was ^zAchsah.⁵

⁵⁰These were the descendants of Caleb: The sons of ^aHur, the firstborn of ⁶Ephrathah, were Shobal the father of ^bKirjath Jearim, ⁵¹Salma the father of Bethlehem, and Hareph the father of Beth Gader.

⁵²And Shobal the father of Kirjath Jearim had descendants: ⁷Haroeah, and half of the ⁸families of Manuhoth. ⁵³The families of Kirjath Jearim were the Ithrites, the Puthites, the Shumathites, and the Mishraites. From these came the Zorathites and the Eshtaolites.

⁵⁴The sons of Salma were Bethlehem, the Netophathites, ⁹Atroth Beth Joab, half of the Manahethites, and the Zorites.

⁵⁵And the families of the scribes who dwelt at Jabez were the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and the Suchathites. These were the ^cKenites who came from Hammath, the father of the house of ^dRechab.

The Family of Solomon

¹⁰Solomon's son was ⁿRehoboam; ⁸Abijah was his son, Asa his son, Jehoshaphat his son, ¹¹Joram his son, ¹Ahaziah his son, ²Joash his son, ¹²Azariah his son, ³Azariah his son, Jotham his son, ¹³Ahaz his son, Hezekiah his son, Manasseh his son, ¹⁴Amon his son, and Josiah his son. ¹⁵The sons of Josiah were Johanan the firstborn, the second ⁴Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, and the fourth ⁵Shallum. ¹⁶The sons of ^oJehoiakim were ⁶Jeconiah his son and ⁷Zedekiah his son.

2:49 The Caleb of Joshua's time had a daughter named Achsah, who became the wife of Israel's first judge, Othniel (Judg. 1:12, 13). It might appear that the Caleb here in Chronicles must be the same as the later Caleb, but this is ruled out by the consistent use of Caleb throughout the chronicler's genealogy to refer to an earlier individual by that name. The meaning probably is that Achsah is the "daughter" of the earlier Caleb in the sense that she is his descendant. The later Caleb was doubtless a descendant of the early one, a conclusion supported by the record that both were from the tribe of Judah (2:4, 5, 9, 18, 42; Num. 13:6).

2:51 The chronicler recorded Caleb's genealogy because of the significance of Bethlehem, the birthplace of King David. One of Caleb's descendants, Salma, was the founder or father of Bethlehem.

2:55 Since the compiler of Chronicles was obviously a scribe, he was interested in tracing, if only briefly, various families of the scribes. These families are otherwise unknown, as is Jabez, the place they lived. They were Kenites, a people related to Israel through Moses' marriage to a Kenite, sometimes referred to as a Midianite (Judg. 4:11). Naming the Kenite scribes here suggests that they were descended from Judah, since the whole context of the passage is the genealogy of Judah. The genealogy also connects them with Rechab, the saintly founder of a line of pious Israelites who obeyed the commands of their fathers (see Jer. 35:1-19).

3:1-5 The fact that David had six sons by six wives in Hebron does not condone polygamy. David had fallen into the ancient custom among kings of marrying the daughters of neighboring kings in order to create allies. Negative results inevitably followed such multiple marriages. David's first son, Amnon, raped his half sister Tamar (2 Sam. 13:14)—a deed for which he paid with his own life at the hands of his half brother Absalom. Later Adonijah tried to usurp the throne from Solomon to whom it had been promised (1 Kin. 1:5-10).

3:9 Tamar: The fact that only one daughter of David is named does not mean that he had no other daughters. Tamar appears in this genealogy because of her prominence in the story of King David's family (2 Sam. 13:1-39). The chronicler included those people who had particular relevance to the narrative and its theological purpose.

3:18 Shenazzar was probably the same man as Sheshbazzar, leader of the first group of Jews to return from Babylonian captivity (Ezra 1:8, 11) and builder of the foundation of the second temple (Ezra 5:15-17).

3:19 Zerubbabel here is designated as a son of Pedaiiah, but elsewhere (Ezra 3:2, 8, 5:2; Neh. 12:1; Hag. 1:12, 14; 2:2, 23) as a son of Pedaiiah's brother Shealtiel (v. 17). It is likely that Shealtiel had died while Zerubbabel was young and that the youth was reared by his uncle Pedaiiah, thus becoming Pedaiiah's son. This relationship may explain Luke's statement that Zerubbabel was "the son of Shealtiel" (Luke 3:27), who was in turn a descendant of David through his son Nathan. Thus in the Gospels, the line of Jesus was traced back to David through David's two sons, Solomon and Nathan. These two lines met in the marriage of Jeconiah's daughter to Shealtiel. Luke traced Jesus' line through Zerubbabel and an otherwise unknown were Zerubbabel and Shimei. The sons of Zerubbabel were Meshullam, Hananiah, Shelomith their sister, ²⁰and Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-Hesed—five in all.

²¹The sons of Hananiah were Pelatiah and Jeshaiah, the sons of Rephaiah, the sons of Arnan, the sons of Obadiah, and the sons of Shechaniah. ²²The son of Shechaniah was Shemaiah. The sons of Shemaiah were ⁹Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat—six in all. ²³The sons of Neariah were Elioenai, Hezekiah, and Azrikam—three in all. ²⁴The sons of Elioenai were Hodaviah, Eliashib, Pelaiiah, Akkub, Johanan, Delaiah, and Anani—seven in all.

The Family of Judah

4 The sons of Judah were ^aPerez, Hezron, ¹Carmi, Hur, and Shobal. ²And ²Reaiah the son of Shobal begot Jahath, and Jahath begot Ahumai and Lahad. These were the families of the Zorathites. ³These were the sons of the father of Etam: Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash; and the name of their sister was Hazeleponi; ⁴and Penuel was the father of Gedor, and Ezer was the father of Hushah.

These were the sons of ^bHur, the firstborn of Ephrathah the father of Bethlehem.

⁵And ^cAshhur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah. ⁶Naarah bore him Ahuzzam, Hephher, Temeni, and Haahashtari. These were the sons of Naarah. ⁷The sons of Helah were Seraiah begot Joab the father of ^gGe Harashim, ⁷for they were craftsmen. ¹⁵The sons of ^hCaleb the son of Jephunneh were Iru, Elah, and Naam. The son of Elah was ⁸Kenaz. ¹⁶The sons of Jehallelel were Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel. ¹⁷The sons of Ezra were Jether, Mered, Ephraim, and Jalon. And ⁹Mered’s wife bore Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah the father of Eshtemoa. ¹⁸(¹His wife Jehudijah bore Jered the father of Gedor, Heber the father of Sochoh, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah.) And these were the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took.

¹⁹The sons of Hodiah’s wife, the sister son Rhesa (Luke 3:27). Matthew, whose interest was particularly in Joseph, traced Jesus’ ancestry back to Zerubbabel through still another son of Zerubbabel, Abiud (Matt. 1:13). Thus Luke reconstructed Mary’s genealogy.

3:21–24 Pelatiah and Jeshaiah seem to be the only two sons of Hananiah. Rephaiah . . . Shechaniah: These names were detached from the Zerubbabel genealogy and may be other Davidic families. The sons of Shechaniah: Four generations of Shechaniah, ending in Anani, are listed. Hence the genealogy of vv. 17–24 presupposes about seven generations. Since Jeconiah reigned around 598 B.C. (v. 17), a date of approximately 425 B.C. for Anani is reasonable. Anani is the latest generation recorded in Chronicles, and any dating of the book should take this into account.

4:1 Although the genealogy of Judah leading up to David has already been recorded (2:3–17), the chronicler here refers to other persons and events relative to that genealogy. In the list of this verse, only Perez is Judah’s own son. Hezron is his grandson, Carmi his nephew (2:5, 6), Hur the grandson of Hezron (2:18, 19), and Shobal the grandson of Hur (2:50).

4:4 Ephrathah has already been identified as Ephrath, a wife of the early Caleb (2:19) and mother of Hur. She was therefore the “great grandmother” of Bethlehem, since her son Hur was the “grandfather” of Bethlehem (2:50, 51). Elsewhere the names Bethlehem and Ephrath are closely connected. When Jacob was on the way to Mamre, his wife Rachel died near Ephrath, identified also as Bethlehem (Gen. 35:19). In Ruth 4:11, Ephrathah is synonymous with the town of Bethlehem, and in Mic. 5:2 the birthplace of the anticipated Messiah is called Bethlehem Ephrathah.

4:13 Othniel, the first of Israel’s judges (Josh. 15:17; Judg. 1:13; 3:9), was son-in-law of the later Caleb—the friend and colleague of Joshua.

4:15 Kenaz was the name of Othniel’s father (v. 13) and Caleb’s brother (Josh. 15:17), as well as of Caleb’s grandson. It is clear that Othniel had married his own first cousin, a practice that was common in the OT (see Abraham and Sarah in Gen. 11:29) and one not prohibited in the Law of Moses.

sons

(Heb. ben) (4:1; 7:14; Ex. 12:37; 1 Kin. 2:1) Strong’s #1121

The Hebrew noun ben is probably related to banah which means “to build,” as in “to build” a family (Ruth 4:11). The ancient Hebrews considered sons the “builders” of the next generation. Ben can either refer to a literal son as in 1 Kin. 2:1, or to one’s descendants as in 7:14. The word may also pertain to an attribute of an individual, as in Ben-Oni, meaning “Son of My Sorrow,” and Benjamin, meaning “Son of the Right Hand” (Gen. 35:18). In the plural, the Hebrew word for sons can be translated children regardless of gender, as in the phrase “children of Israel” (see Ex. 12:37). Perhaps the most significant use of the Hebrew word is for Israel’s relationship to the Lord. God Himself declared: “Israel is My son, My firstborn” (Ex. 4:22).

²¹The sons of ^jShelah ^kthe son of Judah were Er the father of Lecah, Laadah the father of Mareshah, and the families of the house of the linen workers of the house of Ashbea; ²²also Jokim, the men of Chozeba, and Joash; Saraph, who ruled in Moab, and Jashubi-Lehem. Now the ²records are ancient. ²³These were the potters and those who dwell at ³Netaim and ⁴Gederah; there they dwelt with the king for his work.

⁴¹These recorded by name came in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah; and they ⁿattacked ⁴their tents and the Meunites who were found there, and ^outterly destroyed them, as it is to this day. So they dwelt in their place, because there was pasture for their flocks there. ⁴²Now some of them, five hundred men of the sons of Simeon, went to Mount Seir, having as their captains Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. ⁴³And they ⁵defeated ^pthe rest of the Amalekites who had escaped. The Family of Reuben

5 Now the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel—^ahe was indeed the firstborn, but because he ^bdefiled his father's bed, ^chis birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel, so that the genealogy is not listed according to the birthright; ²yet ^dJudah prevailed over his brothers, and from him came ^ea ruler, although ¹the birthright was Joseph's— ³the sons of ^fReuben the firstborn of Israel were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.

⁴The sons of Joel were Shemaiah his

4:21 The fact that Shelah named his son Er indicates that he followed the levirate custom of raising up a child in the name of a deceased brother. Er, son of Judah, had died because of some unspecified sin, but had left no children by his wife Tamar (Gen. 38:6–11). His brother Onan refused to honor the levirate practice on Er's behalf, so Tamar seduced Judah, her father-in-law, and bore the twin sons Perez and Zerah (Gen. 38:27–30). Shelah, the third son of Judah, apparently did honor his oldest brother by taking the widow Tamar as his wife and rearing a son in Er's name.

4:22 The chronicler made the point that his documentation rested on ancient texts. Even in the chronicler's own day, there were skeptics who questioned the accuracy of the genealogies.

4:24 The genealogy of Simeon appears next because the Simeonites were a small tribe (v. 27) and had no land allocated to them (Josh. 19:1–9). They settled in the territory of Judah, and their genealogy is attached to his.

4:31 Because the tribe of Simeon was so small and had settled within Judah's territory, the tribe lost its identity and was considered a part of Judah when David became king.

4:39–41 The chronicler describes how the Simeonites lived as shepherds in Gedor. This was an area next to Egypt, possibly the same as Gerar (Gen. 26:17–20). The Hamites, who were Egyptians, had lived there at one time (v. 40), but were replaced by Meunites. The Simeonites expelled these people in the days of Hezekiah.

4:42, 43 The Simeonites pursued the Amalekites into Mt. Seir, or Edom. to this day: That is, to the time Chronicles was written. The Simeonites had lived in Edom from Hezekiah's time.

5:1, 2 Usually the oldest son of an ancient family became head of the family upon his father's death and also received a larger share of the inheritance than the other children. But Reuben, the firstborn of Jacob, had slept with his father's concubine—perhaps hoping in this way to guarantee his rights as the firstborn son (Gen. 35:22). Because of this despicable act, he lost the birthright. Instead, Jacob blessed the sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen. 48:15–22), thereby transmitting the birthright to Joseph and his sons. The birthright assigned to Joseph did not carry with it the right to rule the tribes and nation; that privilege was granted to Judah. Judah prevailed in the sense that God freely chose them as the tribe through which His messianic Deliverer and King would come (Gen. 49:10). The ruler from Judah was David and his dynasty, a fact well known to the ancient Israelites.

¹⁰Now in the days of Saul they made war^k with the Hagrites, who fell by their hand; and they dwelt in their tents throughout the entire area east of Gilead.

¹⁸The sons of Reuben, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh had forty-four thousand seven hundred and sixty valiant men, men able to bear shield and sword, to shoot with the bow, and skillful in war, who went to war.¹⁹ They made war with the Hagrites,^r Jetur, Naphish, and Nodab.²⁰ And^s they were helped against them, and the Hagrites were delivered into their hand, and all who were with them, for they^t cried out to God in the battle. And they dwelt in their place until^w the captivity.

The Family of Manasseh (East)

²³So the children of the half-tribe of Manasseh dwelt in the land. Their numbers increased from Bashan to Baal Hermon, that is, to^x Senir, or Mount Hermon.²⁴ These were the heads of their fathers' houses: Ephraim, Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. They

5:6 Though the tribe of Reuben virtually disappeared from the historical record by the time of the monarchy, there still remained people who identified themselves as Reubenites, as this verse makes clear.

5:9 Part of the reason for the absence of Reuben in the historical account was the tribe's need to seek greater pasture lands for their animals. They had pushed east into the wilderness as far as the River Euphrates. For this reason, the Reubenites were the first to be deported by the Assyrians (see v. 6).

5:11 Gad lived near Reuben and the half tribe of Manasseh. Gad was one of the tribes that sought permission from Moses to settle east of the Jordan rather than west (Num. 32:1–42). Reuben occupied the area just east of the Dead Sea and the lower Jordan valley; Gad, the land of Bashan due east of the river; and Manasseh, the land to the east and north of the Sea of Galilee.

5:17 Once more the chronicler alludes to his sources, this time to genealogical records from the time of Jotham (750–735 B.C.) and Jeroboam II (793–753 B.C.). He wanted to emphasize that the genealogies are based on solid documentary research in texts that preceded his own time by more than 300 years.

5:19 The Hagrites and their allies were probably desert peoples who felt increasing pressure from the expanding Israelite population. Their efforts at resisting the Israelites took place in the days of Saul (v. 10), though the narratives of Saul do not mention them.

5:20 they were helped: The help here came from God Himself in answer to their prayers. The people of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh fielded an army of more than 44,000 men (v. 18), but ultimately it was God who brought success.

5:22 the war was God's: This confirms the statement about God helping the Israelites in v. 20 and goes beyond it by referring to a practice of OT times known as "The Lord's War." At times, God commanded an offensive war as a means of achieving His purposes of conquest and occupation of the Promised Land (Deut. 20:1–20). At those times, God made it clear that the battle was by His initiative and that He would ensure its success. the captivity: In the light of vv. 6, 26, the captivity must be that of Tiglath-Pileser of Assyria, who carried off a significant portion of the Israelite population (2 Kin. 15:29).

generations

(Heb. toledoth) (5:7; Gen. 10:1; Ruth 4:18) Strong's #8435

The Hebrew toledoth is derived from the verb yalad, meaning "to give birth." Toledoth usually introduces an extended genealogical list, such as those in Genesis (Gen. 5:1; 10:1) and 1 Chronicles (5:7; 26:31). Ancient Hebrew culture depended on detailed genealogical lists to determine questions of inheritance and land use rights. After the conquest of Canaan, each tribe received its portion of the Promised Land to divide between its clans (Josh. 13–19). Land rights remained in the clans, passed down as part of the inheritance from father to oldest son, or daughter if there was no son (see Num. 27). Other matters, such as service in the temple and royal succession, were also determined by genealogy. Old Testament genealogies attest to God's faithfulness in fulfilling His promise to make Israel a "great nation" (Gen. 12:1–3), and the genealogy of Matt. 1 shows Jesus as the legitimate heir to David's throne.

Tiglath-Pileser

Tiglath-Pileser III, king of Assyria from 745 to 727 B.C., was also known as Pul in the OT. After stabilizing his kingdom, he began military campaigns against smaller realms such as Palestine. Kings of the northern kingdom paid monetary tribute to Tiglath-Pileser for his protection. Ahaz, king of Judah, made an alliance with him against the king of Israel and the king of Syria. This episode may have been when Tiglath-Pileser conquered the region east of the Jordan River and carried the people into exile in 733 B.C. (2 Kin. 15:29). Although the date given for the captivity of the northern kingdom by Assyria is 722 B.C., the deportation of Israel to other parts of the Assyrian Empire occurred in stages. This episode was consistent with the chronicler's theme of retribution.

were mighty men of valor, famous men, and heads of their fathers' houses.

He carried the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh into captivity. He took them to ²⁹Halah, Habor, Hara, and the river of Gozan to this day.

5:26 The famous king Tiglath-Pileser, who reigned around 745–727 B.C., has gone down in Assyrian annals as one of the most powerful rulers of the neo-Assyrian period. Gozan is Guzanu or Tell Halaf on the Habor River.

6:1 Levi: All religious personnel involved in tabernacle or temple ministry had to be members of the tribe of Levi. Aaron was himself a Levite, and from the beginning of the priesthood his descendants were designated as the only ones who could serve as priests (see 6:16–25; Ex. 28:1). Later the Levites were especially set apart for service in the tabernacle in a role subsidiary to the priests (Num. 18:1–7). Anyone who wanted to serve in the temple had to establish his Levitical credentials. The present genealogy was designed at least in part to meet that need.

6:2 Kohath: This son of Levi was the one to whom the office of priest became exclusively connected. Hence, every priest had to be a Levite, but not every Levite could become a priest.

6:3, 4 Beginning with Eleazar, the genealogy traces the line of high priests through Jehozadak, the priest who went into Babylonian exile with his people (v. 15). Including Eleazar and Jehozadak, there were at least 22 high priests in unbroken succession. Another line of priests began with Ithamar, including such persons as Eli, Ahimelech, and Abiathar. In the days of David, priestly service was divided between the Eleazar and Ithamar priests, with the Eleazar serving two-thirds of the time and the Ithamar one-third because of the difference in their numbers (24:1–5). Solomon rejected the Ithamar priesthood, reserving the honor of the priesthood exclusively for the priests descended from Eleazar (1 Kin. 2:26, 27).

6:8 Zadok: This priest, not the same person as the Zadok of v. 12, was the one selected by David to serve along with Ahimelech the son of Abiathar as high priest (2 Sam. 8:17). Eventually Zadok became sole high priest because of Abiathar's rebellion against Solomon (1 Kin. 2:26, 27).

6:10 The detail that this Azariah ministered in Solomon's temple distinguishes this priest from his grandfather of the same name (v. 9).

6:14 Jehozadak: This last priest in the list was carried into exile in Babylon (v. 15). He was the father of Joshua, the priest who returned from Babylon with Zerubbabel to rebuild the temple and reestablish the Jewish community (Hag. 1:1, 12, 14).

The Family of Aaron

Dwelling Places of the Levites

⁵⁴^aNow these are their dwelling places throughout their settlements in their territory, for they were given by lot to

6:17 Gershon: The purpose of the following genealogy was to list the principal offspring of the sons of Levi who were not priests, but regular or "ordinary" Levites.

6:18 Amram was the father of Aaron and the whole line of high priests. All other priests had to trace their lineage to Kohath through his other sons Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. Descendants of Levi who were not sons of Kohath could not be priests at all.

6:22 Amminadab is another name for Izhar (v. 18), who otherwise appears as the father of Korah (6:37, 38; see Ex. 6:21; Num. 16:1).

6:28 Samuel: Samuel's ancestors were described elsewhere as Ephraimites (1 Sam. 1:1). Although Samuel was an Ephraimite by virtue of his residence in Ramathaim Zophim, a city in the tribal territory of Ephraim, this genealogy makes it clear that he was in fact a Levite. This explains why he could be trained in the tabernacle under Eli the priest (1 Sam. 2:11) and later officiate at public services that included sacrifices (1 Sam. 9:13; 10:8).

6:33-47 The temple musicians in David's time were Levites and were divided up into three groups according to their descent from Levi's three sons. The Kohathites in David's time were led by Heman, grandson of Samuel; the Gershonites by Asaph (vv. 39, 43); and the Merarites by Ethan (vv. 44, 47). Ethan was otherwise known as Jeduthun (25:1).

6:49 In contrast to the Levites just listed, Aaron and his descendants had the privilege and responsibility of the office of the high priest. What set them apart from the other Levites was their access to the altar of burnt offering and incense and their work of making atonement for Israel. Levites could assist in this ministry and could officiate at local sacrifices. See the actions of the Levite Samuel (1 Sam. 7:9; 9:12, 13; 16:2-5). However, only priests in the line of Aaron could present sacrifices at the tabernacle or temple.

6:50 sons of Aaron: The genealogy of vv. 50-53 is the same as that in vv. 4-8, but this list ends with Ahimaaz. This list recites the line of Aaron only until the time of David (v. 31). Zadok and Ahimaaz were the last of the priests in the line of Eleazar under David's administration (2 Sam. 15:35, 36).

6:54 dwelling places: The remainder of the chapter describes the allocation of cities and towns to the priests (vv. 54-60), the rest of the Kohathites (vv. 61, 66-70), the Gershonites (vv. 62, 71-76), and the Merarites (vv. 63, 77-81).

the sons of Aaron, of the family of the Kohathites: ^{55b}They gave them Hebron in the land of Judah, with its surrounding ¹common-lands. ^{56c}But the fields of the city and its villages they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh. ⁵⁷And ^dto the sons of Aaron they gave one of the cities of refuge, Hebron; also Libnah with its common-lands, Jattir, Eshtemoa with its common-lands, ⁵⁸²Hilen with its common-lands, Debir with its common-lands, ⁵⁹³Ashan with its common-lands, and Beth Shemesh with its common-lands. ⁶⁰And from the tribe of Benjamin: Geba with its common-lands, ⁴Alemeth with its common-lands, and Anathoth with its common-lands. ⁷⁷From the tribe of Zebulun the rest of the children of Merari were given ⁸Rimmon with its common-lands and Tabor with its common-lands. ⁷⁸And on the other side of the Jordan, across from Jer-

6:55 Because the priests were all Kohathites, the cities of the priests were within the districts assigned to Kohath. Hebron, located in Judah, is the first of these cities. surrounding common-lands: The priests and Levites occupied not only houses within the city walls, but they owned and worked fields immediately adjacent to the cities as well. These common-lands extended out from the perimeters of the city walls for a thousand cubits (about 1,500 ft.) in every direction (Num. 35:4, 5) and could be used for farming and grazing (Num. 35:3). This does not mean that the priests and Levites supported themselves by farming, for the Law is clear that they were to live on the tithes and offerings of the other tribes (Num. 18:21-32). The produce they received from the common-lands was a bonus. 6:56 Hebron had originally been assigned to the faithful spy Caleb as part of his inheritance (Josh. 15:13). However, Caleb's inheritance was further defined as not the city proper, but the nearby fields and villages (Josh. 21:11, 12). Caleb's fields were outside the thousand-cubit circumference that belonged to the priests of Hebron. 6:57 The Law specified that in the event of an unintentional killing, the perpetrator could find sanctuary in one of six cities of refuge scattered throughout the land (Num. 35:9-15). He or she could remain there in safety until the case came to trial (Num. 35:16-28). These six cities were included among the 48 Levitical cities, and Hebron was one of them. 6:60 The number thirteen refers to the original allotment of cities in Josh. 21:13-19. The chronicler was listing the priestly cities that existed in his own day, nearly a thousand years after the original distribution. This accounts not only for two missing cities, Juttah and Gibeon, but also for the variation in the spelling of some of the names as well. The priestly cities were concentrated in the areas of Judah and Benjamin, conveniently located near the temple in Jerusalem. 6:61 rest of . . . the Kohathites: These were the Levites who were not priests. Their cities were situated mainly in the half tribe of Manasseh on the west of the Jordan (see v. 70), just south of the plain of Jezreel. 6:66 Beginning here, there is a continuation of the description of non-priestly Kohathite cities begun in v. 61. Some of these cities were in Ephraim, with Manasseh to the north and Benjamin to the south. 6:67 Like Hebron, Shechem was both a Levitical city and a city of refuge. Shechem was especially significant in Israel. It was the site of Abraham's first altar in Canaan (Gen. 12:6, 7), the place where Jacob bought a piece of land (Gen. 33:19), and the location of the first capital of the northern kingdom (1 Kin. 12:25). 6:71 Gershon: The tribal areas containing the cities of the Gershonite Levites were East Manasseh; Issachar, north of West Manasseh (v. 72); Asher, on the Mediterranean coast north of Mt. Carmel (v. 74); and Naphtali, west and north of the Sea of Galilee (v. 76). Golan: This city in Bashan east of the Jordan was a city of refuge. 6:76 Kedesh was another of the six cities of refuge. It was the most northern of the three west of the Jordan. 6:77 The third Levitical order, that of Merari, occupied cities in Zebulun. Reuben was east of the Dead Sea (v. 78), and Gad was east of the Jordan from the Dead Sea almost to the Sea of Galilee (v. 80). 6:78 Bezer was also a city of refuge, the farthest south of those east of the Jordan.

icho, on the east side of the Jordan, they were given from the tribe of Reuben: Bezer in the wilderness with its common-lands, Jahzah with its common-lands, ⁷⁹Kedemoth with its common-lands, and Mephaath with its common-lands. ⁸⁰And from the tribe of Gad: Ramoth in Gilead with its common-lands, Mahanaim with its common-lands, ⁸¹Heshbon with its common-lands, and Jazer with its common-lands.

The Family of Issachar

7 The sons of Issachar were ^aTola, ¹Puah, ²Jashub, and Shimron—four in all. ²The sons of Tola were Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Jibsam, and Shemuel, heads of their father's house. The sons of Tola were mighty men of valor in their generations; ^btheir number in the days of David was twenty-two thousand six hundred. ³The son of Uzzi was Izrahiah, and the sons of Izrahiah were Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Ishiah. All five of them were chief men. ⁴And with them, by their generations, according to their fathers' houses, were thirty-six thousand troops ready for war; for they had many wives and sons.

⁵Now their brethren among all the families of Issachar were mighty men of valor, listed by their genealogies, eighty-seven thousand in all.

The Family of Benjamin

⁶The sons of ^cBenjamin were Bela, Becher, and Jediel—three in all. ⁷The sons of Bela were Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri—five in all. They were heads of their fathers' houses, and they were listed by their genealogies, twenty-two thousand and thirty-four mighty men of valor.

⁸The sons of Becher were Zemirah,

¹³The ^dsons of Naphtali were ⁷Jahziel, Guni, Jezer, and ⁸Shallum, the sons of Bilhah.

The Family of Manasseh (West)

¹⁴The ^edescendants of Manasseh: his Syrian concubine bore him ^fMachir the father of Gilead, the father of Asriel. ¹⁵Machir took as his wife the sister of ⁹Huphim and ¹Shuphim, whose name was Maachah. The name of Gilead's ²grandson was ^gZelophehad, but Zelophehad begot only daughters. ¹⁶(Maachah the wife of Machir bore a son, and she called his name Peresh. The name of his brother was Sheresh, and his sons were Ulam and Rakem. ¹⁷The son of Ulam was ^hBedan.) These were the descendants of Gilead the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh.

¹⁸His sister Hammoleketh bore Ishhod, ³Abiezer, and Mahlah.

¹⁹And the sons of Shemida were Ahian, Shechem, Likhi, and Aniam.

6:80 Another city of refuge, Ramoth in Gilead, was directly east of the Jordan. In this way the cities of refuge were distributed throughout the land so that any Israelite would be within a few miles of one of them. All six cities of refuge were assigned to the Levites, with Hebron designated for the priests (v. 55). The cities of refuge were assigned this way because the priests and Levites had judicial responsibilities in the cases involving unintentional homicide (Num. 35:25, 28; Deut. 17:8-13; 19:17-21).

7:2 The total here was limited to the sons of Tola. Undoubtedly there were thousands of other tribesmen of Issachar at that time, descendants of the three other sons of Issachar (v. 1).

7:4 thirty-six thousand: These appear to be the offspring of Uzzi (v. 3), the son of Tola (v. 2). Since the figure is much greater than the 22,600 of v. 2, it must reflect the population of a much later time, perhaps as late as the period just before the fall of Samaria in 722 B.C. At that time, Issachar would have had its largest population.

7:6 The chronicler recounted the genealogies of Benjamin in some detail because King Saul was a Benjamite (7:6-12; 8:1-40; 9:35-44). Saul was an important figure even though his reign ended tragically. The complexity of the biblical genealogies can be illustrated by comparing the list of Benjamin's sons here with that in 8:1, 2; Gen. 46:21; Num. 26:38, 39. The differences in these genealogies are most likely due to the listing of principal descendants of different time periods.

7:13 The unusual brevity of the genealogy here may reflect the greatly reduced size and importance of Naphtali following the maraudings of the Assyrians under Tiglath-Pileser III. Naphtali's tribal area was specifically pointed out as the object of the Assyrian campaigns (2 Kin. 15:29).

7:14 Manasseh was the son of Joseph. Machir: Machir's daughter became the wife of Judah's grandson Hezron, thus joining the two tribes of Manasseh and Judah (2:21).

7:15 If the Huphim and Shuphim here are the same as in v. 12, the tribe of Manasseh and the tribe of Benjamin were connected through the marriage of Machir and Maachah. Zelophehad: Apparently a grandson of Gilead (Num. 26:30-33), this man had no sons. This situation prompted Moses to announce God's provision for the inheritance rights of daughters in such cases (Num. 36:1-9).

The Family of Ephraim

²⁰ⁱThe sons of Ephraim were Shuthelah, Bered his son, Tahath his son, Eladah his son, Tahath his son, ²¹Zabad his son, Shuthelah his son, and Ezer and Elead. The men of Gath who were born in that land killed them because they came down to take away their cattle. ²²Then Ephraim their father mourned many days, and his brethren came to comfort him.

²³And when he went in to his wife, she conceived and bore a son; and he called his name ⁴Beriah, because tragedy had come upon his house. ²⁴Now his daughter was Sheerah, who built Lower and Upper ^jBeth Horon and Uzzen Sheerah; ²⁵and Rephah was his son, as well as Resheph, and Telah his son, Tahan his son, ²⁶Laadan his son, Ammihud his son, ^kElishama his son, ²⁷⁵Nun his son, and ^lJoshua his son.

²⁸Now their ^mpossessions and dwelling places were Bethel and its towns: to the east ⁶Naaran, to the west Gezer and its towns, and Shechem and its towns, as far as ⁷Ayyah and its towns; ²⁹and by the borders of the children of ⁿManasseh were Beth Shean and its towns, Taanach and its towns, ^oMegiddo and its towns, Dor and its towns. In these dwelt the children of Joseph, the son of Israel.

The Family of Asher

^{30p}The sons of Asher were Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, and their sister Serah. ³¹The sons of Beriah were Heber and Malchiel, who was the father of ⁸Birzathiel. ³²And Heber begot Japhlet, ⁹Shomer, ¹Hotham, and their sister Shua. ³³The sons of Japhlet were Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. These were the children of Japhlet. ³⁴The sons of ^qShemer were Ahi, Rohgah, Jehubbah, and Aram. ³⁵And the sons of his brother Helem were Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal. ³⁶The sons of Zophah were Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah, ³⁷Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, ²Jithran, and Beera. ³⁸The sons of Jether were Jephunneh, Pispah, and Ara. ³⁹The sons of Ulla were Arah, Haniel, and Rizia.

⁴⁰All these were the children of Asher, heads of their fathers' houses, choice men, mighty men of valor, chief leaders. And they were recorded by genealogies among the army fit for battle; their number was twenty-six thousand.

The Family Tree of King Saul of Benjamin

8 Now Benjamin begot ^aBela his firstborn, Ashbel the second, ¹Aharah the third, ²Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth. ³The sons of Bela were ²Addar, Gera, Abihud, ⁴Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah, ⁵Gera, ³Shephuphan, and Huram.

⁶These are the sons of Ehud, who were the heads of the fathers' houses of the inhabitants of ^bGeba, and who forced them to move to ^cManahath: ⁷Naaman, Ahijah, and Gera who forced them to move. He begot Uzza and Ahihud.

⁸Also Shaharaim had children in the country of Moab, after he had sent away Hushim and Baara his wives. ⁹By Hodesh his wife he begot Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, ¹⁰Jeuz, Sachiah, and Mirmah. These were his sons, heads of their fathers' houses.

¹¹And by Hushim he begot Abitub and Elpaal. ¹²The sons of Elpaal were Eber, Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod with its towns; ¹³and Beriah and ^dShema, who were heads of their fathers' houses of the inhabitants of Aijalon, who drove out the inhabitants of Gath. ¹⁴Ahio, Shashak, Jeremoth, ¹⁵Zebadiah,

7:20, 21 The genealogy of Ephraim follows the genealogy of his brother Manasseh. Tahath: This name and Shuthelah both occur twice, illustrating the custom of sons being named for their grandfathers or more remote ancestors.

7:21, 22 The men of Gath were probably the pre-conquest Philistines (see Gen. 21:32, 34; Ex. 13:17). Since the story involves Ephraim's sons in particular and not just the tribe of Ephraim, this verse establishes that Jacob's family before the Exodus had not completely lost contact with the land of Canaan.

7:24 Lower and Upper Beth Horon: These places were in Ephraim near the border with Benjamin.

7:27 The fact that there were nine generations between Joshua, the famous successor to Moses, and Ephraim (vv. 23–27) supports the view that the story in vv. 21, 22 occurred before the Exodus.

7:29 children of Joseph: As this phrase makes clear, vv. 28, 29 include the cities of both Ephraim and Manasseh. The cities of Beth Shean, Taanach, Megiddo, and Dor were located in Manasseh.

7:30 Asher: This is the last tribal genealogy in 1 Chronicles. It may be compared with the genealogies of Asher in Gen. 46:17; Num. 26:44–46.

7:40 twenty-six thousand: This number of fighting men would place the completion of this genealogy in the period of David, as stated in v. 2.

8:1 The reason for this second and much more detailed genealogy of Benjamin was its climactic focus on the genealogy of King Saul (vv. 29–40).

8:6 A grandson of Jediahel (see 7:10) or Ashbel (see 7:6), Ehud apparently was the link between Benjamin and Saul. The sons of Ehud moved the Benjamites from Geba to Manahath. The former town was a Benjamite site on the border of Judah, about six miles north-east of Jerusalem.

8:9 There was a well-known Moabite king named Mesha. Both the Scriptures (2 Kin. 3:4) and the Moabite Stone attest to this fact. The reference here to Mesha as a son of Shaharaim and Hodesh, a Moabite wife (see v. 8), suggests that the illustrious Moabite king may have had a Benjamite father, but the evidence is not conclusive.

8:12 Ono and Lod were ancient towns about 12 and 7 miles southeast of Joppa. The sons of Elpaal probably rebuilt these ancient cities.

8:13 Aijalon and Gath were two places in the western lowlands of Israel, about 17 miles apart.

Arad, Eder, ¹⁶Michael, Ispah, and Joha were the sons of Beriah. ¹⁷Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, ¹⁸Ishmerai, Jizliah, and Jobab were the sons of Elpaal. ¹⁹Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, ²⁰Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, ²¹Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were the sons of ⁴Shimei. ²²Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, ²³Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, ²⁴Hananiah, Elam, Antothijah, ²⁵Iphdeiah, and Penuel were the sons of Shashak. ²⁶Shamsheraï, Shehariah, Athaliah, ²⁷Jaresiah, Elijah, and Zichri were the sons of Jeroham.

²⁸These were heads of the fathers' houses by their generations, chief men. These dwelt in Jerusalem.

²⁹Now ⁵the father of Gibeon, whose wife's name was Maacah, dwelt at Gibeon. ³⁰And his firstborn son was Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Nadab, ³¹Gedor, Ahio, ⁶Zecher, ³²and Mikloth, who begot ⁷Shimeah. They also dwelt ⁸alongside their ⁹relatives in Jerusalem, with their brethren. ³³^fNer ¹begot Kish, Kish begot Saul, and Saul begot Jonathan, Malchishua, ²Abinadab, and ³Esh-Baal. ³⁴The son of Jonathan was ⁴Merib-Baal, and Merib-Baal begot ⁹Micah. ³⁵The sons of Micah were Pithon, Melech, ⁵Tarea, and Ahaz. ³⁶And Ahaz begot ⁶Jehoaddah; Jehoaddah begot Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begot Moza. ³⁷Moza begot Binea, ⁷Raphah his son, Eleasah his son, and Azel his son.

³⁸Azel had six sons whose names were these: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Azel. ³⁹And the sons of Eshek his brother were Ulam his firstborn, Jeush the second, and Eliphelet the third.

⁴⁰The sons of Ulam were mighty men of valor—archers. They had many sons and grandsons, one hundred and fifty in all. These were all sons of Benjamin.

9 So ^aall Israel was ¹recorded by genealogies, and indeed, they were inscribed in the book of the kings of Israel. But Judah was carried away captive to Babylon because of their unfaithfulness. ^{2b}And the first inhabitants who dwelt in their possessions in their cities were Israelites, priests, Levites, and ^cthe Nethinim.

Dwellers in Jerusalem

³Now in ^dJerusalem the children of Judah dwelt, and some of the children of Benjamin, and of the children of Ephraim and Manasseh: ⁴Uthai the son of Ammihud, the son of Omri, the son of Imri, the son of Bani, of the descendants of Perez, the son of Judah. ⁵Of the Shilonites: Asaiah the firstborn and his sons. ⁶Of the sons of Zerah: Jeuel, and their brethren—six hundred and ninety. ⁷Of the sons of Benjamin: Sallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Hodaviah, the son of Hassenuah; ⁸Ibneiah the son of Jeroham; Elah the son of Uzzi, the son of Michri; Meshullam the son of Shephatiah, the son of Reuel, the son of Ibnijah; ⁹and their brethren, according to their generations—nine hundred and fifty-six.

8:28 These dwell in Jerusalem: This means that the last generation in the preceding genealogy lived in Jerusalem. This city was not taken by David until approximately 1004 B.C., so the line of Benjamin was traced to at least that time. Moreover, the fact that David succeeded Saul did not mean that all Benjamites were excluded from Jerusalem or for that matter from David's favor. For example, David was careful to attend to Jonathan's survivors (2 Sam. 9:1–13), and he gave other Benjamites positions of responsibility in his new government (11:31; 12:1–7, 29).

8:29 A comparison of this genealogy (vv. 29–40) with that of 9:35–44 shows that the father of Gibeon was Jeiel. The city of Gibeon was a prominent city that existed long before this time, as the conquest narrative makes plain (Josh. 9:1–27).

8:30 Kish was the father of Saul (v. 33; 9:39). In this passage the relationship between Jeiel and Kish is unclear, because Kish is also named as the son of Ner (v. 33). However, in 9:35–39 the lineage is clearly traced from Jeiel to Ner to Kish and finally to Saul.

8:32 Since Saul was not yet born at this point in the genealogy, the Jerusalem here is the city of pre-Davidic times. Jerusalem remained under Jebusite control until David conquered it (2 Sam. 5:6–10). Perhaps at this time the Benjamites lived among the Jebusites.

8:33 Abinadab was eventually killed with his father on the battlefield at Gilboa (see 10:2; 1 Sam. 31:2). Esh-Baal evidently was Saul's youngest son, since he was not named in the genealogies of the beginning of Saul's reign (1 Sam. 14:49). He succeeded Saul as king of the northern kingdom after the five-year period in which Abner was in charge (2 Sam. 2:10; 5:4, 5). The pagan name Esh-Baal demonstrates the degree to which Saul had succumbed to religious syncretism. The author of 2 Samuel attempted to downplay the pagan connotations of Esh-Baal by calling him Ishbosheth, meaning the "Man of Shame" (2 Sam. 2:8).

8:34 The same pagan tendency appears in the name of Jonathan's son. Merib-Baal means something like "Baal Is My Advocate."

9:1 The book or scroll mentioned here was not the canonical books of Kings, because those contain no genealogies. The reference must be to genealogical sources compiled and collected by the scribes of the kings of Israel. carried . . . to Babylon: This reference to the Babylonian captivity prepares the way for the genealogies and lists that follow (vv. 3, 4). As v. 3 points out, the evacuation of the cities and towns of Judah provided dwelling places for the returnees whose names follow.

9:2 Israelites: The deportation of Israel by the Assyrians from 734–722 B.C. resulted in Israel's dispersion throughout the eastern Mediterranean world. However, it is apparent from this verse that some of them joined their Judean brethren in the return from Babylon after 539 B.C. The word Nethinim, derived from the Hebrew verb "to give" and thus meaning "the ones given," refers to temple slaves. Since the Nethinim were distinct from the priests and Levites, these temple slaves must have been from other tribes (see Ezra 2:43; 7:7; Neh. 7:46, 60, 73; 10:28).

9:3 Ephraim and Manasseh: These two tribes descended from Joseph and were especially blessed by the Lord (Gen. 49:22–26; Deut. 33:13–17). However, these two tribes did not belong to the nation of Judah. This is another confirmation that the community included Israelites as well as Judeans.

All these men were heads of a father's house in their fathers' houses.

The Priests at Jerusalem

¹⁰*c* Of the priests: Jedaiah, Jehoiarib, and Jachin; ¹¹² Azariah the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, the officer over the house of God; ¹² Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchijah; Maasai the son of Adiel, the son of Jahzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Meshillemith, the son of Immer; ¹³ and their brethren, heads of their fathers' houses—one thousand seven hundred and sixty. They were ³very able men for the work of the service of the house of God.

The Levites at Jerusalem

¹⁴ Of the Levites: Shemaiah the son of Hasshub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, of the sons of Merari; ¹⁵ Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal, and Mattaniah the son of Micah, the son of Zichri, the son of Asaph; ¹⁶ Obadiah the son of Shemaiah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun; and Berechiah the son of Asa, the son of Elkanah, who lived in the villages of the Netophathites.

brethren, from his father's house, the Korahites, were in charge of the work of the service, ⁴gatekeepers of the tabernacle. Their fathers had been keepers of the entrance to the camp of the LORD. ²⁰ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar had been the officer over them in time past; the LORD was with him. ²¹ ^k Zechariah the son of Meshelemiah was ⁵keeper of the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

²² All those chosen as gatekeepers were two hundred and twelve. ¹ They were recorded by their genealogy, in their villages. David and Samuel ^m the seer had appointed them to their trusted office. ²³ So they and their children were in charge of the gates of the house of the LORD, the house of the tabernacle, by assignment. ²⁴ The gatekeepers were assigned to the four directions: the east, west, north, and south. ²⁵ And their brethren in their villages had to come with them from time to time ⁿ for seven days. ²⁶ For in this trusted office were four chief gatekeepers; they were Levites. And they had charge over the chambers and treasuries of the house of God. ²⁷ And they lodged all around the house of God because ⁶ they had the ^o responsibility, and they were in charge of opening it every morning.

Other Levite Responsibilities

²⁸ Now some of them were in charge of the serving vessels, for they brought them in and took them out by count. ²⁹ Some of them were appointed over the furnishings and over all the implements of the sanctuary, and over the ^p fine flour and the wine and the oil and the incense and the spices. ³⁰ And some of the sons of the priests made ^q the ointment of the spices.

9:14-16 The normal pattern of dividing the genealogy of the Levites according to the three sons of Levi is not followed here (see 6:1). Rather, there are seven families listed in vv. 14-16, six of them living in Jerusalem and the seventh in Netophah. Merari is mentioned, but not Kohath or Gershon. In place of Gershon stands his descendant Asaph (6:39-43). Jeduthun: This is another name for Ethan, descendant of Merari (6:44-47). Both vv. 14 and 16 appear to list Merarites. Elkanah: The presence of this name suggests that this family is Kohathite (6:33-38). Netophathites: This refers to the inhabitants of the village of Netophah, a little over three miles southeast of Bethlehem. The Gershonites and Merarites evidently lived in Jerusalem in the postexilic period, while the Kohathite or the Korahite Levites lived in Netophah.
9:18 King's Gate on the east: This was the famous gate just east of the temple (Ezek. 46:1, 2). After the days of the wilderness tabernacle (Num. 3:27-31), and since the time of Zechariah and the temple of Solomon (v. 21; see 26:1, 2, 14), the Korahites had been responsible for keeping the gates and attending to the place of worship.
9:19 As descendants of Kohath (Ex. 6:18, 21), Korah and his line had close connections with the priesthood. However, they could not be priests since they were descended from Izhar rather than Amram. Their close connection explains why these particular Levites ministered within the precincts of the temple.
9:22 The gatekeepers had been appointed in the days of David and Samuel (see 26:1-19). Since Samuel died long before David made his appointments, the chronicler must be saying that David was encouraged and instructed by the prophet from the days of his youth. In a sense, Samuel appointed the gatekeepers through David.

9:25 The gatekeepers lived in villages surrounding Jerusalem (v. 22). They came to Jerusalem on a rotating schedule to attend to their temple duties, serving for periods of seven days.
9:26 chief gatekeepers: Since there were four sides to the city and temple (v. 24) and four main gates, there must also be four Levites responsible for the oversight of these portals. They opened and closed the gates and provided security (v. 27). However, they also oversaw all the various rooms and other facilities of the temple.
treasuries: This referred to the places where money was kept and to storage rooms in general.
9:27 they lodged: Whereas the Levites who tended the gates lived in surrounding villages, those in charge must have lived in the city, probably near the gates of the temple. They had to be nearby in order to supervise temple affairs, including the opening and closing of the gates.
9:30 Although the Levites could handle such matters as the serving vessels (v. 28), furnishings, implements, and even materials for an offering (such as flour, wine, incense, and spices, v. 29), they were not allowed to prepare the ointment of the spices. This was reserved for the priests alone, as Ex. 30:23-25, 33, 37, 38 states.

³³ These are ^tthe singers, heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites, who lodged in the chambers, and were free from other duties; for they were employed in that work day and night. ³⁴ These heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites were heads throughout their generations. They dwelt at Jerusalem.

The Family of King Saul

³⁵ Jeiel the father of Gibeon, whose wife's name was ^uMaacah, dwelt at Gibeon. ³⁶ His firstborn son was Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, ³⁷ Gedor, Ahio, ⁷Zechariah, and Mikloth. ³⁸ And Mikloth begot ⁸Shimeam. They also dwelt alongside their relatives in Jerusalem, with their brethren. ³⁹ ^vNer begot Kish, Kish begot Saul, and Saul begot Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-Baal. ⁴⁰ The son of Jonathan was Merib-Baal, and Merib-Baal begot Micah. ⁴¹ The sons of Micah were Pithon, Melech, ⁹Tahrea, ^wand ¹Ahaz. ⁴² And Ahaz begot ²Jarah; Jarah begot Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begot Moza; ⁴³ Moza begot Binea, ³Rephaiah his son, Eleasah his son, and Azel his son.

rael fled from before the Philistines, and fell slain on Mount Gilboa. ² Then the Philistines followed hard after Saul and his sons. And the Philistines killed Jonathan, ¹Abinadab, and Malchishua, Saul's sons. ³ The battle became fierce against Saul. The archers hit him, and he was wounded by the archers. ⁴ Then Saul said to his armorbearer, "Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised men come and abuse me." But his armorbearer would not, for he was greatly afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword and fell on it. ⁵ And when his armorbearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword and died. ⁶ So Saul and his three sons died, and all his house died together. ⁷ And when all the men of Israel who were in the valley saw that they had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook their cities and fled; then the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

⁸ So it happened the next day, when the Philistines came to ²strip the slain, that they found Saul and his sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. ⁹ And they stripped him and took his head and his armor, and sent word throughout the land of the Philistines to proclaim the news in the temple of their idols and among the people. ¹⁰ ^b Then they put his armor in the ³temple of their gods, and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon.

¹³ So Saul died for his unfaithfulness which he had ⁴committed against the 9:33, 34 The head singers, like the chief gatekeepers (vv. 26, 27), lived in Jerusalem to be constantly on hand to supervise the ministry of the temple musicians. They dwelt at Jerusalem: In fact, it was the general policy that all the heads of the various Levitical classes would live in the capital.

9:40 The interest the chronicler has in the genealogy of Jonathan probably springs from Jonathan's close friendship with David (1 Sam. 18:1).

10:1 Some 1,700 feet in elevation, Mount Gilboa lies in the southeastern part of the plain of Jezreel. This was Philistine territory from the time they arrived there in about 1200 B.C. The following account of Saul's final battle closely parallels the account in 1 Sam. 31:1-13.

10:2 Saul's sons: There was a fourth son, Ishbosheth. He survived this battle and became king of Israel five years after Saul's death.

10:4 Most Semites practiced circumcision for either hygienic or religious purposes, but for the Hebrews it was the sign of God's promise through Abraham to them. The uncircumcised were those outside, often their enemies the Philistines. abuse: The Philistines could not only harm Saul personally, but bring shame on the nation that had him as their leader. Saul was driven to an extreme course of action. Suicide was a very rare occurrence among the Hebrews of OT times (see v. 5; 2 Sam. 17:23; 1 Kin. 16:18).

10:6 all his house died: This statement was written in anticipation of the death of Ishbosheth, the last of Saul's sons. With Ishbosheth's death (see 2 Sam. 4:5, 7), Saul's dynasty came to an end.

10:7 Though the Philistines had long dominated the Jezreel-Esdraelon Valley, there were Israelite cities in the region for some time. With Saul's death, even these were lost to the Philistines, who took them over when the Israelites abandoned them.

10:10 Dagon was worshiped by the Philistines and other peoples in Syria and northwest Mesopotamia as the god of grain. A hundred years earlier, the Philistines had placed the captured ark of the covenant in the temple of Dagon at Ashdod (1 Sam. 5:2). Later Samson stood between the central pillars of a temple of Dagon, where he was mocked by the assembled Philistines (Judg. 16:23-31). Apparently the Philistines celebrated military victory by bringing a trophy of their success back to their temple, where it could be displayed as a tribute to the might of their god.

10:11 Jabesh Gilead was just east of the Jordan, not far from Beth Shan. The care the people of this town took in retrieving Saul's corpse from Beth Shan was doubtless in memory of Saul's quick response to their cry for help early in his reign (1 Sam. 11:1-11).

10:13 Saul's untimely death was the result of disobedience to God's word. He had disobeyed God by not waiting for Samuel to LORD, ^ebecause he did not keep the word of the LORD, and also because ^fhe consulted a medium for guidance. ¹⁴But he did not inquire of the LORD; therefore He killed him, and ^gturned the kingdom over to David the son of Jesse.

David Made King over All Israel

11 Then ^aall Israel came together to David at Hebron, saying, “Indeed we are your bone and your flesh. ²Also, in time past, even when Saul was king, you were the one who led Israel out and brought them in; and the LORD your ^bGod said to you, ‘You shall ^cshepherd My people Israel, and be ruler over My people Israel.’” ³Therefore all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, and David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD. And ^dthey anointed David king over Israel, according to the word of the LORD ¹by ^eSamuel.

The City of David

⁴And David and all Israel ^fwent to Jerusalem, which is Jebus, ^gwhere the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land. ⁵But the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, “You shall not come in here!” Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion (that is, the City of David). ⁶Now David said, “Whoever attacks the Jebusites first shall be ²chief and captain.” And Joab the son of Zeruiah went up first, and became chief. ⁷Then David dwelt in the strong-

The Mighty Men of David

¹⁰Now ^jthese were the heads of the mighty men whom David had, who strengthened themselves with him in his kingdom, with all Israel, to make him king, according to ^kthe word of the LORD concerning Israel.
¹¹And this is the number of the mighty men whom David had: ¹Jashobeam the son of a Hachmonite, ^mchief of ⁶the captains; he had lifted up his spear against three hundred, killed by him at one time.
¹²After him was Eleazar the son of ⁿDodo, the Ahohite, who was one of the three mighty men. ¹³He was with David at ⁷Pasdammin. Now there the Philistines were gathered for battle, and there was a piece of ground full of barley. So the people fled from the Philistines. ¹⁴But they ⁸stationed themselves in the middle of that field, defended it, and killed the Philistines. So the LORD brought about a great victory.
¹⁵Now three of the thirty chief men ^owent down to the rock to David, into the cave of Adullam; and the army of the Philistines encamped ^pin the Valley of ⁹Rephaim. ¹⁶David was then in the perform a sacrifice and by not utterly destroying the Amalekites (1 Sam. 13:1-15; 15:10-23). consulted a medium: Before the battle, Saul had asked for Samuel's advice through the witch of En Dor (1 Sam. 28:3-25).

10:14 He killed him: This statement is shocking in its bluntness. In the final analysis, Saul's death was not by his own hand but by the hand of God. The Lord let Saul pursue a course that led to death.
turned the kingdom over: This statement confirmed Samuel's earlier word to Saul (1 Sam. 15:28).
11:1, 2 Made famous because Abraham lived (Gen. 13:18) and was buried there (Gen. 25:9), Hebron was a Levitical city as well (6:54, 55). David made it his capital following Saul's death (2 Sam. 2:3) and reigned there until Ishbosheth's death seven years later (2 Sam. 4:1-12; 5:5). David's legitimacy as successor to Saul was confirmed by the support he received from all the tribes. You shall . . . be ruler: The crowds were very much aware of the promise God had made to David (1 Sam. 16:12; 24:20; 28:17).
11:3 The covenant refers to mutual pledges made between a king and his people, ensuring stable and successful government. The Law of Moses made provision for such a covenant (see Deut. 17:18-20). Hints of the king's covenant guidelines may be found in the accession of Solomon (29:19; 1 Kin. 2:3) and Joash (2 Kin. 11:4), and in Josiah's promise to obey the statutes of the Book of the Covenant (2 Kin. 23:2, 3). according to . . . Samuel: Years before, Samuel had anointed David (1 Sam. 16:1, 3, 12, 13). This second anointing confirmed the first one.
11:4 Jebus was another name for Jerusalem. The name was coined by the Israelites because the city belonged to the Jebusites. The name does not occur outside the OT (see Josh. 15:8; 18:16, 28).
11:5 Another name for Jerusalem was Zion. The original Canaanite city, surrounded by high, thick walls, was considered a stronghold. After David took the city and made it his capital, it became known as the City of David. When the temple was built on Mt. Moriah (2 Chr. 3:1), a hill just north of the city, that area and sometimes the whole city was called Mt. Zion.

11:6 The stronghold of Zion (11:5) seemed impregnable until Joab found a means of access. As a result, Joab was rewarded with the command of Israel's army. He already enjoyed a close relationship with David because he was a son of Zeruiah, David's sister (2:15, 16).
11:8 Once David occupied Mt. Ophel, the original and very small area of Jerusalem, he greatly enlarged it by building retaining walls along the Kidron valley to the east and south and the Tyropoeon valley (or the Valley of Maktesh) to the west. Between these walls and the top of the hill he built terraces, so that various buildings could be constructed there.
11:10, 11 the mighty men: This phrase applied to three persons, Jashobeam, Eleazar (v. 12), and Shammah (see 2 Sam. 23:11, 12). They were distinguished for their bravery and their service to David. Joab, already singled out as "chief" (v. 6), was above them in rank.
Jashobeam: This first of the mighty men, known in 2 Sam. 23:8 as Josheb-Basshebeth, showed his heroism by slaying three hundred of the enemy single-handed. This event is recorded only here.
11:15 Another elite group of three, not named in this episode, penetrated the defenses of the Philistines. The cave of Adullam was about 12 miles southwest of Bethlehem and was one of David's favorite hiding places in the days of his flight from Saul (1 Sam. 22:1). The Valley of Rephaim is southwest of Jerusalem in the direction of Adullam.

stronghold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Bethlehem. ¹⁷ And David said with longing, “Oh, that someone would give me a drink of water from the well of Bethlehem, which is by the gate!” ¹⁸ So the three broke through the camp of the Philistines, drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and took it and brought it to David. Nevertheless David would not drink it, but poured it out to the LORD. ¹⁹ And he said, “Far be it from me, O my God, that I should do this! Shall I drink the blood of these men who have put their lives in jeopardy? For at the risk of their lives they brought it.” Therefore he would not drink it. These things were done by the three mighty men.

²⁰ ^q Abishai the brother of Joab was chief of another ¹ three. He had lifted up his spear against three hundred men, killed them, and won a name among these three. ²¹ ^r Of the three he was more honored than the other two men. Therefore he became their captain. However he did not attain to the first three.

²² Benaiah was the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man from Kabzeel, who ² had done many deeds. ^s He had killed two lion-like heroes of Moab. He also had gone down and killed a lion in the midst of a pit on a snowy day. ²³ And he killed an Egyptian, a man of great height, ³ five cubits tall. In the Egyptian’s hand there was a spear like a weaver’s beam; and he went down to him with a staff, wrested the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand, and killed him with his own spear. ²⁴ These things Benaiah the son of Jehoiada did, and won a name among three mighty men. ²⁵ Indeed he was more honored than the thirty, but he did not attain to

The Growth of David’s Army

12 Now ^a these were the men who came to David at ^b Ziklag while he was still a fugitive from Saul the son of 11:18 David would not drink it: This was not an act of ingratitude. To the contrary, David expressed the utmost sense of appreciation. His men had risked their lives to bring water to David, and now in the face of their selflessness he felt unworthy to drink it. He poured it out to the LORD as though it were an offering of blood (v. 19).

11:20 Abishai was a brother of Joab and a son of David’s sister Zeruiah (2:16). Like Joab, Abishai was chief over other warriors because of his great exploits.

11:21 the first three: This refers to Jashobeam, Eleazar (vv. 11, 12), and Shammah. Chronicles does not mention the third one by name (see 2 Sam. 23:11, 12) but does acknowledge his existence (v. 12). For reasons not spelled out, Abishai was not qualified to be in the ranks of the first three.

11:23 Five cubits was about seven and a half feet.

11:24 three mighty men: Only Abishai and Benaiah were named as members of this group.

11:25 The next level below Joab, the commander, and the two groups of “three mighty men” was the thirty. Their names appear in vv. 26–47 and also in 2 Sam. 23:24–39. The term thirty may denote an elite military unit that consisted of approximately 30 men. The term does not indicate a literal number, because the list in vv. 26–47 includes more than 30 names.

11:26 Asahel was the third son of David’s sister Zeruiah (2:16). Apparently he was not one of the “three mighty men,” but his position as first in the list of “the thirty” suggests that he had a high rank. He may have failed to achieve greater prominence because of his untimely death at the hand of Abner (2 Sam. 2:18–23).

11:39 Ammonite: Some of David’s heroes were not Israelites. They may have been immigrants or mercenaries.

11:41 Uriah the Hittite: The irony of including this warrior in the list is obvious from the story of his death at the hands of David and Joab (2 Sam. 11:6–17). With remarkable candor, both Samuel and Chronicles include Uriah’s name among the 30.

11:42 Adina . . . the Reubenite also appears to have led a group of the thirty. Though there are only 16 names from Zabad through Jaasiel (vv. 41, 47), these 16 might have formed the nucleus of such a military unit. The others were no longer known, or the list was drawn up before the unit was complete.

12:1 About 25 miles southwest of Gath, Ziklag became David’s private possession. He received it after he had crossed over into Philistia to get away from Saul and had placed himself under the lordship of Achish, the ruler of the city-state of Gath (1 Sam. 27:1–7). As an ally and vassal of Achish, David was required to pay tribute and show his loyalty and submission. Therefore, he made raids from Kish; and they were among the mighty men, helpers in the war, ²armed with bows, using both the right hand and *c*the left in hurling stones and shooting arrows with the bow. They were of Benjamin, Saul's brethren.

³The chief was Ahiezer, then Joash, the sons of ¹Shemaah the Gibeathite; Jeziel and Pelet the sons of Azmaveth; Berachah, and Jehu the Anathothite; ⁴Ishmaiah the Gibeonite, a mighty man among the thirty, and over the thirty; Jeremiah, Jahaziel, Johanan, and Jozabad the Gederathite; ⁵Eluzai, Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, and Shephatiah the Haruphite; ⁶Elkanah, Jisshiah, Azarel, Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korahites; ⁷and Joelah and Zebadiah the sons of Jeroham of Gedor.

⁸*Some* Gadites ²joined David at the stronghold in the wilderness, mighty men of valor, men trained for battle, who could handle shield and spear, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and were ^das swift as gazelles on the mountains: ⁹Ezer the first, Obadiah the second, Eliab the third, ¹⁰Mishmannah the fourth, Jeremiah the fifth, ¹¹Attai the sixth, Eliel the seventh, ¹²Johanan the eighth, Elzabad the ninth, ¹³Jeremiah the tenth, and Machbanai the eleventh. ¹⁴These were from the sons of Gad, captains of the army; the least was over a hundred, and the greatest was over a *e*thousand. ¹⁵These are the ones who crossed the Jordan in the first month, when it had overflowed all its ^fbanks; and they put to flight all those in the valleys, to the east and to the west.

¹⁶Then some of the sons of Benjamin and Judah came to David at the stronghold. ¹⁷And David went out ³to meet them, and answered and said to them, "If you have come peaceably to me to help me, my heart will be united with you; but if to betray me to my enemies, since there is no ⁴wrong in my hands, may the God of our fathers look and bring judgment." ¹⁸Then the Spirit ⁵came upon ^gAmasai, chief of the captains, and he said:

"We are yours, O David;
We are on your side, O son of Jesse!
Peace, peace to you,
And peace to your helpers!
For your God helps you."

So David received them, and made them captains of the troop.

¹⁹And some from Manasseh defected to David ^hwhen he was going with the Philistines to battle against Saul; but they did not help them, for the lords of the Philistines sent him away by agreement, saying, ⁱ"He may defect to his master Saul and endanger our heads." ²⁰When

Ziklag against various desert tribes, seizing their properties and bringing some of the plunder back to the Philistines. The rest he distributed to his own countrymen without the Philistines' knowledge. Meanwhile, David was joined at Ziklag by many other "outlaws" and refugees from Judah until he had a sizable number of mighty men there (1 Sam. 27:8–12).

12:2 Included among his warriors were ambidextrous Benjamites, some of Saul's own fellow tribesmen. This shows the extent of dissatisfaction with Saul's rule. That these Benjamites could use the right hand as well as the left was ironic, because the name Benjamin means "Son of the Right Hand" (see Judg. 20:16).

12:4 This may suggest that the Benjamites listed here formed a unit known technically as the thirty (see 11:25), although not exactly 30 names are recorded here.

12:6 Since the other heroes such as the Gibeathite in v. 3 were listed by their place of origin, Korah was probably the name of a place in Benjamin. These Korahites should not be confused with the Levites of that name (9:19).

12:8 David had attracted a following from all over Israel. The Gadites came from the far northern and central areas east of the Jordan (5:11–17) to join him. The stronghold was the cave of Adullam, David's principal place of refuge in the Judean wilderness (see 11:15; 1 Sam. 22:1).

12:14 hundred . . . thousand: These were terms for military units which may or may not have had precisely that many men. The Gadites were so famous for their valor and leadership skills (v. 8) that they rose to high ranks in David's army.

12:15 According to the agricultural calendar, the first month was Nisan, corresponding approximately to April. This was the time of the spring rains (Deut. 11:14), when the rivers were often at flood stage (see Josh. 3:13; 4:18, 19). Ordinarily a person could not cross the Jordan at such times, but the Gadites were not deterred by such obstacles.

12:18 Amasai was probably an alternative spelling of Amasa, the son of David's sister Abigail (2:17). He became David's army commander after Joab had fallen from favor (2 Sam. 19:13), but he held the post for only a short time before being assassinated by Joab (2 Sam. 20:4–13). The murder was all the more reprehensible because Joab and Amasa were first cousins.

12:19 Manasseh defected: This incident reveals how compromised David's position was when he, as vassal to Achish of Gath (see v. 1), was pressed into joining the Philistines against Saul at Gilboa (1 Sam. 29:1–11). As it turned out, the other Philistine rulers outvoted Achish and sent David back to Ziklag before he had to go to war against his Israelite countrymen.

peace

(Heb. shalom) (12:18; Gen. 43:23; Num. 6:26; Is. 54:13)
Strong's #7965

This word conveys the idea of completeness and well-being—of being a perfect whole. The word denotes an absence of discomfort, whether physical ailments or strife, internal or external (Gen. 43:28; Is. 26:3; Eccl. 3:8). It is used as an ordinary greeting, as a word of assurance, and as a term of blessing (Gen. 43:23; 1 Sam. 25:5, 6; 2 Kin. 5:19). The prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel spoke out against the false prophets of their day for erroneously prophesying peace (Jer. 6:14; 8:11; Ezek. 13:10, 16). After God's judgment fell, Jeremiah proclaimed that God's thoughts toward the captives were for peace and not evil (Jer. 29:11). The word occurs in two important messianic prophecies identifying the Messiah as the Prince of Peace and the One who would assure our peace (Is. 9:6; 53:5).

he went to Ziklag, those of Manasseh who defected to him were Adnah, Joabab, Jediahel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, captains of the thousands who were from Manasseh. ²¹ And they helped David against ^jthe bands of raiders, for they were all mighty men of valor, and they were captains in the army. ²² For at that time they came to David day by day to help him, until it was a great army, ^klike the army of God.

David's Army at Hebron

²³ Now these were the numbers of the ⁶divisions that were equipped for war, and ^lcame to David at ^mHebron to ⁿturn over the kingdom of Saul to him, ^oaccording to the word of the LORD: ²⁴ of the sons of Judah bearing shield and spear, six thousand eight hundred ⁷armed for war; ²⁵ of the sons of Simeon, mighty men of valor fit for war, seven thousand one hundred; ²⁶ of the sons of Levi four thousand six hundred; ²⁷ Jehoiaada, the leader of the Aaronites, and with him three thousand seven hundred; ²⁸ ^pZadok, a young man, a valiant warrior, and from his father's house twenty-two captains; ²⁹ of the sons of Benjamin, relatives of Saul, three thousand (until then ^qthe greatest part of them had remained loyal to the house of Saul); ³⁰ of the sons of Ephraim twenty thousand eight hundred, mighty men of valor, ⁸famous men throughout their father's house; ³¹ of the half-tribe of Manasseh eighteen thousand, who were designated by name to come and make David king; ³² of the sons of Issachar ^rwho had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do, their chiefs were two hundred; and all their brethren were at their command; ³³ of Zebulun there were fifty thousand who went out to battle, expert in war with all weapons of war, ^sstouthearted men who could keep ranks; ³⁴ of Naphtali one thousand captains, and with them thirty-seven thousand with shield and spear; ³⁵ of the Danites who could keep battle formation, twenty-eight thousand six hundred; ³⁶ of Asher, those who could go out to war, able to keep battle formation, forty thousand; ³⁷ of the Reubenites and the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh, from the other side of the Jordan, one hundred and twenty thousand armed for battle with every kind of weapon of war.

³⁸ All these men of war, who could keep ranks, came to Hebron with a loyal heart, to make David king over all Israel; and all the rest of Israel were of ^tone mind to make David king. ³⁹ And they were there with David three days, eating and drinking, for their brethren had prepared for them. ⁴⁰ Moreover those who were near to them, from as far away as Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, were bringing food on donkeys and camels, on mules and oxen—provisions of flour and cakes of figs and cakes of raisins, wine and oil and oxen and sheep abundantly, for there was joy in Israel.

The Ark Brought from Kirjath Jearim

13 Then David consulted with the ^acaptains of thousands and hundreds, and with every leader. ² And David said to all the assembly of Israel, "If it seems good to you, and if it is of the LORD our God, let us send out to our brethren everywhere who are ^bleft in all the land of Israel, and with them to the priests and Levites who are in their cities and their common-lands, that they may gather together to us; ³ and let us bring the ark of our God back to us, ^cfor we

12:21 When David returned to Ziklag, he found that Amalekites had attacked the city and carried off his family with other prisoners (1 Sam. 30:1). Those who had abandoned David in his march to Gilboa (v. 19) now joined him in his pursuit of these raiders (1 Sam. 30:2-25).

12:22 The army of God refers to the angelic hosts, too vast to count. David attracted so many recruits while he was in the wilderness in flight from Saul and at Ziklag that they were beyond counting.

12:28 This Zadok, apparently an Aaronite (v. 27) and therefore a priest, was probably the same Zadok who was first appointed by David as priest at Gibeon (16:39), and then by Solomon at Jerusalem (1 Kin. 2:26, 27, 35). The office of priest was not incompatible with that of warrior, as Phinehas clearly demonstrated (Num. 25:6-9; Josh. 22:30).

12:39 eating and drinking: Besides the normal festivity that accompanied such a grand occasion as the installation of a king, this phrase alludes to a covenant meal (Gen. 31:43-55; Ex. 24:11)—a meal that solemnized a covenant between David and the people (11:3).

12:40 Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali were geographically the most distant of the tribes. The phrase near to them was a way of speaking of the common identity of God's people.

13:1 David consulted: Though David was king and therefore could have acted independently, he understood the importance of godly counsel. Before he undertook the next major step, he sought the advice of his subordinate leaders.

13:2 This ark was the ark of the covenant that contained a copy of the Ten Commandments (Ex. 25:10-22). In the days of Eli, the ark had been captured by the Philistines, in whose hands it remained for several months (1 Sam. 4:11; 6:1). Next it remained at Beth Shemesh for a short time (1 Sam. 6:13-15) and finally it resided at Kirjath Jearim (1 Sam. 6:20-7:1). since the days of Saul: During Saul's reign, the people of Kirjath Jearim kept the ark in their city for safekeeping. Besides holding the Ten Commandments and serving as a throne for God, the ark represented the presence of the living God among the Israelites. David wanted to unify the Israelites around their God, so he brought the ark to the nation's new political center, Jerusalem. The city was already the seat of David's government (11:4-9); now it would become the dwelling place of God.

have not inquired at it since the days of Saul.” ⁴Then all the assembly said that they would do so, for the thing was right in the eyes of all the people.

⁵So ^dDavid gathered all Israel together, from ^cShihor in Egypt to as far as the entrance of Hamath, to bring the ark of God ^ffrom Kirjath Jearim. ⁶And David and all Israel went up to ^gBaalath, ⁱto Kirjath Jearim, which belonged to Judah, to bring up from there the ark of God the LORD, ^hwho dwells between the cherubim, where His name is proclaimed. ⁷So they ²carried the ark of God ⁱon a new cart ^jfrom the house of Abinadab, and Uzza and Ahio drove the cart. ⁸Then ^kDavid and all Israel played music before God with all their might, with ³singing, on harps, on stringed instruments, on tambourines, on cymbals, and with trumpets.

⁹And when they came to ⁴Chidon’s threshing floor, Uzza put out his hand to hold the ark, for the oxen ⁵stumbled. ¹⁰Then the anger of the LORD was aroused against Uzza, and He struck him ^lbecause he put his hand to the ark; and he ^mdied there before God. ¹¹And David became angry because of the LORD’s outbreak against Uzza; therefore that place is called ⁶Perez Uzza to this day. ¹²David was afraid of God that day, saying, “How can I bring the ark of God to me?”

¹³So David would not move the ark with him into the City of David, but took it aside into the house of Obed-Edom the Gittite. ^{14 n}The ark of God remained with the family of Obed-Edom in his house three months. And the LORD blessed ^othe house of Obed-Edom and all that he had.

David Established at Jerusalem

14 Now ^aHiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to build him a house. ²So David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel, for his kingdom was ^bhighly exalted for the sake of His people Israel.

³Then David took more wives in Jerusalem, and David begot more sons and daughters. ⁴And ^cthese are the names of his children whom he had in Jerusalem: ¹Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, ⁵Ibhar, ²Elishua, ³Elpelet, ⁶Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, ⁷Elishama, ⁴Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

The Philistines Defeated

⁸Now when the Philistines heard that ^dDavid had been anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up to search for David. And David heard of it and went out against them. ⁹Then the Philistines went and made a raid ^eon

13:4 Again the chronicler highlighted the unity of the whole nation by saying that all the people agreed with David’s decision to bring the ark to Jerusalem.

13:5 Shihor in Egypt: This was another way of referring to the Wadi el-Arish or “River of Egypt” that marked the boundary between Egypt and Canaan. This was Israel’s most southwestern point (see Num. 34:5; Josh. 13:3). entrance of Hamath: This was the most northern point of the kingdom under David, about one hundred miles north of the Sea of Galilee. It was also known as Lebo Hamath (Josh. 13:5; Judg. 3:3; 2 Chr. 7:8).

13:6 A major feature of the Most Holy Place in both the tabernacle and temple was the ark. Above and behind the ark of the covenant, cherubim extended their wings over the cover (also called the mercy seat) of the ark (Ex. 25:17–22). The glory of God was perceived as sitting upon the top of the ark as a king sat on a throne. His name: In Deuteronomy, the presence of God is often spoken of as the presence of His name (see Deut. 12:1–14).

13:7 Only the Levites carried the ark. They carried it on their shoulders with poles passing through rings on the ark’s corners (Num. 4:1–16).

13:9 Chidon’s threshing floor is also called “Nachon’s threshing floor” (2 Sam. 6:6). A threshing floor was a flat rocky surface on which grain was crushed by threshing sledges drawn by oxen. The floor was probably in or near Kirjath Jearim, for it is unlikely that the cart had gone far before God exposed to them their error in transporting the ark in a way contrary to His commands.

13:10 God struck Uzza dead because of the sacred inviolability of the ark. It was a holy object, representing the presence of God Himself (Ex. 25:21, 22), so it had to be handled in accord with the strictest regulations (Num. 4:5). Handling the ark in any other way, even with the best intention, invited God’s anger (Num. 4:15). The narrative dramatically demonstrates God’s holiness. His people had to approach Him with respectful awe.

13:11 The threshing floor of Chidon was renamed Perez Uzza, meaning “Outburst Against Uzza.” From that time forward, the name of this place would remind people that violating God’s holiness meant inviting His wrath.

13:13 A Gittite means someone from Gath, the name of several cities. Since Obed-Edom was a Levite (15:18, 24), he was probably from the Levitical city of Gath Rimmon in Dan (Josh. 21:25).

14:1, 2 A powerful king of the Phoenician city-state of Tyre, Hiram is mentioned in the Scriptures and in other sources. He was a contemporary of both David and Solomon. His work for David, constructing a royal palace, must have begun late in David’s reign. Hiram supplied material for the temple and other buildings, a project not completed until Solomon’s twentieth year (1 Kin. 9:10). All this indicates that the chronicler was not writing in chronological order about the building of David’s palace and the arrival of the ark. These did not take place early in his reign, but toward the end. build him a house: Once a king in the ancient Middle Eastern world had firmly established himself, he built a palace to publicize that fact. As v. 2 explicitly states, David built his palace with the understanding that God alone had put him in power and exalted him.

14:3 In addition to the wives he had taken in Hebron (2 Sam. 3:2–5), David married others in Jerusalem. Although the Bible never justifies polygamy, ancient kings frequently undertook multiple marriages for political reasons—a king would marry the daughter of another king in order to create a stronger alliance. The larger a king’s harem, the more prestige the king enjoyed (see 3:1–5).

14:4 The four children listed here were all sons of Bathshua (Bathsheba; see 3:5).

14:9 Extending southwest from Jerusalem and marking the northern border of Judah (Josh. 15:8), the Valley of Rephaim was the scene of many battles between Israel and the Philistines (11:15, 16; see 2 Sam. 5:17–22; 23:13–17). The conflict here was a preemptive strike by the Philistines designed to prevent David from taking Jerusalem and making it the capital of Israel (11:4–9). God demonstrated that He was with David by granting him victory over the Philistines.

the Valley of ⁵Rephaim. ¹⁰And David ^finquired of God, saying, “Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will You deliver them into my hand?”

The LORD said to him, “Go up, for I will deliver them into your hand.”

¹¹So they went up to Baal Perazim, and David defeated them there. Then David said, “God has broken through my enemies by my hand like a breakthrough of water.” Therefore they called the name of that place ⁶Baal Perazim. ¹²And when they left their gods there, David gave a commandment, and they were burned with fire.

^{13g}Then the Philistines once again made a raid on the valley. ¹⁴Therefore David inquired again of God, and God said to him, “You shall not go up after them; circle around them, ^hand come upon them in front of the mulberry trees. ¹⁵And it shall be, when you hear a sound of marching in the tops of the mulberry trees, then you shall go out to battle, for God has gone out before you to strike the camp of the Philistines.” ¹⁶So David did as God commanded him, and they drove back the army of the Philistines from ⁷Gibeon as far as Gezer. ¹⁷Then ⁱthe fame of David went out into all lands, and the LORD ^jbrought the fear of him upon all nations.

The Ark Brought to Jerusalem

15 David built houses for himself in the City of David; and he prepared a place for the ark of God, ^aand pitched a tent for it. ²Then David said, “No one may carry the ^bark of God but the Levites, for ^cthe LORD has chosen them to carry the ark of God and to minister before Him forever.” ³And David ^dgathered all Israel together at Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the LORD to its place, which he had prepared for it. ⁴Then David assembled the children of Aaron and the Levites: ⁵of the sons of Kohath, Uriel the chief, and one hundred and twenty of his ¹brethren; ⁶of the sons of Merari, Asaiah the chief, and two hundred and twenty of his brethren; ⁷of the sons of Gershon, Joel the chief, and one hundred and thirty of his brethren; ⁸of the sons of ^eElizaphan, Shemaiah the chief, and two hundred of his brethren; ⁹of the sons of ^fHebron, Eliel the chief, and eighty of his brethren; ¹⁰of the sons of Uzziel, Amminadab the chief, and one hundred and twelve of his brethren.

¹¹And David called for ^gZadok and ^hAbiathar the priests, and for the Levites: for Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. ¹²He said to them, “You are the heads of the fathers’ houses of the Levites; ²sanctify yourselves, you and your brethren, that you may bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel to the place I have prepared for it. ¹³For ⁱbecause you did not do it the first time, ^jthe LORD our God broke out against us, because we did not consult Him ³about the proper order.”

¹⁴So the priests and the Levites ⁴sanctified themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel. ¹⁵And the children of the Levites bore the ark of God on their shoulders, by its poles, as ^kMoses had commanded according to the word of the LORD.

14:15 God has gone out before you: The strategy for this battle was different (vv. 10, 14) because God wanted David to understand that the battle was His, not David’s. People often attribute their success to their own intelligence or strength, overlooking the fact that God is the source of all victories.

14:16 Gibeon was about 6 miles northwest of Jerusalem, and Gezer was about 16 miles west of Gibeon. The Philistines evidently left the Valley of Rephaim, fled north to Gibeon, and then were pursued all the way to Gezer, a town close to their own territory.

15:1 The place for the ark was in the tabernacle in the City of David. The original tabernacle built in Moses’ day had been placed at Shiloh, in central Manasseh (Josh. 18:1). It remained there until the capture of the ark by the Philistines (1 Sam. 4:1–11), when it evidently was moved to Nob, just two miles from Jerusalem (1 Sam. 21:1–6). Next, the tabernacle was moved to a high place at Gibeon (2 Chr. 1:3), about two miles north of Saul’s city Gibeath. When David became king, he left the Mosaic tabernacle at Gibeon and appointed the priest Zadok to attend to its ministry (16:39). Even after he had built a new tabernacle on Mt. Zion and brought the ark into it, the original tabernacle remained at Gibeon. Finally, Solomon brought the ark from Mt. Zion and the “tabernacle of meeting” (the tabernacle of Moses) from Gibeon and stored them in the new temple Solomon had built on Mt. Moriah (2 Chr. 5:4, 5).

15:2 Having learned his lesson from the incident with Uzza (13:10), David commanded that the ark of God be moved this time according to the provisions of the Law. It was to be carried by Levites by means of poles inserted through corner rings (Num. 4:14, 15).

15:5–7 David divided the Levites into divisions according to their genealogies. Uriel was head of the Kohathite clan (6:24), Asaiah was chief of the Merarites (6:30), and Joel was leader of the Gershonites (23:8).

15:8–10 All three of the following families were subclans of the Kohathites. Elizaphan was a grandson of Kohath (Ex. 6:18, 22), Hebron was a son of Kohath (Ex. 6:18), and Uzziel was another son of Kohath (Ex. 6:18).

15:11 The transition from the rule of Saul to David involved a transition from the old Mosaic tabernacle to the new place David had established on Mt. Zion in preparation for the temple (see v. 1). The father of Abiathar, the priest Ahimelech, was in charge of the old tabernacle when it left Shiloh and was moved to Nob (1 Sam. 21:1). Ahimelech (also known as Ahijah; see 1 Sam. 14:3; 22:9) was Eli’s great-grandson. Eli must have been a descendant of Aaron’s son Ithamar, for the priesthood was taken from his line and given to the line of Eleazar, another son of Aaron (6:3, 4; see 1 Sam. 2:22–36). The line of Eleazar produced Zadok (6:8). During David’s time, representatives of both the Ithamar and Eleazar high-priestly lineages served concurrently. Zadok, who descended from Eleazar, served at the tabernacle at Gibeon. Abiathar, a descendant of Ithamar, was chief priest at Jerusalem. When Solomon came to power, Abiathar was deposed and Zadok ministered as high priest at the temple (1 Kin. 2:26, 27, 35).

¹⁶Then David spoke to the leaders of the Levites to appoint their brethren to be the singers accompanied by instruments of music, stringed instruments, harps, and cymbals, by raising the voice with resounding joy. ¹⁷So the Levites appointed ¹Heman the son of Joel; and of his brethren, ^mAsaph the son of Berechiah; and of their brethren, the sons of Merari, ⁿEthan the son of Kushaiah; ¹⁸and with them their brethren of the second rank: Zechariah, ⁵Ben, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Elipheleh, Mikneiah, Obed-Edom, and Jeiel, the gatekeepers; ¹⁹the singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, were to sound the cymbals of bronze; ²⁰Zechariah, ⁶Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah, with strings according to ^oAlamoth; ²¹Mattithiah, Elipheleh, Mikneiah, Obed-Edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah, to direct with harps on the ^pSheminith; ²²Chenaniah, leader of the Levites, was instructor in charge of the music, because he was skillful; ²³Berechiah and Elkanah were doorkeepers

²⁵So ^sDavid, the elders of Israel, and the captains over thousands went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of Obed-Edom with joy. ²⁶And so it was, when God helped the Levites who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, that they offered seven bulls and seven rams. ²⁷David was clothed with a robe of fine ^tlinen, as were all the Levites who bore the ark, the singers, and Chenaniah the music master with the singers. David also wore a linen ephod. ²⁸^uThus all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting and with the sound of the horn, with trumpets and with cymbals, making music with stringed instruments and harps.

²⁹And it happened, ^vas the ark of the covenant of the LORD came to the City of David, that Michal, Saul's daughter, 15:17 The musician Heman was the grandson of the prophet Samuel (see 6:33), a Kohathite. He is probably the same Heman who appears in the superscription of Ps. 88. Asaph was leader of the Gershonite Levites (6:39, 43). Asaph and his sons ministered primarily as singers (25:1, 2; 2 Chr. 20:14) and composers, as their superscriptions suggest (Ps. 50; 73–83). Ethan was the head of the Merarite division of musicians (6:44). Ethan might be the same as “Ethan the Ezrahite,” composer of Ps. 89 and known as a wise man (1 Kin. 4:31).

15:18 second rank: The musicians apparently occupied a place of higher status than the gatekeepers, who are mentioned next (see 9:17–27).

15:20 strings according to Alamoth: The musicians listed here are the same as the gatekeepers of v. 18. Since gatekeeping was on a rotating basis and might not have required full-time attention, these two responsibilities could have been combined.

15:21 The word Sheminith might be derived from the Hebrew word for “eighth,” referring to the musical scales.

15:23 The responsibility of the doorkeepers for the ark appears limited to the task of moving the ark from the house of Obed-Edom to the Davidic tabernacle.

15:24 It is likely that Obed-Edom in this verse was the same person who had custody of the ark in the months just before it was brought to Jerusalem (13:13, 14). He apparently was a Levite (see 13:13) and was certainly a righteous man (see v. 25; 16:38).

15:29 David had married Michal, Saul's daughter, at the beginning of his time of service in Saul's court (1 Sam. 18:27). Their relationship had been stormy, perhaps in part because David had spent at least ten years in flight from her father. In fact, Saul had annulled the marriage and had given Michal to another man (1 Sam. 25:44). One of the conditions of David's peace agreement with Abner and the reunification of the nation under David's kingship was that Michal be returned to him (2 Sam. 3:13–16). Michal was one of the few links remaining between David and the dynasty of Saul. For the transfer of government from Saul to David to be complete, it was necessary for Saul's daughter to be transferred back to David—even against her will. When Michal saw David rejoicing at the return of the ark, she despised him out of loyalty to her father and anger that she had been forced to return.

King David as Priest

David's actions on the day that the ark of the covenant was brought into Jerusalem were peculiar for a king. First, David put on a linen ephod. This fine garment represented God's presence among His people and was part of the uniform of the high priest (Ex. 28:4; 1 Sam. 2:28). Then, after celebrating before the Lord and offering sacrifices to Him, David blessed the people. Blessing the people after their participation in sacrificial worship was another task of the priests (Lev. 9:22, 23; Num. 6:23). David's dress and behavior on that day resembled that of a priest (1 Chr. 15:27; 16:1–3).

The author of Hebrews gives us some insight into what occurred on that day, for he describes a priestly line different from Aaron's line—the priestly line of Melchizedek (Heb. 4:14–16; 7:20–28; 8:6). Like David, Melchizedek was a king, the king of Salem. But he was more than king; he also functioned as a priest, one who blessed Abraham (Gen. 14:18–20; Heb. 7:1–3). The Book of Hebrews identifies Jesus, a descendant of David's royal line, as a royal priest of the order of Melchizedek. Moreover, Jesus' priesthood is far superior to that of Aaron (Heb. 5:5–11; 6:13–20; 7:1–10). In the course of discussion, the author of Hebrews cites Ps. 110, a psalm of David. This psalm teaches that there would someday be a priest from a different line than Aaron's who would be a priest forever. This is Jesus, the Son of David, as the author of Hebrews explains. Thus, when David took on some of the roles of a priest on this occasion, he was acting as a royal priest in the order of Melchizedek. He was anticipating the priestly role of the Second David, Jesus Christ, who now sits as High Priest at the right hand of God the Father (Heb. 8:1).

looked through a window and saw King David whirling and playing music; and she despised him in her heart.

The Ark Placed in the Tabernacle

16 So ^athey brought the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tabernacle that David had erected for it. Then they offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before God. ²And when David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the peace offerings, ^bhe blessed the people in the name of the LORD. ³Then he distributed to everyone of Israel, both man and woman, to everyone a loaf of bread, a piece of meat, and a cake of raisins.

⁴And he appointed some of the Levites to minister before the ark of the LORD, to ^ccommemorate, to thank, and to praise the LORD God of Israel: ⁵Asaph the chief, and next to him Zechariah, then ^dJeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, and Obed-Edom: Jeiel with stringed instruments and harps, but Asaph made music with cymbals; ⁶Benaiah and Jahaziel the priests regularly blew the trumpets before the ark of the covenant of God.

David's Song of Thanksgiving

⁷On that day ^eDavid ^ffirst delivered this psalm into the hand of Asaph and his brethren, to thank the LORD:

16:3 he distributed: David's distribution of food was in line with the nature of the peace offerings of vv. 1, 2. Such offerings often accompanied occasions of praise and thanksgiving such as this one. They were unique in that they provided a common meal in which all participated—the offerer, his family and friends, the priests, and even God (Lev. 7:11–14, 28–34; Deut. 12:17–19).

16:4 The appointment of Levites described here was of a more permanent nature than that of 15:1–24, which concerned the immediate task of moving the ark into Jerusalem. Some of the same persons were involved, as vv. 5, 6 make clear.

16:7 This strongly implies that David himself composed the psalm. David's musical abilities were well attested (2 Sam. 22:1; see the superscriptions of Ps. 3–9). This psalm consists of three different parts. Each portion correlates with part of another psalm, as follows: 16:8–22 with Ps. 105:1–15; 16:23–33 with Ps. 96:1–13; and 16:34–36 with Ps. 106:1, 47, 48.

16:12 His marvelous works: David appealed to the nation to reflect upon God's faithfulness as manifested in the nation's history. The God who had proved Himself in the past was the One upon whom the unified nation could depend in the years to come.

16:13 servant . . . chosen ones: These words reflect the role of Israel as an elect nation called by God to serve Him as "a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (Ex. 19:6). David was very much aware of the importance of God's calling of Israel and of his responsibility as leader of this privileged nation.

16:15 The instrument that bound God and Israel together legally and formally was the covenant. This was an arrangement between two parties—in this case, a superior party and an inferior party—by which the two made solemn pledges of mutual loyalty and commitment. God's promises in the covenant were based on His faithful character.

16:16–18 To Abraham, God promised land (Gen. 12:7) and innumerable descendants (Gen. 15:5; 17:5–8). God designated Abraham's descendants as the people through whom He would bless all nations (Gen. 12:2, 3). In his psalm, David was reflecting on the reliability of God's promise to Abraham—a promise renewed to Isaac and confirmed to Jacob. Having just become king over all Israel, David was very much aware of God's faithfulness in granting the Israelites the land over which he had dominion.

16:19 very few: This refers to the time of the patriarchs. When Jacob went to Egypt, his extended family amounted to only 70 persons (Gen. 46:27).

(Heb. sharat) (16:4; Num. 3:31; Ps. 101:6) Strong's #8334

This Hebrew word means "to serve." The Hebrew term can denote honorable, high-level service, either secular or sacred. The secular sense of the term refers to the work of personal attendants, usually those who would succeed the office of the one served (Gen. 39:4; Josh. 1:1, 5). The sacred use of the word applies primarily to the work of priests, although occasionally Levites, and once even angels (15:2; Deut. 17:12; Ps. 103:21; see also Heb. 1:14). Most of the time the ministering is described as to or before the Lord, but the Levites are also said to minister to the priests (Num. 18:2), to the people (Num. 16:9; Ezek. 44:11), and to the tabernacle (Num. 1:50). Ministering before the Lord occasionally involved music and song (6:31, 32; 16:4, 5).

Regular Worship Maintained

³⁷ So he left ^wAsaph and his brothers there before the ark of the covenant of the LORD to minister before the ark regularly, as every day's work ^xrequired; ³⁸ and ^yObed-Edom with his sixty-eight brethren, including Obed-Edom the son of Jeduthun, and Hosah, to be gatekeepers; ³⁹ and Zadok the priest and his brethren the priests, ^zbefore the tabernacle of the LORD ^aat the ²high place that was at Gibeon, ⁴⁰to offer burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of burnt offering

16:20, 21 one nation to another: In patriarchal times, God's people moved about in Canaan and occasionally dwelt among other peoples such as the Egyptians (Gen. 12:10), Philistines (Gen. 20:1; 21:34; 26:1), and even the Hittites (Gen. 23:4, 17–20). reproved kings: This is a reference to God's judgment on Pharaoh (Gen. 12:17) and particularly his rebuke of Abimelech, the Philistine king of Gerar (Gen. 20:3–7).

16:22 Abraham and the patriarchs were not literally anointed with oil as though they were entering the priesthood or kingship. In this context, anointed ones means those set apart for God's service. prophets: Though the office of prophet as a “professional” calling began with Samuel, there were individuals from the earliest days of biblical history who were known as prophets. The reference here is specifically to Abraham, who is called a prophet in Gen. 20:7, the first occurrence of the word in the Bible.

16:25 above all gods: This does not admit the real possibility of other gods. Instead it refers to the various “gods” in which the pagans believed. The heathen might fear nonexistent gods, but the living Lord was to be feared more than them all, for He is alive and demands accountability.

16:31 The phrase, the LORD reigns, is an appeal for the universal recognition of the sovereignty of the God of Israel. The Lord had called Israel into a special covenant relationship with Himself, but He did not thereby reject the other nations. Indeed, the whole purpose of Israel's election was that Israel might be the light to the nations that would cause them to turn to the one true God (Is. 42:5–7; 43:8–13).

16:33 trees . . . rejoice: This is a figure of speech called “personification,” in which inanimate things are spoken of as if they had human characteristics. Because the whole creation was negatively affected by the fall of humanity into sin, it could not be restored to perfection and could not truly rejoice until humanity was redeemed. He is coming: This consummation of the ages will make all creation burst out in praise.

16:37 David appointed Asaph to be overall supervisor of worship before the Lord (see v. 5).

16:38 Obed-Edom: There are two men by this name in this verse. The first is the Obed-Edom whose house sheltered the ark for three months (13:14) and who was a chief doorkeeper (15:24). The second, also a gatekeeper, was a son of Jeduthun (perhaps the one known as Ethan; see 6:33, 39, 44).

16:39 Until the temple of Solomon was completed, there were two legitimate places for community worship—the Mosaic tabernacle at Gibeon and David's tabernacle on Mt. Zion. Zadok, a descendant of Eleazar, served at Gibeon, while Abiathar, a descendant of Aaron, served at Jerusalem (see 15:11).

16:40 There must have been such an altar on Mt. Zion, but the one at Gibeon was apparently considered more “official,” no doubt

Temple Music

Music was an important part of the religious life of Israel. Temple music consisted of singers and an orchestra. The singers and musicians could come only from the males of certain families. Likewise, the types of instruments were restricted. Instruments that were associated with women, with raucous merrymaking (such as the Egyptian sistrum), or with pagan worship were banned from the temple orchestra. The OT lists several kinds of instruments in the temple orchestra (15:28; 16:42; 25:1). These instruments include the big harp (nevel), the lyre (kinnor), the ram's horn (shophar), the trumpet (chatotserah), the timbrel (toph), and cymbals (metsiltayim). Cymbals were made of copper and were the only percussion instrument in the temple orchestra. They were used when the people were celebrating and praising God. Asaph, David's chief musician (16:5), was a cymbal player. When the people returned from captivity, Asaph's descendants were called to join singers and trumpets in praise to the Lord (Ezra 3:10).

Now the sons of Jeduthun were gatekeepers.

² Then Nathan said to David, “Do all that is in your heart, for God is with you.”

³ But it happened that night that the word of God came to Nathan, saying, ⁴ “Go and tell My servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD: “You shall ^b not build Me a house to dwell in. ⁵ For I have not dwelt in a house since the time that I brought up Israel, even to this day, but have gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to another. ⁶ Wherever I have moved about with all Israel, have I ever spoken a word to any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd My people, saying, ‘Why have you not built Me a house of cedar?’”’ ⁷ Now therefore, thus shall you say to My servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “I took you ^c from because it had been built under Moses' leadership (2 Chr. 1:3, 5, 6). Zadok and his fellow priests officiated at the regular morning and evening sacrifices in Gibeon. Early in his reign, Solomon also went to the high place at Gibeon to offer sacrifices—an act completely acceptable to God, who blessed him there (1 Kin. 3:4, 5, 10–13; see 2 Chr. 1:3, 11, 12).

16:41 Jeduthun: This was probably another name for the musician Ethan, who is usually named together with Asaph and Heman (see 15:17, 19; 6:33, 39, 44).

16:42 instruments of God: This brief expression refers to instruments that play songs or praises to God. It is difficult to overemphasize the importance of music in OT worship. The Book of Psalms in itself and constant references to choral and orchestral ministry demonstrate the significance of music (9:33; 15:16–24; 16:4–6; 25:1–31). Music was an important way in which the people worshiped their Creator.

17:1 Nathan the prophet: This is the first time in this book that a prophet's name appears. Nathan apparently served David and Solomon as a private chaplain or counselor (2 Sam. 7:2, 3; 12:1–15;

1 Kin. 1:8–30, 32–38, 45; 2 Chr. 29:25). One of his written works, “the book of Nathan the prophet,” provided a source for the composition of the books of Chronicles (29:29; 2 Chr. 9:29). A house of cedar indicates David's wealth, because cedar paneling was too expensive to be used in ordinary homes.

17:5 from tent to tent: This is a reference to the movement of God from the provisional “tabernacle of meeting” (Ex. 33:7), to the Mosaic tabernacle (Ex. 40:34–38), and then to the tabernacle David erected on Mt. Zion (16:1).

17:6 In addition to having “lived” in modest surroundings, God had also “lived” like a nomad, as the house of worship moved from one place to another. In the time of the judges, the tabernacle was at Shiloh (Josh. 18:1) and possibly Nob (1 Sam. 21:1). Before that, it had wandered with Israel through the Sinai desert before being set up at Gilgal (Josh. 4:19; 5:10). At this time it resided at Gibeon.

17:7 In the ancient Middle East generally, as well as in the OT, kings were often compared to shepherds (Is. 44:28; Zech. 10:3; 11:4–17). It was most fitting that David, who had literally shepherded sheep, should be called by God to shepherd His flock, Israel.

¹⁵ According to all these words and according to all this vision, so Nathan spoke to David.
^{16k} Then King David went in and sat before the LORD; and he said: “Who am I, O LORD God? And what is my house, that You have brought me this far? ¹⁷ And yet this was a small thing in Your sight, O God; and You have also spoken of Your servant’s house for a great while to come, and have regarded me according to the rank of a man of high degree, O LORD God. ¹⁸ What more can David say to You for the honor of Your servant? For You know Your servant. ¹⁹ O LORD, for Your servant’s sake, and according to Your own heart, You have done all this greatness, in making known all these great things. ²⁰ O LORD, there is none like You, nor is there any God besides You, according to all that we have heard with our ears. ^{21l} And who is like Your people Israel, the one nation on the earth whom God went to redeem for Himself as a people—to make for Yourself a name by great and awesome deeds, by driving out nations from before Your people whom You redeemed from Egypt? ²² For You have made Your people Israel Your very 17:8 made you a name: David’s reputation as a leader had become internationally known. He ranked with the great rulers of other nations.

17:9 appoint a place: This phrase did not suggest that Israel would move to a land other than Palestine, for that was the land of promise from the beginning (Gen. 13:14–17; 15:18–21; 17:8; Ex. 3:16, 17; 6:8; Deut. 1:8; Josh. 1:2–5). sons of wickedness: This was a general term for the Israelites’ enemies—those who had persecuted them and taken them from their homeland.

17:10–12 As used here, house meant dynasty. David had said that he would build a house—that is, a temple—for God, but God told David that He would build a house—that is, a dynasty—for David. A human monarchy blessed by God was already apparent in the promise God had made to Abraham (Gen. 17:6). In addition, when Jacob blessed his sons, he asserted that a scepter and lawgiver—that is, a king—would arise out of Judah (Gen. 49:10). Samuel anointed David as king (1 Sam. 16:1, 12, 13) and David received assurances that he would rule over Israel (1 Sam. 23:17; 24:20; 26:25; 28:17). But God’s promise to establish David’s dynasty forever was unprecedented.

your seed: This is a reference to Solomon. Here house can only mean temple, because God has no dynasty. The temple was the dwelling place of God among His people (1 Kin. 8:10, 11).

17:13 Father . . . son: This remarkable statement affirmed that the dynasty of David had such an intimate relationship with God that its kings would be considered God’s sons in an extraordinary way. him who was before you: This was a reference to Saul, from whom God had removed His blessing (see 10:14).

17:14 The focus clearly shifts here from David’s immediate successor, Solomon, to the entire succession of kings in David’s line. It was the kingdom and throne of the dynasty that would endure forever, a promise made possible only by the reign of Jesus Christ, the Son of David (Luke 1:32, 33).

17:16–18 David responded to God’s blessing with praise. house: David asked what made him the object of God’s grace. He did not have any credentials to deserve God’s amazing promises of an eternal kingdom. small thing: David’s lack of pedigree and royal ancestry were of no consequence to God, because He was not impressed by such things. What more can David say: Once the truth of the promise sank into David’s understanding, he found himself speechless.

17:20 any God besides You: This is a clear assertion of the uniqueness of Israel’s God. Statements such as “all gods” and “the gods of the peoples” in David’s song of thanksgiving (16:25, 26) must be understood in light of this clear confession that there is only one living God.

17:21 David’s observation here was not blind nationalism. As David continued to praise God, he expressed like Moses a theology of the election of Israel. God had chosen Israel, His treasured possession, by His will alone. The Israelites had nothing by which they could commend themselves to God. In fact, they were an insignificant and enslaved people (Deut. 7:6–11). Israel’s prominent place among the nations was due to the Lord’s abundant mercy.

17:22 Your very own people: This expression is clearly based on Ex. 19:5; Deut. 7:6; 14:2, where Israel is described as “a special treasure.” The statement lies at the very center of the Mosaic covenant. At Mt. Sinai, God had become the God of Israel; and Israel, in turn, had become the people of God.

(Heb. kisse) (17:12; Ps. 103:19; Is. 66:1) Strong’s #3678

The Hebrew word can refer to any kind of seat or chair (Ps. 1:1), but usually it refers to a seat of honor (Is. 22:23), especially a throne (Esth. 5:1). Frequently the word is used to denote royal position or authority (1 Kin. 16:11). To “set up” or “establish” a throne is to establish or confirm a king and his dynasty. David’s throne was particularly important in this respect, for in His covenant with David, God promised that the throne of David’s son would be “established forever” (17:12; Ps. 89:4). Although Solomon and the succeeding kings of Judah sat on David’s throne (1 Kin. 2:12; Jer. 22:2, 4), it is Jesus, the Son of David, who will fulfill this prophecy, reigning “upon the throne of David” forever (Is. 9:7).

own people forever; and You, LORD, have become their God.

23 “And now, O LORD, the word which You have spoken concerning Your servant and concerning his house, let it be established forever, and do as You have said. 24 So let it be established, that Your name may be magnified forever, saying, ‘The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, is Israel’s God.’ And let the house of Your servant David be established before You. 25 For You, O my God, ⁵ have revealed to Your servant that You will build him a house. Therefore Your servant has found it in his heart to pray before You. 26 And now, LORD, ⁶ You are God, and have promised this goodness to Your servant. 27 Now You have been pleased to bless the house of Your servant, that it may continue before You forever; for You have blessed it, O LORD, and it shall be blessed forever.”

David’s Further Conquests

18 After this ^a it came to pass that David ¹ attacked the Philistines, subdued them, and took Gath and its towns from the hand of the Philistines. 2 Then he ² defeated ^b Moab, and the Moabites became David’s ^c servants, and brought tribute.

3 And ^d David ³ defeated ⁴ Hadadezer king of Zobah as far as Hamath, as he went to establish his power by the River Euphrates. 4 David took from him one thousand chariots, ⁵ seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. Also David ⁶ hamstrung all the chariot horses, except that he spared enough of them for one hundred chariots.

5 When the ^e Syrians of Damascus came to help Hadadezer king of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand of the Syrians. 6 Then David put garrisons in Syria

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

The King’s Cabinet

The office of royal scribe or secretary appears frequently throughout the history of the kingdom. This high official seems to have had special assignments from time to time, but his regular duties included writing the royal correspondence and keeping the royal records—the annals of the events during the king’s reign. The office of recorder seems to have been one of high rank from the reign of King David on. He was called mazkir in Hebrew (“one who brings to mind”), and his official duty was to advise the king respecting important events. Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, served as recorder for both David and Solomon (18:15). The recorder represented Hezekiah in public business (Is. 36:22), and during the reign of Josiah the recorder was placed in charge of repairs of the temple (2 Chr. 34:8).

of Damascus; and the Syrians became David’s servants, and brought tribute. So the LORD preserved David wherever he went. 7 And David took the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. 8 Also from 7 Tibhath and from 8 Chun, cities of 9 Hadadezer, David brought a large amount of 1 bronze, with which 9 Solomon made the bronze 1 Sea, the pillars, and the articles of bronze.

9 Now when 2 Tou king of Hamath heard that David had 3 defeated all the army of Hadadezer king of Zobah, 10 he sent 4 Hadoram his son to King David, to greet him and bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer and 5 defeated him (for Hadadezer had been at war with Tou); and Hadoram brought with him all kinds of 6 articles of gold, silver, and bronze. 11 King David also dedicated 17:23 the word which You have spoken: David referred here to the covenant God had just made with him concerning his dynasty (17:7-14). David’s appeal to God to establish His word came immediately after his reference to the Exodus and the Mosaic covenant. David knew that God’s covenant with him was founded on God’s previous promises to Abraham.

18:1 This is the only record of David taking a Philistine city, although he had defeated the Philistines many times in battle. Gath was the Philistine city closest to Israelite territory, so it offered the greatest threat to Israel.

18:2 It must have been with mixed feelings that David undertook a campaign against the Moabites, for he had strong emotional links with Moab. His great-grandmother Ruth came from Moab (Ruth 4:13-17) and David had sent his own family there for protection when he was hiding from Saul (1 Sam. 22:3, 4).

18:3 The campaign here may be connected to the Aramean war more fully outlined in 19:1-19, because Hadadezer is mentioned in both places. His kingdom, Zobah, lay immediately north of Damascus. David pursued him as far as Hamath, a hundred miles beyond Damascus, in an effort to extend the Israelite empire all the way to the River Euphrates. David’s justification may have been God’s promise to Abraham that the land He was giving him would extend “from the river of Egypt to the great river, the River Euphrates” (Gen. 15:18).

18:5 The capital of the Aramean kingdom just north and northeast of Israel was Damascus.

18:6 servants . . . tribute: These technical terms, as in the case of Moab (v. 2), suggest that Damascus became a vassal state under Israel. Very quickly, Moab and Damascus became client states and Zobah an occupied territory.

18:8 To the two cities Tibhath . . . Chun, Samuel added a third Berothai (2 Sam. 8:8). All three are referred to in Egyptian texts. They were northeast of Baalbek in central Lebanon.

18:10 greet . . . bless: This apparently casual language covers a more formal situation in which Tou, king of Hamath, was approaching David in willing submission to him as king. In other words, what Moab and Damascus did involuntarily, Hamath was doing voluntarily, making itself a vassal state under Israel.

18:11 The fact that David dedicated all the spoils of war to God suggests that he viewed the battles as campaigns of holy war. In these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold that he had brought from all these nations—from Edom, from Moab, from the ⁱpeople of Ammon, from the ^jPhilistines, and from ^kAmalek.

¹²Moreover ^lAbishai the son of Zerui-ah killed ^meighteen thousand ⁶Edom-ites in the Valley of Salt. ¹³ⁿHe also put garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD preserved David wherever he went.

David's Administration

¹⁴So David reigned over all Israel, and administered judgment and justice to all his people. ¹⁵Joab the son of Zerui-ah was over the army; Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder; ¹⁶Zadok the son of Ahitub and ⁷Abimelech the son of Abiathar were the priests; ⁸Shavsha was the scribe; ¹⁷^oBenaiah the son of Jeho-aiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were ⁹chief ministers at the king's side.

The Ammonites and Syrians Defeated

19 It^a happened after this that Na-hash the king of the people of Ammon died, and his son reigned in his place. ²Then David said, "I will show kindness to Hanun the son of Nahash, because his father showed kindness to me." So David sent messengers to com-fort him concerning his father. And David's servants came to Hanun in the land of the people of Ammon to comfort him.

³And the princes of the people of Ammon said to Hanun, ¹"Do you think that David really honors your father be-cause he has sent comforters to you? Did his servants not come to you to search and to overthrow and to spy out the land?"

⁴Therefore Hanun took David's ser-vants, shaved them, and cut off their garments ²in the middle, at their ^bbut-tocks, and sent them away. ⁵Then some went and told David about the men; and he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, "Wait at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return."

⁶When the people of Ammon saw that they had made themselves repulsive to David, Hanun and the people of Ammon sent a thousand talents of silver to hire for themselves chariots and horsemen from ³Mesopotamia, from Syrian Maa-cah, ^cand from ⁴Zobah. ⁷So they hired for themselves thirty-two thousand char-iots, with the king of Maacah and his people, who came and encamped before Medeba. Also the people of Ammon gath-ered together from their cities, and came to battle.

⁸Now when David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army of the mighty men. ⁹Then the people of Ammon came out and put themselves in battle array before such war, initiated and led by God, all proceeds of the victory be-longed to Him. Such spoils were said to be "doomed to destruction" or "accursed" (Josh. 6:17, 18), meaning that they could not be used for secular purposes but were consecrated to God. When Solomon built the temple, he brought all the dedicated things into the temple treasuries (2 Chr. 5:1).

18:12 One of David's nephews (2:15, 16), Abishai, was included in one of the groups of David's "three mighty men" (11:19, 20). Valley of Salt: This was a few miles east of Beersheba.

18:13 The term servants suggests that Edom became not just a defeated foe, but also a vassal state under Israel's control. This al-lowed Edom to retain its own leadership, but it was under David's close supervision, as the reference to Israelite garrisons makes clear.

18:15 David awarded his nephew Joab (2:15, 16) the rank of com-mander of the army for his success in penetrating the walls of Jeru-salem (11:4-9). recorder: Jehoshaphat was the keeper of the royal archives or records. The chronicler himself may have had access to such documents when he composed the present work (see 27:24).

18:16 Zadok descended from Aaron through Eleazar (16:39). Abimelech: Abiathar, a descendant of Aaron's son Ithamar, had served as David's priest in the wilderness (1 Sam. 22:20) and later at Jerusalem (15:11). But he was disloyal to Solomon and was removed from office, leaving Zadok alone as high priest (1 Kin. 2:27, 35). It seems that David must have suspended Abiathar as well from ser-vice at some earlier point, for in the present passage his son Abime-lech was priest with Zadok.

18:17 Cherethites . . . Pelethites: These were elite companies of soldiers, probably mercenaries. They were commanded by Benaiah, a member of one of the groups of "three mighty men" (11:24). There were Philistines known as Cherethites (Ezek. 25:16; see 1 Sam. 30:14), and the connection between Pelethites and Philistines elsewhere

(2 Sam. 15:18) leads to the conclusion that they were all from Phi-listia. chief ministers: These were David's sons who served in his government. They are called by the Hebrew word usually translated "priests" in 2 Sam. 8:18.

19:1 Since Nahash was reigning in Saul's earliest years (1 Sam. 11:1), the present incident must have occurred early in David's reign at Jerusalem. Nahash evidently reigned for over 50 years (40 years of Saul, plus seven of David in Hebron, plus whatever years had passed in Jerusalem).

19:4 shaved . . . cut off: Ancient Semitic men were inordinately proud of their beards and scrupulously modest in their attire. The Ammonites humiliated David's men in the most offensive way possible.

19:6 made themselves repulsive: The Ammonites realized that David would surely retaliate for the way they had offended his delegation. thousand talents of silver: A talent was 75 pounds.

Mesopotamia: This was not the great land between the Tigris and the Euphrates inhabited by the Assyrians and Babylonians, but a district on the upper Euphrates known as Aram Naharaim. Syrian Maacah: This was a small kingdom located between Damascus and the Sea of Galilee.

19:7 The parallel account in 2 Sam. 10:6 does not mention chariots but says there was a total of 33,000 men. The chronicler does not mention the number of men, but only the chariots. Both writers gave different sources of the manpower and material, so clearly they were arriving at their totals from different perspectives or with different purposes in mind. Medeba was 20 miles southwest of Rabbah, the capital of Ammon. It is called Madaba today. Ammon gathered: The Israelites were apparently between the Aramean armies and the city of Rabbah (see v. 10), so when the Ammonites attacked from the city, the Israelites were pinned between two forces.

the gate of the city, and the kings who had come were by themselves in the field.

¹⁰When Joab saw that the battle line was against him before and behind, he chose some of Israel's best, and put them in battle array against the Syrians. ¹¹And the rest of the people he put under the command of Abishai his brother, and they set themselves in battle array against the people of Ammon. ¹²Then he said, "If the Syrians are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the people of Ammon are too strong for you, then I will help you. ¹³Be of good courage, and let us be strong for our people and for the cities of our God. And may the LORD do what is good in His sight."

¹⁴So Joab and the people who were with him drew near for the battle against the Syrians, and they fled before him. ¹⁵When the people of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fleeing, they also fled before Abishai his brother, and entered the city. So Joab went to Jerusalem.

¹⁶Now when the Syrians saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers and brought the Syrians who were beyond ⁵the River, and ⁶Shophach the commander of Hadadezer's army went before them. ¹⁷When it was told David, he gathered all Israel, crossed over the Jordan and came upon them, and set up in battle array against them. So when David had set up in battle array against the Syrians, they fought with him. ¹⁸Then the Syrians fled before Israel; and David killed ⁷seven thousand

So the Syrians were not willing to help the people of Ammon anymore.

Rabbah Is Conquered

20 It ^ahappened ¹in the spring of the year, at the time kings go out to battle, that Joab led out the armed forces and ravaged the country of the people of Ammon, and came and besieged Rabbah. But ^bDavid stayed at Jerusalem. And ^cJoab defeated Rabbah and overthrew it. ²Then David ^dtook their king's crown from his head, and found it to weigh a talent of gold, and there were precious stones in it. And it was set on David's head. Also he brought out the ²spoil of the city in great abundance. ³And he brought out the people who were in it, and ³put them to work with saws, with iron picks, and with axes. So David did to all the cities of the people of Ammon. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

Philistine Giants Destroyed

⁴Now it happened afterward ^ethat war broke out at ⁴Gezer with the Philistines, at which time ^fSibbechai the Hushathite killed ⁵Sippai, who was one of the sons of ⁶the giant. And they were subdued.

19:10 Completely surrounded, Joab split up his forces so that half faced those before and half faced those behind. Joab led the section that opposed the Syrians, and Abishai commanded the section that opposed the Ammonites (v. 11).

19:13 may the LORD do what is good in His sight: This may look like the resigned statement of a fatalist, but it was anything but that. Joab understood enough of the sovereignty and omniscience of God to know that after all human effort and energy had been expended, the battle was still God's.

19:15 The Syrians were mercenaries and had no real commitment to the task at hand. When it appeared that they were in danger of defeat, they fled. Their retreat so demoralized the Ammonites that they withdrew into the safety of their city.

19:17 Samuel located the setting of the battle at Helam (2 Sam. 10:17), about 40 miles east of the Sea of Galilee.

19:19 The defeat of Hadadezer and all his vassal kings brought about a shift in allegiance, so that all the Aramean states that had paid tribute to Zobah came under tribute to Israel. In this context, servants did not signify household slaves but national subservience to a greater power, in this case Israel. This effectively eliminated all the Arameans as allies of Ammon and precluded their being a further threat to Israel. With the subjugation of everything from Aram Maachah to the Euphrates, David occupied all the boundaries of the land of promise as outlined in the Abrahamic covenant (Gen. 15:18–21).

20:1 Great military operations were conducted in the spring of the year for two main reasons: (1) the latter rains were over and the dry months of summer, most suitable for military activity, were at hand; and (2) the barley harvests were in and the wheat harvests sufficiently well along to free men of military age for battle. besieged Rabbah: Having defeated the Aramean allies of Ammon at Helam (19:17, 19), Joab led Israel's armies against the main enemy and principal objective, the capital of the Ammonite kingdom, Rabbah. The modern city of Amman, Jordan, occupies the ancient site. David stayed at Jerusalem: This agrees with Samuel's account, but Samuel also related the sordid story of David's adultery with Bathsheba, the plot to kill her husband Uriah, and the birth of David's son—all of which took place while Joab was laying siege to Rabbah. The chronicler omitted the material because it was not relevant to his literary and theological purposes. He was showing how the Davidic dynasty was the fulfillment of God's promises.

20:2 David did not participate in the initial attack on Rabbah, but he did join Joab when it fell, because Joab earnestly entreated him to come share the credit for the victory (2 Sam. 12:27, 28). The crown David took was ceremonial and not for wearing, since it weighed a talent (about 75 pounds). set on David's head: This was only for this ceremonial occasion. David put the crown on his head to demonstrate that he had vanquished the Ammonites and now reigned over them as well.

20:3 It was common in OT times for people defeated in war to be consigned to forced labor, particularly if they had been coerced into some kind of vassal relationship (see Josh. 9:22–27; 1 Kin. 9:20, 21).

20:4 The city of Gezer was on the frontier between Israel and Philistia, and was constantly a bone of contention between them. Sibbechai the Hushathite: He was one of the 30 warriors who formed an elite corps (see 11:29). the giant: This apparently did not refer to a single individual, but to a giant race indigenous to the country east of the Jordan (Deut. 2:10, 11, 20, 21).

⁵Again there was war with the Philistines, and Elhanan the son of ⁷Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's ⁸beam.

⁶Yet again ^hthere was war at Gath, where there was a man of great stature, with twenty-four fingers and toes, six on each hand and six on each foot; and he also was born to ⁸the giant. ⁷So when he defied Israel, Jonathan the son of ⁹Shimea, David's brother, killed him.

⁸These were born to the giant in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

The Census of Israel and Judah

21 Now, ^aSatan stood up against Israel, and moved David to ¹number Israel. ²So David said to Joab and to the leaders of the people, "Go, number Israel from Beersheba to Dan, ^band bring the number of them to me that I may know it."

³And Joab answered, "May the LORD make His people a hundred times more than they are. But, my lord the king, are they not all my lord's servants? Why then does my lord require this thing? Why should he be a cause of guilt in Israel?"

⁴Nevertheless the king's word prevailed against Joab. Therefore Joab departed and went throughout all Israel and came to Jerusalem. ⁵Then Joab gave the sum of the number of the people to David. All Israel had one million one hundred thousand men who drew the sword, and Judah had four hundred and seventy thousand men who drew the sword. ^{6c}But he did not count Levi and Benjamin among them, for the king's ²word was abominable to Joab.

⁷And ³God was displeased with this thing; therefore He struck Israel. ⁸So David said to God, ^d"I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing; ^ebut now, I pray, take away the iniquity of Your servant, for I have done very foolishly."

⁹Then the LORD spoke to Gad, David's ^fseer, saying, ¹⁰"Go and tell David, ^gsaying, 'Thus says the LORD: 'I offer you three things; choose one of them for yourself, that I may do it to you.'"

¹¹So Gad came to David and said to him, "Thus says the LORD: 'Choose for yourself, ¹²^heither ⁴three years of famine, or three months to be defeated by your foes with the sword of your enemies overtaking you, or else for three days the sword of the LORD—the plague in the land, with the ⁵angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the territory of Israel.' Now consider what answer I should take back to Him who sent me."

¹³And David said to Gad, "I am in great distress. Please let me fall into the 20:7 Shimea: This was David's older brother, the third son of Jesse (2:13).

20:8 the giant: As in v. 4, this likely referred to a giant race living in and around Gath, though it is possible that a particular giant was in view. The Goliath killed by David was from Gath (1 Sam. 17:4).

21:1 The word Satan means "Adversary." While at first he was called "the Satan," this later came to be used as a proper name, Satan (see Zech. 3:1, 2). The NT identifies him as the evil one, the devil, and the dragon, thus linking him to the serpent in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 3:1). moved David: Samuel attributed David's impulse to number the people to God Himself (2 Sam. 24:1). The apparent contradiction can be resolved by recognizing that though Satan is the author of all evil, he cannot exercise his evil intentions apart from the permission of God. Moreover, God could use him to accomplish His own purposes of judgment (1 Kin. 22:19–23) or discipline (as here with David).

poses of judgment (1 Kin. 22:19–23) or discipline (as here with David).

21:2 Go, number: David's plan to take a census was not evil in itself, for the Lord Himself at other times had commanded the Israelites to be counted (see Num. 1). What was wrong with David's census was David's attitude—his pride. He wanted to know the number of the Israelites so that he could glory in the extent of his reign (see 2 Sam. 24:1). Beersheba to Dan: This was the traditional way of describing all of Israel from south to north. The distance is about 150 miles.

21:3 Joab was concerned that David's arrogant command for a census would bring punishment, not only on the king but on innocent citizens, whom Joab described as David's servants. David's position as king and shepherd of his people implicated them in whatever he did. cause of guilt: In a courageous appeal, Joab pointed out that if David's decision was put into effect David would be personally accountable for whatever followed.

21:6 The men of Levi, dedicated as they were to priestly service, were ordinarily exempt from military conscription (Num. 1:47–49). Benjamin: The reason this tribe was excluded may be that the judgment of God commenced before the task was completed (27:24). Perhaps Joab simply abandoned the task before he finished, his sense of revulsion growing more and more as he carried it out.

21:8 I have sinned: To his credit, David blamed no one but himself for the judgment of God that fell on the nation. He rightly believed that if God would forgive him, the affliction of the nation would also cease.

21:9 Gad is the second prophet named in the book (see 17:1). He also produced a composition to which the chronicler refers (29:29). Here the chronicler calls Gad a seer, a person who sees or receives revelations from the Lord. The author of Samuel refers to him by the more familiar term prophet (1 Sam. 22:5).

21:10 I offer . . . three things: This is the only place in the Bible where God offers someone a choice of punishments.

21:13 David knew that the Lord is merciful—a God who forgives.

Satan

(Heb. satan) (21:1; 1 Sam. 29:4; Job 2:1; Zech. 3:1) Strong's #7854

The Hebrew word from which Satan comes, which literally means "adversary," sometimes refers to human enemies (1 Sam. 29:4; Ps. 109:6). Once it refers to the angel of the Lord who opposed Balaam (Num. 22:22). But whenever this word is used as a proper name in the OT, it refers to the great superhuman enemy of God, people, and good (21:1; Job 1:2). This use of the word also occurs frequently in the NT. Satan is destined to fail in his continuing rebellion against God. The death of Christ on the cross is the basis for Satan's final defeat (Heb. 2:14, 15; 1 Pet. 3:18, 22). The final victory will come when Jesus returns and Satan is cast into the lake of fire (Rev. 20:1–15).

hand of the LORD, for His ⁱmercies are very great; but do not let me fall into the hand of man.”

¹⁴So the LORD sent a ^jplague upon Israel, and seventy thousand men of Israel fell. ¹⁵And God sent ⁶an ^kangel to Jerusalem to destroy it. As ⁷he was destroying, the LORD looked and ^lrelented of the disaster, and said to the angel who was destroying, “It is enough; now restrain ⁸your hand.” And the angel of the LORD stood by the ^mthreshing floor of ⁹Ornan the Jebusite.

¹⁶Then David lifted his eyes and ⁿsaw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, having in his hand a drawn sword stretched out over Jerusalem. So David and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, fell on their faces. ¹⁷And David said to God, “Was it not I who commanded the people to be numbered? I am the one who has sinned and done evil indeed; but these ^osheep, what have they done? Let Your hand, I pray, O LORD my God, be against me and my father’s house, but not against Your people that they should be plagued.”

¹⁸Therefore, the ^pangel of the LORD commanded Gad to say to David that David should go and erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. ¹⁹So David went up at the word of Gad, which he had spoken in the name of the LORD. ²⁰Now Ornan turned and saw the angel; and his four sons who were with him hid themselves, but Ornan

continued threshing wheat. ²¹So David came to Ornan, and Ornan looked and saw David. And he went out from the threshing floor, and bowed before David with his face to the ground. ²²Then David said to Ornan, ⁱ“Grant me the place of this threshing floor, that I may build an altar on it to the LORD. You shall grant it to me at the full price, that the plague may be withdrawn from the people.”

²³But Ornan said to David, “Take it to yourself, and let my lord the king do what is good in his eyes. Look, I also give you the oxen for burnt offerings, the threshing implements for wood, and the wheat for the grain offering; I give it all.”

²⁴Then King David said to Ornan, “No, but I will surely buy it for the full price, for I will not take what is yours for the LORD, nor offer burnt offerings with that which costs me nothing.” ²⁵So ^qDavid gave Ornan six hundred shekels of gold by weight for the place. ²⁶And David built there an altar to the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and called on the LORD; and ^rHe answered him from heaven by fire on the altar of burnt offering.

²⁷So the LORD commanded the angel, and he returned his sword to its sheath.

²⁸At that time, when David saw that the LORD had answered him on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, he sacrificed there. ²⁹^sFor the tabernacle of the LORD and the altar of the burnt offering, which Moses had made in the David’s willingness to fall into the hand of the LORD demonstrated his complete trust in the grace of God. Even when God was punishing him, David trusted God rather than man—God’s forgiving nature over any leniency people might offer.

21:15 The Lord requires certain conditions people must meet in order for Him to act one way or another. One aspect of this is prayer, for often God chooses to act in specific cases according to whether and how His people pray. This was clearly the case here, since God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it, but when He saw David’s repentance and heard his intercessory prayer (v. 17), He relented.

21:16 Sackcloth was a rough garment usually made of goat’s hair (Is. 50:3), worn by mourners to express grief (1 Kin. 21:27; Is. 32:11). David and the elders of Israel were dressed in such a manner because of the terrible calamity brought on the nation by the plague.

21:17 By calling his people sheep, David was acknowledging himself as their shepherd (17:7). Since that designation first arose in the context of God’s covenant promises, David’s reference to his people as sheep very likely attested to his feelings of covenant unfaithfulness and irresponsibility. He was supposed to be the one who guided the flock to safety and security, but by his arrogance in numbering the people he had brought them harm.

21:18 Building an altar in a time of judgment or impending judgment was for the purpose of offering propitiatory sacrifices. Sin had caused a breach between God and His people. The presentation of appropriate burnt offerings and peace offerings (v. 26) would be the occasion for reconciliation, as the Law explained (Num. 15:1–10). threshing floor: The altar was located precisely where the angel of the Lord stood with sword in hand to destroy Jerusalem (v. 15). This place of judgment would thereby become the place of grace and forgiveness.

21:22 Grant me . . . this threshing floor: David wanted the altar at precisely this place because this is where the angel stood with drawn sword (v. 15), and as was certainly known to David, this was where Abraham had prepared to offer Isaac as a sacrifice to God (Gen. 22:1, 2; see 2 Chr. 3:1). It is fitting that this holy place should be the site of an altar where David could make atonement for his sins and thus effect the withdrawal of the plague.

21:24 David again showed a clear perception of the essence of sacrifice. Until he owned what Ornan had, and until he had expended his own resources for it, he could not use it as an offering to God. which costs me nothing: While David could have rightfully accepted these gifts without paying for them, he felt that this would not suffice as sacrifice. A true sacrifice to God required labor and investment on David’s part.

21:25 The chronicler referred to the price for the whole place, probably several acres of valuable property. The fact that the temple was later built here suggests a large area.

21:26 Just as a three-year drought ended in the days of Elijah when the prophet called down fire on a sacrifice at Carmel (1 Kin. 18:38, 41), so the three-day plague God brought on Israel ended with the sacrifice at Ornan’s threshing floor.

21:28 he sacrificed there: Once David saw that God had sanctified the spot by setting fire to the sacrifice, he continued to use the altar as a regular place of offering.

21:29 This verse teaches explicitly that the original tabernacle and altar of the burnt offering had not been destroyed when the ark was taken from Shiloh. The OT account does not trace their movement fully after Shiloh, but they did end up at Nob and finally at Gibeon (see 15:1).

wilderness, were at that time at the high place in ¹Gibeon. ³⁰But David could not go before it to inquire of God, for he was afraid of the sword of the angel of the LORD.

David Prepares to Build the Temple

22 Then David said, ^a“This is the house of the LORD God, and this is the altar of burnt offering for Israel.” ²So David commanded to gather the ^baliens who were in the land of Israel; and he appointed masons to ^ccut hewn stones to build the house of God. ³And David prepared iron in abundance for the nails of the doors of the gates and for the joints, and bronze in abundance ^dbeyond measure, ⁴and cedar trees in abundance; for the ^eSidonians and those from Tyre brought much cedar wood to David.

⁵Now David said, ^f“Solomon my son is young and inexperienced, and the house to be built for the LORD must be exceedingly magnificent, famous and glorious throughout all countries. I will now make preparation for it.” So David made abundant preparations before his death.

⁶Then he called for his son Solomon, and ¹charged him to build a house for the LORD God of Israel. ⁷And David said to Solomon: “My son, as for me, ^git was in my mind to build a house ^hto the name of the LORD my God; ⁸but the word of the LORD came to me, saying, ⁱ“You have shed much blood and have made great wars; you shall not build a house for My name, because you have shed much blood on the earth in My sight. ^{9j}Behold, a son shall be born to you, who shall be a man of rest; and I will give him ^krest from all Arise and begin working, and ^sthe LORD be with you.”

¹⁷David also commanded all the ¹leaders of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying, ¹⁸“Is not the LORD your God with you? ^uAnd has He not given you rest on every side? For He has given the inhabitants of the land into my hand, and the land is subdued before the LORD and before His people. ¹⁹Now set your heart

21:30 David could not go before it: It was David's custom to offer burnt offerings on the altar at Gibeon rather than on the one in Jerusalem. He did not dare go to Gibeon this time because of the judgment that God was about to pour out on the land. He understood that his offerings had to be offered where he was—at the threshing floor of Ornan.

22:1 This observation by David marks a significant turning point in the history of the central sanctuary. As long as the ark remained at Kirjath Jearim and the Mosaic tabernacle was at Nob and Gibeon, it was impossible for worship to be carried out in the manner originally intended. David had taken the first steps toward remedying that by bringing the ark to Jerusalem and placing it in a tent that he provided on Mt. Zion. At last, and in a way totally unforeseen by anyone, the resolution of the problem was at hand. The house of the LORD God and the altar of burnt offering would be built on the threshing floor of Ornan.

22:2 The fact that David could not build the temple did not prevent him from providing building materials for the use of Solomon's craftsmen.

22:4 Cedar trees came from Lebanon, the principal supplier of timber in the ancient Middle Eastern world. The most expert builders also hailed from Lebanon, and from cities like Sidon and Tyre.

22:5 Solomon was born about halfway through David's reign. He reigned with his father for about two years (23:1; 28:1; 29:22). Since David was only beginning to gather building materials for the temple, Solomon could not have been over 18 years old. It was precisely because Solomon was so young and inexperienced that David found it necessary to provide guidance for his son.

22:8, 9 You have shed much blood: The reason that God did not allow David to build the temple comes to light—David was a man of war. Until the enemies of Israel were subdued and an era of peace inaugurated, God determined that He would not “live” in a temple. David's son Solomon would be a man of rest; that is, a king whose reign would be free from constant warfare. At that time of peace, God had resolved that a temple would be built.

22:12 Having just observed the youth and inexperience of Solomon (v. 5), David knew that his son needed wisdom more than any other single gift. the law of the LORD: This cannot be limited to only the sections of the Law pertaining to kingship (see Deut. 17:14–20), although this is the central focus. David must have had in mind the covenant of kingship to which he himself had subscribed when he became king at Hebron (11:3).

22:18 Rest, or peace, was a precondition for building the temple (22:8, 9). subdued before the LORD: In the final analysis, the conquest of the land begun in Joshua's time and completed under David, was a divine and not a human matter. The land was the Lord's and His people were His tenants. Therefore, only when God Himself brought the land into subjection would He authorize construction of a temple.

22:19 David's dreams and desires are encapsulated in this brief and your soul to seek the LORD your God. Therefore arise and build the sanctuary of the LORD God, to ^vbring the ark of the covenant of the LORD and the holy articles of God into the house that is to be built ^wfor the name of the LORD.”

The Divisions of the Levites

23 So when David was old and full of days, he made his son ^aSolomon king over Israel.

²And he gathered together all the leaders of Israel, with the priests and the Levites. ³Now the Levites were numbered from the age of ^bthirty years and above; and the number of individual males was thirty-eight thousand. ⁴Of these, twenty-four thousand were to ^clook after the work of the house of the LORD, six thousand were ^dofficers and judges, ⁵four thousand were gatekeepers, and four thousand ^epraised the LORD with musical instruments, ^f“which I made,” said David, “for giving praise.”

⁶Also ^gDavid separated them into ¹divisions among the sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

⁷Of the ^hGershonites: ²Laadan and Shimei. ⁸The sons of Laadan: the first Jehiel, then Zetham and Joel—three in all. ⁹The sons of Shimei: Shelomith, Haziël, and Haran—three in all. These were the heads of the fathers’ houses of Laadan. ¹⁰And the sons of Shimei: Jahath, ³Zina, Jeush, and Beriah. These were the four sons of Shimei. ¹¹Jahath was the first and Zizah the second. But Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons; therefore they were assigned as one father’s house.

²⁵For David said, “The LORD God of Israel ^bhas given rest to His people, that they may dwell in Jerusalem forever”; ²⁶and also to the Levites, “They shall no longer ^ccarry the tabernacle, or any of the articles for its service.” ²⁷For by the ^dlast verse. At that time, the sanctuary was divided—at Gibeon and Mt. Zion—and the ark was not united with the altar at Zion (see v. 1). More than anything else, David wanted the Israelites to worship the Lord as He had instructed them.

23:1 made . . . Solomon king: The phrasing suggests that this is an official appointment of Solomon to be coregent with David, a choice that had to be accepted and later ratified by the whole nation (see 29:22).

23:3 A Levite normally entered service at age 25 (Num. 8:24, 25). However, exceptions were made (Num. 4:3) to answer the needs of various time periods and ministries. Evidently in David’s time enough Levites could be found aged thirty and over that there was no need to call younger Levites into service.

23:4 the work of the house of the LORD: The work clearly involved anything around the temple except the work of gatekeepers and musicians, who had their own divisions (v. 5). officers and judges: To provide ready access to the Levites in matters of religious questions and activities, six thousand Levites were distributed throughout the land (see 26:29–32), presumably in the Levitical cities (6:54–81).

23:13 give the blessing: This referred to the priestly benediction of Num. 6:24–26.

23:14 sons of Moses: Because the priesthood was limited to Aaron, brother of Moses, and his descendants, Moses and his sons could not have served as priests. However, they could assume other responsibilities of Levites (see Judg. 18:30).

23:20 Uzziel was the fourth son of Kohath (v. 12). There were nine Kohathite divisions of Levites: two from Amram, one from Izhar, four from Hebron, and two from Uzziel.

23:22 Eleazar, son of Mahli, left no sons, so his daughters married their cousins, the sons of Kish. This resulted in a merger of the two lines of Mahli into one, so there was only one Levitical division through this branch of the Merarites.

23:23 The Mushi branch of Merarites produced three Levitical divisions in David’s temple organization, making four in all, including the one traced to Mahli.

23:24 These were the sons of Levi: All three Levitical lines resulted in a total of 22 divisions, nine Gershonite, nine Kohathite, and four Merarite (24:18; 25:31). twenty years and above: At the beginning of the lists of divisions, the minimum age of the Levites was 30 (v. 3). The number twenty here was not a contradiction, for as v. 27 makes clear, the lower age was set by David in his last words. It seems that as time went by even 38,000 Levites were not sufficient, so that within two years or so it was necessary to lower the minimum age requirement.

23:27 by the . . . words of David: This remarkable statement made David almost a second Moses, in the sense that he was free to change a Mosaic legislation without challenge or reproach.
